The reply to this immediately may be that industries are purely business enterprises. They will go where they think conditions are most favorable to them, regardless of whether it be a big city or a comparatively small town. To a considerable extent that is true but not entirely so because the smaller, far-seeing, progressive municipalities will often afford better advantages, because of their location, than the centre which, as a result of the publicity work it does, is able to convince companies of its superior attractions.

Three factors play, of course, a significant part in selection by companies of sites, namely, transportation facilities, the availability of labor and the cost of land and terms of assessment. It has been found, though, that under general circumstances a small, growing town or city may be in quite as good a position to meet these needs as they arise as are the centres of great population.

In any case the principle of scattering industries all over the country and avoiding too much centralization is economically sound, there is no doubt about that, and when sound economic laws are ignored, trouble comes sooner or later.

What has happened in Canada to prove this? Let us see. The long depression period, following the crash of 1929, tells the story. The big centres of population saw the worst unemployment scenes. When, as took place eleven or twelve years ago, money tightens and industries have to run on part time or close down entirely, thousands of men and women are thrown out of work and those thousands are all huddled within square miles of brick and mortar walls. Men are simply stunned. They don't know what to do or where to go because they often are not even acquainted with their neighbors. They are too far removed by distance and environment to be familiar with rural life, familiar enough to easily turn and adapt themselves to it, thereby getting some kind of a living.

In contrast to this the same degree of acute want and helplessness is not experienced in the moderately sized city or the town. Unemployment there will be, of course, but some way people are more able to adjust themselves to unforeseen developments.

Statesmen in Europe who have had an intimate knowledge of all important matters affecting the social, political and economic affairs of their nations, have more than once advised against too much centralization of people, governments, institutions, industries and so on. They have learned what ills follow this modern herding tendency of the masses and of what they create. Their advice has been little heeded.

What well may be argued is that medium-sized cities in many instances do not make their advantages known as widely and favorably as the big centres. The latter sometimes have a good deal of money and energy to spend on promoting what is alluring for location and in offering generous co-operation with those who have the right to say where their new plant will or will not locate.

Transportation facilities and help are two rather vital requirements but they often can be provided in a city like Peterborough just as well as they can in a city many times its size. If some policy could be devised by which, over a period of years, decentralization would be accepted in spirit as wise for the people of the country as a whole, ways and means could be discovered without much trouble of satisfying industrial needs or those of the average business. Such a policy would mean much in avoiding a recurrence of bread lines.

Hitler's Commonplaces

The editor of the Times, down in Gettysburg, Pa., is a discriminating man. He explained in a front page "dog ear" that the speech of Hitler, who harranged in Berlin last week, was too "inconsequential and trite" to be worth space. When one reads what appeared in some of the papers, he is forced to agree that Der Fuehrer is like a vulture, beating the air with his wings.

When any man, no matter how much he may be despised, is the head of millions of people and makes a public address which has to do with the policy of his nation, there should be something of importance for that man to give out or he should keep quiet. Hitler, however, with the Minister of Propaganda at his elbow, and severe laws in force requiring Germans to listen and to read his every boastful word—stands up and pledges "another year of victories" to his people, as though he and his marauders had had unlimited success in 1941. Successes they did have but during the past few months they have been meeting their equal everywhere and more than their equal in Russia.

There is ironic humor, though, in the Dictator's reference to the weather as having been responsible for German reverses up Moscow and Ukraine way. That little joke is in itself worth space in a daily paper, but the rest of his rehashed piffle, wasn't.

Vastness Of The Drama

Two photographic reproductions appearing in the Examiner on Tuesday told quite a story. Over them was the caption: Meet Admiral Ice and General Mud. The one showed a British cruiser engaged in the work of keeping the Arctic lifeline to Russia open through the cold, ice and snow of far-northern winter; the other was a view of Royal Air Force men trying to get rid of some of the mud resulting from rain storms in Libya.

These two battle fronts are thousands of miles apart. They stimulate the imagination to picture the vastness of the areas over which the armed forces of the nations are fighting today. The globe is approximately 25,000 miles around and upon practically all the seas and the lands of that enormous mileage armed vessels are plying, airmen are flying and on ground levels armies are moving. Then, too, from the North Pole to the South Pole, taking in, for example, the whole Western Hemisphere, the countless millions of human beings who come and go upon the earth's surface are either at war as combatants or as civilians, contributing to it in some way or other. As we in Peterborough and district, for instance, are thinking of the Victory Loan, of the proposed plebiscite, of our men overseas and of similar matters, consequent of our participation in the conflict, so on the opposite side of the globe—in Australia and New Zealand—the populations there are also tensed by the exigencies of the titanic struggle. Then, again, from the southern tips of far-away South America and of South Africa and from Greenland and Spitsbergen to the Philippines and north China, the meaning of war is likewise felt.

In view of these facts it can be realized, to some small extent, what stupendous problems the governments and military strategists have in the complex drama being enacted on the world's stage.

Election Excesses

It takes a by-election such as that in South York, and now the scrap in Welland, to demonstrate what a prolific vocabulary means. There are English dictionaries with as many as 2,600 pages, and large pages at that, packed full of words and definitions in small type, and yet an observer is driven to wonder whether even all that language is capable of expressing everything some people would like to say about others in these two domestic political feuds.

In normal weather, most people go about their every-day activities in an ordinary, unobtrusive way and are regarded as reasonably decent human beings who try hard to respect the principles of society. Nobody would think of suggesting they are scoundrels, rogues, liars, thieves, deceivers, base plotters, deep-dyed criminals and fellow conspirators generally with Satan and his minions. Even the sharp-eyed sleuths engaged by the machinery of justice do not seem to get onto the fact that there are such dangerous characters running at large.

And yet what takes place when the heat of an election is on, such as these two constituencies are going through? It is this: The things said and written about candidates are so shocking that the marvel is that new words are not coined to say what some persons apparently feel but cannot voice. Surely elections could be conducted on a little higher, cleaner level. Because, people hold decidedly opposite views on public matters is no reason why candidates, no matter what their ideas, should be made the targets for vitriol, mud and hatred. The average man who presents himself for public office, whether it be national or local, must have a body of steady-going, morally-minded citizens behind him or he wouldn't get to the front in a two or three-man election. He is no doubt as good a citizen as his neighbors and probably the police court blotter is quite free from his name. Why, then, should personal animosities and partisan prejudice become too vile in utterance?

It is not only natural but proper that issues should be discussed, and debated, weighed and tossed about. Even though in boxing, wrestling and other rough sports there are rules forbidding excesses of violence, so why shouldn't there be some rules of courtesy enforced in an event as important as the selection of a man, or men, to represent electors in Parliament? One could never have dreamed in long years that in South York, for example, either Mr. Meighen or Mr. Noseworthy could possibly be as bad as he is painted. The only conceivable good which may come out of it all is that scores of persons will have a chance in this way to get rid of some of the evil spleen that must be in them. Meanwhile the reputations of two persons, ordinarily reputable, are being besmirched and no doubt some of the real fundamentals affecting government and administration are being beclouded.

NOTE AND COMMENT

February is the baby month of the year but like many little ones, it has a bad temper.

Some of us have one thing, anyway, in our favor. We don't have to put our timepieces ahead on February 9 as the tardy elsewhere have to do. Ha, ha!

It is really surprising how many people can make a stew without oysters, meat, vegetables or any other food property. They just heat up and boil over on the least provocation.

Australia and New Zealand, Canada's sister Dominions, are likely to play a notable part in the Pacific war because of the turn of circumstances. They are located in those far Eastern waters.

The common saying is that no man is so valuable that somebody else could not take his place quite well. Apparently four hundred and more parliamentarians in the British House of Commons didn't think that of Churchill. There was only one out of the entire membership of that opinion when it came to a vote of confidence. Too much weight is not to be put upon commonplaces.

When the bear saw his shadow and went back to his burrow to sleep for another six weeks he showed good judgment. He decided that he was not great enough in civilization as it is today for his shadow to be worth looking at twice. Besides, he is going to take what quite a few mortals would like but don't get, namely, a good long snooze. Even when there is a chance on a Sunday or holiday morning, the telephone has to start ringing, the furnace needs to be re-fueled and the baby, when there is one, demands his breakfast. So there goes sleep. Why, then, shouldn't bruin, who is something of a philosopher, snuggle down in his nest and tell the world it can be hung at daybreak for all he cares?

TO RUSSIA

So long as earth rotates in sun-warmed firmament,
So long as men have courage, truth and judgment,
So long shall Russians of this fateful year be honored!

These loved their land, these loved their liberties,
Better than life itself. Their Motherland they cherished
(Scorning high-sounding speech and frenzied rhetoric)
Bravely with freely-given blood and agony,
Deep-drawn, when steel to steel they met the Hitler hordes!
Met and withstood! As Moscow, Leningrad,
And glorious Rostov proudly stand and testify.
Magnificent scorched earth! Painful though splendid cautery!
Cities re-born shall soon that sacrifice redeem.

Russia, fight on! Your sturdy, ancient Motherland
Shall surely thrive again, saved by her trusty moujiks' blood.

How Women Can Help Canada's Big War Effort

ONE of the most frequent inquiries made today is in regard to the part that women can play in helping forward Canada's war effort. There are a very large number of women of all ages who manifest a keen desire to enter actively into some sort of war work, but very few of them appear to know where to turn for information as to the direction in which their activities could be most profitably utilized.

Recently authority was given for the establishment in the Department of National War Services of a separate division to be known as The Women's Voluntary Services Division, the purpose of which would be to give leadership to the many different women's organizations across Canada in connection with our war effort. The idea was that this division would work through existing organizations continuing on a community basis rather than forming any new organizations on a national basis. It is expected that the division will very shortly be put into active operation.

Meantime the Department recommends women generally to concentrate on the work already being carried on by the many women's organizations which are engaged in a variety of fields directly or indirectly within the scope of war work, and which need volunteer workers and supporters in their manifold activities for raising funds for specific war efforts. The I.O.D.E., the Red Cross, the Canadian Legion, the Y.W.C.A., the Knights of Columbus and many similar organizations have plenty of room for volunteers in their varied programmes, such as workers in canteens, hostels and hostess houses. The Red Cross of course welcomes all who can knit any of the numerous articles needed for distribution among the armed forces both at home and abroad, as well as helpers and donors in connection with their blood donor clinics.

Younger women who have no home responsibilities can volunteer for service in the Canadian Women's Auxiliary Air Force or the Canadian Women's Army Corps, as many have already done. One of the main concerns of housewives should be the safeguarding of the health of their families, in order that all may be the better able to carry on their war work. Women are in the best position to practice practical economy in the household, both as to food and clothing, and thus help swell the amount that can be invested in War Savings Certificates and Victory Bonds.

Then women have a very important part to play in co-operating with the Government in regard to gasoline and sugar rationing, and the conservation of such products as bacon and cheese, which are needed for export to Britain. Mr. Donald Gordon, chairman of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board, has already discussed in detail the valuable part women can play in aiding the Board's policy of a ceiling in commodity prices to operate successfully. They can also help by curtailing the use of luxuries, such as cosmetics, and can certainly do very valuable work in assisting the National Salvage Campaign by setting aside for removal by the salvage collectors' vehicles the various products needed, such as paper, rags, bones and fats.

Women who are free to do so, and are physically able, can take training for work in factories or on farms which would release men for service for the armed forces, as hundreds of thousands of women are doing in Great Britain today, and to a lesser degree in Australia. Women who have the time to spare and the necessary physical equipment could do far worse than learn to drive ambulances. The elementary principles of First Aid should be studied by all. It might help to an invaluable extent in case we were faced with conditions which necessitated the operation of an Air Raid Precaution Force.

There is also one field which has been hardly exploited at all at the present time, open to women who possess the gift of public speaking. They can and should keep themselves well informed of Canada's war effort through the press and through material which they can obtain on application to the Bureau of Public Information at Ottawa, and thus qualify themselves to give informative talks to clubs and groups of women on this all-important topic.

These are some of the spheres of activity in which the aid of women could be of the greatest value to the Dominion's war effort. The important thing for each woman to decide is, first, what she can best do in any one or more of these fields, and then get into touch as quickly as possible with the nearest local organization that can facilitate her starting to work.—Montreal Star.

WANING MAN POWER

THE expansion of the Indian Army has made such rapid progress that there is a dearth of officers, both Indian and European. Under conscription in India there has been a drastic comb-out of Europeans of military age with the object of supplying the European quota for officering the army. There is still, however, an urgent need for entrants for the commissioned ranks and if Ceylon could supply suitable officers-to-be, she would be performing a signal service, and there would be the knowledge that most of the men entering the Indian Army would soon see active service.—Times of Ceylon (Colombo).

"STONE WALLS AND IRON BARS"

• Singapore, New Verdun

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6 (AP)—The opening trial by fire of Britain's lesser Gibraltar, the Singapore Island keystone of her arch of Empire, holds the spotlight in the war news. Its fate must deeply influence the course of the war, not in the Pacific alone but on all fronts.

Japanese failure to take the Singapore citadel by storm within a reasonable time or to batter it into submission with shells and bombs could mark that name in the history of this war as Verdun was red-lettered in the annals of the first Great War. That was the first disastrous German failure of that war. It was the beginning of the end, although more than two years were to elapse, years of blood, sweat and tears, before that end came.

REINFORCEMENTS BY AIR

Verdun cost the Kaiser losses from which his armies never fully recovered. Singapore, water-protected from mechanized land attack, could cost the Japanese relatively greater casualties. Given air equality, its garrison probably could withstand siege for months or years.

There are some signs that the first wave of great Anglo-American reinforcements promised Singapore's defenders by General Sir Archibald Wavell will be an air wave. As Japanese siege lines were manned along the mainland shore of Johore Strait and the preliminary duel of the guns began, the first word that United States Army fighter pilots and planes had clashed with the foe over Java stimulated hope of the beleaguered Britons.

Washington said only a few American fighter ships were engaged; but, that they traded two-for-one losses with the Japanese. While there is nothing to show that these particular planes represent fresh reinforcements shipped across the Pacific since the war began, it is reasonable to expect that the Allies will build up land-based air power in Java to meet an intensified Japanese air attack on that central bulwark of Allied defence lines.

USING PLANE CARRIERS

The Jap planes attacking Java seem to be based on aircraft carriers. No Japanese foothold yet attained in the Netherlands Indies is close enough to permit its use as a base for fighter planes escorting bombers attacking Java south coast objectives. That limits the scope of such attacks, lessens the odds which Netherlands-American air fighters must face.

It offers also a special target for Allied air and sea patrols in the Java Sea. Should they stumble upon Japanese plane carriers hovering in those waters to launch and receive returning fighter escorts for land-based long-range bombers, a chance to smash the attack at its source would present itself.

It is not yet clear whether the widening and destructive Japanese air attack on Java bases is a covering move for an attempted invasion of that island, even before the Battle of Singapore is fought to a finish, or primarily designed to prevent air relief for Singapore. The first objective must be more more immediately vital to the success of the Singapore siege than the second.

Once an adequate force of planes was available to General Wavell on Java and other Netherlands islands, he could decisively alter the odds at Singapore. Allied air control over that hot corner of the South Pacific, or even relative air equality, would largely nullify the effect of Japan's whole Malayan campaign.

• Teachers, Cost of Living

A [illegible] just hired as extra help in a peacetime factory or a green worker of either sex taken on in any wartime Government plant or even the lowly "swamper" who washes spittoons in the padded-chair sanctums of Controllers and dollar-a-year men, all....each and every one of them are entitled to and get a cost-of-living bonus from the moment they are hired. It runs around $3.50 per week or more. But the soldier's wife or mother can't get it. The Government won't sanction it except indirectly. In the case of a soldier's dependent a sort of bonus is provided. It is given on the basis of children. The first child gets $12 per month, or rather the mother gets that extra. The next one is entered at the same rate. If a third is born, the ante is $9.00 and finally the fourth child is bonused by Ottawa at $6.00. Then the handouts cease.

But the mother of a soldier, even if alone, aged and paralyzed, gets sometimes $15, sometimes $20 and "if real needy," $25. But what we started out to do was to show, by contrast, the absurdities of the whole system. Two [illegible] ought to [illegible] first consideration throughout the length and breadth of this land are helpless dependents and public school teachers. The Statesman always has championed the interests of teachers and claims that there are no more important people in the world than well trained, competent teachers. Over the whole course of the year their salaries leave little margin, and if responsible for family care or expenses with doctors' bills and so forth, there is no margin.

Their highly professional duties fall into those interstices in our democratic system of autonomy which leaves their economic welfare at the mercy of Trustees or Boards of Education which display general astigmatism when salary raises are discussed. In the matter of authority, the Dominion, of course, resigned at Confederation, which resulted in the attenuated and jealously defended grades all the way from Provincial overlordship to hinterland conceits. There can be no cost-of-living for teachers until wartime Governments subsidize or split the costs.—Bowmanville Canadian Statesman.

A MUD MIRACLE

WHEN we were youngsters and got stung by a bee a handful of mud was clamped over the sting as a poultice and shortly after the pain was gone and the mark of the sting disappeared. Now science has reached for a handful of mud to bring to suffering humanity perhaps the miracle cure of the ages.

Gramicidin is the name of the new drug that comes from mud. It is more powerful than sulfanilamide. One-millionth of a teaspoonful is said to be sufficient to protect a mouse from 10,000 fatal doses of pneumonia germs. It is already indicated as curing pneumonia in adults.

It is recorded that the Christ dipped his finger in the mud in some of His miracle cures. Perhaps He was showing men that the simple things confound the wise. Perhaps He was revealing to man that God has put into the earth the power to cure the ills of the flesh.

For years the mud bath has been recommended as cure for many ailments but it was not until Dr. Rene Dubose of New York started experimenting with mud that it was found to contain organisms that battle and destroy the dread streptococcus germs.

It is another step of science but out of it all comes the revelation that the most commonplace things of the earth can be the repository of miracles.—Kitchener Record.

BACK TO SOAP KETTLE

SOME millions of pamphlets are being scattered about Canada urging people to save household fats and bones and telling them that it is possible to make first-class soap from animal fats.

What a long way Canadians of today have moved from the customs of their forebears if they have to receive such information formally and officially! Their grandmothers did not need to be told that animal fats can make good soap. They had constant demonstrations of the fact.

The war is bringing old economies back to us. Perhaps among others it will bring the soap kettle and the soft soap and hard soap of far-off days. If we are to pay for this war—and that is our job—we shall have to turn our resources to account instead of sending them to the incinerator or pouring them down the sewer—Vancouver Province.

To The Editor . . .

NEEDS SHAKING UP

Editor Examiner:

Sir,—I quite agree with the 16th Battery man when he says the Legion wants a shaking up. It should be a comfortable home for every returned soldier in the city of Peterborough and be strictly confined to returned soldiers. I am not a drinking man myself but I think the returned soldiers should be allowed the privilege to purchase a glass of beer in his own home (the Legion Hall) providing he is a member. My reason for saying so is because soldiers of the training centre, I understand, have been given the free use of the Legion Hall for a dance with their friends, but from what I have seen, they turned it into a regular drunken dive with beer bottles all over the place.

Their discipline was absolutely rank. I wonder if the troops can pull such stuff down at the Sally Ann or at the recreation room on George street or in their own canteen. If they can not get beer at these places, they should not bring disgrace upon the Legion because it is not allowed to sell beer.

It seems to me that anyone wanting to hold a drunken party has to just simply rent the Legion Hall while members of the Legion cannot buy beer in their own hall in a proper and legal manner. I say it wants a shaking up right away.

RONALD HARRISON.

A Bit of Nonsense

"Is this the field where the battle was fought in the tenth century?"

"No. It's at the top of the hill."

"I wonder why they didn't fight it in this field?"

"Expect because it's Farmer Gray's field. He won't even lend it for the village sports."

Quite Clear

"No sir," said the defendant, "I was certainly not drunk, though I may have been intoxicated."

"Well," said the magistrate, "I intended to fine you twenty shillings, but in view of your explanation, I'll make it a pound."

Hardened

Feeling in rather a lively mood one evening during the festive season, the men in D Hut gathered round a really raw-looking recruit and started pulling his leg.

But the "rookie" remained quite calm and collected.

"Cripes, man!" burst out "Nobody" Clarke at last. "Can't you hear what we're giving you?"

"Sure, I can," was the reply, "but I'm quite used to it. You see, in Civvy Street, I'm an attendant in a lunatic asylum."

Ducks Jap Raider 3 Days In Plane Fleeing E. Indies

(Frank Noel, Associated Press photographer, who spent five thirst-tormented days in a lifeboat with twenty-seven other survivors after their ship was sunk on January 15 in the Indian Ocean by a Japanese submarine, has reached Calcutta, India, after a hazardous plane trip from Sumatra. This is his story.)

(By FRANK E. NOEL.)

CALCUTTA, Feb. 6—(AP). — My three-day flight from a Sumatra village to Calcutta got a jittery start in a Netherlands plane that made an unscheduled stop at about the same time the jungle tom-toms beat an air-raid alarm.

Mountain spotters said that a Japanese plane had been sighted toward the sea.

The plane's crew fled to the protection of a mangrove swamp, but I was not greatly concerned after having spent days on the Malaya front.

I had been hustled aboard the plane with two salvaged cameras after explaining my predicament to the crew. If they had not taken me after I landed from the lifeboat, I would have had to cross the island on foot or gone to Batavia and tried to reach Singapore from there.

Jap Planes Everywhere

The air trip developed into constant game of hide-and-seek with Japanese planes conducting extensive reconnaissance over Sumatra and smaller islands off the west coast.

Once we landed at an unimportant, undefended village where the fires still were burning from a bombing and machine-gunning raid earlier in the day. The pilot decided it was too dangerous to spend the night there, so continued on up the Sumatra shoreline to a sheltered cove protected on three sides by jungle-covered cliffs.

It was a dangerous landing in waters filled with coral rocks, any one of which could have ripped the hull apart. We spent the night in the plane, consuming canned rations and playing cards with the aid of a shaded flashlight. We feared to go ashore in the malarial swamps.

At dawn we took off again, following the steep coastline up the island. At mid-morning we picked up a radio message which, decoded, told of heavy Japanese bombing of an oil terminal across the island.

Get News by Tom-Tom.

At the next landing the village magistrate said he had received the same message via jungle "telegraph." Though the village was without radio or wire communication, it received the war news steadily by tom-tom.

While flying only about 200 feet above the sea we sighted an enemy plane far to the rear, but escaped detection by climbing quickly into the clouds and flying blind for 90 minutes.

When we dipped down to see if all was clear, a rocket went up from the island to indicate the enemy still was about, so we ducked into the clouds again until a second rocket told us it was safe to land.

Upon alighting we learned that two Japanese flights had been overhead photographing and testing the anti-aircraft defences. We enjoyed a good night's sleep in the home of a wealthy resident who had fled the danger zone, and enjoyed a swim in his shark-proof swimming pool.

Off again at dawn, we skimmed the jungle top and then roared over endless rice fields. The natives fled into the jungle as we hedge-hopped over their straw huts, but several water buffalo actually tried to charge us.

Approaching the great city of Rangoon on the tip of Burma, we picked up news of a heavy raid there, and as we circled the harbor we saw the damaged docks, blackened warehouses and sunken ships.

Raiders Turned Back

While we were refuelling, the blast of near-by ships warned of another raid. A speedboat rushed us to a place of safety on the river, from where we watched the American volunteer air fighters turn back two waves of bombers before the Japanese finally reached their objective. One bomber crashed with its full load of explosives, causing a terrific blast.

We took off as soon as possible on our last 650-mile hop to Calcutta. Arriving here we found full-scale air-raid protection in force. The city's famous white buildings are blackened and the stores sandbagged. Trenches crisscross the parks.

I learn from reliable sources that nearly 500,000 residents already have fled the city, but Calcutta's barefoot man in the street still is ignorant of bombers. Refugees who have experienced air attacks elsewhere predict there will be a panic and heavy casualties if the Japanese come. Calcutta is less than four hours' flying time from their Thailand bases.

Hundreds of sacred cattle roaming free in the streets constitute a serious problem. Tragic results are feared if the raid-frightened animals should stampede in the crowded native section. It is speculated, however, that the Indians' present lukewarm attitude toward war might change abruptly if some of the cattle were killed by bombs.

OBITUARIES

MISS CLARA BENSON

BEWDLEY, Feb. 6 (ENS) — The death of Miss Clara Benson occurred on Tuesday morning at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Barrett, east of Plainville, where she has been living for the past few years.

Until the passing of her sister, about twelve years ago, Miss Benson was a life-long resident of the community, two miles east of Bewdley.

Always a semi-invalid, her life has been spent quietly, the latter part with her sister, Mrs. Frank Lean, near Harwood, then with a niece, Mrs. Barrett.

Her last illness was short, commencing Sunday and she passed away Tuesday morning. She is survived by her sister, Mrs. Frank Lean, a brother, Will Benson, Bewdley, and another sister, Mrs. Mary Henderson, in Chicago, also a number of nieces and nephews.

The funeral service was held on Thursday afternoon from George's Funeral Home in Port Hope with interment in the family plot, Baillieboro.

SAMUEL BOWERS

TWEED, Feb. 6.—(ENS)—Probably the oldest resident of Hastings County, Samuel Robinson Bowers, died at his home in Tweed, after a year's illness on Wednesday morning. Had Mr. Bowers lived until Feb. 22, he would have celebrated his one hundredth birthday.

Until very recent years, Mr. Bowers enjoyed excellent health and was a daily visitor to the business section. He was a resident of this immediate community all his life, having been born in the 4th concession of Thurlow Township, a son of Briton Bowers and Charlotte Cronk.

In 1875 he was married in Hungerford Township, his wife predeceasing him some eight years ago. Of the union, there were six children, Mrs. Herbert McCaugherty and Mrs. John Redmond, Watertown, N.Y.; Nelson of Gouverner, N.Y.; Mrs. Henry Belden, Rochester and Mrs. Thomas Kincaid, Dundas. There are two remaining sisters, Mrs. Henry Myles of Montana and Mrs. Robert Fleming, Lowering, Ont.

The late Mr. Bowers was a member of the United Church, and in politics was a staunch Conservative. The funeral was held on Friday afternoon from his late home on South Victoria street, to Thomasburg cemtery.

DON BEST AFTER EIGHT WINS IS BEATEN 7 TO 6 IN SEMI-FINALS

Oshawa Rinks Eliminate Kingston 40-21

NEW LISKEARD, Ont., Feb. 6 —(CP).—Don Best's Kirkland Lake rink was beaten last night for the first time in the Temiskaming and Northern Ontario bonspiel, now in its fourth day. Lorne Umphrey's quartet from Cobalt and Haileybury defeated the defending Northern Ontario champion 7-6 in the semi-final of the Lee Trophy.

Had Won Eight in Row.

Best had won eight straight until dropping this one to Umphrey, and still is favored to represent this bonspiel next week in a series against W. A. McMitchell's Sudbury rink to decid which will proceed as Northern Ontario champion into the Canadian curling championships. McMitchell's rink won a place in the Northern Ontario final by winning the Consols event of the Northern Ontario Curling Association last Monday at Sudbury.

Best is in the final of the Canada Northern Power Corporation competition. The Lee and Canada Northern are the T. & N.O. 'spiel's major events.

George Doggett of Kirkland Lake accompanied Umphrey into the final of the Lee Trophy event with a 9-6 victory over W. G. Nixon of New Liskeard. Elgin Binkley qualified for the Canada Power Corporation final against Best by beating Vic Woollings' Englehart rink 10-8.

The standing early last night showed Best with eight wins and one loss; Binkley and Doggett each with seven wins and one loss; Nixon seven wins, two losses; and Umphrey and Woollings each with six wins and two losses.

OSHAWA, Feb. 6.—In one of the most exciting extra end finishes witnessed this season, Oshawa's representatives in the Governor-General's Trophy curling competition, earned the right to represent Eastern and Central Ontario here on Thursday afternoon. In The Globe and Mail district playoffs, Lindsay defeated Agincourt.

Kingston rinks, skipped by H. Reid and J. G. Sands, each chalked up clean-cut wins over their Agincourt opposition in the first round of the Governor-General's eliminations. Oshawa rinks, headed by Al Parkhill and Dr. Harding, club president, were trailing badly with only two ends left to play but between them they registered ten shots in the last two ends each against their opponents from Lindsay to create a deadlock in total score. The extra end was played and saw Al Parkhill's four chalk up sufficient margin to decide the match.

In the final, Oshawa rinks split with the Kingston curlers but again Parkhill's wide margin 30 to 6 was enough to give Oshawa the total with plenty to spare.

In The Globe and Mail Trophy consolation event, Lindsay curlers, skipped by G. King and R. C. Nugent, each won their match by a narrow margin to completely emiminate Agincourt.

SPORTS – DAY BY DAY

By FRED D. CRAIG

The Military Training Centre team will wind up its share of the regular group schedule tonight when they meet the Trenton Flyers in Bellevile. The game means little or nothing so far as the standing is concerned but the Air Force boys make every fixture a battle and would love to get a win over the Petes while on the other hand the Scates-Ellis crowd are anxious to grab off the decision to finish a full two games ahead of the pack. Under the circumstances it should be a lively affair all the way and from the form shown by the Flyers in their games against Whitby and Belleville this week the local Soldiers will have to turn on their finest brand of hockey. The Peterborough lineup has not been given out but the invalids are all back on the job again and there was a full turnout at the last practice so that Coach Ellis is in a position to ice his strongest team for tonight's fixture. Win, lose or draw the Flyers always fulfilled their engagements with the best that they had and the Petes recognizing that fact will play ball with them tonight and see that the final home game of the Air Force team this season is a good one.

* * * * * *

This is the second last game of the group schedule which ends Monday night with the R.C.A.F. team playing Whitby in Whitby. Whether the Oshawa-Whitby combines win that game or not makes little difference. A win would tie them with Belleville in the matter of games won and lost but the Reliance team has the better goal average and on that account is about certain of second place. That means that the semi-final series in the group playoffs will get under way in Belleville next Wednesday night with the second game in Whitby on Friday night. If a third battle is necessary Belleville will get it on Monday, February 16. The final series will start with a game here on Wednesday, February 18 between the Military Training Centre and the winner of the Oshawa-Whitby and Kingston-Belleville series. In the meanwhile the Petes will be idle after tonight and are endeavoring to arrange one or two exhibition games. It was hoped to have Oshawa Generals here next week but the Motor City juniors have two O.H.A. games and an exhibition affair listed and could not take on any more engagements. It is posible Ed. Wildey's Young Rangers may be invited down for a game.

* * * * * *

As to the outcome of the Belleville-Whitby tilt we would say Whitby without hesitation if it were not for the suspicion that most of that Oshawa-Whitby bunch have been getting too much hockey and may be going stale. Barnes, Covert, Cooper and Louis Vipond have been playing four or five games a week in the T.H.L. major series and the O.H.A. group and Gamble and Durling have been doing the same thing in the Toronto Mercantile League and the O.H.A. In addition to playing that heavy hockey schedule most of the Oshawa players on the Whitby squad are on war work in the General Motors' plant and it would be surprising indeed if the combination did not begin to tell. On paper the Ontario county team looks to have the finesse and scoring punch to take the series from Belleville. During the group race they scalped the Reliance crowd three out of four games and the fixture they dropped was on their first appearance of the season with Covert, Cooper and Barnes all missing. That record should make them favorites to win the semi-final series but Belleville have strengthened with three more Kingston players and that fact and the uncertainty as to the condition of the Whitby players makes the result of the clash between the two clubs a gamble.

* * * * * *

Forty Per Cent Kingston

Up rises Bill Walshe of the Kingston Whig-Standard to express his wonder as to how the Kingston additions to the Belleville squad got through and also to point out that the Reliance team is now 40 per cent Kingston. Here are Bre'er Walshe's comments: "With a stretch of the imagination Kingston may also claim credit for future Belleville wins with three more local players joining the "farm team" to salvage what seemed a lost hope. In beating Peterborough Monday night Belleville used Dud White, Kingston defenceman, and Pepper Martin and Bill Grisdale of Senator Powell's Queen's Van Horne champions. The three new additions to the Belleville staff make the Quinte collection practicaly a forty per cent Kingston team as Clare Williamson and Johnny Hamilton, who previously played with the Combines, are also with Mike Rodden's squad. How Belleville worked the demotion of senior A players to B competition is not explained. Ken Collings, Belleville sports editor, made a trip to Kingston Saturday for the hockey game with Hamilton and pleaded for the release of the three Kingston players, who have been on the side-lines most of the season. The players deserved a chance to play hockey and although they may be needed by the Combines in case of injuries in the future, Coach Wally Elmer granted territorial rights to their services."

The double-header basketball program at the Y.M.C.A. Saturday night looks like the best card of the season. While naturally the visit to Peterborough of Shag Park and his Canadian Navy cage team to meet the Outboard Marines is the featured item on the program, basketball lovers are advised not to miss the first game on the bill, starting at 7 o'clock. It brings together the C.G.E. team, fresh from their win over the league-leading Dominions, and the fast Collegiate squad in a regular City League game that should be a hummer. C.G.E., led by Joe Stewart, have a formidable squad while the school team is hitting its stride for fair. As to the Navy-Outboard Marines game it is a natural. The Navy team includes some of Canada's outstanding basketeers sparked by Shag Park who is a ball team in himself. The Outboards showed their class last Saturday night by a fighting win over the Belleville R.C.A.F. and they will endeavor to make it interesting for Park and his fellow gobs. There shouldn't be a dull moment in the whole card.

Rangers Widen Gap

The rough-neck line of the New York Rangers, Bryan Hextall, Phil Watson and Lynn Patrick which has fired 50 goals this season and is miles ahead of any other scoring combination went to town last night against the Boston Bruins and as a result Lester Patrick's fast-travelling gang won 4 goals to 1 and opened out the biggest lead any club has enjoyed since the start of the race. The Rangers are now four points ahead of the Bruins and eight in front of the Maple Leafs and in addition has two games in hand on the Boston club. The rough-neck line dominated the play last night, Hextall, Patrick and Watson each scored a goal and Hextall and Watson each got in on the other Rangers' goal, scored by Alex Shibicky. It was a four-point effort for the right winger whose goal and three assists put him further out in front of the National Hockey League scoring race. He already has 39 points and at the present rate will set a new modern high mark.

* * * * * *

The laboring Leafs who have been able to come up with only one win in their last six starts, came close to making it two last night at Detroit but they twice blew leads and finally had to be satisfied with splitting the points with the Red Wings. The final count was 3 to 3. Toronto led by two goals to nothing with the second period two thirds gone but Detroit tied it up with two quick counters. Again in the third session the Red Wings came from behind to tie it up after Goldup had put the Leafs in front again. Meanwhile at Montreal the Chicago Black Hawks nosed out the Canadiens 4 to 3 with a rookie goalie Bill Dickie, an amateur on loan for the night, playing smart hockey for the winners. The Chicago victory brought the Black Hawks to within two points of the Leafs for third place.

Churchills Lead Juvenile Hockey Section

Minor league hockey took over at the Sacred Heart Rink Thursday night, and provided four sparkling displays, with the feature game the long-awaited battle in the Juvenile division between the Churchills and the Canucks.

As customary, the Bantams were first to show, with the Westenders handing the St. Peter's team a 6 to 1 defeat. Scoring a pair of goals in each of the three periods, the Westenders were full value for their win, with Doughty leading the way with two smart goals, and with Darling, Williams, McDougall and McNott all scoring once. E. Basciano chalked up St. Peter's only score, and together with his brother Jack, provided the greatest scoring threat for the loser.

St. Peter's.—Lester, Caccavelli, McCarney, Ferren, J. Basciano, F. Basciano, Low, Conroy, Peel, F. Peel, Boyle.

Westenders. — Zavitz, Doughty, McNott, Williams, Darling, McDougal, Harding, Giardino.

The second game was a Midget contest, with the Rovers and the Blue Bombers the contending teams. On the night's play, the Canuck Rovers were the better team, shutting out their opponents by a 3 to 0 count. The winners' first line trio accounted for all the scoring, each member of the line getting a counter, with Mortimer, the centre-man, setting up both plays for his wings, Goodman and Laplante. Chambers and Sisson looked good in defeat.

Canuck Rovers.—Woodcock, Giardino, Carter, Mortimer, Goodman, Laplante.

Blue Bombers — Post, Seabrooke, McMahon, Chambers, Sisson, Ellis, Daymon, Cox, Robinson.

The third game of the night was also a Midget contest, with the Colts and St. Peter's battling 60 minutes to a 1-1 tie. The opening period was scoreless, with both teams playing defensive hockey and waiting for the breaks. Towards the middle of the second period, the Colts opened the scoring, Beatty getting the goal on a pass from Meredith. That one-goal advantage stood up until the opening minutes of the third period, when Post evened matters up on a pass from Daly. There was no further scoring, both teams seemingly content with a division of the points.

Colts— Dorsett, White, Griffin, Beatty, Hill, Meredith, Menzies, Jones, Dundas, Murphy.

St. Peter's. — O'Brien, Murphy, Ryan, Daly, Giardino, Lucano, Post, McManus.

The fourth game was the feature of the evening, with the two top Juvenile teams meeting for the first time this season, with first place in the standings at stake. The first period was scoreless. In the second, the Churchills picked up the only marker, Ainslee picking up the tally on a pass from Garvey. In the third period, just when it appeared that the constant power-plays of the hard-battling Canucks must pay off with the tying goal, White, the Churchills' defenceman, broke clear from a ganging attack, to coast in on Welch and put the game beyond recall. The Churchills for the evening were the better team, having a slight edge, but all the spectators were agreed, that final judment should be reserved until the end of the playoffs.

Churchills — Leether, Gillespie, White, Anderson, Lawson, Dorrell, Ainslee, Millen, Garvey, Harris.

Canucks — Welch, Hall, Lester, McLean, Jones, Philips, Blackwell, Keating, Cooper, Brown, Van Allen, Healey, Jones.

Bud Weese Tops City Leaguers With 882 Triple

Jay's City League team took full advantage of the no ceiling limit on bowling scores when they ran up a 3845 count against Huffman's at Duffus Alleys last night. It was the second hard-hitting rampage indulged in by this outfit this year—their previous high mark being 3887 earlier in the season.

Outlaws defeated Freeman's 3 to 1 when they banged off 3639 pins, Royal Yorks stopped Capitols 3 to 1 while Dunn's and Big Five blanked Old Timers and Quakers 4 to 0.

It was a fast ballers day as the summary of individual performers indicated. Bud Weese, Jay's blonde bomber, topped the list with a fine 882, his first real outbreak of the year. Johnny Playford ripped off 816, Vince Anthony 806 and Bud White 804, while "Toots" Collins of the Outlaws shot a 369 single in 853. White hit a 340 game, Doug Abraham 338, Tom Martin 323, Playford 314 while Weese hit 307 in his first game and 337 in his second.

Standing: Jay's 51, Freeman's 42, Capitols 39, Outlaws 37, Dunn's 37, Old Timers 34, Big Five 33, Royal York 30, Huffman's 25, Quakers 14.

Here's what happened last night: Jimmy Richmond's rink is the only unbeaten one in the schedule games. The president made it close, but Jimmy came through on top.

E Thomas' quartet are still leading in their group; but Dr. Clark made them play overtime before for it, and boys, it was another close shave.

Fred Green made a beautiful raise with his last stone, to nose out Jack Sedgewick.

Harry White's "Johnson Sea-Hosses" are still in the running for their group.

Jimmy Hall, one of this year's young skips, made the veteran Kay show all his stuff before he would called it a day.

A. Gibbs and E. Hand had a good fight with the real estate agent finishing "two up."

The remaining games were somewhat one-sided, and the marin of victory ran all the way from six points to eleven points.

A number of ladies from our club are leaving next week for the Seigniory Club, Que., to play in the 11th annual ladies' bonspiel for the Sewell Trophy (iron competition).

Our bonspiel for tomorrow starts at 1.45 p.m. as usual.

Bing Miller Back With Mates In White Sox

CHICAGO, Feb. 6.—A trio of swashbuckling ballplayers who helped Connie Mack win three straight pennants years ago were reunited yesterday on the Chicago White Sox.

The ex-star of the Philadelphia Athletics who completed the triumvirate is Edmund J. (Bing) Miller, whose appointment as a White Sox coach was announced immediately upon Vice-President Harry Grabiner's return from the New York baseball meeting.

Thus Bing, now 48 years old, joins his former teammate, George (Mule) Haas, on the Sox coaching lines, both taking orders from chunky Jimmy Dykes, belligerent pilot of the South Siders. Haas and Miller will be charged with helping Dykes develop the youngster at spring training camp, leaving the other coach, Herold (Muddy) Ruel, the manager's No. 1 adviser, to handle the pitchers.

Haas will remain on the third-base coaching line when the American League campaign begins and Miller takes over at first, the spot handled last season by Monty Stratton, since awarded the managership of a Six farm club.

Bing, one of Del Baker's aides at Detroit in 1941, played baseball for 22 years before finally retiring in 1938. A native of Vinton, Iowa, Miller was a veteran of 35 when the Athletics came up with a pennant in 1929. Haas was playing one of the other outfield positions, and Dykes was on third base.

Connie finally released Bing in 1934 at the age of 40, and the big outfielder rounded out his big league career with two years at Boston, playing only occasionally for the Red Sox. His lifetime batting average for 16 seasons in the American League was .312.

This completed the White Sox staff and leaves the club prepared for the start of spring drills at Pasadena February 27.

TWO BRUNETEAU GOALS FOR WINGS HOLD TORONTO TO 3-ALL TIE

Rangers Advance Lead By Lacing Bruin Squad 4-1

(By SCOTT YOUNG.)

TORONTO, Feb. 6 — (ENS). — New York Rangers are drawing away into a comfortable lead in the National Hockey League and what with injuries, lassitude and general lack of ability throughout the opposition, their position seems secure for the balance of the season.

The Broadway Blueshirts jumped their lead to four points over Boston Bruins last night with a 4-1 victory over the Bruins in New York while Toronto Maple Leafs were held to a 3-3 tie at Detroit, and Chicago moved closer to third place with a 4-3 victory over Canadiens in Montreal.

Two substitute goalies stood up well under initial N.H.L. competiton last night. Joe Turner was called up from Indianapolis in the American Association to replace Johnny Mowers of Detroit, who injured a leg in practice. Hawks used Bill Dickie, an amateur netminder granted permission to substitute for the injured Sammy Lo Presti for one game. Dickie plays regularly with the tail-end Montreal Pats of the Quebec Senior League. He looked good, sometimes sensational. Lo Presti suffered a long gash over one eye Tuesday in Boston.

One Ranger not as happy as he could have been over Rangers' victory last night was Jim Henry, rookie netminder. He missed his first Bigtime shutout by 23 seconds, when Desse Smith hoisted a long shot past him for Boston's only goal at 19.37 in the third. Bryan Hextall had one goal and three assists, Phil Watson one goal and two assists, and Lynn Patrick a goal and an assist for Rangers. Alex Shibicky goth the other goal—the only one scored before the third veriod. When Bruins started to tire they couldn't even catch the Watson-Patrick-Hextall trio.

Bobby Carse's goal in the 18th minute of the third at Montreal gave Hawks their victory. Gerry Heffernan had tied the score about four minutes earlier. Joe Benoit and Buddy O'Connor were other Montreal scorers, with Red Hamill, Alex Kaleta and Cully Dahlstrom preceding Carse's game-winning counter for Hawks.

Two goals by Mud Bruneteau gave Detroit its overtime draw with Leafs, and moved the Wings into a fifth-place tie with the idle Brooklyn Americans. Bruneteau's second goal—to force overtime—came in the 18th minute of the third period. Hank Goldup, Johnny McCreedy and Gord Drillon scored for Leafs. Alex Motter counted Detroit's other goal.

Honored By Baseball Scribes

Three of baseball's greats are shown with the plaques presented to them at the annual dinner of the New York chapter of the Baseball Writers' Association of America. Sergeant Hank Greenberg LEFT, former Detroit Tigers' outfielder, was given the extraordinary service award as baseball's soldier of the year. Outfielder Joe DiMaggio of New York Yankees, CENTRE, was honored as the player of the year, and Mel Ott, RIGHT, new manager of the New York Giants, was rewarded for his contributions to baseball over a period of years.

New Sox Coach Woodall Talks Only Ball

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 6.—(AP). —Boston Red Sox will miss Professor Moe Berg, baseball's seven-tongued man of culture but the club has acquired another coaching personality who could be identified as "The Great Contrast."

His name is Larry Woodall. He has been known to utter words after working hours on occasions.

Whereas Professor Berg can order soup in six languages other than his precise English, Doc Woodall only talks good baseball sense.

The title, incidentally, is gratuitous, bestowed as the result of having worked here this winter for the city Health Department. Part of his duties consisted of inspecting mattresses.

Woodall, after eight years as player, coach and acting manager of San Francisco Seals, was picked to succeed Professor Berg on the Red Sox staff, the noted linguist having been called to a Governmental good-will mission to South America.

They have this much in common, each has the polish of a medieval courtier, is college educated, and is wrapped up in baseball. Berg distinguished himself at Princeton and in Europe. Woodall is an alumnus of the University of North Carolina. Woodall dabbled in Latin and Greek as part of his curriculum, but has forgotten them long since.

'You don't hear much Latin or Greek spoken around a ball park, although frankly the jargon of some of the players sounded like it when I first started with the Fort Worth clubs," he said.

While Woodall is one of the least talkative coaches, either on or off the field, he gets results with a musical Southern drawl. He stands in the coaching box with hands in hip pockets and in a slight crouch.

His diagnoses of the play, and tactical reactions, are invariably correct.

Woodall enjoys a distinction which is unique. As a catcher with Detroit Tigers, beginning in 1920, he played under four managers, Hughie Jennings, Ty Cobb, George Moriarity and Bucky Harris. The Tigers sold him to Portland of the Coast League in 1929. He managed that club the next year, spent 1932 and 1933 with Sacramento and joined San Francisco in 1934.

He describes his new job as "the chance of a lifetime."

Guelph Wallops Rangers By 5 to 3 Score

GUELPH, Feb. 6.—In a ragged hockey game played here last night the Guelph Biltmores moved into sole possession of third place in the Big Seven O.H.A. Junior A" group when they defeated Toronto Young Rangers by 5-3.

The game was spoiled by slow ice, and as a result tempers were on tap. Much rough play was indulged in, the lusty checking resultin a fist fight between Voll, Guelph, and McKeown, Young Rangers, midway through the last period Both were sent off for five minutes.

Rangers drew first blood in the second minute of play when Jack McLean fed Hamilton a scoring pass. The visitors made it 2-0 at 15:11, McKeown scoring, with McLean getting an assist. This lead was reduced by the Biltmores at 16:20, when Ted Grasser netted on a pass from Voll.

The second period saw Biltmores produce their best hockey of the game, and score three times. 'Farmer' Cressman, tied the count when he and Swales broke down the ice, exchanged passes to work through the visiting defense, Cressman doing the scoring. Voll culminated a pretty passing effort with line mates McDonald and Martin.

Shill brought Ranges into the Toronto net from six feet out, to send Guelph into the lead for the first time. Before this stanza ended, Swales scored on a solo effort.

Shill brought Rangers int the picture in the third period, his unassisted goal being scored in the fourth minute. However, before the end, Grasser netted the final Guelph marker, Cressman drawing an assist. When the final whistle sounded the homesters had Rangers hemmed in their own end.

As a result of the victory the Guelph team moved two points ahead of St. Michael's.

Young Rangers—Goal, Thomas; defense, Leeming and Balmer; centre, McLean; wings, McKeown and Hamilton; alternates, Shill, Murray, Smylie and Lee.

Guelph — Goal, Little; defense, Mayer and Swales; centre, Martin; wings, Voll and A McDonald; alternates, Cressman, Grasser, Orlando, Olinski and Hilliard.

Referee—Gordon MacKay, Hamilton.

MacDonald Sinks 3 in 8 to 0 Bison Spree

BUFFALO, Feb. 6—(CP).—Kilby MacDonald, who two seasons ago promised to be one of the future stars of the National Hockey League when he won the Calder Trophy as outstanding rookie of the year, only to slip back to the minors, is rapping at the Big League door again.

Making his second appearance with Buffalo Bisons in the American Hockey Leaue since being traded by Hershey Bears, the former New York Ranger leftwinger has sniped five goals and three assists.

His latest scoring spree came last night, when he tallied three goals and an assist as the Herd humbled New Haven under a 8-0 count in the only game scheduled. Wednesday, Buffalo took Providence into camp by 8-1.

It was the second straight night also that Goaler Phil Stein has suffered a heavy fusilade of shots. Pittsburg fired 13 goals past him Wednesday to give him something of a record of 21 goals against him in two games.

Ex-Hockey Greats Facing Bruins Tonight

BOSTON, Feb. 6 (AP)—A cutback to the scenes of the National League's golden era will be staged tonight when 16 not-too-oldtime stars attempt to recapture their former speed and skill against the Boston Bruins, Stanley Cup champions, in a 40-minute charity game at the Boston Garden.

Once again the outstanding hockey lines of the last two decades will be intact, including such lines as New York Rangers' Frankie Boucher and the Cook brothers, Bill and Bun; Toronto's Joe Primeau, Busher Jackson and Charlie Conacher, and Detroit's Marty Barry, Larry Aurie and Herb Lewis.

Behind those greatest of stickmen, Eddie (The Great) Shore, modern hcokey's outstanding hero, will cavort on defence with one of his earliest Boston teammates, George Owen, Harvard's famous all-around star, and such once doughty rivals as Red Horner of Toronto, Ching Johnson of the Rangers, and Cy Wentworth, who performed for Montreal's Canadiens after the Maroons were disbanded. Tiny Thompson, one of the most beloved in the long parade of Boston's hockey heroes, will be in the nets.

Hooley Smith, who lasted until long after Montreal's great "S" Line, that also included Nels Stewart and the late Babe Siebert, was shattered, will serve as the oldtimers' spare forward. Cooney Weiland, late of the Bruins, will direct them from the bench.

For this game, to be played for the benefit of the United States Army Relief Society, Bill Cowley, the Bruins' disabled centre, will direct his teammates. A capacity crowd of 15,000 is expected.

NEW YORK, Feb. 6 (AP)—In his high school days at New York's Monroe High, Hank Greenberg played on championship basketball and soccer teams but his baseball team was only the runner-up....Cleveland Indians may soon hire a press agent, whose first job probably will be cenoring the words "Cry Babies."

Confusion Corner:

Michigan State has four sets of identical twins on its sports squads but Fran Dittrich, assistant track coach, claims Ben and Bill Fernstrum are the most confusing pair. Seeing one of them on the track, Dittrich asked: "Are you Ben or Bill?"

The athlete thought it over for a moment then replied:—

"Gosh, coach, I don't know. But I'll go back to the locker room and ask my brother. He knows."

Today's guest star:

Bob Dunbar, Boston Herald: "We never want to see again the word 'lost' applied in a story to a ball player who enlists in the armed service. It's immeausrably more important for the country to find a good soldier than it is for any sport to lose an uotstanding figure."

Hot off the ice:

When Paul Thompson of Chicago Black Hawks heard that his pal Dit Clapper had been injured right after he had been named assistant coach of the Boston Bruins (they call 'em the Ruins now), Paul wired: "Dear Dit, you've got to be tougher than that if you're going to be manager in this league."

Baseball Banter From The Majors

NEW YORK, Feb. 6 — (AP). — Most people think all major league baseball clubs are rich (except the Phils and Browns), and that all big league players earn plenty of money. But during the meetings this week it was learned that a certain well-off club couldn't pay cash for a player it purchased and had to arrange installments....Also that one player write his club a few days ago and asked a loan of $60 with which to pay his income tax. At the Baseball Writers' dinner, Mayor LaGuardia chided former Mayor Jimmy Walker with the taunt, "during the eight years of my administration the three New York clubs have won more pennants than they did in yours."

The joint meeting was held the morning after Larry MacPhail entertained the National League club officials and, during the debate on night ball, Warren Giles carried a glass of water and a handful of ice over to MacPhail....Commissioner Landis pounded the table and said: "Gentlemen, we will take time out while Cincinnati revives Brooklyn." ....The magnates did more work at their sessions here than they have done in years.

After Johnny Vander Meer signed his new contract with Cincinnati, Giles kidded with, "I'll tear that up if you don't win some games in the East this year." Vandy retorted with a grin, "If I can't win in the East I'll tear it up myself."

Hockey's Big Seven

(By The Canadian Press)

New York Rangers high scoring line of Bryan Hextall, Phil Watson and Lynn Patrick continue to dominate the first three places in the National Hockey League individual scoring race following last night's games. Hextall, who holds down top spot, picked up four points to give him a 39 total on 18 goals and 21 assists. Watson added three points to his count for 37 points and Patrick came through wtih a goal and assist to remain only three points behind the leader.

Bill Thoms of Chicago and Toronto's Gordie Drillon each picked up points to hold down fourth and fifth places with totals of 34 and 31 points respectively. The Boston linemates, Milt Schmidt and Bobby Bauer, are next in line each with 30 points.

Marmora Ousts Tweed High 3-2

TWEED, Feb. 6 (ENS) — In a closely contested game at the local arena Wednesday, Marmora High School eliminated Tweed High School from the Interscholastic series by a score of 3-2.

Marmora opened the scoring in the first period, when Crawford slipped the rubber into the nets from a scramble. In the second frame Tweed tied count and then went into a one goal lead, on counters by J. Price and B. Gehan.

The locals lost the initiative when they became disorganized and started a long range barrage of shots at the Marmora goal, which resulted in the visitors tallying two counters, with Lavender and Cheesman being the point getters.

Fraser Assault Lampoons Total War Group

(By WILLIAM MARCHINGTON.)

OTTAWA, Feb. 6.—In a speech which manifestly delighted the Prime Minister and his colleagues and supporters and was characterized as "burlesque" by the Leader of the Opposition, William Alexander Fraser, Liberal member for Northumberland, Ont., soundly abused the leaders of Ontario Committee for Total War in the House of Commons yesterday afternoon.

Speaking in the debate on the Address in reply to the Speech from the Throne, Mr. Fraser denounced Messrs. James Y. Murdoch, K.C., C. L. Burton and F. K. Morrow of Toronto, declaring that they had organized the recent Royal York luncheon gathering by "subterfuge, deception and hypocrisy."

After reading to the House the invitation to the luncheon, which was signed by Messrs. Murdoch, Burton and Morrow, "to discuss a matter of urgent national importance," Mr. Fraser alleged that many of those who accepted thought they were being called to Toronto to organize for the new Victory Loan.

He then read from the Canadian Who's Who the record of Mr. Murdoch's business affiliations.

"A very great man," quoth John R. MacNicol of Toronto-Davenport.

Then followed a list of the directorships of F. K. Morrow, as Liberal members roared with laughter.

"Read Charlie Dunning's now," shouted a Conservative member.

"I'll just take time to blow my nose," said Mr. Fraser, amid uproar and laughter.

"Don't forget C. L. Burton," put in Mr. Hanson.

"Mr. Speaker, will you ask the honorable gentlemen to write me; I can't hear them," rejoined Mr. Fraser, amid renewed laughter.

Received Sixty-Two Letters.

Proceeding, he declared that only sixty-two persons in his riding, out of thousands, took the trouble to write him in response to the appeal of the Committee for Total War.

"If these millionaires who organize the Toronto meeting for 'Total War Now' are so anxious for an all-out war effort, let them subscribe to non-interest-bearing Victory bonds" he continued. "If I owned an empire like they own I would want to conscript everybody to defend it. (Loud applause from the Liberal benches). I, too, would spend every dollar I could spare to create a situation to deceive the people."

He agreed with Mr. Coldwell and the C.C.F. that Canadian plutocrats should not own an empire after the war.

"They want to sit in at the peace table in order to defeat fellows like myself who would make sure that they would not remain in possession of an empire after the war.

"They're not satisfied to sell their country short," he exclaimed. "They have a mentality which spends money to besmirch the ballot box. They ridicule democracy.

"I am sorry the member for Parkdale (Dr. H. A. Bruce) is not in his seat. I would like to say something to him about the letter he placed on Hansard the other day (about a married man with three children, who had volunteered for the army being placed in category E as unfit for military service and was later called up for re-examination). That action on the part of the member for Parkdale was cheap prejudice designed to sabotage Canada's war effort," said Mr. Fraser.

Herridge Interview

Picking up the Ottawa Evening Citizen of yesterday, he read the headlines over an interview given in London by Hon. W. D. Herridge, in which the former Canadian Minister to Washington denounced the conscription plebiscite proposal.

"The heading says, 'Asserts safety of Canada depends upon resignation of Prime Minister King'," said Mr. Fraser.

"Hear, hear," cried Opposition members.

"Before this war is over you will hang your heads in shame," shouted the member for Northumberland, amid a storm of cheers and desk-thumping from the Liberal benches.

The Northumberland member commenced a criticism of Premier Hepburn, "a friend of long standing," for accusing the Dominion Prime Minister of deliberately attempting to set the French-speaking Canadians against the English-speaking Canadians, and promised more, but did not return to the subject of Mr. Hepburn.

"There can be no equality of service or equality of sacrifice in a war," he argued. "Would the union men of this country leave the production lines to go on the farms?

"I have great respect for the members of this House. I would have great respect for them even if I did not know them. I have less respect for those who pile up millions of dollars and who try to browbeat the members of Parliament. I have no respect for those who attempt to dictate policy. (Loud applause.)

Three Per Cent War

"This Government is running a 3 per cent war, not a 5½ per cent war as Meighen did in 1914-18. Don't sabotage Canada. Don't sell Canada short," he cried.

Picking up The Globe and Mail from his desk, he said. "I know my name will be on the back page of this sheet tomorrow morning." (Members of the Cabinet and Liberal members seemed highly amused at this sally.)

Mr. Fraser closed with a brief reference to the plebiscite.

"I went home and turned the matter of the plebiscite over in my mind for three days and decided that if there ever was a time in my life when I should stand as I have stood this afternoon, behind the man who five times has been elected Prime Minister of Canada by the votes of the people, this is the time. (Liberal cheers.)

"They (pointing at the Opposition benches) want a national Government of the making of the Mulocks—of the Mulocks!" he shouted in conclusion, as members rocked with laughter.

Mr. Fraser, of course, intended to say "a Government of the making of the Murdochs.".

When he had concluded amid an ovation from the Liberals, Hon. R. B. Hanson rose and protested that the rules of the House should not have been violated by a member who desired "to put on a burlesque or to abuse political opponents."

equipment."

The midnight communique said 38 planes were destroyed Wednesday, 22 being shot down and 16 destroyed on airdromes. Ten Russian planes were lost.

Nine German planes were shot down yesterday on the approaches to Moscow, the communique said.

The Soviet mid-day communique broadcast from Moscow said the Red Army continued operations against the Germans Thursday night and said nearly 700 casualties were inflicted upon the Germans in recent isolated fights.

More than 300 German officers and men were reported left on the field after two days of fighting on one sector of the western front, the communique said, when a Red Army unit captured 36 machine-guns, three field guns, three mine-throwers, wireless installation and a large quantity of shells.

In another engagement on the southwestern front, the war report said five earth and timber block-houses, three mine-throwers and five machine-guns were destroyed and 350 casualties were inflicted on the Germans.

to oppose it," he said.

Mr. Lizotte said he was sure the people of his constituency would vote "No" to the Government's request in the plebiscite for release from past commitments. Persanlly, he said, he had pledged himself against conscription, and would not have the audacity to go back and ask his electors to change their minds.

Two other Quebec Liberals stood squarely behind the Government's policy. They were Brooke Claxton, member for Montreal-St. Lawrence-St. George, and J. W. McGibbon of Argenteuil.

Mr. McGibbon said no private member in the House had the information on which to base opinions on the strategy of the Allied powers. Neither he nor any other member knew whether the Allies wanted more troops from Canada or something else, but Prime Minister King did know.

He believed the plebiscite the only democratic course and that any other course would be an emulation of the dictators.

Mr. Claxton said in his speech that it looks very much as if Hitler and some of the extremists in Canada are trying to save us from the horrors of self-government."

He said Dr. Herbert Bruce (Con., Toronto-Parkdale) and Ligouri Lacombe of Llaval-Two Mountains who recently broke with the Liberal party because of opposition to conscription represented two extremes, neither of which could bring unity to Canada. Canada needed a new birth of democratic faith and to ignore pledges and take action without consulting the people was not the way to bring that about.

The communique said Singapore was raided again today by the Japanese air force but it did not mention damage or casualties.

Civilian casualties in yesterday's air raids were 14 killed and 104 injured. The announced toll for the last three days thus increased to 77 killed and 332 injured.

One Japanese fighter was shot down out of a formation raiding Singapore this morning and three were damaged.

One Royal Air Force fighter plane is missing but a fighter pilot previously reported missing turned up safe.

Action Asked On Salvage

CAMPBELLFORD, Feb. 6. — (ENS). — Local clergy are of the opinion it is up to the Council to take leadership in the matter of collecting salvage and in a resolution at their monthly meeting held they made their views on the question quite clear. Convinced the collection of paper and other salvage lacked a definite system and that this lack of organization was resulting in no where near all of the available waste being collected, they urged the Council to take direct action in the matter. Their suggestion was that Council should take the initiative in organizing some definite system of periodic collection.

SAILORS HOME ON LEAVE.
Joe McDonnell, Jackson Park Lane, who has been serving at sea with the Royal Canadian Navy, is home on leave. Leo Cleary, another sailor, is also home on leave sporting a heavy beard that extends from ear to ear.

STORE IS ENTERED
A quantity of goods was stolen from Stedman's Variety Store, Charlotte street, during last night. The booty included boxes of tacks, shoe polish and a number of men's shirts. Entrance to the store, it is thought was gained through a small window on the east side, beneath the bridge.

DAMAGE IS LIGHT
A. J. Nicholls, Bridgenorth, was driving south on Reid street, Thursday, and was making a left turn to go east on McDonnel street when his car skidded on the icy road. John Lean, R.R. 2, Peterborough, following the Nicholls car could not stop his machine in time and there was a collision in which the right front fender of Nicholls' car was damaged.

IS NOT A CZECH
John Kapralik, 500 Parnell street, who has enlisted in the Canadian active army has requested The Examiner to say that he is not a Czech as reported yesterday. The news item first referred to him as a Czecho-Slovak, and that designation was comparatively correct. But, at the end he was mentioned as a "Czech recruit." "The little story is all right, but I wish you would say that I am a Slovak, not a Czech."

IN AIR FORCE.
Stafford Sullivan, who was to report in the next trainee draft, has been accepted in the Royal Canadian Force and reports for training on Monday. "Bun" Armstrong, now employed at Ed Riley's store, has been accepted in the air force also and reports in March to begin training as a student pilot.

FOUR MEN FOR ARMY
Four men were accepted for service in the Canadian Active Army at the recruiting office Thursday. They were: Francis Elmer O'Donaghue, 449 Rogers street, Canadian Dental Corps; H. Anderson of Port Hope, R.C.A.; Lawrence Johnston, 552 Sherbroke street, R.C.O.C.; William Taylor of Castleton, R.C.A.S.C

TRAFFIC CASES
Ten motorists who failed to bring their cars to a full stop before entering a through street and who entered a written plea of guilty to the charge were fined $2 and $1 costs in taffic court this morning. They were Quirt McKinney, Mrs. B. E. Cooke, A. J. Peeling, A. Olin, Thomas Parker, Mrs. Minnie Simmons, J. L. P. Smith, Jack Fitzgerald and H. J. Davis. A similar levy was made on Ernest Reynolds, who pleaded guilty to a breach of the parking bylaw.

FENDERS DAMAGED
Cars driven by Gordon Hudson, Lansdowne street, and H. Cruse, Weller street, received damage to their fenders in a collision at Monaghan road and Weller street. Hudson was driving north on Monaghan road and Cruse west on Weller street when the accident occurred.

SEASON EXTENDED
Because of the depredations done by foxes to poultry in Southern Ontario, the Department of Game and Fisheries has decided to extend the season for trapping and hunting foxes until March 15. At the same time it has also been decided to extend the gun license which expires on February 28 to March 15, but this will only apply to guns used for hunting foxes and not for the hunting of any other birds or animals.

A LUCKY BREAK.
Edward McClavey, better known locally by the nickname "Deacon," who is a member of the Royal Rifles of Canada, was sick in hospital when the regiment was sent to Hong Kong. He was unable to leave with the unit and was not discharged until ten days after the unit had left Canada. He is now home on leave. Clock Making Related To Engineers

The E.I.C. held a regular technical meeting at Paragon Hall, Thursday evening.

The speaker, F. R. Pope, assistant superintendent of the Western Clock Company, presented his paper, "Alarm Clocks—How They Are Made."

Mr. Pope, in opening, made some observations on the history of timekeeping. Time was defined as a system of reckoning duration. There are three chief methods of reckoning time—solar, siderial, and mean solar. Solar is sun time and therefore varies with the length of the day. Siderial or star time over long periods introduces slight errors in the calendars. Modern time-keeping is based on the average day length and is called mean solar time.

The advent of railroad trains made it necessary to have a standard for the whole country. It is a matter of interest that the late Sir Sandford Fleming, a former Peterborough resident was instrumental in introducing the system of standard time to the world. This involves a common standard and time belts to compensate for differences in longitude.

The first clocks as we know them were introduced by a monk, Gelbert, in the 13th Century, and were driven by weights. Galileo developed the pendulum, but the greatest advance was made by Cook in 1660, who invented the oscillating balance wheel.

The essentials of a clock are a source of power, a train of gears for transmission to an indicating mechanism, an oscillating balance wheel and an escapement. The lever escapement, the most accurate devised to date, is used in Westclox alarms.

Mr. Pope admitted that from a manufacturing standpoint the problems involved in making high quality clocks for the prevailing low prices are formidable. Extensive tools, fixtures and automatic machine tools are necessary. To justify the large amount of equipment involved production must be high and the Peterborough plant turns out some 6,000 units per day.

Gears are stamped out of sheets. A lubrication problem is obviously present when it is learned that the balance wheel in Big Ben oscillates about half a billion times in four years—the usual period a clock will run without cleaning and re-oiling. Mr. Pope outlined many other manufacturing details, using models and samples for illustration. The group was told that modern clocks are quieter than older ones, for much the same reason that modern cars are smoother—rubber mounting and sound-deadening applications.

In concluding, Mr. Pope attributed the excellent of Westclox alarms in a great measure to the skill developed by the personnel.

In the discussion following the paper, Mr. Pope humorously referred to the clocks that come back to the factory "because they just stopped." He explained that an expert can tell by the condition of the balance staff whether the clocks have suffered a fall—and they usually have.

D. A. Drynan introduced the speaker and Mr. A. J. Girdwood moved the vote of thanks. He also announced that a distinguished Canadian engineer, E. V. Leipoldt, will address the meeting February 19.

War Stamps Sold Top 100,000 In School Effort

Sixty-one weeks of united effort on the Home Front by the pupils at the Peterborough Collegiate has established a record for war service work that is probably without parallel in any other school in the Dominion.

Starting in September, 1940, one year after war had been declared, the students launched a campain to sell War Savings Stamps, and this week they sold the 100,000th stamp, to retain a daily average of $100 to Canada's war effort, and more than $25,000 in cash to the cause. Not satisfied with this, the students have also sold $7,000 worth of War Savings Certificates for cash, and then just to put a little more cream on the war pie, they decided to buy a mobile kitchen, and more than $800 of the $1,100 objective has been salted away in the treasury.

This heart-warming contribution on the part of the students has been all the more notable in view of the steady effort that has kept the sales high week after week. When the drive started 61 school weeks ago, the pupils set an objective of $250.00 a week and on several occasions this has been doubled and even tripled.

The plan developed following a meeting of the staff who were anxious to see the students do something for the war effort. The staff elected Henry Toole, Commercial supervisor to pilot the organization and this man deserves a large share of the credit for the success of the venture.

The weekly average for the pupils has been $400 for stamps or counting stamps and certificates it has been slightly more than $500 weekly.

There are approximately 1,000 pupils in the school and many of the leading salesmen have regular customers for stamps, who purchase substantial amounts week after week. The plan too has done much to educate others to the value and the need for purchasing the stamps, and many parents have taken a long range view of the plan and decided that modest savings now will aid materially in putting their boy or girl through college later on.

The mobile kitchen is intended for Peterborough, England, but should Peterborough, England not require the unit, it will be sent by the Hon. Vincent Massey, High Commissioner to a spot in the British Isles where it will do the most good. The amount required is $1100 and slightly more than $800 has been subscribed. This money has come from individual contributions, form activities and by money raising stunts by the various student organizations.

This morning Gordon S. Matthews, district chairman for the War Savings organization, visited the school and during assembly at 9 o'clock paid hearty tribute to the hard working girls and boys who have made the contribution possible.

Mr. Matthews in his talk to the students said:

"The last time I was here I felt just as nervous as I do this time, and to be quite truthful I wouldn't be here unless I had been asked. Sometime ago you and I, and by you I mean every pupil and teacher in this school, started a job to which as yet, we don't see the end. It is an important job. It is the job of helping to supply the money that will purchase the tools of war and give our airmen, sailors and soldiers a chance to fight the enemy, whether he be a Nazi, a Fascist or a yellow Jap, on equal terms.

"Yesterday you purchased your 100,000th Stamp. Good work—but we must continue this effort. You have sold in this school-year practically the same number of stamps as you did a year ago. In addition, however, you have raised sufficient money to purchase 2-3 of a Mobile Kitchen. When you buy War Savings Stamps you are doing something that helps both your country and yourself.

"When you raise money for a Mobile Kitchen you are doing a job that will help somebody whom you do not know, but who needs that help—More power to you!

"I do like the method you are using in endeavoring to raise this money. As I understand it, it is an effort of groups, and if you will accept one little bit of advice from me, it is this: 'The more new ideas and fun you put into your effort, the greater the kick you will get out of doing it.' Here's hoping you have the Kitchen bought by Easter.

Before sitting down I want to tell you very briefly about the Second Victory Loan Campaign that starts on February 15th. It will run for three weeks. In Peterborough we will try to raise $2,750,000, without interfering with the purchase of War Savings Stamps and Certificates. The set-up now in Canada is that one committee handles War Savings and Victory Loans. They are equally important.

"As long as this war lasts there will be a Victory Loan Campaign every six or eight months.

"The War Savings Campaign will be continuous and your job, therefore, will not end till peace is declared.

"I feel confident that you will not let down but will increase the enthusiasm you are putting into every one of your war efforts."

Ready To Shift Fast

Honolulu, Feb. 6. (CP)

PLANS for the evacuation of women and children from Honolulu's greatest danger area in event of an attempted landing by the enemy were outlined today by Lt.-Gen. Delos C. Emmons, military governor of Hawaii. Male civilians will remain to fight possible fires.

All families were asked to provide themselves with a kit containing a four-day supply of nonperishable foodstuffs, as well as two blankets, waterproof garments, warm clothing, gas masks, and miscellaneous articles such as a can opener, soap, towels and flashlight.

Farmers Urged Increase Weight Of Hogs

Thirty-five farmers from the Omemee and Cambray sections of Victoria County followed the processing stage of an important branch of their industry at the plant of Canada Packers Limited today. They were shown the practice of rail grading and other phases of the work of converting hogs into Wiltshire sides for the British market.

Gordon S. Matthews, plant engineer, welcomed the visitors from Victoria, and told them that other similar groups of producers from the Central Ontario district had preceded them in the same kind of demonstration last year.

A number of hogs were selected for a judging competition, and later this afternoon their estimates of the market quality of the live animals were compared with the final results disclosed as the carcasses were shown on the rail. The Victoria farmers were guests of the company at luncheon in the Sunday School room of Murray Street Baptist Church. Mr. Matthews reminded the guests that Canada was likely to be short 80,000,000 pounds in its bacon contract with Great Britain, and emphasized the necessity of farmers increasing the weight of hogs to around 220 pounds at the farm so that they would average 210 pounds at the packing plant.

Army Train Is Seen By 4,785

Upwards of 300 people were unable to gain admission to the "war circus" train which was on display here Thursday showing the weapons of war used by the Canadian Army and the official count reveals that 4,785 people saw the display.

The fact that the train was taken away from Peterborough at five o'clock prevented the bulk of the people from getting a look at it, and it is conservatively estimated that upwards of 10,000 would have gone through if the train could have been kept here until after the supper hour.

An interesting angle to this visit is that the train was painted in the divisional colors of the four Canadian divisions now in England The red of the first division, the blue of the second division, the French grey of the third, and the maroon of the 5th Armored Division. Sixty-two men of the company on the train availed themselves of the facilities of the local Y.M.C.A. for a shower and a swim, and Lt.-Col. McKenna, officer commanding the train, voiced his personal thanks to local Y.M.C.A. officials for this courtesy.

The men on the train are on a strict army footing, that is, they cook all their own food, do regular sentry duty, and are armed as every sergeant was seen to be equipped with a revolver, as well as the usual infantry arms.

Soldiers on duty while the train was stopped in this city, especially those standing out of doors, were wearing a sheepskin lined leather coats, known as sentry coats, and they looked warm and comfortable.

Officials at the local Victory Loan headquarters expressed regret that the train could not be kept here longer but they pointed out the train schedule had been arranged and had to be followed on time. They were satisfied that those who had been able to get through the train would have a much better appreciation of the many needs that face the highly mechanized army of today.

Epidemic Is Feared Of Scarlet Fever

A warning that Peterborough may have to face an epidemic of scarlet fever was sounded by Dr. J. H. Avison, acting medical officer of health this morning.

"Scarlet fever is epidemic in several sections of the province," said Dr. Avison. "There are several cases at present in the city and we may be facing an epidemic here."

"Any person who has a throat condition," added the health officer, "should remain at home until it clears up. If there is any rash at all the patient should call in a doctor, not only for his own protection but for the protection of the public."

From one of its doleful peaks of $174,592.84 in 1935, the relief committee fixed its estimates Thursday night at $12,000.

The estimates for last year amounted to $21,500 and the expenditure chargeable to the city treasury was $11,710.63, leaving a surplus of nearly $10,000.

The total expenditure by the relief department in 1941 was $29,594.56. According to the anticipated needs for the present year the relief account as reflected in the estimates will be reduced this year by nearly one hundred per cet.

Another one of the excessive relief years was 1936 with a total distribution of $153,262.60. Those sums exclude the cost of administration.

The garden lots in the north end of the city will be available to the public generally this year. They have been thoroughly worked for several years, fertilizer has been applied, and the land is in good condition. The gardens will not be restricted to persons on relief. One reason is this, that the relief list has simmered down to only those who are unable to do hard work.

Counsel Picks Up Hat And Coat Walks Out Leaving Client Cold

"It looks as if I were talking to myself and I might as well stop," declared W. J. Arthur Fair, defence counsel in the midst of his argument in Police Court this morning in behalf of Joseph Carey, who was facing a charge of reckless driving, arising out of a traffic accident at Perry and George Streets on the night of January 21 in which Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Ephgrave were injured.

Magistrate Langley raised his head in surprise at the outburst.

"I don't think you have been listening to me," said Mr. Fair. "You have been writing for the last five minutes."

The Magistrate stated that he had merely been making notes of the sections referred to by defence counsel and asked Mr. Fair to continue.

"You probably have your mind made up anyway," exclaimed the counsel for Carey, as he picked up his overcoat and hat and left the court room.

Magistrate Langley then called upon Crown Attorney V. J. Mcderny, K.C., for his argument, and the representative of the Crown had begun his address when he was interrupted by the court.

"I think in all fairness to this accused," said the Magistrate, "that I should give him the opportunity of endeavoring to persuade his counsel to return or to secure some other lawyer to argue from the facts in the case."

Accordingly, Carey who is on bail, was remanded until Tuesday morning.

Hearing of evidence in the case took up most of Thursday. At the afternoon session Constable C. J. McGillen and Gordon Trennum who investigated the acident, were called by the Crown. Officer McGillen who had arrested Carey said that the accused had been drinking and that he did not believe he was in proper condition to drive a car that night. Constable Trennum, who testified as to the measurements he had taken at the scene of the accident, also said that Carey had evidently been drinking.

Another Car Mentioned.

Mr. Fair called two young men who had been passengers in Carey's car at the time of the accident and also the accused himself into the witness box.

Carey and the two passengers, Jerry Hickey and Claire Cavanagh, all swore that another car had been ahead of them going down George Street, and that this car passed in front of Ephgrave's machine as it waited at the Perry Street intersection. Immediately after it had passed, they testified, Ephgrave's car had moved out into the intersection and Carey had swerved to the east side of the street in an endeavor to prevent a crash. It was all he could have done under the circumstances, they declared.

Cavanagh testified that Carey was sober that night.

The Crown recalled Thomas Ephgrave and Walter Johnston in rebuttal and then Magistrate Langley adjourned court until this morning for argument and judgment.

Mr. Fair had started out by declaring that the police had been prompt in laying a charge of reckless driving in this case, because, he alleged, the driver of the other car was a man of some prominence. On the other hand he charged that in another case in which an old man "of not much importance" had been fatally injured on a street in broad daylight, nothing had been done about it, possibly, defence counsetl said, because the driver involved was the son of a man who was more prominent in the district.

It was at this point that Mr. Fair's sudden outburst brought the argument to an abrupt conclusion.

Mt. Pleasant WI Has Apron Show

MOUNT PLEASANT, Feb. 6 (ENS)—The February meeting of the Mount Pleasant branch of Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. W. H. Lowes on Wednesday afternoon with an attendance of fourteen ladies.

The president Mrs. T. C. Morden conducted the meeting with Mrs. W. H. Lowes offering the "Prayer for Peace." Several amusing conundrums were given in response to the roll call, followed by a talk on the motto: "A Cheerful Grin Will Let You In" by Mrs. G. Shield. Mrs. Ira Lowe, Red Cross convener, reported the complete list of sewing and knitting for 1941.

The members were divided in groups for the purpose of raising funds with Mrs. Morden, Mrs. G. Ruth and Mrs. Gardiner as conveners. Mrs. Lawson and Mrs. Handley were a committee appointed to prepare a box for one of the boys in England, whose address was not available at Christmas.

The special feature of the meeting was a contest—an apron parade—the aprons being judged by the members dropping a nickle into the pocket of the one they liked best. All the ladies participated with the result that Mrs. Morden's and Mrs. G. Ruth's aprons were the recipients of the most nickles.

Mrs. W. H. Lowes gave a most interesting and instructive paper on "The Duties of a hostess."

Mrs. Graham and Mrs. Gardiner assisted the hostess in the service of dainty refreshments.

Quilting Features W.A. Group Efforts

HAVELOCK, Feb. 6.—(ENS)—The west end group of the W.A was held at the home of Mrs. Roy Longmuir on Wednesday afternoon. The centre group met at the home of Mrs. Jessie Campney, and the east end at the home of Mrs. Harry Watson. All meetings were well attended, quilting and cutting out quilt blocks was the work of the afternoon and lunch was served by the committees in charge.

Crerar Reviews Highland Unit Checks Defences

(By ROSS MUNRO.)

SOMEWHERE IN ENGLAND, Feb. 6.—(CP)—Making a close study of the whole Canadian Corps front, Maj.-Gen. H. D. G. Crerar, acting corps commander, paid his first visit to the Highland Light Infantry from Western Ontario.

Accompanied by three officers from brigade headquarters—Capt. Charlie Clarke of Windsor, Ont., Lieut. Phil Strickland of Saskatoon and Lieut. R. H. Hillborn of Preston, Ont.—the general met all the officers in the mess in an old hotel and gave them a 15-minute off-the-record talk about the present war situation and what the spring may bring.

With the regiment's new colonel, who comes from Galt, Ont., Gen. Crerar looked over some of the unit's forward positions and had the defence plan outlined to him in detail. The H.L.I. are responsible for an important sector of the south of England. Their battle role probably will include airdrome defence.

Maj. R. E. Bricker of Kitchener, Ont., is a second-in-command now and company comanders are Majs. R. F. Shantz of Preston, F. L. Roelofson of Galt, F. M. Hearn of Kitchener, and Capts. G. A. M. Edwards and D. N. Durward, both of Galt. Lieut. D. R. Hodgins of Preston is the regular adjutant but he was away on a course during the General's visit and Lieut. Gord Sim is brother of Dave and Finlay Sim, prominent in the Ottawa civil service.

The troops are quartered in a score houses, hotels and stores in a part of a town which is practically deserted by civilians.

Signs of Canada

On every building there are pictorial evidences that it is a Canuck area. There are huge railway posters labelled ironically "See Canada and the United States," with pictures of Canadian countryside, mountains and seashore. Beside posters showing German uniforms are others lauding the beauty spots of Ontario and Gaspe.

"It makes the fellows feel a little more at home," said a private on guard duty.

Top non-commissioned officer is RSM. R. J. Hadfield of Galt, oldest serving member of the regiment who has been with it for nearly 30 years, off and on. He was physical training instructor for the Toronto Maple Leafs hockey team when they used to do pre-season training in Galt.

Non-commissioned officers included Sgt. Bernard Weir, CQMS. Jim Yeaman, CSM. Cyril Whittington, CSM. Freddie Smith, all of Galt; CSM. "Maxie" Zink of Kitchener, Sgt. Harry Brent of Strathroy, Ont., and RQMS. George Rutherford of Hespeler, Ont.

Douglas Kennedy of Kitchener, who went through all the ranks from private, now is a lieutenant and a number of N.C.O.'s now are taking the Officer Cadet training course.

The day the General visited the H.L.I. training was concentrated on tank hunting and destruction. Two British officers who had been in action in this war outlined tactics to be employed. Practical demonstrations were given in the field with Lieut. Bob Klaehn of Kitchener, a graduate in chemistry from Ontario Agricultural College at Guelph, Ont., using his mortar platoon in Bren gun carriers as a tank squadron.

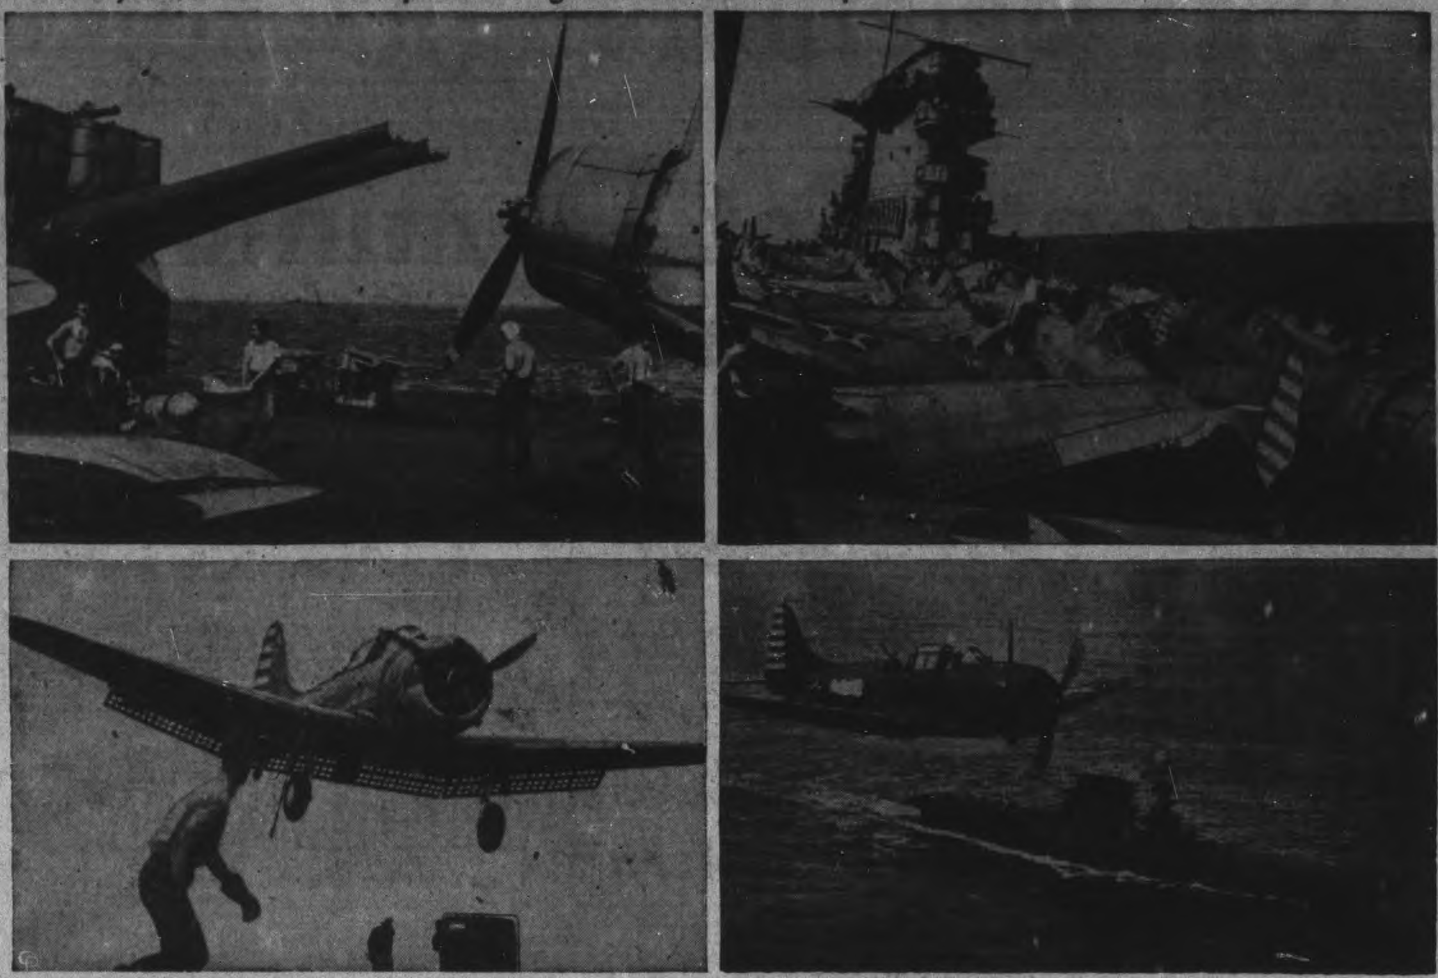
U.S. Navy And Naval Air Corps Scouring The Pacific For Japs



Scouring the Pacific in a grim hunt for enemy naval and aircrafts, the United States navy and naval air corps maintains a ceaseless patrol determined that there shall be no repetition of the Pearl Harbor debacle. A navy dive bomber circles her mother carrier, LOWER RIGHT, while a re-arming crew of a carrier rushes to reload a bombing plane with bombs and depth charges, UPPER LEFT. Huddled on the deck of a carrier, these planes, UPPER RIGHT, will soon take to the air on patrol duty or to meet attack. A carrier-berthed plane is pictured, LOWER LEFT, about to land on the flight deck of the mother ship. Note the flaps are down to brake the landing speed. A member of the plane-handling crew is running out while in the background is the control officer who guides the pilot in for the landing.

Laurier Resigns Over Hepburn On Conscription

TORONTO, Feb. 6 (CP)—A Liberal premier's support of a Conservative candidate in the York South Federal by-election has brought about a break in the Ontario cabinet—the resignation of Mines Minister Robert Laurier, nephew of the late Sir Wilfrid Laurier. The resignation was precipitated by Premier Hepburn's campaigning for Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen, Canadian Conservative leader who is opposed by J. W. Noseworthy, C.C.F., in next Monday's voting.

In announcing the resignation of the only French-Canadian member of his cabinet last night, Premier Hepburn said: "Mr. Laurier makes it very clear that there is no personal animosity toward me."

The premier quoted from Mr. Laurier's letter, the full contents of which he did not divulge, as follows: "I cannot now nor will I forget how kindly you have treated my compatriots and myself under all circumstances and we all owe you a debt of gratitude which will be difficult to repay."

Mr. Laurier succeeded Paul Leduc when the latter resigned to become registrar of the Supreme Court of Canada. He was sworn in Oct. 7, 1940 and represents Ottawa East in the legislature. Premier Hepburn said Mr. Laurier's resignation affected only his cabinet post and not his seat in Ottawa East.

Mr. Hepburn said he would deal with the resignation next week following the by-elections in York South and Welland in which he is taking an active part.

"I cannot find words with which to express my deep regret over the unfortunate development," said the premier.

He continued that although he had always opposed Mr. Meighen's fiscal policies he stood on common ground with him on the issue of selective service — "national selective service for the forces, the farms and the factories."

Canada Allowing New Citizens To Join Armies

OTTAWA, Feb. 6—(CP.. — The Government has decided to permit men who came here from Poland, Norway, the Netherlands, Belgium or Czecho-Slovakia and now are naturalized Canadians, to join forces being raised in Canada by recognized governments of their native lands, it was announced yesterday.

This marks a change in policy. In the past the Government has refused to allow naturalized men to be enlisted in foreign forces recruited here, in the belief that service in such a force would interfere with their assimilation as Canadians when they returned after the war. It was preferred to have the men join the Canadian army.

Canadian authorities now feel this consideration outweighed by the good-will which might be developed by having these Canadians associated with men of their native land in the war, men who doubtless will play an important part eventually in the governments of Allied countries now overrun by the Nazis.

Men of dual nationalities, Canadian and their native land, will also be permitted to join foreign forces recruited in Canada. Nationals principally affected are Canadians born in Poland. Many of them have expressed desire to join Polish formations in Canada. Some of them are more than 45 years old—maximum age in the Canadian army—but can get into the Polish army in administrative posts up to 55 years.

The new policy does not extend to Free French because the Free French ruling body is not recognized as a government. Any naturalized Canadian from France wishing to enlist would have to join Canada's army.

U. S. Bomb Sight Well Guarded

Now actively engaged in the war the United States is making sure that the secret of their famous bomb sight does not fall into enemy hands. Aviation cadets who are learning to be bombardiers are shown accompanied by armed guards as they carry the all-powerful bomb sights enclosed 'n zippered bags prior to taking off for target bombing.

Passengers Shaken Up As Bus, Truck Collide

BANCROFT, Feb. 6—Two trucks were badly damaged but no one was hurt in a collision one mile north of Banockburn yesterday. The Belleville-Bancroft bus, owned by E. Stapley of Belleville and driven by Gerald Maxam of Bancroft collided with a soft drink truck from Belleville driven by Charles E. Doran.

The crash occurred at a winding stretch of road as both vehicles approached down opposite slopes. The impact ripped the sides of both bus and truck badly but bus passengers received no more than a shaking up. Provincial Constable Paterson of Madoc investigated.

Lewis Is Absent

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—(AP)—President Roosevelt called the first of his heart-to-heart conferences with C.I.O. and A.F.L. leaders today, but John L. Lewis, long a pillar of the C.I.O., was not on the guest list. Six leaders of the rival organizations were invited by Mr. Roosevelt to discuss with him "all matters concerning labor's participation in the war."

RECTAL SORENESS AND PILE TORTURE
QUICKLY RELIEVED

If you are troubled with itching piles or rectal soreness, do not delay treatment and run the risk of letting this condition become chronic. Any itching or soreness or painful passage of stool is nature's warning and proper treatment should be secured at once.

For this purpose get a package of Hem-Roid from McDermid & Jury or any druggist and use as directed. This formula which is used internally is a small, easy to take tablet, will quickly relieve the itching and soreness and aid in healing the sore tender spots. Hem-Roid is pleasant to use, is highly recommended, and it seems the height of folly for any one to risk a painful and chronic pile condition when such a fine remedy may be had at such a small cost.

If you try Hem-Roid and are not entirely pleased with the results, your druggist will gladly return your money. —(Advt.)

Happy Landings

Behind these words there is much more than just good wishes. A whole science of navigation by air is also on the job to deliver that "Happy Landings".

An airplane aloft is never really alone, however high it flies. Its two-way radio provides constant speaking contact with the ground.

Storage batteries are a source of power not only for an airplane's radio and navigation instruments but also for cabin and navigation and landing lights. They perform many additional functions for the safety and convenience of its passengers. Great air lines know from millions of miles of flying that in these critical services their Exides will be dependable.

Not only air lines but railroads, utility companies, police departments, hospitals, mines, shipping lanes, large fleets of trucks and buses, manufacturing plants and various branches of the Army, Navy and Air Force have all learned from long experience that they can entrust essential services to Exide. Millions of car owners put car starting up to Exide in all seasons of the year.

With facts like these to guide you, it is easy to avoid guesswork when buying a battery for your car. Is there any other battery which so thoroughly merits your confidence?

If you are hard on a battery—if you stop and start a lot—if you have a radio, a heater or a defroster, ask to see the Exide Hycap Battery. The Hycap is made especially for such conditions. It has ample power to take care of these extras, together with plenty of reserve for starting in any weather.

The Exide Dealer in your community has been carefully chosen for his ability to give good battery service. Look for his Exide sign—symbol of honest service.

Care prevents waste. Avoid starting trouble. Check your battery now.

Broilers Drop, Fowl Scarce

TORONTO, Feb. 6 — (ENS). — Conditions in the dressed poultry market here are about the same as last week, the Dominion Department of Agriculture reports. Quotations are unchanged with the exception of fowl and broilers.

A limited supply of broilers is arriving costing: Grade A milk-fed 29c; Grade B milk-fed 27c per lb., one cent below last week.

Fowl are on the short side and quotations have advanced 1 cent per lb.

Receipts of chicken are more than enough for requirements in some quarters, with the surplus being moved out of town, one car rolling to Ottawa. Some dealers, however, report fresh receipts are lighter and storage stocks bein used.

New turkeys continue to arrive, but receipts of this kind of poultry are gradually getting less.

Dealers are quoting producers and country dealers (nominal):—

Merchant Ship Building Almost Up to UK

MONTREAL, Feb. 6.—(CP).—Munitions Minister Howe yesterday told members of the Engineering Institute of Canada, in annual convention here, that Canada's output of merchant shipping this year is expected to total as much as that of the shipyards of Great Britain.

Submarine sinkings in the Atlantic have forced Canada to switch her shipbuilding facilities from naval to merchant vessels, Mr. Howe said in an address in which he also revealed that the Dominion is sending twenty-ton Valentine infantry tanks to Soviet Russia at a rate of three a day.

In another disclosure, he said that Canadian aircraft plants are turning out seventy planes a week, or 'about 300 a month.'

Mr. Howe said that Canada's output of Valentine tanks, being produced in Montreal, is being speeded up and added that the aircraft industry is turning out 'some of the most modern types of planes used by the armed forces.'

Discussing the organization of the munitions industry, he said that Canadian munitions are being used in theatres of war throughout the world, including Hawaii, the Philippines, the Middle East, Britain, Russia, Australia, New Zealand, Burma, China, Singapore and the Netherlands East Indies.

"We are not attempting to hold the munitons in Canada. We are sending them to wherever they will do the most good," he said.

The first shipment of 'North American' munitions sent to China over the Burma Road, he added, was 1,000 Bren guns and 10,000,000 rounds of ammunition—all produced in Canada.

"We have pretty well been through the period of getting plants into production. The year 1941 was not a great year in the production of munitions because of the necessity of tooling up and building plants. But even so, in that year we produced munitions valued at more than the whole production of the last war."

Get Going This Year.

It was indicated, he added, that Canada's 1942 production would be 'about two and one-half times' that of 1941 — with still more plants to be built. "We'll really get going We will have a man-sized munitions industry."

Mr. Howe referred to recent criticism in Parliament about Canadian troops on the Dominion's west coast using what he described as 'old but perfectly good rifles.' He had suggested to Defense Minister Ralston that "we give the Canadian troops good rifles and stop all this criticism."

Colonel Ralston, he continued gave this reply:

Ships And Planes In Hunt For Axis Forces

First School Of No. 1 Asphodel Conducted As A Private School

Public School Inspector Leo W. Copp has collected historical sketches of the rural school in his inspectorate comprising that part of the county which was formerly known as East Peterborough. Some time ago he suggested that the Examiner might find in sheaf of reports interesting background of these school sections from their beginnings and organization.

The first of these accounts reviews in outline School Section No. 1, Asphodel. As a preface it is recalled that the School Inspectors in the eastern area of the county were Dr. Poole of Norwood; Rev. M. N. Farrar; James Stratton, father of the late Hon. J. R. Stratton; James Coyle Brown, 1875-1905; Richard Lees, 1905-1930; L. W. Copp, 1930 to 1939 with one year's service by M. H. Park as inspector 1939-40. Mr. Copp resumed his duties in 1940 after a year's transfer to the staff of the Peterborough Normal School.

Some of these records are exceptionally interesting as for example those from Blairton and Cordova, and elsewhere. They contribute a separate sketch of those communities when they were busy mining centres.

Mr. Copp proposed that the "logs" of the schools be published in the alphabetical order of the townships and so the first one in that order is School Section No. 1, Asphodel.

Began As Private School

The first school in Section No. 1, Asphodel, was conducted privately by a man named Hudson in a log building on the farm of W. McColl. Later a common school was erected on the farm of Robert Cayford Humphries. Francis Sharpe, a veteran of Wellington's armies in the Spanish wars, was the teacher. He received a shilling a month from each pupil, and provisions were supplied to him by the parents.

Prior to 1865 Master Owens taught in a two-roomed house where H. Neilson lives. In 1857 John Morrow was in charge of the school at a salary of £72 a year. He met death by drowning on a 24th of May holiday.

In 1856 the new site for a school was bought from R. D. and H. N. Ewing, and by 1857 a two-roomed building was completed at a cost of £200. The upper part of this school was planned for use as a "town hall." The average attendance was 65. In 1868 a woodshed was built. It withstood the years and their wear and tear until 1907 when the present woodshed was erected in its place. In 1875 the school was remodelled, making it a lower building, at an outlay of $187. In 1876 it was bricked at a cost of $107.25, and that year the bell was set up in its present place. In 1905 a new hardwood floor was laid, and in 1907 the school yard was enlarged to its present extent of one acre.

The flagpole was erected in 1909, single seats were installed in 1911 at a cost of $175, and steel shingles cost an additional $104.48.

Arbour ay In 1885

Arbour Day has been observed on the first Friday in May since 1885. Some trees have been planted around the school yard by former pupils. School fairs were introduced in 1912, and became an important part of the fall term's work. Each year the pupils entertain their parents and friends at the Christmas concert. This feature was introduced in 1880. The first teaching of music under a supervisor was begun in 1932.

The school organized a junior Red Cross in 1934. The first free toxoid clinic was held in 1936 under th auspices of the Women's Institute. Other items in the recent record were the purchase of a new stove in 1936, Coronation year program on May 11. King George VI and Queen Elizabeth were crowned May 12, 1937.

Saw King and Queen

On May 22, 1939, the pupils went to Toronto and saw the King and Queen at Exhibition Park. The pupils prepared an exhibit on "Japan" for the school fair in September. Jean Cameron student teacher in 1940. Annual picnic at Birdsal's Beach, June 1940.

Tax Collections Up

OTTAWA, Feb. 6 — (CP). — Revenue Minister Gibson announced yesterday January income tax collections totalled $49,264,119 compared with $29,057,595 for January, 1941.

Total income tax revenues for the 10-month period from April 1, 1941, to January 31, were $494,440,563 compared with $202,605,598 in the corresponding period of the previous fiscal year.

$56,000 Paid Menie Patrons, Returns Doubled

CAMPBELLFORD, Feb. 6 (ENS). —The manufacture of cheese and its by-product, whey butter, brought nearly $56,000 to the 37 patrons of the Menie Cheese and Butter Company, it was revealed at the annual meeting held Wednesday afternoon. This represented practically double the amount the factory returned to patrons in 1940, and was the result of their production being raised by 30 per cent, which is 13 per cent above the average increase of the district. In fact, their total production of cheese running to 286,132 pounds was 53,372 pounds above any other factory in the township, and they not only produced more cheese but better cheese, as 99.4 per cent was first grade or over, and 98.6 per cent was in the premium class, putting them in second place in the race for quality cheese. During the entire season their able cheesemaker, Frank Little, who retired after 19 years at Menie factory, turned out only 25 boxes of under grade cheese. Of the total of 3,061 boxes 2,368 were 94's, 532 were 93's and 156 were 92's, and this brought a quality premium of $4,895.84.

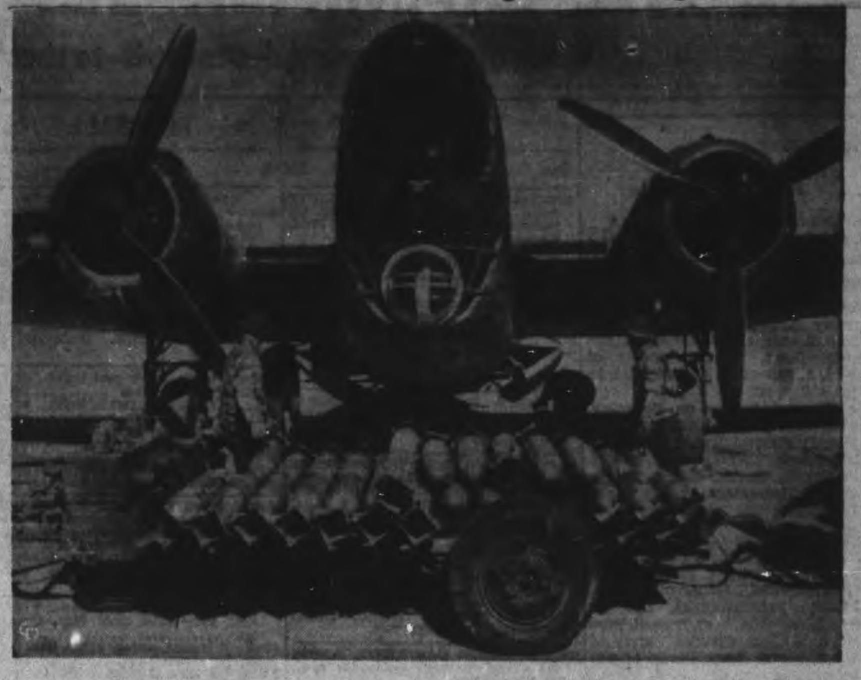
Roy Walker, who for the past ten years has been president and secretary, presided for the meeting. He said that the increased production was partly due to an extra six weeks of operation since there were only three additional patrons. A mechanically refrigerated curing room was installed in 1940, and there had been no major expenditure on the plant during the past year. His production figures showed a total of 3,353,542 pounds of milk from which they made 286,132 pounds of cheese and 10,393 pounds of whey butter. Fat totalled 104,326 pounds, and it took 11.7 pounds of milk to each pound of cheese or 2.74 pounds cheese per pound fat. The average test was 3.11. Cheese brought an average of 17.12 cents per pound without the bonus or 20.67 including bonus. Whey butter averaged 30.7 per pounds and butterfat 3.6 cents per pound. Total receipts from the sale of cheese were $48,893.79, less freight $429.81, and whey butter brought $3,196.15; the Provincial subsidy $5,722.640, and the Dominion premium $4,895.84. To show their appreciation to the retiring cheesemaker they gave him a $100 cheque from the bonus money. Of their new cheesemaker Vernon Spencer, who has been making for -17 years and came to Menie from Queensboro, Mr. Walker expressed the opinion that they would continue to produce high scoring cheese if they gave him the same amount of co-operation.

Commenting on the factory record J. D. Mills indicated the patrons had received an average of 1¾ cents premium on every pound of cheese they sold. J. A. Murray, district dairy instructor, who presided for the election of officers, announced that more cheese had been made in Northumberland since December than in any other county in Central Ontario. He complimented the patrons on their splendid statement as did Mr. Mills. The following officers were elected: President and Secretary, Roy Walker, whose remuneration was upped from $130 to $150; Auditor, G. Mitchell Rannie; Directors, L. Little, Charles Hutchoen, Robert Linn, Harold Milne, John Rannie.

Collect At War's End

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—(AP)—Owners of property damaged by Jap bombings in the Philippines and Hawaii will have to wait until the end of the war to collect under the free war damage insurance program being set up by the United States Congress.

Student Bombardiers Practice Target Bombing



With a lowering of restrictions for entry into the air forces, the United States is swiftly building a gigantic force of fighting birdmen. A B-18 bombardier training ship is pictured being loaded with 100 pounds of training bombs each containing one pound of powder. The ship is being loaded for the trainees to take off and practice actual target bombing.

DOROTHY DIX

MOTHER-N-LAW THE MOST MALIGNED OF ALL WOMEN

Yet She Is the First to be Called on For Help Yet Always Subject for Censure.

One of my correspondents thinks that mothers-in-law are a much-maligned class and that instead of being trouble-makers, as they are popularly supposed to be, and first aids to divorce, as statistics assert they are, in reality they are ministering angels who are not properly appreciated by the ungrateful men and women their children have married.

"Who," she asks, "is the one who is called upon to pinch-hit in every emergency in her children's households? Who is called upon to sub for the trained nurse when there is a new baby in the family? Who has the children dumped on her when the young parents want to take a vacation?

"Who steps into the breach and brings order out of chaos when the wife is sick, the maid has left, the husband has extra work to do at the office; little Mary has the sniffles and Johnny has mashed his toe, there is nothing left to eat in the house and three days' dishes stacked in the sink? Who can always dig down in her pocket and find a little money to help out with the bills when times are hard? Who teaches the children Bible stories and instills in their infant minds about all the instruction they ever get in old-fashioned moralities?

"Isn't it the mother-in-law? You said it. When everything is going all right and they are riding high and handsome, her in-laws may consider mother-in-law a nuisance to have around the premises, but when they get in a jam they send an SOS call out for her, and she always answers it and comes to the rescue.

"So when I hear young wives saying how they dread their mothers-in-law and young husbands acting like early Christian martyrs because Sally's mother is going to come and pay them a visit, I feel like telling the poor simps how lucky they are, and that if they only knew it the chances are the best thing they got out of marriage was their mother-in-law.

It's Ticklish Job at Best

All of which is even so, but it does not alter the fact that the in-law relationship is a ticklish job to handle and is best worked by remote control. his goes double for the mother-in-law and explains why, if she wants to be happy herself and to be placed upon a pedestal by her children and their spouses, she should NEVER, NEVER, NEVER go to live with them.

There are many reasons why a mother-in-law, even though she be a saint on earth, is almost always a discordant note in the household. The primary one is that nearly all young husbands and wives are more jealous of their husbands' and wives' mothers than they are of any gigolo or siren. They cannot endure the thought that anyone has more influence over their mates than they have. So when John innocently remarks that "Mother thinks we had better do so and so," or Mary says: "Mother says," it starts a row that often ends in divorce.

Subject of Jealousy

Nor are young husbands and wives jealous alone of their mother-in-law's influence. They are jealous of her personally. Why young people with kind hearts and tender sympathies and good sense should expect their mates to cease loving their mothers the minute they are married, no one knows. But only too often they do. All of us know of dozens of cases of wives who have weaned their husbands completely away from their mothers and of husbands who get as green-eyed over their wives going to see their mothers as if they were keeping rendezvous with some handsome stranger.

As for the standard grievance against mothers-in-law—that they interfere in their children's affairs when they live together—that is inevitable. No highly skilled professional can watch an untrained amateur bungling a job without offering a word of advice.

Nor can any woman who has been busy all her life be content to just sit still and twiddle her thumbs. She is bound to stick her fingers in her children's pies, and this leads to friction and trouble, human nature, and especially feminine human nature, being what it is. Hence, if mothers and their children and their in-laws desire to admire and love each other, they should keep their distance from each other. At close range they see each other's faults and peculiarities too plainly.

I yield to no one in my admiration for mothers-in-law. I think they are oftener martyrs than pests. I have seen them sacrifice themselves in trying to protect their children from brutal husbands and wives. And I

EVERY MEAL ENDED IN MISERY

But His Indigestion Was Relieved by Kruschen

The treatment which put this man right must surely be worth trying in every case of indigestion. Read what he says:—

"Two years ago I suffered very much from indigestion, loss of appetite, and a most severe pain in my back. Food soured in my stomach. I felt most miserable after meals, and had no desire or appetite for them. A friend advised me to try Kruschen Salts. I did so, and I am most happy to testify that after a short time I felt the greatest relief. I continued taking Kruschen till I felt myself quite better and a new man. I feel as light-hearted as I did twenty years ago."—W.B.

The several salts in Kruschen combine aid in promoting regularity and help cleanse your system each day of poisons and impurities. Millions take the "little daily dose." Ask your druggist for the Girls and Defence Work

DEAR MISS DIX. — Since our country is at war I, and many of my girl friends, wish to help in some way. Can you name some organization we can join? SHIRLEY.

ANSWER—If you want to help, there are lots of opportunities. If you know first aid and have a certificate, there is an immediate job for you. Just now the Government is imploring girls of 18 or more to become nurses' helpers. Their services are held to be invaluable.

Younger girls can help as messengers. And is also needed in the emergency food and housing units for girls who can cook and serve. If there is a Civilian Defense Volunteer Officer in your community, call there and ask where to report. If not, call your local defense council or committee, or the Chamber of Commerce.

Anyway, register at the Defense Headquarters and state what you can do. Your country has need of you.

Living Scenery in a Terrarium

"Lake" Bottom is a cake Pan

A living miniature of your favorite view, in a glass box—hills, lakes, trees and flowers!

You can make such a terrarium easily, with panes of glass and electrician's tape, or you may use a fish bowl. Your hills and valleys are loamy soil covered wth green moss, your trees are tiny spruce seedlings and budding twigs of forsythia.

In the humid atmosphere of a terrarium the forsythia flowers quickly and lasts for weeks.

To make the beautiful lake with its winding rill, fill a cake pan with water and fit it at the bottom of the terrarium. Over it place a sheet of tin, as our sketch shows, from which a "lake" shape was cut with an old pair of scissors.

You may also make desert scenes, using cacti and sedums, and place a tiny donkey and Mexican pottery in their midst. Many lovely glass gardens—in jugs and jars—grow a single plant to perfection, a begonia, orchid, gardenia.

Our 32-page booklet shows how to make all kinds of terrariums, grow pine and palm, cactus and orchid, African violet, begonia, croton and many more flowering and foliage plants. Also has directions for dish gardens.

Send 15 cents in coins or stamps for your copy of "Glass Gardens and Novelty Indoor Gardens" to the Examiner, Home Service, Peterborough. Be sure to write plainly your name, address, and the name of booklet.

"The Authority on Authorities"

KNOWLEDGE IS POWER

KNOWING something which your opponents do not know—that is a great advantage, if you can find how to use it. You may be in a position to figure out that your side has the preponderant strength, or possibly the contrary, and that the opponents cannot. In either case, you may be able to plan a line of action which will make the situation look to them entirely different from what it is, and hence lure them into a vital error.

There was a splendid action picture of a champion using championship psychology. South was Morrie Elis, the No. 1 player of the 1940-41 season. Notice what an overbid he deliberately made when he jumped all the way to game. He put himself in a spot where he could be beaten without cavil. Natural play could set him 500 points—more than the value of the 4-Hearts which his not-vulnerable opponents could have made, and which in tournament duplicate would count 120 tricks plus 300 for game bonus, or a total of 420.

Why, then, was 4-Spades a good bid on his part? Merely this—he knew something which his opponents did not, and furthermore, he knew they did not know it. That is, that they had the preponderant strength. He knew it from his partner's mere raise, combined with the weakness of his own cards. But he saw also that a jump to 4-Spades would make him seem strong to the opponents, who would be tempted to sacrifice against what sounded like an air-tight contract.

That bid made it seem to West that his partner had a weak hand, and therefore that the 4-Spades could be made. So he fell into the trap and sacrificed at 5-Hearts. The resultant 100 points, for a one-trick set, was a clear-cut top score on the deal.

RALEIGH, N.C., Feb. 6.—(AP)—Oscar Pitts, head of North Carolina's penal system, wondered what would be the best way to black out Central prison here, in event of an air raid. Finally he wrote Alcatraz officials for advice. "Turn out the lights," they replied.

As Japanese Bombers Battered U.S.S. Arizona In Pearl Harbor

Released by the U.S. Navy Department, this photo shows the actual bombing of the U.S.S. Arizona by Japanese war-planes on December 7 in Pearl Harbor. The great control tower of the mighty battle wagon is heeling over after repeated hits with heavy bombs. Dense smoke is rising from the waist of the stricken ship where bomb explosions had blasted into her vitals.

RAF Pamphlets Strew France

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6 (AP) — Royal Air Force bombers are strewing occupied France with pamphlets by the millions, proclaiming the gigantic scope of the United States' war plans, Presidential Secretary Stephen Early made known today. He disclosed the leaflet bombardment was particularly intense on the Brittany peninsula.

The same ports and towns were the first to see American soldiers a quarter of a century ago, and that maritime section of France would be one of the first likely theatres of action whenever the United Nations are ready to open a major invasion campaign.

Early, who reported that 1,417,500 pamphlets had been dropped in the latest raids, said he had been told that operations to date constituted "the biggest pamphlet bombing job ever done." More than 2,000,000 leaflets were dropped in initial raids a month ago.

Significant or not, the Brittany area was the first and only section to date blanketed with a new pamphlet—one which contains President Roosevelt's pledge that the United States will "put the weapons of war at the proper time into the hands of those men in the conquered nations, who stand ready to seize the first opportunity to revolt."

Details Next Sitting

London, Feb. 6. (CP)

PRIME MINISTER Churchill said today he would make a statement at the next meeting of the House of Commons on the duties of Lord Beaverbrook, who yesterday was appointed minister of war production.

The prime minister also told the House he hoped to make a statement on service pay and allowances, and that on the second sitting day a secret debate would be held on shipping.

He said there "still are some minor details which would require clarification" before defining the duties of the new minister in relations with the Admiralty, ministry of labor and other departments.

New Scout Corps Fast, Deadly

LONDON, Feb. 6.—(CP) — The organization of a tough-hard-hitting reconnaissance corps—the newest of the British army's task forces—was disclosed today in an official announcement which said the units have a "scale of armaments and degree of mechanization unprecedented in military history."

The reconnaissance troops function on land somewhat as Commandos do against enemy coasts and are "just as tough."

But their roles are reversed.

The Amphibian Commando's objective is destruction first and information secondly. The Reconnaissance Corps wants information first but, if necessary, is armed and ready for decisive operations.

One Reconnaissance battalion is being assigned to each infantry division and "if possible the battalion will probe the enemy lines by cunning and stealth," said the official source.

"But if it has to fight for its facts, then it can turn on such a blast of fire that no battalion ever possessed before."

A battalion's arsenal includes anti-tank artillery of undisclosed calibre, .55-calibre rifles and grenades, batteries of mortars and "hosts of tommyguns and light machine-guns."

For high speed and manoeuvrability, each Reconnaissance battalion has more than 250 vehicles, of which 70 are motorcycles and the others armored cars of great speed, Bren gun carriers and troop-carrying trucks.

The battalion is divided into one company of top-speed wireless experts and motorcycle scouts, another of armored car crews and truck drivers and a third of "assault infantry" who it was stated, are the "toughest men in the corps."

A training centre in Scotland, it was announced, is producing a "spirited, sturdy type of specialist soldier" who will be as adept as reading foreign maps as those of his homeland.

He was No. 1 on a gun crew which set up a record for number of shots hitting the target sleeves, pulled through the air by a plane. The Calder crew topped off its showing by shooting down the sleeve entirely and knocking away part of the cable which hooked it to the plane.

Reds Circle Boche Holding Out In Rzhev

NEW YORK, Feb. 7 (AP)—The BBC heard by CBS, reported to-day that "heavy fighting is taking place immediately east and west of Rzhev" and said the Red Army has encircled the Germans still holding out in the city.

MOSCOW, Feb. 7 (AP)—Russian soldiers, pounding without pause at the German military machine on the snow-covered Western front, have driven the Germans out of two important localities and destroyed several Nazi firing positions and defence works in recent fighting, the Russians reported today.

On one undesignated sector of the front, the mid-day communique said, "our troops drove the enemy out of two important localities and annihilated 600 Germans."

One Soviet artillery unit pushed forward with the infantry during the last two weeks in one area and destroyed several German firing positions and defence works, the war report added.

"By concentrated fire they annihilated over 1,800 enemy men and officers," the communique said.

One tank unit on the western front, the area before Moscow, destroyed a German firing position and wiped out 300 men and officers.

The midnight communique, for the fourth day, noted destruction of German planes on the Moscow approaches. The communique listed seven more shot down, bringing the four-day total to 32.

The Russians are fighting to extend three salients. One in the northwest threatens Velikie Luki, 85 miles from the old Latvian border. The second is the Kirov spearhead south of Vyazma some 90 miles from Smolensk, and the third is the Lozovaya drive between Kharkov and Stalino toward Dnieperopetrovsk.

Dutch Navy Sinks Jap Cruiser

Hits 2nd And a Sub, Own Fleet Intact; Amboina Almost Gone

BATAVIA, N.E.I., Feb. 7.—(AP).—A Japanese cruiser has been sunk and another cruiser and a submarine hit by Netherlands naval forces off Amboina, the Netherlands High Command announced to-day, but it announced that the island, site of the second largest Netherlands Indies sea base, was virtually in enemy hands

In a separate action west of Borneo, it added, a big Japanese transport also was sunk yesterday by air attack.

These sinkings raised the Netherlands score to 59 Japanese ships sunk or heavily damaged since war began in the Pacific—only four shy of the Netherlands goal of a ship a day—in the first 63 days of fighting.

As for the Indies' navy, it was declared officially to be "absolutely intact, at sea and ready for action."

(The Japanese had claimed that two cruisers were sunk, at least two others heavily damaged).

Amboina, between Celebes and New Guinea in the Moluccan sea, is the fifth Indies stronghold won by the Japanese since the start of their invasion on Jan. 4.

It was in this operation that the Japanese cruiser was sunk.

Capital Is Lost

The communique announced also that Pontianak, capital of Netherlands West Borneo, had been "completely occupied." The Japanese previously had taken the little oil-producing island of Tarakan, off the Borneo east coast; the East Borneo port of Balik Papan; the Menado region of Northern Celebes, and the Kendari region of Southern Celebes.

No Peace For Raiders

London, Feb. 7 (CP)

BRITISH air raiders carried out another attack last night on oft-bombed Brest, German-occupied port on the French coast where the Nazi battleships Scharnhorst and Gneisenau have been reported sheltering, the air ministry announced today.

The announcement said one plane was lost in the raid. Another plane was lost on patrol over the North Sea yesterday.

RAF Slashes Hard At Rommel's Spearhead While British Guns Hold Hun In Desert Duel

CAIRO, Feb. 7—(AP).—British fighter planes and bombers, striking hard at the Axis spearheads pushing into Eastern Libya in a strong counter offensive, smashed a considerable number of Axis vehicles in the forward areas yesterday while British and Axis artillery fought a spirited duel.

Aside from the artillery action and patrol activity on both sides, a communique said today, there was no change in the land situation.

Heavy British bombers obtained successful results on a number of more distant targets on the Axis main lines of communication.

The communique's indication of a lull in land operations for the second straight day meant that the British forces are still maintaining their positions some 45 miles west of Tobruk.

Philippine Quisling Call To Yield Ignored By Battling MacArthur

WASHINGTON, Feb. 7—(AP).—Gen. Douglas MacArthur's army scorned the call of the embittered old Filipino rebel, Emilio Aguinaldo, for immediate surrender and once more set itself today against the shock of a new Japanese assault to the north.

The Philippines commander sent word of the surrender plea as he awaited attack by Japanese armies being reinforced from nine transports which were unloading troops yesterday in Lingayen Gulf.

"During the past few days American and Filipino troops have been bombarded by the Japanese with radio broadcasts and pamphlets urging them to surrender," said a United States War Department communique last night.

"These appeals have occasioned considerable amusement for the troops.

"A radio broadcast addressed to Gen. MacArthur was made by Emilio Aguinaldo from Manila. Aguinaldo, who led the revolution against the United States in 1899, is apparently being put forward by the Japanese as a sort of Philippine Quisling. He urged immediate surrender. The appeal was ignored by Gen. MacArthur."

JapsPoundAway At Manila Forts

WASHINGTON, Feb. 7—(AP).—The United States War Department reported today that Japanese heavy artillery rained shells on three American forts at the entrance of Manila Bay, put no material damage was done.

In the Netherlands Indies eight American P-40 pursuit planes, attacked by a greatly superior force of Japanese fighters and bombers near the Island of Bali, shot down at least three enemy planes with a known loss of one American plane, a communique said.

Meanwhile enemy artillery fire was heavy on the Bataan Peninsula in the Philippines. In a fight between two American fighter planes and four Japanese bombers, one enemy plane was shot down.

Most of the Japanese artillery fire, which came from concealed enemy batteries near the southeastern shore of Manila Bay, was concentrated on Fort Drum, the battleship-like fortification on the Islet of El Fraile, the communique said. Some siege shots were directed, however, against Fort Mills, on the major island of Corregidor and against nearby Gort Hughes. The fort's guns returned the fire, with undetermined results.

Block for Sugar Hoarding Under Ration Plan Seen In Fear Of What Neighbors May Say

WASHINGTON, Feb. 7—(AP).—Fear of what the neighbors might think or say is expected to prove a powerful deterrent to sugar hoarding under the stamp rationing plan in the United States which will start in a few weeks with registration of consumers in their neighborhood school houses.

Announcement by Prime Administrator Leon Henderson that school teachers would be his agents in handling the applications of consumers for stamp books—one for every adult and child in the country—placed the sugar rationing plan, like that for tires and tubes, on a neighborhood basis.

Each householder's knowledge that the people next door might gossip, and that the gossip might reach the ears of the local rationing boards which will supervise the issuance of stamp books, might head off any inclination to hoard sugar, some officials noted

Ship Takes Fire At East Port Pier

AN EAST CANADIAN PORT, Feb. 7.—(CP)—Fire broke out in a ship berthed here shortly after midnight today and nine hours later thick smoke poured from the hull while the vessel canted against her dock at 45-degree angle.

Although the ship's captain and other officials about the dock declined to talk about the fire, it was believed the entire crew was able to get ashore after the fire broke out.

No other ships were close enough to be endangered and the burning vessel was allowed to remain docked at her fire-proof pier while a fire-boat played the streams of water into her hold.

The vessel was listing so badly that her starboard deck was almost awash. Officers in the vicinity would not state the nature of the vessel's cargo or even say if she had any cargo aboard.

British Blast Small Strait Boats

Waters Reported Oiled Ready For Jap Invasion Barges

(By C. YATES McDANIEL.)

SINGAPORE, Feb. 7 — (AP). — Japanese long-range guns shelled residential areas of Singapore today for the first time and British artillery, in a thundering cannon duel, silenced a Japanese battery and engaged enemy small boats in Johore Strait.

(The communique reporting the engagement of Japanese small boats did not make clear whether the Japanese were attempting to cross narrow Johore Strait, but the craft mentioned are the type which likely would be used in an effort to land small bodies of men on the northern shore of Singapore Island.

British Far East headquarters, while announcing there had been some shelling of residential areas, did not state the extent of damage.

At the same time, it said the Japanese again raided the fortified island and caused some damage by bombs.

British guns trained on the coastline of Southern Johore State smashed an enemy battery in that area, the communique said.

British headquarters said the Japanese shelling had increased in intensity and was causing some damage in the north of the island. A few casualties were reported.

R.A.F. Fighters Bag Pair.

When the Japanese air raiders came over the oft-bombed city for their customary morning raids, the fighters of the Far East Command rose to join battle and destroyed one Japanese aircraft. Another plane probably was destroyed and two damaged, while all the British fighters returned to their base.

It was announced that during yesterday's raids on Singapore Island one Japanese army 97 twin-bomber and one single-engine bomber were destroyed in combat with British fighters.

British forces kept up their strong guard against any Japanese attempt to cross the Strait.

8-Man Joint General Staff

4 British, 4 U.S. Chiefs Direct Land Air, Factory Line Action

WASHINGTON, Feb. 7 (AP)—An eight-man combined chiefs-of-staff board was established in this United Nations war capital today to direct all British-American joint action by land, sea and air and on factory assembly lines.

British members are: Field Marshall Sir John Dill, former chief of the Imperial General Staff; Admiral Sir Charles Little; Lt.-Gen. Sir Colvile Wemyss; and Air Marshal A. T. Harris.

American members: Admiral Harold R. Stark, the chief of Naval Operations; Gen. George C. Marshall, the Army Chief of Staff; Admiral E. J. King, commander-in-chief of the United States Fleet, and Lt.-Gen. H. H. Arnold, Chief of the Army Air Corps.

In its announcements of the move late yesterday the United States war department said the new board "amounts to a combined command post for the conduct of all joint operations of the two governments in the war."

Besides directing military operations it will have jurisdiction over production and distribution of war supplies. It will work in collaboration with representatives of the other United Nations.

Although similar in many respects to the inter-allied high command of the first Great War, the new agency apparently has more actual power to act.

On broad strategical questions it will make joint recommendations to the heads of the British and American governments. It is empowered to act without delay on immediate matters relating to current operations.

Formation of a new munitions assignment board was also announced. Headed by Harry Hopkins, it will decide where weapons will be most useful to carry out United Nations strategy. This has a counterpart in London, both with British and United States membership.

Quebec Liberal Puts Move Before Commons

OTTAWA, Feb. 7 (CP) — J. A. Blanchette, Liberal member of parliament for the constituency of Compton in Quebec, is more than a family man. He is a man of family—nine children—and feels the government should consider granting family allowances to encourage larger families generally.

He thinks five children to a family would be about right.

To this end Mr. Blanchette has given notice in the House of Commons of a resolution calling for investigation by a standing committee of the advisability of granting such allowances.

"I think large families should be encouraged," he said. "What better

Eleven New Brigade Groups To Give Reserves Action

OTTAWA, Feb. 7—(CP)—A more active role for the Canadian (Reserve) army than it has ever played before was in prospect today with officials' announcement of a new set-up involving creation of 11 brigade groups, one in each military district.

Reserve units in the brigades — the equivalent of four divisions — are allotted a definite place in the defence scheme, a National Defence Department statement said last night.

"Service in reserve units will no longer exempt from compulsory military service men who are liable to call under the National Resources Mobilization Act," the Department said.

While the Act provides authority for calling up of single men and childless widowers who were between 21 and 45 in July, 1940, and those who have reached 21 since then, so far only men now 21 and 25 have been affected.

The new organization, the statement said, provides that:

"A brigade group in each military district will be placed under full-time commanders from the active army;

"Modern weapons will be provided:

"The annual training period will be substantially extended;

"Reserve units will be allowed to enlist fit men only under 19 and over 35; but may enlist men of any age up to 50 who have been rejected for overseas because of low (medical) category or who are key men in industry and therefore have been granted postponements."

Each brigade group will be alloted a brigade staff in addition to a full-time active army commander. The brigades will be "organized and armed as a fighting formation with the ancillary troops and services usually associated with a fully-organized brigade overseas."

Not all reserve units will be included in the various brigades. The others will be responsible for local defence and aiding the civil authorities in the event of air attack or other serious disturbance due to enemy action. And, the Defence Department said, "their training will be accelerated."

While increase in the reserve training period had been decided upon, the Department said, it was realized most reserve members had civilian employment and camp periods and other training would be planned to enable all ranks to attend without undue interference with their work.

Bleak British Shop Outlook

Profit Control And Taxes Threaten Many With Closing

(By EDWARD ROBINSON.)

LONDON, Feb. 7—(AP).—To the ordinary public the week's best news was the "ceiling" placed on clothing prices by the Board of Trade whose retail committee gave Britain's shopkeepers warnings their 1942 outlook is "bleak."

This warning issued to the merchants already operating under wartime restrictions caused grave concern, especially among the more than 250,000 small shopkeepers.

The Board's ceiling on clothing prices to be paid by nine-tenths of the country at the same time put a limit to the profit the trade can make from each of more than 1,000 classes of garments.

With workers still responsible for the bulk of the income tax receipts, the Chancellor of the Exchequer was told that the weekly deductions from the pay envelopes had hit various wages so hard that in some districts there was even a reluctance to work overtime but he said the system would be continued.

Interest in financial circles was centred on the sharp drop in borrowings but otherwise war news generally curbed activities with the home markets wondering what Lord Beaverbrook would do in his newly-created Cabinet job of Minister of War Production.

Rice Getting Scarce.

Most notable perhaps in the week's good news was that rice began disappearing from stores and restaurants because of the Far Eastern situation.

Three trade union members of the Board of Trade committee which issued notices to merchants to expect a "bleak" year charged in a supplementary statement the anticipated difficulties were partly due to absence in the past of any "planned economy."

This supplementary statement additionally asserted the committee report had not given a complete picture of the situation confronting the merchants because it "ignored the

Less Danger Of U.S. Inflation

Farm Bloc Admits It Has Been Outsmarted

(By J. F. SANDERSON.)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 7.—(CP)—There is far less danger today of runaway inflation in the United States than there was a week ago, it is agreed here among qualified observers.

A week ago, when President Roosevelt signed into law the compromise price control bill passed by Congress, there was a genuine fear in many quarters that its provisions for increased farm prices would result in a real inflation spiral.

But since then, Leon Henderson, the price administrator, and Claude R. Wickard, secretary for agricultur, have agreed they will not permit farm prices to reach the limits set in the control bill. And every-

Remedies Found To Treat 'Problem Child'

"The Problem Child" was the subject of an address at Friday's noonday luncheon of Kiwanis by Leo Copp, public schools inspector for Peterborough county. "Education," he said, "works in waves or movements. Prior to the use of the now standardized Canadian intelligence tests, tests were in practical use in many Canadian schools to determine the intelligence of pupils."

The question of the problem child resolves itself into the question of 'what problem?'. The problem child is one who upsets the apple cart which can not be righted until the cause is found, he explained.

The old theory of iron discipline was to iron the child out by hard and fast rules. That day is passing and we now are educating teachers to the idea of being sympathetic with their pupils with the ultimate result that we are now in the soft age. The speaker said he felt there were a good many who would like to revert back to the old style.

SOS With Flour Saves Tanker

LONDON, Feb. 7—(CP).—Thomas Huggett, a steward aboard the German-captured 8,046-ton tanker San Carimro, last night was awarded the British Empire Medal for his feat a year ago in surreptitiously painting a three-foot-high "S O S" deck sign which enabled British patrols to recapture the ship.

The San Casimiro was taken by the German battleship Gneisenau last March in the Western Atlantic, when a prize crew under Lieutenant Otto Grenz was put aboard her.

"You'll never get through our patrols," British seamen told the lieutenant, who stowed them below deck.

As the tanker neared England en route to a German-held port, a plane from the aircraft carrier Ark Royal flew over.

British crewmen tried to wave table cloths from the tanker's portholes, but the Nazi crew, armed with machine guns, put a stop to that.

Then Huggett got his idea. Mixing a paste of flour and water, he evaded the prize crew, found a bit of uninhabited deck, and painted his big sign.

When the Nazi commander, Lieutenant Grenz, discovered it, he told Huggett:

"My compliments. A nice job. Now scrub it off."

But a British plane had spotted the sign, and in a short time the battle cruiser Renown appeared on the horizon and recaptured the ship despite Nazi attempts to scuttle her.

SWEDEN'S AIM

STOCKHOLM—(CP).— Announcing neutral Sweden's third defence loan, aimed at raising 700,000,000 kroner ($175,000,00), Prime Minister Albin Hansson said, "We cannot think of peace without freedom and we want to preserve both peace and freedom for our children."

COULDN'T SLEEP COULDN'T WORK

What a relief to settle down to a real night's rest, and awake fully refreshed, ready for the day's duties. I was tortured by fretful nights—tossing, turning — never comfortable. Half awake days —over-tired, driving body and mind to work when they needed rest. "Try Dodd's Kidney Pills," said a friend — "it may be your kidneys". I'm glad I followed his advice as now I'm sleeping like a top—thanks to 111

THE EXAMINER

Suited For Victory

Designer James Balletta, of New York City, models a cuffless, vestless, pleatless, suspenderless, beltless and lapelless "Victory Suit" that will be a great aid to the defence effort. Eighteen million yard of cloth will be saved each year in the U.S., and it will no longer be necessary to use leather for belts and rubber for suspenders. The pants can be tightened through use of an adjustable jigger.

Lakefield Man Burned When Gasoline Fires

LAKEFIELD, Feb. 7 (ENS)—F. S. Coyle of this village knows what it means to have a truck take fire because two of his machines were damaged by fire within a week. In a garage last night, Mr. Coyle and assistants removed the gas tank from one of his trucks to repair it. Gas from the tank had been drained into a pail and a workman was filing the tank with an emery stone.

Suddenly the tank took fire from a spark and flared up. Mr. Coyle grabbed the pail of gasoline and started to run outdoors with it but as he grabbed it, gasoline was spilled under the truck and soon the tank on a bench and the truck were blazing and Mr. Coyle's face was slightly burned in the excitement.

The fire was easily brought under control and no more damage was caused to the truck than scorched fenders.

It was recalled that last Sunday night, one of Mr. Coyle's trucks, used to haul stone from the Nepheline Mine, took fire as it proceeded along the road and close to $1,000 damage was caused.

the four campaigns, three candidates are running as Liberals, although there is no official Liberal standard-bearer, and the fourth is supported by Mr. Lacombe, a former Liberal.

In his address, Mr. Cardin urged voters of Quebec East not to be misled by "extremist doctrines."

Probe Bouchard's Statements

The Justice Minister's opponent, Mr. Bouchard, brought about a question in the House of Commons yesterday. Conservative House Leader Hanson said he understood parts of a speech of Mr. Bouchard's had been suppressed by the censor, and asked if the suppressed parts were in violation of the Defence of Canada Regulations, and if so, what action was to be taken. Mr. King said he would investigate.

May Not Need Conscription

Speaking at Welland, Mr. Howe said that the government should have "a free hand" in the matter of conscription.

"Even now I do not know if it will be necessary in Canada—there is nothing that I know of at present to show that it will be," he said. "Delay won't make a particle of difference because our training camps will be filled for months to come under our present system."

On another platform, Premier Hepburn offered to resign his seat in the Ontario Legislature and his premiership if a member of the Federal Government could prove incorrect his statement that "We have never made an all-Canadian plane in Canada."

Speaking in support of Mr. Watt, Mr. Hepburn referred to action of Federal Liberal members from Ontario the day before in censoring him for supporting anti-Liberal candidates.

"The people are the only ones who can read me out of the party and out of public life," he said, "and the same people can read Mackenzie King out of office. I hope there'll be a chance soon for the people to choose. I think I know what the result would be."

Meanwhile, completing the Welland line-up, Mr. Kriluck said in a speech that "we have heard much about the need of conscription of men—everybody seems to be on that bandwagon—but most speakers want only mobilization of the country's youth and farm workers."

Banks Must Be Kept Full.

In York South, Mr. Meighen declared in a radio address that "there can be no all-out organization as long as there is no capacity vested in the government, to allocate fit men to essential and vital posts. There can never be an all-out organization, or anything like total war, as long as it is impossible to fill, keep filled and fully reinforce the ranks at the fighting front, the front at which the war will be won and lost."

Over another station, Mr. Noseworthy spoke of Mr. Meighen as "the leader of the isolationists today."

"The very life of this country today is in danger from the most dangerous gang of all, the isolastionists—the financial and industrial isolationists." He said they imagined "the monopolists and millionaires are going to retain their precious domain of profit and special privilege."

Obituary

MISS CLARA BENSON.

BEWDLEY, Feb. 7.—(ENS).— A large number of neighbors and relatives attended the funeral of the late Miss Clara Benson from George's Funeral Home in Port Hope on Thursday afternoon.

Miss Benson died at the home of her niece, Miss Jack Barrett and Mr. Barrett, east of Plainville, where she had been living the past few years.

Until the death of her sister Miss Susannah Benson about twelve years ago, she was a life-long resident of this community about two miles east of Bewdley. Owing to poor health she has lived a very quiet life. Reading, beautiful embroidering and knitting have occupied the greater part of her time.

A sister, Mrs. Frank Lean, near Harwood; a brother, William Benson, of Bewdley, and another sister, Mrs. Mary Henderson, in Chicago, Ill., survive.

In faith she was a Baptist, a member of the Bewdley Baptist church.

The Rev. McKechnie of the Port Hope Baptist church, conducted the funeral service. The floral tributes were beautiful and the pallbearers were nephews, Halcot Benson, Kenneth Benson, Bill Benson, Ralph Benson, John Lean and Cecil Lean, with Will Henderson replacing Cecil Lean at the cemetery. Interment was at Bailieboro cemetery.

The report said the pre-war stock positions had been thrown out of gear by a shortage due to the war material needs of the armed forces and diversion of supplies to export markets.

Many supplies have been cut down, the committee said, while others have disappeared entirely from the market.

But early this week, the two men publicly declared they would not permit farm prices to exceed parity which is the relative value of farm products based on prices for the 1909-14 period.

Dr. Locke was born in Williamsburg and, after finishing High School at Kemptville, Ont., he studied at Queen's University, Kingston, Ont., and Toronto, London, England, and in Edinburgh and Glasgow.

When he completed his medical education he returned to Williamsburg to set up a typical country doctor's practice with all its attendant hardships. Soon, however, his skill became a watchword throughout his own community and then his fame spread until it became world wide.

He listed among his patients people from as far away as Alaska, India and South Africa.

Surviving in addition to his widow, the former Blanche McGruer of Dixon's Corners, are three daughters, the Misses Marion of Ottawa, Ruth of Kingston and Jean at home, and a son, Parker Locke, who is studying medicine at Winnipeg.

No Secret Of His System.

Dr. Locke made no secret of his methods of healing. At his clinic sessions his patients were usually all together and he moved from one to the other, giving them his "toe bending" treatment.

At the same time he regarded himself as the physician of his own home area and had been known to leave many visiting patients waiting while he rushed off to attend some emergency case among his own people.

In his spare time Dr. Locke was a harness racing enthusiast and also was interested in cattle-raising. He had a number of prize cattle on his farm.

It was Dr. Locke's hands which helped him gain his fame. They were more than ordinarily muscular and he relied on them alone to correct misplaced bones in the foot, fallen arches and such malformations that interfere with circulation and cause pressure and incorrect posture.

He contended these faults were at the bottom of many human ills such as arthritis, goitre and infantile paralysis

His work day began early and it was not out of tb ordinary for him to attend 200 to 300 patients a day and no matter how wealthy a patient he treated his fee was only a nominal one.

He Shot Wild

HOOD RIVER, Ore., Feb. 7 (AP) —A civilian defence captain, intent on arousing the town for an early-morning practice alert, shattered the neighborhood quiet with a shotgun blast, rushed inside and seized the telephone. But there was no "number please?" He'd shot down the wires.

Aid Is Given War Victims

Within a few weeks of the commencement of hostilities, members and adherents of all Christian Science churches throughout Canada proceeded to take the necessary steps to establish themselves into active committees for the purpose of devising ways and means of rendering immediate service to soldiers, sailors, airmen and civilians in the various theatres of war.

As a result, in December, 1939, what has since been known as the Ontario Christian Science War Relief Committee, with headquarters in Toronto, was organized with the two-fold purpose of carrying on camp welfare work among the men in His Majesty's Forces and of supplying comforts for evacuated children and service garments to the men in the forces.

The object of the camp welfare work is to keep in touch with Christian Scientists who have enlisted with His Majesty's Forces. The committee is greatly indebted to the Y.M.C.A., the Canadian Legion War Services, and the Salvation Army for their generosity and cordial co-operation in permitting the use of their facilities for this purpose.

Up to the end of December, 1941, this committee has shipped overseas 39,200 articles for civilians, including clothing of all kinds—blankets, quilts, infants' clothing, combs, tooth brushes, pins, shoes, and many other articles so hard to obtain in England. In addition, 3,660 pieces of knitted garments have been sent to soldiers, sailors, airmen, the Navy League, the Fleet Mail Office, and minesweepers. Some garments were also sent to Finland in the early days of the committee's activities.

Each Christian Science Church and Society in Ontario is a branch of the committee, and has its own War Relief Committee. The workers are usually divided into groups with a captain at the head of each group.

From its inception, this committee has been sending clothing for infants and children to two day nurseries in Surrey.

Parcels of knitted goods are sent to individual soldiers, sailors and airmen. The parcels consist of two or three knitted garments, such as sweaters, socks helmets, mitts and turtle-neck tuck-ins. Many parcels were sent at Christmas to men in England, and one hundred ditty bags were filled and sent to the Navy League through the committee.

Girls' Club To Aid Refugee Children

CAMPBELLFORD, Feb. 7 — (ENS).—Plans for a social evening the date of which has not been set, were made by members of the Janie Canucks, Girls' Club of Seymour East at their regular meeting held Wednesday at Miss Dorothy Eagleson's. Purpose of the entertainment will be to raise money to buy material for refugee children's clothing which they will make. They have already placed an order for sufficient material to make two complete outfits, comprising skirt, knittted sweater and bloomers (6 yr. size). During the afternoon they took some further notes on making housecoats, and it was announced this would be the last meeting until the latter part of April or early in May when the group would again meet to brush up on their work prior to the annual achievement day in Brighton. Meanwhile, a committee comprising President Doreen Pollock, Doris Locke and Jean Murray will make plans for the social evening. A pot-luck dinner formed a part of the meeting.

Rally for Women Is Being Planned

Byrne Hope Sanders, newly appointed director of consumer representation, War Time Prices and Trade Board, will speak at a Women's rally, to be held in Massey Hall, Toronto, on Thursday evening, February 19. At the same time the Women's Regional Advisory Committee will announce what specific plans it has for putting this into effect.

The heads of women's organizations throughout Canada have pledged the active co-operation of their members in this program to keep prices steady and avoid inflation. It is one of the most important jobs that the women of Canada can do to help win the war.

The Peterborough Local Council of Women is arranging for a bus to take to Toronto those women who wish to attend the rally. Tickets are free for the asking. Simply write to "Women's Rally committee, Wartime Prices and Trade Board, Information department 106, Metropolitan Bldg., Toronto, Ontario.

Canada Leads In Taking Of Wealth

So Mackenzie States; Halton Member Urges Taking More

(By FRANK FLAHERTY.)

OTTAWA, Feb. 7—(CP). — Pensions Minister Mackenzie said yesterday in the House of Commons that Canada already has gone farther in conscripting wealth than "any other country whose economy is based upon free enterprise," and within a few minutes Hughes Cleaver (Lib., Halton), was giving his suggestions for still greater application of the principle.

He proposed that all income be taxed down to the present "living exemptions" and said he saw no reason why anyone should get more than the bare necessities of life during the war.

(Present exemptions under the Income Tax Act and $750 for a single person, $1,500 for a married person and $400 for each dependent child.)

Mr. Mackenzie and Mr. Cleaver spoke in the debate on the speech from the throne. Both defended the Government's proposed plebiscite to seek release from anti-conscription pledges.

On the other hand, two Conservative speakers—Joseph H. Harris of Toronto-Danforth and W. S. Esling of Kootenay West—were critical of the plebiscite, and said they favored immediate action by the Government to institute whatever measure of compulsory service was necessary.

Forget the Joneses

"We should get down to business and stop trying to keep up with the Joneses," said Mr. Cleaver as he embarked on an elaboration of his wealth-conscription proposals.

In addition to the restriction of incomes his suggestions included:

Increase in the pay of men in the forces serving in Canada by $1 a day and of those overseas by $2 a day, the increase to be held back in savings until after the war:

Reduction in the cash earned by every person working in industry to what he would receive if in a corresponding job in the army, the excess to be held back until after the war;

THE STARS SAY . . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Sunday, February 8

Sunday's horoscope is not a fortunate one, holding sign of difficulties in travel, with agencies, superiors and elders, also danger of accidents, falls, fires or other injuries, unless particularly watchful and alert. Make no changes, and guard against illness from colds, congestions or rheumatic pains. There may be loss, disappointment and morbidity.

Those whose birthday it is may not expect a favorable year, since loss, grief, illness and disappointment are presaged. Take care of the health and possessions and safeguard the physical well-being, as accident or fall, fire or theft is possible. Postpone change and travel.

A child born on this day may have to endure many vicissitudes in life. It should have fortitude and courage instilled early in life, with optimistic philosophy, as it may be morose or sullen.

For Monday, February 9

Monday's astrological forecast is for a moderately successful day in connection with public interests, collective or group work or with large and important corporations. However, it is dangerous to take chances with accident, fire, loss or theft, and it will be difficult to get along with employers or superiors. New matters may progress.

Those whose birthday it is may find themselves in a year of difficulties with employers or superiors, also with the treacherous or unscrupulous. They should be vigilant on travel, agencies, with papers and agreements, also against theft or fire. Be cautious in all dealings.

A child born on this day may be victim of treacherous and unscrupulous persons, as it may have inclinations in that direction itself. Early training and discipline are indicated.

Three Typical Characters Outlined in Famous Story

(REV. E. R. JAMES.)

Naaman said, Behold now I know that there is no other God on earth but in Israel.—II. Kings 5, 15.

The Field-marshal of a great Emperor and conqueror stands before a humble home and utters this remarkable confession. He has obeyed orders; he has bathed seven times in the River Jordan and is cleansed of his leprosy.

This is one of the most famous of the Old Testament stories. They were master story tellers in those days, therefore the story lives in the minds of men and children. Above all, the characters are modern, very human and true to life.

Elisha, the man of God. On his shoulders fell the mantle of Elijah when he was received up into heaven. It was his privilege to tell his people the mind of God as revealed to him through his experience of Jehovah. "The Lord of Hosts, before Whom I stand" is his constant refrain. To Elisha Jehovah was their national God and the people were able to bear that thought. Centuries later came the higher revelation through the personal experience of men that Jehovah is the One living God. In studying these Old Testament stories we must always remember that God revealed Himself to His people according as they were able to bear it. Even Our Lord had to say sadly to His Apostles: "I have many things to say unto you, but ye cannot bear them now."

Elisha stands out as a humble man, who had no desire to appeal to popular fancy and adoration. The influential general receives the message from the mouth of Gehazi, the servant of Elisha. He will not lower his high office as a prophet of Jehovah to receive gifts or praise from this important man. He is content to be a poor man. Centuries later the young Carpenter of Nazareth the Incarnate Son of God, confesses: "The Son of Man hath not where to lay His head." He belonged to the great army of "Have nots." He was content. How many ministers of Christ and stewards of His mysteries are willing to be poor and content with a very simple life? Such men are true followers of the Captain of our salvation Who left nothing to His followers but His peace.

Behazi, the servant of Elisha, the man of God. The term servant is not to be understood in its modern sense. He was the close friend and pupil of the prophet. He had the privilege of pouring water on his hands, symbolical of service. Some day he hoped that the mantle of Elisha would fall on him when he passed on to sleep with his fathers. In every day language he was a minister, an assistant a deacon. He had a great desire. It was his weak plank; he loved money. The love of money is a spiritual sin. Many a religious person is not attracted by drunkenness or immorality—physical sins. But the love of money is very popular. When a minister moves to a better charge and a larger salary no one blames him. The wonder would be if he refuses. Gehazi looked upon the prophetic office as an opportunity to make money, to become rich. There is no sin in being rich, but there is great peril in wealth. "How hardly shall they that have riches enter the Kingdom of God," says the Master Himself. Who knew what was in man. The Pharisee were the most religious and influential among the Jews of Our Lord's day, and He remarks that they were covetous.

Gehazi is a warning to the brilliant, capable man in the sacred ministry to beware of riches. If promotion comes to such a man he should ask himself: "Are my hands clean?" Many a brilliant man has accepted promotion. "God gave him his desire but sent leanness withal into his soul."

Naaman. He is the type of the proud, wealthy man, who expects the Church to receive him with great respect. He is very probably a generous given. In every generation this charge has been brought against the Church that she has no use for the poor man. This is not always true. The war will teach us one great lesson, that the individual, every day man is of great importance. In the days of storm and horror they have been able to take it.

Naaman had to be taught by his act of bathing in the river that his wealth and position meant nothing. He took only himself into the river. Just as Naaman's flesh came again like unto the flesh of a child, so the Christ offers complete cleansing and renewing to those who receive Him in humble and contrite faith. It is for you to realize that Christ came to found a New Order. Jesus Christ is the Head of a new creation. He is able through His Spirit to change men's characters that they become new men. Above all the change is seen in their lives of gentleness, forgiveness and brotherhood. Your ideal should be that Christ may be formed in you and that men may see and know that the leprosy has departed from you.

I LIVE, YET NOT I BUT CHRIST LIVETH IN ME.

Missionary Meetings Held At Bethel Baptist Church

Rev. Thomas Titcombe has been showing lantern slides every night this week. These have given a vivid picture of the life of the natives in the jungles of Africa. He has shown cannibalism in all its pagan hideousness. He has also shown through the pictures the degradation of womanhood in that land. With this he too has shown the power of the Gospel on these degraded people and to-day there are more than 150 churches built in this district. Thirty-five years ago there were no churches, no cloth or paper, and now there are more than 20,000 who are reading the Bible for themselves. Mr. Titcombe has translated the Word of God into this previously unknown and unwritten language and now to-day this tribe has been transformed so that thousands worship the Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ. Mr. Titcombe is looking forward to soon going back into this land of great darkness where there is no missionary for miles.

Society Plans Supper

WESTWOOD, Feb. 7—(ENS). — Mrs. J. G. Manley was hostess on Wednesday to the members of St. Andrew's United Women's Missionary Society. In the absence of the president, the 1st vice, Mrs. E. W. Sargent, conducted the opening exercises and business discussion. Final arrangements were made for a pancake social to be held on Shrove Tuesday, February 17th, in Wesley Hall.

An interesting program was presided over by the group leader, Miss Jessie Davidson. The leader read the scripture lesson, followed by an appropriate reading, "The Nazareth Home" and also led in prayer. Mrs. Manley gave a reading from the Friendship Corner and the Study Book on China was presented by Mrs. H. S. Neilson and Mrs. W. Morris.

Highlights of the recent Presbyterial held in Peterborough were given by Mrs. Manley and Mrs. J. E. Glover.

The hymn, 'In Christ There Is No East Nor West' and prayer by Mrs. Glover brought a pleasant meeting to a close.

Cavan

Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Hunter and Mrs. D. J. Hunter motored to Kingston on Saturday and attended the funeral of the Rev. Finlay Matheson.

Mrs. Kenneth Syer and children, Mary and Margaret, spent a couple of days with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. Moncrief, Fraserville, returning on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Fair, of Bailieboro, were Saturday visitors of Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Staples.

Merle Carr, Peterborough, spent the week-end at his home.

Mr. Ray Staples, Peterborough, spent the week-end at his home in Cavan.

Mr. and Mrs. L. Kellett and son, David, and Mr. David Aldred, of Bowmanville, visited Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Reynolds on Sunday.

Mrs. W. Gray is visiting Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Reid, South Monaghan.

Mrs. F. Bellus has sufficiently recovered after her recent operation in Nicholls Hospital, Peterborough, to return to her home, Eighth Line, Cavan.

Buddhism a Religion

One of the questions which thoughtful young people ask repeatedly is that concerning the non-Christian religions. Sometimes it is put in this form "Is one religion as good as another?"

It is well to enquire about the other religions of the world, to learn something of their history, their doctrines and to find out what contribution they have made to the nation's civilization. A comparison between Buddhism and Christianity will show not only the points of agreement and difference but the superiority of Christianity in relation to the individual and society. This question will be the subject at St. Andrew's church on Sunday night.

The Golden Text

Christ teaching in the synagogue at Capernaum

"I was in the Spirit on the Lord's Day."—Rev. 1:10.

Busy Sunday in Capernaum Spent by New Disciples

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL

(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topir for Feb. 8 is Mark 1:21-34; Luke 4:31-41, the Golden Text being Reveloations 1:10, "I was in the Spirit on the Lord's Day.")

Capernaum, the location of the lesson for today, is on the Sea of Galilee, in the centre of what then was the "manufacturing district of Palestine." It now is a heap of ruins, but in Jesus' time it was a populous little town on the caravan road whilh led to the Mediterraneon.

Immediately after the four disciples, Simon Peter, Andrew, James and John, left their work and followed Him, they entered Capernaum and, as it was the Sabbath Day, Jesus, as was his habit, led the way to the synagogue. The custom in the synagogue was that any Jew of good standing who had anything he thought worth saying, might have a hearing. Jesus immediately began to teach, and the people who heard Him were amazed at His teaching and the manner in which He talked. He "taught them as one that had authority, and not as the scribes" whose authority depended upon the authority of Moses.

Possibly in this synagogue the service had become what we call mere "lip service," all dull and dry, with no meaning to it, so that people mumbled their prayers not even thinking what they were saying. If so, it certainly was a marvel to them the things that Jesus said and His manner of speaking. What depth and sincerity were in His words! How glad those people must have been that they were able to attend the services on that day.

Unclean Spirit Knows Jesus.

Now a more amazing thing happened, or so it must have seemed to those present. A man "possessed of an unclean spirit" dashed into the synagogue, and the spirit cried out, "Let us alone; what have we to do with Thee, Thou Jesus of Nazareth? Art Thou come to destroy us? I know Thee who Thou art, the Holy One of God."

Quietly but at once Jesus "rebuked him," saying, 'Hold thy peace, and come out of him." And upon that, the spirit threw the man on the floor, and left him. The persons present turned to one another, saying, "What things is this? what new doctrine is this, for with authority commandeth He even the spirits, and they do obey Him. And immediately His fame spread abroad throughout all the region around Galilee."

Coming from the synagogue, the five went to the home of Simon, whose wife's mother was very ill with a fever. Those who loved and cared for her told Jesus of her condition, and He came to her bedside, took her by the hand, helped her to rise, and she was immediately healed. The fever left her, and her first service was to "minister unto them." Service in gratitude for what was done for her was evidently her first thought. Many of us have been ill and healed, not, probably, with the Master's magic touch, but how many of us remember our weakness and dependence upon others during this time, and try to serve them when we are well, in thankfulness for it?

That evening, when the sun had set, and the Sabbath was officially over, all the people of the town crowded around Simon's doorstep, bringing those who were ill. "And all the city was gathered together at the door," says St. Mark. "And He healed many that were sick of divers diseases, and cast out many devils; and suffered not the devils to speak, because they knew Him."

Good always will overcome the powers of evil if we trust to it. When temptation assails us, for instance, if we turn ou minds to Jesus and what He would have us do, or what He would do in the circumstances, and pray for strength to resist, how soon all desire for evil doing disappears, and we are anxious only to do what is right, and peace comes to us.

Busy Sabbath in Capernaum — ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Mark 1:21-34; Luke 4:31-41.

While Christ taught in the synagogue at Capernaum, a man with an unclean spirit came in. Jesus called on the spirit to leave the man, and it threw him to the ground and came out.

All the people were amazed at the miracle, and questioned among themselves as to what this new doctrine and power was, for, said they, "even the unclean spirits do obey Him."

Coming from the synagogue, Jesus and His disciples went to the home of Simon Peter, whose wife's mother was sick of a fever. Jesus took her by the hand, and the fever left her.

The fame of the Lord spread all around the city, and as the sun was setting the citizens brought their sick and those possessed with devils, and He healed them.

The Use Of Schools

Judging by some of the reactions that have found expression, there is not a particularly happy feeling among many who interest themselves in public affairs over the attitude of the Board of Education, as a body, with respect to the application of the Kinsmen Club for the use of the King Edward School for the holding of a bridge and euchre to assist the Milk for Britain Fund. That two members of the Board moved that the Club should have use of the school-room free of charge, because the event was of a patriotic character, does not, unfortunately, relieve the Board as a whole from criticism nor does it entirely answer the questions of ratepayers as to why the schools should not be open to the occasional use of electors and of organizations engaged in commendable war activities. Too often when incidents of this kind come up there is confusion in the minds of large numbers of persons as to just what the facts are. The Examiner therefore considers that this matter should be discussed so that broad principles may be weighed by those who pay for the schools and for their maintenance, namely, the taxpayers.

With respect to the application of the Club, two points are involved. The one is whether a fee, or none at all, should be charged for the occupation of the school for an evening, in view of the worthiness of the undertaking and of the good standing of Club members in the community; the other, why there was so strict an adherence to the letter of Board rules of procedure, rather than a disposition to find a way of ready co-operation with the Club.

The power to grant use of a school to any public body is vested it is true in the Board, not in any committee. Members are entitled to stand firm on that technicality if they wish to do so, but that rule could have been changed, and still can be changed, if desired. Laws are made but they can also be repealed or amended. Even though that technicality was said to be in the way, thus making it irregular for a committee to act, a special meeting of a Board can always be called, if circumstances are deemed sufficiently important to make that step advisable, or a chairman may call, or authorize the secretary of the Board to call members and consult them on a matter, if it is urgent. If they approve more or less unanimously, he may go ahead, feeling assured that what he does will be approved formally when the Board meets in regular session. It is not wise to make a practice of that procedure, but it has been done many times in both elected or non-elective bodies when the action so taken was adjudged in the general public interest. The feeling of not a few citizens appears to be that in holding to a technicality, obviously proper though it is, members were seeking to avoid setting up a precedent for renting school use to applicants.

Assuming that citizens who take this view are correct, it can still be argued by Board members that the position they maintain is tenable and sound. Then the entire matter opens out into a question of policy as to whether schools should be used exclusively for class-room and teaching purposes or whether they should be available for non-academic bodies and events that are of good repute and devoted to public welfare, such as groups of taxpayers, home and school associations, educational lectures, patriotic efforts and so on.

Members of the Board are elected, of course, to administer. That is their function and they, no doubt, have a sincere and earnest sense of their responsibility, but they are trustees only, no more, no less. If the taxpayers of a municipality, who furnish the money to build schools, equip and maintain them, feel that in war time barriers of whatever kind should not stand in the way of raising funds for humane purposes; for improving or keeping up civilian morale; for promoting organization zeal and activity in the terrific conflict that is going on, and for the general discussion of important civic matters—if ratepayers are of that mind as some citizens state, then it is for the Board to adjust its views to the exigencies and thought of the day.

Under the grave conditions existing throughout the world, it would seem that what may have been wise policy years ago is out-dated now. It is not much of a problem to provide heat and caretaker services, nor to lay down simple terms regulating school-room use, if the benefits to society at large are great enough to justify the expense.

Unusual Political Situation

Much ado is being made because Premier Hepburn has thrown his political hat in the by-election ring along with Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen and Col. George Drew. Hon. Robert Laurier, Minister of Mines in the Ontario Cabinet, has resigned in protest and Liberals meeting in caucus at Ottawa have ruled their erstwhile confreres out of their camp entirely.

Even though wild gales blow up in the overcharged atmosphere of elections that die away generally after the voting is over and everybody has had a good night's sleep, nevertheless there are principles involved in the storm which should be weighed calmly.

Leaving aroused feelings and prejudices aside, and assuming that Mr. Hepburn is entirely sincere, as he declares, is he, or anyone else, not entitled to think and act as his conscience tells him when an issue as stupendous and momentous as the war is at stake? Should he put absolute allegiance to the views of a party caucus first or should the welfare of the country, as he sees it, come first? It is an old law that the whole is greater than the part and even though there is an exceptionally large majority of Liberals in the House of Commons, even they would be generous enough to admit, we believe, that they are not all of Canada. There are other people and particularly when so vital a matter as the Dominion's contribution to the terrific conflict is concerned.

Were Mr. Hepburn a member of the Commons now, his deflection from the fold might offer a little stronger reason for his "excommunication," but his sphere is Ontario; he has said more than once that on federal matters his followers in the Legislature can differ from him if they wish. So long as there is solidarity on the major things affecting the affairs of Ontario, and the administration of those affairs, he accords to his colleagues the same privilege he insists on for himself. This does not prove that he is either right or wrong in his attitude toward the national government. That point is not being discussed here. All that is being considered is whether a Liberal, or a Conservative, in any part of Canada, cannot be in harmony with his party in his own provincial household and differ from it on this matter or that on questions of national policy?

Some will argue, it is true, that the party as a whole comes first at all times, regardless of anything, and that the person who steps very much aside from the partisan path must be shoved out of the household. But that, pursued to much length, means little or no freedom of thought and action for the average individual. The question arises whether so hard and fast a rule is in the best interests of good government. One can understand why a large number of men, meeting in caucus and bound together as political groups are bound, would feel displeased that one bearing their stripe, though in a province of his own, should take a stand against them, but to dismiss him summarily from their family is likely to win him friends because of his fearless independence of action.

It is quite conceivable, though such an occasion rarely ever arises, that under the exigencies of a life and death struggle, Liberals, Conservatives, C.C.F., Labor and Independents all might throw in their lot together to obtain unified action and spirit in fighting an enemy. That's what national governments are formed for and they have one in Britain. It is equally as conceivable that the same persons might oppose one another almost bitterly on many matters before an emergency arose and become opponents again after that emergency is met. That was so in Canada before and after the Union Government was formed during the first Great War. It has been so more than once in the life of the British Parliament. It would seem, as a matter of pure political strategy, that if Premier Hepburn, Attorney-General Conant or any other Liberal of repute is to be "read out" the ceremony might well have been postponed till after Monday. As it is, people are pointing to great statesmen in the British Isles who, through the decades, have unhesitatingly forsaken party ties when they felt they were right in doing so and have later returned to the same party and been leaders.

The Government at Ottawa has done a big work in this war, a much bigger work than most people realize. They are entitled to desire credit from the public for that service and to defend their administration on the record of its achievements. But the hurried action of the caucus is another matter and opens up a door to wide differences of opinion even among broad and fair-minded people.

A Fair Attitude

At the time Japan went to war in the early part of December there was a considerable supply of Japanese goods in warehouses and stores in Canada. The disposition of the public is to turn at once against the purchase of any of these importations because they came from what is now an enemy country. But a moment's thought makes one realize that the importers, wholesalers and retailers who bought those goods placed orders for them long before there was any known likelihood of hostilities. With few exceptions the merchants are no doubt respected citizens, of our own race and tongue. To refuse to take any of these importations would in no way injure the Japs but would cause a loss to our own people.

It does not seem, therefore, that prejudice should go beyond this: that a customer might properly enquire of the merchant when the goods came in and what his attitude is toward the Japanese and the war. If his replies are those of a straightforward, patriotic man, who is merely trying to dispose of what cost him real money, it is not logical to make him suffer financially for what was in no way his fault. The better course would be to take some of the merchandise, if a customer wanted it, and urge the merchant to invest the money in Victory bonds to help give the Nipponese a thorough thrashing.

NOTE AND COMMENT

It is a good thing to prepare for a "rainy day" by starting now to figure out how much you can — not sacrifice, but invest—in Government bonds. Some day they'll come in handy.

The Japs must be given credit for some slight sense of humor. They are said to be spreading a rumor in the East that Hitler is descended from Mohamet. Well, taking the joke seriously, he must have had a long parachute drop.

Natives of eight different countries that are fighting the Nazis and Fascists have been given their wings at the Fingal Airport. That in itself tells a story of how the Dictators are hated. No doubt as many more lands have hundreds of young men who would like to drop bombs on the marauders of Europe.

Even the devastation wrought by German bombers during their savage raids over London, Coventry and other centres is evidently being made of some account by a hardy ingenious people. Materials of various kinds are formed into utensils, toys, novelties and other things that sell. Such is the ability of the human race to make the best of difficulties.

As the Brockville Recorder says, when compliments are being handed out to people who have done, or are doing, a great deal during this war, let the farmers be included. They have been working under great difficulties and yet the production of what is required to feed the millions goes steadily on. They haven't even taken the time off to have a sit-down strike or a walk-out.

Antimacassar is a word seldom heard these days but some years ago it was in general use in Ontario. It was the name given to a covering thrown over sofas, chairs and so on to protect them from the grease which people put on their hair. Macassar oil was the offender, and it came from Macassar, which is a section of the Celebes, bordering the Strait of Macassar. The Japanese ought to remember the place, after the terrific pounding their convoys received there a few days ago.

TREASURE CHEST

The moment when you spoke of little things
That lingered in the attic of my mind,
Treasured and stored—all these that I locked up;
Then turned the key, and never looked behind.

Sometimes I wonder what you did or said
That I should climb ten years to that dim room
To find the key still gleaming in the dark—
And freed so swiftly from its rusty doom!

Ballad Operas Of the C.B.C. To Be Real Treat

By SAMUEL MARCHBANKS

IF YOU are fond of music, and if you have not been listening to the series of English operas which the CBC broadcast Sunday evenings at 9.30, let me advise you to begin tomorrow night, when you will hear Balfe's "Bohemian Girl" from Montreal. And if you enjoy that performance, let me urge you further to write to the CBC and say so, for only by the number of such letters received can they estimate the popularity of their programs.

Perhaps you cannot see any good reason why you should trouble yourself to write. Let me tell you one. The CBC have the job, and a very difficult job it is, of providing radio entertainment for the Canadian public; in this task they have refused to take the high line of the BBC, which frankly sets out to give the public what it thinks it ought to have. Such a policy might easily prove disastrous here. The CBC attempts, rather, to give the public what it wants, and it can only judge what the public wants by the way in which the public responds through the mails. If you are a lover of good music, therefore, write to the CBC boosting the good musical programs; praise what you like and say why you like it. Only in that way can you make the CBC conscious of the number of lovers of good music in Canada. The lovers of the soap operas and inferior music are vociferous enough; the lovers of good music and superior entertainment of all kinds must be at least equally vociferous, or they must cease to complain of the quality of the entertainment which the CBC gives them.

The present series of English opera programs is one which every lover of good music ought to support in this way. Eight of them are to be broadcast, and already we have heard three —Handel's "Acis And Galatea" on January 18, Purcell's "Dido and Aeneas" on the 25th and "The Beggar's Opera" on February 1st. Of these the two latter were by long odds the better of performances. There was at least one good reason why this should be so. They were conducted by Sir Ernest Macmillan, a meticulous musician who knows every Canadian orchestral player well enough to get the best out of him. Sir Ernest also has a thorough understanding of English music, a rare quality among conductors. Most of them appear to think that, because English music looks easy on paper, it must be easy to perform as well. Never was there a greater mistake. English music of the type shown in these operas requires a poise, a perfection of vocal technique, and a quality of understanding which few singers possess and which even fewer conductors can use to advantage. Sir Ernest is one of the happy few who is thorough at home with English music, and he showed his superiority in this respect in the performances of "Dido And Aeneas" and "The Beggar's Opera."

The performance of "Acis And Galatea" was much less successful. It was, in fact, surprising that a conductor so eminent as Eugene Goossens of the Cincinnati Symphony should produce such a commonplace affair. The music was roughly played, the score was unskilfully cut and the whole thing was hustled and bustled in an attempt to crowd it into the space of an hour. If less time had been given to the announcer, and if the overture had not been played at the end as well as at the beginning, there would have been enough time to give Handel a fair chance; as it was, the music suffered considerably. The bass role of Polyphemus was sung by the eminent basso, Oscar Natzke, who is reported to have learned the music in 48 hours. The CBC are very partial to these astounding last-minute feats; their broadcast drama is often more remarkable for the speed with which it is clapped together than for its artistic merit. This sort of hurried preparation shows in performance; Mr. Natzke lost his way so completely in one recitative that the harpsichord stopped in order to spare him further shame. This sort of thing is hard on Mr. Natske and hard on his listeners. "Acis and Galatea" must be dismissed as an unfortunate experiment.

But there was nothing whatever wrong with "Dido and Aeneas" or "The Beggar's Opera." They were performed with a skill and verve, and an appreciation of their damatic content,, which deserve the highest praise. The Purcell opera, a tragedy, was completely successful in evoking for the listener the atmosphere of great love, relentless Fate and violent death which are its components. The latter work, the result of a happy combination between John Gay and Dr. Pepusch the organist (who arranged the popular tunes to which Gay wrote his words) was not so completely satisfactory, though the fault lay in the delivery of the dialogue, rather than in the performance of the music. Radio actors seemed a little afraid to speak lines which had so much meat on them; starved as they are on the thin gruel of most radio drama, they found Gay's eighteenth century eloquence rather difficult to manage. But the performance of the music was delightful; the charm and freshness of the airs and the pleasant nuances of Frederic Austin's arrangements were given every opportunity; this was, in fact, the most successful musical program that the present listener has heard this winter, bar none.

"The Beggar's Opera," by the way, is the only true ballad opera in the series. The rest are all straight forward compositions by known composers. A ballad opera is one in which the music is made up of popular airs to which new words have been fitted. One wonders why the CBC announces such a work as "The Bohemian Girl" as a ballad opera; it cannot be ignorance, for there are far too many musical experts on the staff of the CBC, all with free access to Grove's "Dictionary of Music and Musicians." It must be a whim of some kind. Now, remember—when you have enjoyed the broadcast, write to the CBC and say so; only in that way will you persuade them to give us more of these admirable musical broadcasts which do so much to increase our reputation as a musical people, here and in the U.S.

Goebbels Talk Two-Edged

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON

WASHINGTON, Feb. 7 (AP)—Outgivings of Herr Goebbels, one-man brain trust of Nazi propaganda, are necessarily subject to suspicion. Any time he admits that there is discontented murmuring in Germany, look for his real motives.

The Goebbels admission that there is grumbling over the reverses in Russia and the lack of food and fuel must be scanned in that light. His aim may be to stir public sentiment in the Allied camp for a negotiated peace or to pave the way for the next Nazi offensive blow.

Any development that impeded prompt execution of the Allied all-out war program would be grist for Hitler's mill. Goebbels' hints of wobbling German morale would be dangerous if they led to public apathy over the war effort in the Allied camp due to a feeling that Germany was cracking up internally anyhow.

With that said, there are elements in the Goebbels article including its ingeniously veiled peace-feeler, to catch attention. As a whole it is nicely shaped to induce a degree of credence in well-informed Allied circles that there is some winter war ferment in Germany.

Americans of long residence in Germany who returned only months ago have told this writer they saw only two possibilities that could induce any significant anti-war or anti-Nazi outbreak—military defeats and the near-famine food conditions.

The same informants doubted, however, that the iron-handed Nazi control of the home front could be broken through even if those two prime requisites were present to arouse the German people to revolt against Hitlerism. It was that combination which broke German morale to end the first Great War, and Nazi leadership knows that danger too well not to be fully on guard against it.

Nevertheless, both the Russian situation and the food shortage, confirmed in some degree from other sources, are woven into his picture by Goebbels. It tends to make his outline sound more plausible to some Allied ears as indicating that there is serious unrest in Germany.

Hitler had met defeat even before the great retreat in Russia. He lost the Battle of Britain. That was quickly covered by his ruthless Balkan campaign. It took German public attention somewhat off the fact that Britain still survived, neither bombed nor starved into submission.

Before that effect wore off, the great Russian 'crusade' was on. Its initial victories tended to restore German public confidence in the invincibility of Nazi armies and induced forgetfulness of the air-submarine failure to crush Britain.

JAP SUCCESSES TRUMPETED

Japan's plunge into the war was timed to minimize the effect on German nerves of American war participation and the retreat in Russia. Japanese successes in the Pacific were trumpeted by Berlin for weeks to conceal or belittle German reverses in Russia.

What Hitler now needs urgently is a new attack front to take German minds off his ill-fated 1941 campaign in Russia. Where he expects to strike next to that end is problematical; but the Goebbels outgiving looks like an effort on the nerve-war front to pave the way for a new stroke of arms somewhere. The peace suggestion was cunningly woven into it for that purpose.

Goebbels asked, If the German public were polled on peace or war, what would its answer be?

"The answer would be unanimous: Peace," he answered himself.

But if the question put was fight or give in, he adds, it would be as unanimously—fight.

That is an obvious attempt to stir up sentiment among the Allied peoples for a negotiated peace—sentiment which might slow up the Allied war preparations.

To The Editor . . .

DISAPPOINTED EMPLOYEES

Editor Examiner:

Sir,—That payment of the full cost of living bonus in February was widely anticipated was disclosed by a recent letter to the leading newspapers across Canada, and, strangely, misunderstanding was not confined to the masses of working men and women concerned, as some employers had intimated to their employees that the bonus would be paid. Should their better judgment or the spirit of fairness prompt them to still do so, I understand they would not be permitted as the ceiling law fixed wages, and only those who had paid bonus on or before November 14th shall do so, unless the cost of living rises above the October index, and then only on the increase. Since there has not been the necessary increase there can be no new bonuses in February unless the time basis of figuring it is changed, which possibility is indicated in an extract from the regulations in quote: "Or on the basis of the rise in the cost of living for such other period as the board finds fair and reasonable, but not to go back further than the date of the last general increase nor August 1939."

The National Labor Board at Ottawa or its Regional Chairmen who for the provinces of Quebec and Ontario are their Ministers of Labor, I trust will give this matter further consideration, and make their decision cover also the period from November 15th if an unjust situation has developed for those who have not had a raise in wages during the 15 per cent increase in the cost of living.

People are funny! There isn't a man in this town who doesn't realize that life insurance is an important part of his financial plans.

There are very few men in town who will buy life insurance unless pressure is put on them by some life insurance agent.

The contest was the guessing or estimating of the weight of a roll of wire. Of 10,000 estimates made the only one who estimated correctly was Mr. Torpey, the correct weight being 263 pounds 4 ounces. The harness, valued at $75.00, was delivered by Mr. Davey, representative of Stelco Fence Wire.

No Camera Needed

That's right—there'll be no photo finish in the War Stamp race unless next week's sales rise to quite a high sum. This week's sales only amounted to $320 in Stamps and $20 in Certificates. This represented a drop of $135 from the minimum sale required to equal last year's record. Sales are good but let's see if we can't put some more oomph into them. Try it next tweek students!

And The Mercury Rises

Yes, the red mercury column of the mobile kitchen fund thermometer is rising steadily on its way to the $1,150 mark and it won't be long now 'till the top is blown right off the thermometer. The total now stands at $804.29—just $345.71 to go. Whoopee-e-e-e-e-e!!!

The Camera Club made a belated donation on Thursday morning of the proceeds of the Christmas card sales of last year. Roger Barrie presented Bob Honour with a cheque for $50. Congratulations Camera Club!

There are a few coming events to aid our war effort and we should like to draw your attention to some of these. The first is to be a movie night sponsored by Grade XIII A Academic. Several entertaining reels will be run off and the probable date is next Thursday the twelfth after four. Admission will be ten cents so why not plan to be there. Listen for more definite announcements next week.

As you all know, there is going to be a gala week-end basketball tournament this February 20 and 21. Both Senior and Junior Girls' teams will take part and will play teams from Bowmanville, Lindsay, Port Hope, and Cobourg. The tournament commences on Friday after school and will continue all day Saturday. A dance will probably be held on Saturday evening and the proceeds from this and the games will help complete the G.A.A.'s donation to the mobile kitchen fund. Will you be there to do your bit for school and country?

Unless there is a supplement at the end of this column that's about all on the mobile kitchen fund this week. Approximately two thirds of the objective has been raised to date so let's see how we can hasten the day when that thermometer will be of no further use.

Sports In General

The Senior basketeers reinstated themselves a week ago Friday in the school gym when they trounced the Training Centre squad 69-21. The whole team played excellent ball so we'll not star individuals. Congrats!

The Seniors play the C.G.E. team tonight in the "Y" gym so drop around to cheer them on to their second win (we hope). The second half of the schedule will be out soon and we'll try to have it for you next week.

The girls believe in doing things up in a big way as this week-end tournament illustrates. The Friday schedule follows since the Saturday games depend on the outcome of the Friday tussles. One Junior game will probably be run off before supper with the other Junior and two Senior games after supper. The losers will play the following morning as well as the two bye teams. The games will be in charge of an out-of-town referee and the schedule was drawn up by an impartial person. Admission will likely be twenty-five cents for all the games or a dime for one. So much for that—now for the Friday schedule:

Seniors—Cobourg and Lindsay; Peterborough and Bowmanville; Port Hope—bye.

Juniors—Port Hope and Lindsay; Peterborough and Cobourg; Bowmanville—bye.

Cobourg is here next Friday night and the Juniors then travel to Lindsay on the afternoon of the twentieth. Please not that the game is to be played in the afternoon. We wonder why—hmmmm!!!

You may have noticed that our headline read "Sports in General" and here is the reason. Cast your minds back several months to the day when Coach Bamforth and his champions licked Owen Sound for the C.O.S.S.A. honors. The rugby team received some praise at the time but did NOT receive any lasting souvenirs of their victory. However, the supervision committee of new Board of Education has recommended appropriation of a sum of money to be used for the purchase of windbreakers for 22 team members.

The Milestone.

We've done it—what? We students at the Collegiate have sold 100,000 War Savings Stamps since the beginning of the campaign in 1940. That's $25,000 worth. On top of that there is added a total of about $7,000 in War Savings Certificates. We believe that to be some sort of a record—don't you?

To celebrate this momentous occasion Gordon S. Matthews paid a visit to the school on Friday morning. He was introduced by C. S. Browne. Mr. Matthews said that there was a job for all of us in this war to supply money to lick the Nazi, the Fascist, and the Yellow Jap. New ideas and fun help us to get a greater kick out of our accomplishments and it helps the country and yourself. Mr. Matthews pointed out that the Victory Loan would not interfere with the War Savings campaign since both committees had united for better results. After complimenting the school on our mobile kitchen fund Mr. Matthews closed with the words that our job would end only when peace comes.

This important event should boost war sales considerably—let's prove it next week.

Teasettes

A report was compiled this week of the War Work done in the Collegiate up to the conclusion of school last June. This is to be sent to Toronto in order that some idea may be obtained of the work being done by the schools in war time.

New and highly appreciated fluorescent lighting fixtures are gradually appearing throughout the school. Better work should be the result sooner or later—don't you think?

Don't forget to bring salvage of all kinds to school during this new drive. A radio skit was put on Monday morning featuring Norma Wallace and Rod Reed in which this campaign was energetically publicised. Bring some salvage Monday.

Jack Thompson was shooting action pictures at the game a week ago. One shot pictured Stu Saunders making a desperate effort to score but we hear that the try was a failure. That didn't happen often though.

School was dismissed at 3.25 on Thursday afternoon in order that the students might see the Army Train at the C.P.R. station. Judging from the crowd at the station most of the student body must have gone down.

Letters were received this week from Stuart Laing and Griffin Young. Stuart Laing's snappy letter was read by Bill Crowe on Thursday morning.

Don't forget to come over to the Y.M.C.A. tonight to see a fast game between the Senior and the C.G.E. Game starts at seven sharp.

The second death was that of Mrs. H. Morford, who passed away at the age of 30 after a brief illness. She had been ill since November, when she was injured in an auto accident on the Peterborough-Bewdley highway. She is survived by her family of three small children and her husband, Mrs. H. Morford.

Port Hope Man Dies In Toronto

PORT HOPE, Feb., 6—(ENS)—Mrs. Alex Walsh, Barrett street, received the sad news of the sudden death of her son, Mr. John Herbert Mulholland, formerly of Port Hope, in Toronto on Thursday evening.

Mr. Mulholland leaves to mourn his passing his wife, one son Donald H. and two daughters, Miss Betty and Miss Mary Grace all of Toronto and one brother, Robert of California.

Mr. Mulholland was recently appointed inspector for Unemployment Insurance Commission of Ontario.

The funeral will be held on Saturday afternoon at 4 o'clock from the Bates and Dodd funeral home at Queen and Strachan avenue, Toronto.

Diphtheria Case Scares Parents

PORT HOPE, Feb. 7—(ENS)—One case of diphtheria appeared in the township a short time ago and as a result a campaign to inoculate all children of the district took place.

Pine Grove School S.S. No. 7 Hope Township is the first school to have 100% of its children inoculated against diphtheria while the work is progressing favorably at Morrish, Osaca, Port Britain and Wesleyville and it is hoped that these schools will in a short time have completed the necessary precautions.

Red Cross Group To Aid Russians

PORT HOPE, Feb. 7—(ENS). — The monthly meeting of the Red Cross Society was held in their rooms on Friday evening at 8 o'clock, with the president Mrs. Wotherspoon, in the chair.

Mrs. J. t. Moore, the secretary, read her report, followed by a few words by the president.

Mr. James Reynolds then gave his financial report, and moved that this report be adopted, seconded by Mrs. F. W. Diamond. In all $161.50 worth of tickets were sold for Russian relief.

$38.00 in donations was reported on the Russian relief fund. Mrs. Moore then read the correspondence.

Mrs. Foote, convener of the Women's War Work Committee, gave her report.

Mrs. J. L. Sheehan reported that 68 quilts were shipped last month.

Order Check Up In Hastings Property Injury

HASTINGS, Jan. 7—(ENS)—Stiff warning to juvenile offenders in Hastings who are smashing windows, damaging property, and using abusive language was issued at the council meeting last night.

"We aren't going to tolerate these conditions any longer," said Reeve L. E. Kelly. Cottagers in Hastings come back and say their property is damaged. Two or three offenders brought to court will stop these conditions." Chief Constable William Wellman was instructed to act accordingly.

Hasting's guns at the War Memorial will be utilized in World War II. Responding to a request from the salvage department council decided the guns would be of more use as salvage than adorning municipal property.

Regarding a communication from the Department of National War Services re war salvage, Reeve L. E. Kelly declared "We are not going to touch this salvage campaign question until the government provides a market for it. The reeve cited a case where over a ton of newspapers were disposed of for practically nothing for lack of a market. A letter from Navy League headquarters thanked council for their co-operation and requested permission to hold a tag day on or about July 4. On motions of Councillors Bonds and Lynch this request was granted.

J. H. McClellan, a former resident of the village, now living in Bobcaygeon informed council that he owned a lot in Hastings which he would gladly transfer to the municipality or Red Cross Society for war purposes. Council decided to inform Mr. McClellan that it will attempt to sell the lot and turn the proceeds over to the Red Cross. The clerk was instructed to examine the discrepancy in the relief vouchers.

Acting on a letter received from the Dominion Ceremonial Committee, council laid plans for publicity of the second Victory Loan in the village. Members decided that a beacon light burning throughout the entire period of the loan would not be feasible in the village. Instead of this it was decided to obtain a large sign advertising the loan to be placed on top of the town hall with a powerful light shining on it throughout the night. A notice will be placed in the paper requesting all citizens to fly flags during the period of the loan and that February 22, be observed as second Victory Loan Sunday.

Name Assessor

"It is the most important job we have", said Reeve Kelly regarding the appointment of an assessor in Hastings for 1942. On motions of Councillors Lynch and Bonds, John Oliver was appointed to this post for the ensuing year.

Several councillors said that previous assessors had complained that the assessor's job was too difficult in Hastings. To this the Reeve retorted "Council can't advise the assessor after he had been appointed. If anybody has any complaints the place to bring them is the Court of Revision."

On motions of Bonds and Stevenson a detailed map of the village was purchased from G. Marryat.

When the matter of daylight saving time was brought up the discussion was quickly terminated when one member said, "We're just going to go on it, that's all."

"It will certainly be something new," said the Reeve, commenting on the request of the Campbellford Council re paying rent for the use of that town's courtroom. The clerk was instructed to consult the village solicitor with regard to this matter.

Bylaw No. 809 confirming appointments of several officers in the village for 1942 was given its final reading.

No action was taken on an invitation from the Ontario Association of Rural Municipalities inviting a representative to be present at the association's meeting in Toronto, February 25 and 26.

The following accounts were ordered paid: Wm. Wellman, sal. constable, $18; Wm. Wellman, salary and labour at town hall, $16.13; George Lynch, fire dept., $7; Bell Telephone, $4.33; Wm. West, labour, $1.80; G. Marryat, map, $4; Wm. Tate, labour, $1; J. M. Baker, services, $9; Hastings Star, printing, $2.50; Fred Dodd, fire dept., $2.92; Daniel Noonan, labor, $7.50; James Stevenson, material, 35c; Pratten Hardware, material, $1.50; Tedford's, material, $1.20.

HEALTH CHATS

By D. B. AVISON, M.D., D.P.H., Medical Officer of Health

Today we are discussing definitions of the common words used in connection with our communicable diseases.

Incidence: this word refers to the number of cases of any disease existing in a given month, season or year. When we speak of Incidence we usually mean the normal number of cases so that the expressions Normal Incidence and Incidence are generally considered synonymous.

An Epidemic is a marked increase in cases over the Normal Incidence. For instance the average number of cases of Mumps reported in Peterborough during January for the past five years was under two, which we would, therefore, call the "Normal Incidence" for Mumps in January in this city. This year, however, we had reported 221 which is a marked increase over the normally expected number and so constitutes an epidemic.

Isolation: this work refers to regulations restricting the Patient in contradistinction to restrictions put on the contacts or other members of the household who are Quarantined. Remember then, the patient may be "Isolated" either in his home or in the hospital. The house itself or other residents of the house are "Quarantined."

The word Morbidity is generally used synonymously with Incidence and therefore, means the Normal Incidence. It must not be confused with Mortality which refers to the Death Rate. The word Mortality may be classified as General or Specific. General Mortality refers to the death rate from all causes whereas Specific Mortality refers to the death rate from certain definite causes such as Diphtheria, Typhoid Fever, Pneumonia, Accidents, etc., etc.

Finally, when we speak of Rate we refer to the number of cases of disease, number of deaths from any cause, the number of births, the number of marriages, etc. in relation to a given number of the population. Thus, if we take 10,000 as the basic population figure, we might say that in January the Incidence Rate for Mumps was 88.4 if we estimate the city population as 25,000.

It is said that, "a little knowledge is dangerous." Let's not, therefore, pride ourselves on knowing a little. It is also said that, "much knowledge maketh a man mad," which I suppose means we shouldn't try to learn too much at one sitting.

Waterworks Has Surplus Of $12,171.13

The annual financial statement for the Waterworks Department of the Utilities Commission appears elsewhere in this edition. It shows that the department has made a profit for the year of $12,171.13 and $12,000 of this has been turned over to the City Council to be used for general purposes to reduce the tax rate.

In addition, $10,000 has been set aside as a reserve towards the cost of the new force main which was decided upon as necessary.

The sum of $50,000 of debentures were issued to pay part of the cost of this new force main, work upon which will be started in April. It was originally planned to commence work in 1941, but the laying of mains and services for the Wartime houses was so extensive that it was impossible to do so.

Revenue from water consumers increased by $7,000 over the year 1940, and expenses were reduced by $4,000.

The increase in revenue was occasioned by the increase in population and by the increased industrial activity.

All of the work done for Wartime Housing Limited was at the expense of the Company, and, as this work continued from July 1st to the end of the year, the overhead of the Department was considerably reduced.

The total Waterworks system is valued at $1,213,089.66. Against this is a debenture debt of $613,560.00, which is reduced by a Sinking Fund Reserve of $311,466.43. So that, the net debt against the system is $302,093.57.

Altar Society Holds Successful Euchre

PORT HOPE, Feb. 7—(ENS)—The Altar Society of St. Mary's Catholic church held a most successful euchre on Thursday night with 12 tables playing. This is one of the largest euchres yet and was attended by two carloads of players from Cobourg.

The ladies high prize which was a box of assorted canned goods was won by Mrs. Broadbent with the men's high, a shaving kit going to Mr. Charles McMahon. The ladies second high prize, a pretty china cream and sugar was won by Mrs. Charles McMahon with the men's second high, a tie going to Mr. H. Walker. The lucky prize which was drawn for was a most interestingly wrapped parcel in the shape of a large V for victory and carried out in red, white and blue and proved to contain a large ham. This novel package was won by Miss Gurry.

At the close of the evening sandwiches, cake and coffee were served.

Chinese Gaining Ground

CHUNGKING, China, Feb. 7. — (AP). — A Chinese communique yesterday said Japanese infiltrations had been pushed back to the east and west of Waichow, a port on the East River in Kwangtung Province recently recaptured by the Chinese.

Downstream, however, the Japanese succeeded in recapturing the town of Poklo on the main road, 10 miles below Waichow.

PETES TO PLAY MARLBORO JUNIORS IN GAME TO AID MILK FUND

'Tween Heaven And Earth

In a picturesque setting of snow-capped mountains, Torger Tokle soars to another ski victory, January 25, at the Snoqualmie Ski Bowl in Washington. His longest jump was 263 feet, short of his great record of last year.

Cobourg Juniors Defeat P.C.I.

Despite a valiant last half comeback that saw them come within an ace of catching up in the stretch P.C.I.'s junior boys' basketball team found a 12-point first half deficit too much to overcome and dropped a 28-22 Interscholastic group decision to Cobourg Collegiate in the Lakeshore town yesterday.

After being badly outplayed in the opening twenty minutes and yielding a 20-8 margin in that half, the Garnet and Grey came roaring back and all but caught up, with the seconds ticking away. The Peterborough attack was very slow in starting and poor shooting in the early part of the game plus some lax defensive efforts allowed the homesters to get the jump on them and set up their sizeable lead.

Cobourg used a fast passing attack with some sensational shooting in the first half to threaten to run away with the decision at the same time holding the visitors' offense nicely in check with tight checking.

It appeared in that half that the Orange and Blue was to have it all their own way, but P.C.I.'s driving, uphill fight in the final stanza made it a nip and tuck battle in the stretch. Cobourg's high-scoring, fast-breaking attack fell off completely before the tightening defensive efforts of the losers in the last period and if P.C.I. had started their scoring bee just a few minutes earlier they would have, undoubtedly won because they were carrying the play at the finish. P.C.I. checked cleanly and were found guilty of but two fouls in the entire game, Cobourg missing both tries, while the visitors counted four of their eight chances. Barge and Throop were outstanding for C.C.I. and Smith and MacTavish were the star performers for the Garnet and Grey.

The teams:

P.C.I. 22— MacTavish 8, Dinsdale, Smith 8, Matthews 11, Dewart 1, Marshall 2, Carley. Frank 2, Kidd.

C.C.I. 28—Barge 8, Wilson Rawlings 6, Harris, Throop [illegible]rskine, Anderson 2, Maize 2, Cra[illegible], Carey. Charles, Crummer.

Referee—V. Holmes.

Ice No. 2—Close until the halfway mark was reached and then Mr. Green's boys pulled away.

Ice No. 3—Always close — both fighting for advantage. The last end settled the issue, Jack getting the odd point.

Ice No. 4— Jimmy Richmond's first defeat of the season, N. Hamley's boys doing the trick. But it was tough going just the same.

Ice No. 5—The biggest scoring game of the night. The difference was only two points, but Mr. Giroux made a bold bit for it on the 12th end.

After being down 10-0 at half time, Charlie Westbrocke's hired help from the Lock Works came down the strech like Whirlaway and nosed out M. Cruthers by one shot, but he had to count four on the last end to do it, and he did it. Charlie has now been nick-named "Dick Dawson the 2nd."

There will be a double-header on Monday night.

The ladies are holding a mixed bonspiel to-night at 7.30 p.m. All welcome.

We hear rumours that the ladies are intending running a bonspiel next Friday. We may have more definite information by the first of the week.

NHL's Greatest Tie Bruins In Charity Card

By BILL KING
(Associated Press Sports Writer.)

BOSTON, Feb. 7 — (AP). — If the National Hockey League would eliminate body checking in its entirety and engage only near-sighted referees, it could re-engage most of the heroes of its recent glorious past to fill in for the youngsters who are being called up for military service.

While cavorting against Boston Bruins, Stanley Cup champions, in what must be described as a hilarious 4-4 tie at the Boston Garden last night, 16 of the major ice circuit's most famous faded stars thrilled an overflow crowd of 14,662 by recalling and enacting varying degrees of their old-time uncanny skill during a 30-minute exhibition for the benefit of the United States Army Relief Fund.

Such famous forward combinations as New York Rangers' Frankie Boucher, Bill and Bun Cook, the Toronto Maple Leafs' erstwhile kings Joe Primeau Charlie Conacher, and Busher Jackson, and Detroit Red Wings' championship trio, Marty Barry, Laurie Aurie, and Herbie Lewis, again were operating as units.

Behind them played such defensive immortals as Eddie (Old Man Hockey) Shore; the ever-smiling Ching Johnson; Toronto's Red Horner; Cy Wentworth, last with Montreal's Canadiens, and George Owen.

Some Real Support.

Those All-Stars had Tiny Thompson in their net. They also were supported by Hooley Smith, who, while serving as a general handy man, sparked his forces for their last two goals made by Owen and Busher Jackson, now with the Bruins.

Before the All-Stars gained those successes Bill Cook gave two impressive demonstrations of his old-time scoring magic—a drive from close range—after working himself in position to be assisted by the still fiery Hooley Smith.

Just for the record, it must be mentioned that the injury-riddled Bruins never did attempt to apply full pressure against the Stars.

While players and spectators alike were enjoying good, clean fun the Army Relief Fund benefited to the extent of more than $14,000.

Campbellford Defeats Warkworth 2-1 Score

CAMPBELLFORD, Feb. 7 (ENS) —In a closely contested Midget O.M.H.A. battle here last night Campbellford topped Warkworth by a close 2-1 score, winning their second home game from the visitors and maintaining their top position in the league. It was a keen, hard fought battle all the way and the largest group of spectators of the season saw a brand of hockey that was a credit to both teams. The entire contest was featured by close checking and combination plays that went with the end to end rushes and inspired the supporters with enthusiasm.

Though Warkworth opened the scoring on a fast rebound shot by Churchley early in the opening stanza they were unable hold the power thrusts and repeated attacks of the locals who finally got their reward in the middle of the second as Peloquin knotted the count. There was plenty of pressure put on by both teams and the two goalies turned in a splendid performance. However, in the final stanza the locals ace goal getter D. Free whipped the puck past Edwards for the final counter and although the Warkworth boys staged a desperate rally giving Maxwell a real testing, they failed to score.

Warkworth—Goal, R. Edwards; defense, J. Greenly, Jr., Churchley; centre, Stan Churchley; wings, W. Clark, N. Dudley; alternates, H. Moore, Harold Redden, L. Carr, R. Schrader, H. Churchley, G. Meiklejohn.

SPORTS – DAY BY DAY

By FRED D. CRAIG

Peterborough's Military Training Centre team finished their group schedule at Belleville last night like real leaders by defeating the game R.C.A.F. team 9 goals to 6 and thus completing the schedule two full games ahead of their nearest opposition. The Soldier team has won nine of its twelve starts and piled up a score of 69 goals against 36 for its opponents, a highly creditable performance and it is probable that if they had been able to ice a full team against Belleville Monday night they would have made the record ten wins as against two losses. The razzle-dazzle line of Kingdon, Tompkins and Heal was back in action last night and they clicked for six goals, each of the trio shooting a pair and that carries its own story of the scoring power of the three. In the twelve games this season the line has connected for a total of 38 goals which works out at a little better than a goal each for all three players per game.

* * * * * *

Although Don Crowe and Drake Jopling were unable to make the trip Manager Scates and Coach Jimmy Ellis had both regular forward lines in action, even although the game meant nothing to either team. Goalie Ray Harding was given a rest and the faithful sub goalies who have been working out with the team, Johnny Johnston and Soldier Carl Hewitt, former Kingston junior net guardian were given an opportunity to get into the game. Johnston played the first two periods and Hewitt took over the duties for the final twenty minutes. Both boys gave a good account of themselves. Johnny Godfrey was a tower of strength on the short-handed defence and up in front the hipper-dipper line paced by Bun Kingdon with two goals and three assists, each had two goals and Joe Blewett helped himself to a pair. The other counter was from the stick of Perce Nichols. Incidentally the Blewett-Nichols-Reilly line has clicked for 25 goals in the group race and that is a nice job of work for any man's team.

* * * * * *

It was an interesting game that wound up the schedule for the Soldiers. The battling Air Force started the scoring in the first half on a goal by Jones but the Petes tied it before the end of the period with Heal firing the goal and Tompkins and Kingdon drawing assists. Nichols put the Military Training Centre ahead early in the second period but the Flyers tied it up. Blewett and Nichols combined for a marker to give the Petes a lead again and once more the Flyers sewed it up at 3-3. Bun Kingdon registered on an assist by Heal to put the visitors in the van once again and this time they were never headed. They opened the last period with four goals in a row to take a commanding lead and although the Flyers battled back and garnered three of the last four goals registered the rally never seriously threatened to wipe out the Petes' margin. Flyers have only won one game this season but they have battled until the last ditch in every engagement and their fighting spirit entitles them to brackets.

The Season's Best

There should be the biggest basketball crowd of the season at the Y.M.C.A. gymnasium tonight when Collegiate and C.G.E. meet in an important City League game, followed by a battle between Shag Park's Royal Canadian Navy cage team and Peterborough's O.A.B.A. representatives, the Outboard Marines. The local squad are earning the gratitude of basketball fans by bringing to Peterborough some of the oustanding teams in this part of the country. Already the Trenton R.C.A.F. who are shooting for a senior championship this season and the Belleville Initial Training School team with a long record of wins have made their appearance on the local floor, the crack Navy team will be here tonight and a week from tonight the powerful Eglington R.C.A.F. squad, featuring that great athlete Tony Golab will be on hand to battle with the Marines. That is a classy cage program and Marines deserve all kinds of credit for their enterprise in staging games with such classy oppositon as they have lined up this season.

* * * * * *

In fact they deserve more than credit; they also deserve substantial financial support and tonight's card should draw a capacity audience. Both games should be wows. While naturally interest centres in the appearance of the Navy squad, particularly because of the presence on its lineup of one of Canada's greatest basketball stars, Shag Park, fans are tipped off not to miss the City League clash that opens the bill and will get under way at 7 o'clock. The fast-moving Collegiate squad, coached by H. L. Bamforth, will clash with a powerful C.G.E. team. Both want a win and they will go all out to grab off the decision. Collegiate after losing their first two games have been coming like a prairie fire and the student body predict they will take a fall out of the Electricians who earlier this week handed the Dominions their first defeat of the season. Outboard Marines will have their strongest team on against Navy in the second game and hope to pull off a win, although they realize they are hitting about the best there is in the cage game in these parts.

* * * * * *

The double-header in the Ladies' Basketball League at the Y.W.C.A. last night, starting the second half of the schedule, was featured by a battle between Westclox and Electrics that developed into one of the best games of the entire season. The Clockmakers finally won by 20 to 18 but the result was in doubt until the final whistle, the winners picking up their margin of victory in the dying moments. Half way home the Electrics who have been going great guns recently had set up a lead of 11 to 6 and they looked like winners at that stage. However Westclox came back in the second half with a surge that ultimately brought them victory but ti was very, very close. Francis Bestard was top scorer for the winners with nine points while Francis Merrett led the losers' attack with eight. With Phyllis Ayres racking up 12 points and Helen Rutter eight the Quakers' offensive was too strong for Normalites in the other game and the girls from the big plant by the river won 25 to 11.

The Combines Are Out

The gloom in Kingston today must be fathoms deep and if Bill Walshe gets out a sport column at all it will probably appear edged in black, while Elmer's tune will be indigo blue. After battling into a position in which all they had to do was to beat the tail-end Port Colborne team to qualify for the Senior A playoffs the Combines looked to be in. To make assurance doubly sure they had the game transferred from Port Colborne to Kingston. And then with everything set for a four-point win the battling Ports invaded Kingston last night and took a 5 to 4 decision over the Elmer clan to put the Combines out of action for the season. It was the prize upset of the campaign. Kingston came from behind in the second period to lead 4 to 3 at the close of the session but Port Colborne came back with two goals in the final twenty minutes to toss the Combines into the discard. There was less than five minutes to go when Port Colborne annexed the winning marker.

Syl Apps Has Been Named To Referee Game

Marlboro Juniors, one of the top ranking teams in the Junior Big 7 loop in Toronto will meet the Peterborough Seniors at the Brock street rink on Tuesday next, in an exhibition tilt in aid of the Milk for Britain Fund.

Arrangements for the game were completed today by Howard Shimer of the Kinsmen Club, and he was given assurance by Frank Selke, manager of the Maple Leaf Gardens, that the Juniors would be strengthened by the addition of several star players from the senior Marlboro team, and other Toronto squads.

Syl. Apps, rated as one of the classiest hockey players of all time, and a hero in the eyes of all local juvenile hockey players will definitely be here to referee. Red Horner, bruising defence man who played in Boston on Friday night with the all-stars, will be one of the linesmen. Four or five other Maple Leafs players are coming to add color to the game. Petes End Group With 9-6 Win

BELLEVILLE, Feb. 7—(ENS). — Filling out their group schedule, Jim Ellis' Peterborough soldiers held what appeared to be a practice game here last night, when they downed the Air Force Flyers 9 to 6 in their final game of the group series. In a fast skating exhibition, that was devoid of heavy checking throughout, the period scores saw the Soldiers tied at one-all in the initial frame and then lead 4-3 in the middle frame. In the last canto, however, the Ellis-led sextette rattled in four goals before Kingdon raced through for a sensational lone effort, following which the Flyers bagged two in the dying moments on power plays.

Jones, of the Air Force, was the leading sniper with three goals as the Petes divided their scoring efforts with Art Heal, Joe Blewett, Honey Tompkins and Bun Kingdon getting two counters each, Nichols driving home the odd goal. Coach Jim Ellis introduced a new goalie in Jack Johnston, who stood up well in the clutches with his sensational saves in an all-out effort that saw little heavy checking but was filled with speedy efforts.

Coach Ellis experimented with his players as he shook up his lines in the absence of several defencemen, but specifically maintained his scoring threat of Heal, Tompkins and Kingdon. Blewett stood out otherwise. The play was wide open hockey before Kearney drew down a trip penalty and the Petes moved all up with Tompkins and Mortimer being beaten by Tunney at close range. When Reilly went off for roughing, Millar tested Johnston hard as the squad in all exhibition. The only scoring in the initial frame awarded to the Flyers when Jones drove home McBride's close pass, but Coach Jim Ellis tossed out his ace line of Heal, Tompkins and Kingdon and the trio rapidly evened the count with Heal scoring to end the period hostilities.

There was a lit'le excitement when Bob Dixon and Art Heal mixed things in a corner, but cooler heads softened matters in the middle frame. Alternatively the teams scored with the Petes opening and closing with three as the Flyers counted two.

In the final frame with Fleet, the Flyers' race defenceman, retired owing to injuries, the Petes rattled in four goals without a return until Jones scored and Kingdon raced through for a picture play goal later. The Flyers ganged and were awarded with two goals in the dying moments, McBrien and Jones scoring.

The line-ups:

Air Force—Goal, Tunney; defence, Fleet and Livingston; centre, Browne; wings, Casaubon and Millar; alternates; Hay, Jones, McBrien, Dixon and Kearney.

Peterborough — Goal, Johnston; defence, Godfrey and Mortimer; centre, Kingdon; wings, Tompkins and Heal; alternates, Burton, Reilly, Bennett, S. Starr, Nichols and Blewett.

Leaders Strengthen Positions

Quakers and Westclox strengthened their positions in the dog fight battle surrounding the top half of the Ladies' Basketball League standing by both winning their games at the Y.W.C.A. last night.

Quakers had little trouble subduing the winless Normal School 25-11 but C.G.E. Electrics put up a stiff battle before bowing out to Westclox in the later half of the weekly double-header, 20-18, in one of the closest, hardest-fought battles of the season.

Quakers held a decided edge over the Normal team in both halves to run up a 13-5 margin in the first half and continue to forge ahead in the final period to lengthen their lead. The Normalites battled hard all the way, but fell behind in the early minutes and were never close enough to seriously threaten the winners' lead.

The winners had a marked superiority in shooting as the Normal team had a fair share of the play, but passed up the great majority of the scoring chances with poor marksmanship. Quakers broke fast and used accurate passing and tight defense to carry the edge over most of the route, slowly but surely piling up their 14 point victory margin.

It was a fast, wide open battle with both sides checking closely but fairly cleanly and only six fouls being called in the entire game, three against each team.

Quakers peed their three chances to score three points while the losers counted but one of their trio of chances. The entire Quaker team played well both defensively and on the attack with P. Ayres and H. Rutter leading the offense, the former getting 12 points and the latter throwing in four field goals for an eight point total. R. Roblin was the outstanding player from a Normal viewpoint, leading the attack with eight points, as well as standing out defensively. E. Pitney and E. Van Allen also were prominent for the losers.

The teams:

Quakers 25 — G. Allen, H. White, M. Youdell, H. Rutter 8, D. Smith 1, P. Ayres 12, M. Duncan, D. Weese 4.

Normal 11 — R. Roblin 8, K. McMillan R. Ainsworth, I. McGregor, E. Van Allen 2, E. Pitney 1, C. McKelvin.

This Was a Battle.

The second game was a different story with the Westclox just managing to snatch a 20-18 last minute victory over Electrics. The winners trailed 11-6 at the half, being outplayed up to that point by the hard-checking, battling Electrics, but after the half the Westclox slowly but surely hauled down the C.G.E. lead until they finally pulled ahead near the end of the third quarter.

In the last ten minutes it was a see-saw. neck and neck battle, with the lead going first one way and then the other, both teams holding the top hand several times in that period. Westclox finally caught up with about ten minutes to go and went out in front 12-11, and from there in the lead switched back and forth, giving first Westclox and then C.G.E. the advantage by one point.

The losers tied it up at one stage with a free throw, but Westclox came back and scored the deciding basket in the dying minutes to win out in story book fashion. C.G.E. made a valiant stand and might easily have scored an upset win as it was anybody's game in the final seconds. Both teams passed the ball well but close checking slowed the play down somewhat in the latter stages.

Electrics could have won the game by improving slightly on their poor two for nine free throws, while the winners could have lengthened their margin by scoring more than the two for eight tries. F. Bestard and I. Bullock stood out for Westclox, with F. Merrett and E. Craig carrying the play for C.G.E.

The teams:

C.G.E. 18—B. Stalter, M. Hodson 7, E. Termuened, E. Craig 3, M. McCarthy, F. Merrett 8, H. Harte-Maxwell, D. Shultz.

Westclox 20—M. Hawthorne 2, F. Bestard 9, M. McFadden I. Bullock 5, J. Crowe, A. Flynn 4.

Referees—H. Smith and J. Cooper.

Alsab, Challedon Making Bows On Bahamas Day

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 7.—(AP)—A Bahamas Day program at Hialeah Park brought a crisis today in the careers of two swift horses—Alsab and Challedon, heroes of some bright pages of racing history.

Al Sabath's 1941 juvenile wonder, Alsab, was entered against an outstanding field in the $5,000 Bahamas Handicap to prove whether he has the heart and the speed to dominate the climatic three-year-old campaign and take a place with the turf's greatest.

Owner W. L. Brann looked to a $1,500 tune-up race, the secondary feature, for the answer to whether the six-year-old Challedon can come back from a poor performance last season and regain the form which brought him purses totalling $322,235 in four years of triumphant running.

Opposing top-weighted Challedon, at 124 pounds, in the seven-furlong overnight even were two other thoroughbreds in training for the $50,000 Widener Cup race a month hence—Samuel D. Riddle's War Relic and Woodvale Farm's Our Boots. Burdens of 122 pounds were assigned the two four-year-olds, each of whom conquered Whirlaway once last year.

Loaded down with 128 pounds—two over the standard for three-year-olds in February—Alsab was called upon to run against his closest 1941 rival, B. F. Whitaker's fleet Requested, in at 121 for the seven furlong event.

Requested turned up by breaking the track's mile record in a workout, going the distance in one minute, 38 and 2-5 seconds. Alsab's best was a fifth slower.

Remember When—

By The Canadian Press

Jack Sharkey's second comeback fight ended with the former sailor losing on points to Tony Shucco at Boston six years ago tonight. World heavyweight champions three years previously, Sharkey slowed up badly near the end of the bout and Shucco easily outpunched him to win the judges' decision.

Bruins Grooming Jack Wade Of Peterboro'

(By SCOTT YOUNG.)

TORONTO, Feb. 7 (CP) — The amazing rapidity with which seemingly solid conditions in sport can fluctuate and disappear altogether never has been illustrated in bolder relief than in the fall of Boston Bruins and the rise of New York Rangers during the last month.

Boston had a team so good it was dull to watch. Clapper was the best defenceman in the league, Cowley the best centre and everybody else was almost too good to be true. But it was like watching a machine, and it actually was too good to be true. Now the machine has broken down, and the Boston management is scouring hockey's hinterlands for spare parts.

Art Ross probably won't give any of the players he tries any more than a game or two, unless an exceptional one turns up. He'll probably try as many players as he can in the short time left before the Stanley Cup playoffs begin, and by about the last week of the season he should have a good idea of the potentialities of every player available to him. Then he'll pick the best of the lot and go forth with much prayer and heavy misgiving in search of the honors his Bruins seemed certain to win on their early-season showing.

Peterborough Boy Gets Chance

The parade has started. Four members of the Boston Olympics in the Eastern United States Amateur League will change livery during the next week. Jack McGill of Edmonton and Claire Martin of Nanaimo, B.C., will be with Bruins against Detroit in Boston Sunday night. Lloyd Gronsdal of Morquay, B.C., will join Boston before Tuesday's game with Canadiens, and Jack Wade of Peterborough, Ont., will go to Hershey for seasoning. Frank Mario, after a tryout with Bruins, has been sent back down to Hershey.

Boston's go against Detroit Sunday is Bruins' only week-end game. Detroit will meet Canadiens in Montreal tonight, with Rangers at Toronto. Sunday Toronto will play Brooklyn Americans in New York and Rangers will engage the rugged Chicago Black Hawks in Chicago.

In Haakon's Suite

STOCKHOLM, Feb. 7—(AP). — Norwegian reports teaching Stockholm said that Vidkun Quisling, newly-appointed "premier" of Norway by German occupation authorities, took King Haakon's seat in Oslo castle when he presided at his first cabinet meeting yesterday. Reports also said Quisling will live in Haakon's private suite as chief of the government.

INDIA'S SECOND V.C.

Night Fight In Daytime

Clark Griffith, CENTRE, Washington Senators' president, who won a 21 night game quota for his team in a session of major league chiefs in New York, listens as Ford Frick, LEFT, National League president, argues a point with Baseball Commissioner Judge Kenesaw M. Landis. The Senators had asked for 28 games. The other teams can play a maximum of 14 games at their home parks.

BELL OF MOSCOW

The greatest bell ever cast is the Great Bell of Moscow, which weighs an estimated 198 tons.

At last the snow is here and in spite of a crying need of snow to upholster our highly polished hills and trails we are confident the snow is here to stay.

Crowds of skiers from Toronto and other ski clubs joined the Peterborough Ski Club members last Saturday and Sunday at Bethany. It was grand to see all our good friends back with us again and those who failed to put in an appearance passed up some excellent skiing. It was the answer to the skiers' prayer and the skiing left little to be desired.

So now skiers, with all this grand snow, get those ski jeans out of the moth balls, soak linement into the stiff knees and join us this week-end at Bethany.

Now that kinks have been shaken from summer-relaxed thigh muscles and closed Christies are beginning to look like closed Christies—instead of contortionists' nightmares—let's look at the detail facilities the Peterborough Ski Club offers for the enjoyments of its members.

What It Offers

Ski jump at Nassau on which jumps of 110 feet are possible.

100 acres of property at Bethany where we have the highest hills in this district. A log chalet overlooking the surrounding hills.

A mechanical ski-tow pulls skiers 1500 ft. up a steep hill at a speed of 10 to 12 miles an hour.

Several splendid ski trails.

Sladom and down hill courses.

Free lessons to members every Thursday night at Victoria Park.

Free lessons to members at Bethany.

Bethany offers everything for the expert and for the average skier. An average skier, by the way, is one who wouldn't run Tuckerman — wide open or any other way. The average skier is a guy—or a gal—who likes his skiing on the less dangerous side. "Make mine easy" seems to be the common call on the average skiers' front.

The property at Bethany has been developed to suit all classes of skiers. From the long steep, fast hills to the nursery slopes, where instructions will be given to those wanting it. Many of our skiers have mastered all the manoeuvres and have reached the peach of perfection to which skiers always hopefully aspire.

Western District

Western District Ski School: Jack Fisher and Arnold Ducklin of the Ontario Ski Zone committee, were moseying up around the Georgian Bay district and popped in on Durham, Owen Sound, Hanover and Collingwood Ski Clubs. The outcome of their perigrinations was the announcement of a ski school to be held at Owen Sound on Feb. 7, 8.

The Peterborough Ski Club is scheduling a ski school in the near future when it is anticipated that there will be a good representation from the members in this district.

The Ontario Ski Zone announces a new member club in their group—this is Limberlost Lodge Ski Club.

A New Club

Half Century Ski Club, Senator Norman Paterson, the oldest young man in Fort William, who, you will recall was largely responsible for the success of the Dominion championships held at Fort William in 1939, has become "hep" on the idea of a half century ski club. Members in this club must be 50 or over and must have skied since they were 50. The senator is well-known and much appreciated by all Fort William skiers who can testify that his good advice and stalwart support has often saved the day for them.

From Southern Slopes

Pan-American Skiing: A group of prominent South American skiers, representing Argentine, Chile and Boliva, are expected in the States for a two-month stay in order to study the organization of the National Ski Patrol and they will confer with representatives of the United States and Canadian Ski Associations on matters pertaining to the new Ski Union of the Americans, successor to the F.T.S. (Federation of International Skiing).

There is the news for this week folks and we hope to see you at Bethany this week-end. The bus leaves the Empress Hotel at 10.30 Sunday morning and we advise you to take the bus and save your car and gas. The bus leaves on time so don't be late.

Midland Rinks Cop Governor Generals Trophy

TORONTO, Feb. 7 (CP)—Double rink honors in curling were well distributed through the province today but Toronto didn't have any of the silverware.

Day-long play in the various events Friday ended with Lindsay, Midland, London and Kitchener stonemen walking off with the top prizes.

Percy Skitch and H. C. Forsyth skipped their Lindsay fours to a combined 34-27 victory over the Toronto Granite entry of Dan Kelly and Charley Mason in the finals for the Ontario Silver Tankard trophy—a trophy won last year by Hamilton Thistles. Skitch beat Kelly 13-11 and Forsyth beat Mason 21-16.

Another Toronto Granite entry was routed in the battle for the Governor-General's trophy by Midland curlers. The Midland rinks, skipped by F. Hill and W. Hastings outscored P. T. Graham and George Stronach, the Granite duo, 33-16.

R. Buchanan and T. McCallum took the Globe and Mail trophy to London, beating B. Hawker and H. Gerrard of Gravenhurst 31-28 in the final games. Kitchener's brilliant curling brothers, Bert and Perry Hall won the Burden trophy by outscoring Dr. J. Hyslop and D. E. Kennedy, 31-21 in the play-off.

Mangrum Paces Western Open

PHOENIX, Ariz., Feb. 7 (AP) — A rising young man in the game of golf, six foot Lloyd Mangrum of Chicago, led the field into the second round of the $5,000 Western Open championship today, but he faced a stern task in holding an advantage gained by a brilliant tour of the Phoenix Country Club course yesterday.

Mangrum, comparatively unknown despite membership on the United States Ryder Cup team last year, headed a parade of par wreckers in the first round with a six under par 65.

Going into today's 18 holes this pro-without-portfolio, whose main single claim to fame was a record breaking 64 carded in the Masters' tournament in Georgia in 1941, held a two stroke lead over the big threat in the field—wee Benny Hogan.

Three strokes back of the leader, who bagged an eagle and seven birdies for his 65, were six professionals, and four shots in the rear were eight others, all ambitious for the championship in the 42nd edition of the event. In all, 22 players embarrassed the course with sub par performances.

Notable first round casualties were Sam Snead, the Canadian Open champion who whacked his way to a lamentable 76, and three-time winner Ralph Guldahl, who hacked himself into a 79.

Barrie Swamped By Owen Sound

OWEN SOUND, Feb. 7. — Owen Sound Greys swamped Barrie Colts in an 8-3 victory here in the last game of the Junior "B" series before the playoffs last night. The score was tied at the end of the first period. Olmsted starred for the local boys with three goals to his credit in the second period.

Referee Thompson of Dundalk took a beating at the hands of Gilbert of the Barrie Colts when Gilbert, refusing to be penalized, attacked the referee. A free-for-all resulted, with police intervening. Olmsted was the outstanding player of the evening, followed up by Little in the Owen Sound nets.

Owen Sound—Goal, Little; defence, Buchanan, Pidsodny; centre, Murphy; wings, McIntosh, Boddy; subs., Hayward, Keeling, Cruickshank, Olmsted, Leaney, Huard.

Barrie—Goal, Redmond; defence, Fennell, Gilbert; centre, Sandell; wings, Wheeler, Smith; subs, Clute, Perry, Bird, Kelly Lowe.

Referee—M. Thompson, Dundalk.

The Sports Round-Up

By HUGH S. FULLERTON, JR.

NEW YORK, Feb. 7.—(AP)—Twilight baseball seems to be out so far as the major leagues are concerned...The Braves have given up the idea since Boston decided not to add another Daylight Saving hour to War Time; the Indians are planning to try one or two 6:30 games to see how the fans like it but Ava Bradley's reports from the minors aren't encouraging; the Tigers won't decide until June 15, when the auto plants have finished retooling and the fans will be back at work...Gene Sarazen comes up with the best suggestion on how to save golf balls but keep on playing — more two-ball foursomes. That's how the thrifty Scots started it...

Headline Headliner

Atop a column on the start of football workouts in the South, Carter (Scoop) Latimer of the Greenville, S.C. News headlined: "If this is spring practice, why are the Robins wearing earmuffs?"

Shear Nonsense

Jim Wray of the St. Louis Post Dispatch claims that since Lefty Grove has retired the Red Sox will have no Moses to lead them out of the second division.

If you don't think minor league baseball will have tough sledding this season, an advertisement in this week's Sporting News calls for outfields and a first baseman for a Class C club.

Kingston Fades Sailors Win 5-4

TORONTO, Feb. 7—(CP).—The battle for the last two playoff berths in the Ontario Hockey Association's Senior "A" series, raging for the past three weeks between three clubs—Toronto Marlboros, Niagara Falls Weavers and Kingston Combines—has been settled.

A decision came last night as Kingston, needing a victory to remain in the struggle, was defeated by the last-place Port Colborne Sailors 5-4 in Kingston, while the Weavers were defeating St. Catharines Saints 4-1 in Niagara Falls, and Hamilton Majors licked Marlboros 3-2 in overtime in the Mountain City.

A win for Kingston would have given the Combines four points and clinched a playoff spot for them and would have left Niagara Falls and Toronto struggling for the other place.

Port Colborne came from behind with two goals in the third period to oust the Combines. They were scored by Leach and Shuttleworth. Kingston opened the scoring in the first period with a goal by Norv. Williamson, but before the period ended Young pulled Port Colborne level.

Goals by Johnson and Jimmy McKelvie gave the Sailors a two-goal lead before the halfway mark of the second period but that margin was wiped out when Roach, Lane and Murphy scored within three minutes of each other to give the Combines a 4-3 lead at the end of the second period.

Brady Does It.

Dillon Brady's overtime goal gave Hamilton a victory over Marlboros after the Dukes twice previously had come from behind to tie the score. Gaye Stewart counted the two Marlboro goals. Doug. Runions and Hugh Barlow scored the other Hamilton markers.

In the Niagara Falls-St. Catharines game, the Weavers scored once in the first and second periods and twice in the third. Fritz opened the scoring for them and before the first period ended Backor tied the score for St. Catharines. MacPhail shot the Weavers out in front again in the second frame, and in the third Cooper and Newbold scored to give them a commanding lead.

In the second period Captain Red Reynolds of the St. Kitts club suffered a fractured wrist. It was a hard blow for the Saints as they were counting on him for the playoffs.

Art Association Hears Bertha Louise Tamblyn

A composer singing and playing her own songs was the rare treat offered the members of the Art Association on Friday aftrnoon, when Miss Bertha Louise Tamblyn, writer of songs, addressed the association. The treat was made richer by Dorothy Allan Park, who lent her rich soprano to three of the speaker's songs; and had trained a double trio to sing the delicate, fairy-like "Come in, Lady Moon."

In her address Miss Tamblyn described the development of music and song from the earliest times, when savages wailed as they beat their drums in that rhythm which seems to be instinctive in all human beings. Early music was largely an expression of physical emotion. Later man began to experiment on tunes, arrangements of high and low notes began to be fitted to the rhythm.

All early tunes were simple, easily memorized, and possessed a strongly marked rhythm. One of the tunes to which the Crusaders marched was one which we know well today as "We Won't Be Home Until Morning." All primitive music possessed that repetition which is one of the fundamental characteristics of all music, whether it is a great masterpiece or a simple song.

It is in Egypt, in carvings on the walls of tombs that the earliest records of human interest in music are found. The Hebrews learned it from the Egyptians and used it in their temples, setting the psalms to music. But it was the ancient Greeks, regarding the arts as one of the necessities of life, who laid the foundations of modern music in their great dramas, where the character sang, rather than said their lines to the accompaniment of a chorus.

In the Middle Ages professional musicians made their appearance, singing and playing for a living and wandering from town to town, and even from country to country, They spread their songs by word of mouth everywhere, until no one knew, or cared, who had written them and they became folk songs, part of the tradition of the people.

English folk-songs had a healthy vigor about them, typical of the sanity of the people; but they could also be delicate and dainty, as Miss Tamblyn proved when she sang the lovely "Golden Slumbers."

On this continent our folk songs are mostly imported. The only Canadian ones are the chansons of Quebec, which the French settler brought with them. In the United States, if we except negro spirituals and Indian melodies, there are no real folk-songs.

Miss Tamblyn illustrated her points with several delightful numbers; two well known French-Canadian folk songs "En roulons ma boule," and "Gay is the Rose"; a negro spiritual "Gwine to Shout All Over God's Heaven"; and the plaintive Irish air with words by Tom Moor, 'Dear Harp of My Country."

She also sang a group of her own children's songs: 'I Won't Go To Sleep," "Santa's Lunch," "Christmas Bells," "Mumps," "Fishing," and her new patriotic song "Young Johnnie Canada"

Mrs. Park sang three of Miss Tamblyn's songs, "Niagara," whose majectic character suited her voice to perfection; "Life's Lovely Things," and "Good Morn, Dear Love." Mrs. Park's perfect enunciation is a joy and delight in a world where too many singers seem to think the words don't matter.

Mrs. Park and the double trio were accompanied by Gwen Craw at the piano.

Heard in the double trio were six of Mrs. Park's pupils, Misses Margaret Westbye, Helen Glover, Margaret Dickson, Isobel Weddell, Gwennie Bond and Mrs. L. R. Mitchell.

Dance Is Given By The '38 Club

The 38 Club dance on Friday night in the Recreation Room of the Y.W.C.A. was a pretty affair, as members and their guests danced in the gaily decorated room to the music of Jack Marshall's Orchestra.

The attractive decorations, arranged by Miss Helen Fleetwood and Miss Barbara Meiklejohn, were both patriotic and in keeping with the season. Red, white and blue streamers shaded the lights and the walls were trimmed with red and whit Valentine decorations.

There were many lovely gowns; a dainty printed taffeta with full skirt and a halter neckline suited its wearer perfectly; a little dark girl looked sweet in blue taffeta with a full skirt and a close fitting shirred jacket of the same material; there were several dresses with the long full sleeves which are, surprisingly, so much more youthful than short sleeves or none at all; one in particular was fashioned of white chiffon, with a very full skirt and sleeves; and another, of a similar style, was made of misty blue chiffon.

Refreshments were served by Miss Gertrude Butcher, Miss Lily Taylor and Miss Audrey Oliver. Miss Flora Metcalfe, president of the Club, and Miss Jean Oulton, honorary president, received the guests.

Among those present were Misses Flora Metcalfe, Betty Massey-Cooke, Jean Oulton, Hazel Rennie, Sadie Anderson, Phyllis Flett, Doreen Chambers, Leola Northey, Zita Kennedy, Evelyn Neilson, Lela McGregor, Hal Webb, Ferne Armstrong, Edna Morrow, Pauline Howard, Gertrude Butcher, Ruth Murray, Betty Newman, Marg Edmison, Helne Fleetwood, Barbara Meiklejohn, Bernice Primeau, Berrnice Stenson, Vera Clark, Beryl Stenson, Mrs. W. Cocks, Miss Irma Roseborough, Marjorie Harrison, Margaret Kerr, Jean Barringer, Jean Walters, J. Chenhall, W. Bartlett, Marguerite Gardner, Violet Watkins.

Messrs. Jerry Cochrane, L/C Vimy York, Claude Bronson, Jim McBride, Cpl. W. E. Hambly, Bert O'Toole, Mac Atchison, J. Daniel, Lloyd Alton, Daniel Mortness, Frank Snowden, Hal Webb, Reg Munter, E. Howard, J. E. Kee, Frank Scott, Kenn Kidd, Stewart Barkyell Harold Brumwell, Arthur Northcott, Paul Meiklejohn, Fred Stenson, Frank Winch, Harold Rutherford, Walter Cocks, C. W.M.S. of Knox Holds Meeting

The ladies of the Women's Missionary Society of Knox United Church met in the church parlor on Thursday afternoon for the February meeting.

Mrs. Gerrard, president, opened the meeting by reading "The World for Christ," as the call to worship.

Following a short period of intercession for the adopted missionaries, Rev. H. J. Mahoney, B.A., B.D., offered prayer for all laboring in the missionary cause in these difficult times.

The usual monthly reports were given and approximately forty calls recorded by the Community friendship department. The members were reminded of the world day of prayer to take place in Knox Church.

Mrs. J. F. Morrison brought outstanding facts from some of the annual secretarial reports. Mrs. V. E. R. Zufelt presented addresses by Miss H. Day, literature secretary, and Mrs. W. B. Avison, returned missionary from Korea, in an interesting manner.

Continuing the study of China, Mrs. Benson, in summarizing Chapter 4 of the Study Book, traced the history of our missionaries through the years 1922-1927, when the revolution reached its climax and once again the missionaries were faced with evacuation and a serious time of testing. It was at this time that the name of Chiang Kai-Shek first appeared in Chinese history.

The worship service had as its theme "The Bible, our guide to Christian Faith and Conduct." Well known scripture passages were read, and responsive readings with Mrs. C. Weldon in charge. One of the members, Mrs. R. Hanscom, gave a personal talk on the Bible as a guide, emphasizing Bible study, not merely reading.

Prayer and the singing of a hymn closed the meeting.

Victory Workers Planning Tea

The Victory Workers of Peterborough, an organization of more than 20 women who have banded together to do sewing for the Red Cross, the Salvation Army and for local needy families plan to hold a tea on Tuesday, February 10 in the Sons of England Hall.

The purpose of the tea is to raise funds to purchase materials needed to make quilts and other essentials. The Sons of England officers have given the organization free use of their club rooms.

The women will take up a silver collection from the guests, and tea will be served from two in the afternoon until six o'clock. Mrs. Ernest Cross is convener. Mrs. Bruce L. Fowler is president, Mrs. W. E. Rogers, vice-president and Mrs. George Benton, secretary-treasurer.

Colleagues Honor Bride Elect

Miss Jean McColl, whose marriage takes place shortly, was honoured by her associates in the foot-press department of the Westclox on Wednesday evening, when they held a miscellaneous shower for her in the cafeteria of the Westclox. Lunch was served at 5.30 by a committee consisting of the Misses Doreen Kidd, Muriel Fallen, Doreen Groombridge, Thelma Bullock, Joyce Powers.

After lunch Miss McColl was presented with a handsome silver service on behalf of her colleagues. Many beautiful and useful gifts were then showered upon her.

Diminishing Teas Aid Raising Funds

One of the newest ways of raising funds for any worthy cause is the holding of diminishing teas. In case any one feels hungry already, it should be explained that it is the guests, who diminish, not the food. It all starts out with a lady holding a tea and inviting seven guests, at ten cents, or a quarter apiece. These seven guests in turn each hold a tea, inviting six guests; and so, on until a great many people inviting one guest each. Something like the chain-letter idea only more dependable. The Peter Robinson Chapter is holding a series of diminishing teas during the next six weeks to raise funds for war work and they hope that friends of the chapter will co-operate.

Y.W.C.A. War Work Covers Wide Field

Part of the Y.W.C.A.'s war work, officially delegated by the government, is the establishment and maintenance of Hostess Houses. Thirty-one of these houses, throughout Canada, offered hospitality and assistance to one million relatives and friends of soldiers. The Travellers' Aid Service has also afforded invaluable assistance to war guests, refugees, munitions and factory workers and wives and families of soldiers moving to the cities where they are stationed.

Another important service which the Y.W.C.A. offers is a rooms registry. Girls coming in to work in the factories and offices apply to the "Y" where many are accommodated and others referred to select rooming houses close to their work.

Last summer the government asked the Y.W.C.A. to supervise the farmerette camps, of which there were twelve in Central Ontario, accommodating over a thousand girls. Now the Peterborough Association has given its facilities to a group of farmerettes who have organized to recruit farm labor for next summer.

In addition to these services given by the Association throughout the country, the Peterborough "Y.W." has performed extra war services within the community. Recreational evenings, to which men from the Basic Training Centre are invited have been planned and carried out in a most successful manner. Co-operating with the Y.W.C.A. in this matter are the Major Bennett, Peter Robinson and Jeanette Scott Chapters, I.O.D.E. Similar get-togethers are held the last Monday in each month for young women in war industries.

War guests and women of the permanent services are guests of the "Y" and are invited to join classes without charge.

WATCH DISPARITY IN AGE IF YOU CONTEMPLATE MARRYING
There Should Be No Wide Breach of Years Unless Both Are Past the Forty-Plus Status

Dear Dorothy Dix.—At the request of my fiance I am asking your advice as to our chances of happiness if we marry. We have been thrown together by our work and had found ourselves most companionable and congenial and have been engaged now for more than a year. We have spent most of our evenings in each other's company and our attachment has grown all the time. But the difficulty is that he is a man in his late thirties and I am a woman in my early fifties, yet he is a man who is old for his age and I am a woman who is young for mine. We have talked the matter over often and he is perfectly satisfied with my age and often says that I am a person who will never grow old. We are two lonely souls. Shall we go our separate ways because of this disparity in our age, or shall we marry and make a home together.—Mrs. M. H.

Answer.—Undoubtedly age is one of the most important factors in determining the success or failure of a marriage, and, as a rule, it is a fatal thing for the woman to be the elder, but there are exceptions to all rules and yours seems to be a case in point.

From what you write I take it that you are about 14 or 15 years older than your fiance. If he were a boy in his early twenties and you were getting along towards forty, the risk would be too great to take because he would be an immature boy, with his tastes unformed, without knowing what he really wanted in a wife and with his desire for amusement still unsatisfied, while you would be what we call a "settled" woman who had seen the show of life and were a little tired of it and wanted nothing so much as a home of your own.

A Point To Consider

You would seem more like a mother than a wife to him. People would tease him about having married Ma and he would be ashamed of you, and in a little while the inevitable would happen—youth would call to youth and he would fall in love with some girl of his own age.

And if it is a mistake for a boy to marry a middle-aged woman, it is trebly a mistake for her, for no woman undertakes such a hard job as does the elderly one who tries to hold a young husband by keeping him amused. Nor is any woman's heart even so torn with jealousy as is the one who knows that she is losing her boy-husband to some young playmate.

But when a man is almost 40 he is no longer a boy. He is an adult. His character and his tastes are formed. He knows the kind of a wife he desires, and if he chooses one older than himself he has a better chance of happiness. Such a man almost invariably has the mother complex and what he really wants is a mother instead of a wife. He wants someone who will make him a comfortable home, who will pet him and coddle him and spoil him and not make the demands upon him that a young wife would.

Girls, Watch Your Conduct

Dear Miss Dix.—Why it is that so many girls in these times make themselves so cheap? I am a young man and meet many pretty, smart girls to whom I am greatly attracted at first, but no sooner do they take a cocktail or two and it is all spoiled. They are ready to pet and give themselves to any chap, body and soul, and I am so disguted with them that I never want to see them again. Don't girls realize that there are plenty of decent fellows who would like a girl to be on her dignity and show that she had, at least, some self-respect? I know when I marry it will not be to one of these free and easy young women. I think boys are getting fed up with the kissing bugs, don't you?—ONE OF MANY BOYS.

Answer.—I can only hope and pray that they are, for it is only you boys who can bring the modern girl to her senses and make her see not only how dangerous, but how disgusting it is for her to degrade herself to the level of the woman of the streets.

Of course, there are girls who are nothing but sex and who under any circumstances would go their predistined way, but all girls are not like that. There are plenty of them who are not like that. There are plenty of them who are not innately immoral and lacking in decency. Many who have mothers who have tried to bring them up properly, but who are so anxious for dates, so afraid of being left out of the crowd that they are willing to make the sorry bargain of trading their honor for a trip to the movies, or a hot dog and a soft drink. They sell out cheap, cut rate prices on all that a woman should hold most dear.

I get thousands of letters—and I mean thousands—from girls who tell me how they shrink from kisses from coarse mouths or from being pawned over by lecherous hands, how liquor sickens them, and how they loathe the petting that they must submit to in payment for a date. But, they say, that if a girl won't pet she is shelved, the boys will have nothing to do with her. So she pays the price.

So it is up to you decent boys to save the girls of your generation. Put a price on purity and modesty. Refuse to go about with loose living girls. That is what your father and your grandfather did. No man in their day would marry a girl whose skirts were not clean, and that is why girls kept themselves pure and saved their kisses for the men married. Women always live up to what men demand of them.

Arrangements are all set for the visit of Fire Marshall Scott on Sunday afternoon. The meeting will be held in the Lyceum on Simcoe Street.

County Lodge Elects Officers

Ernie F. Reid presided at the Orange Hall this week when officers were elected for the County of Peterborough West L.O.L. and there was an excellent attendance.

The complete slate of officers from 1941 was returned to office without change and they were installed by Mr. Reid, who spoke briefly, pointing out the great threat that exists to the Empire, and he urged all the officers and members to throw their weight into the war effort, and make all the sacrifices necessary to protect the ideals of freedom and justice. He mentioned also that already hundreds of L.O.L. members across the country were wearing the uniform of the active service forces, and many more will be joining soon.

Millen, county master; Melville Holden, deputy county master; Eric Pearsen, chaplain; Carl Henry, recording secretary; Bert Lockington, financial secretary; Fred Kitney, treasurer; Archie McDonald, marshall; Roland Darling, 1st lecturer, and John Hobson, second lecturer.

New Serial Story Seen Pictorially

Kings Row, the new serial story to be released in the Examiner on Wednesday, February 11, appears in picture form in the Feb. 9 issue of 'Life.' Photos shown are from the new Warner Brothers picture, "Kings Row," adapted from the original story written by Henry Bellaman. The novel was a best seller in 1940 and depicts a Midwestern United States town in the early nineties.

The story as it appears in the Examiner is reputed to be the best serial ever run and the movie of the same title is highly recommended for intense interest. Read the story in the Examiner and then watch for the movie coming to this city.

$18,900 Surplus Shown By City Council

City Treasurer M. E. Shaver reports a surplus of $18,900 in the civic treasury from 1941, "something to prime the pump with."

The Utilities Commisison has already forwarded to the treasurer a cheque for $12,000 from their surplus from the 1941 operations.

These two items, amounting to $30,900, are cash in the bank to the credit of this year's accounting before Alderman Cotton's finance committee undertakes its revision of the estimates as the final step to determining the tax rate for this year.

This current cash on hand is equivalent to fractionally more than one mill, almost 1.5 mills on the basis of the assessment effective last year.

Mr. Shaver explained this morning that there had been a substantial saving in the relief account, and th Board of Works oprations for Wartime Housing Limited was a saving by employing the outdoor staff at work that would otherwise have been paid for out of the city coffers instead of from Wartime Housing.

"Police court fines have risen quite a bit, too," Mr. Shaver said. Apparently people with more wartime earnings to spend do not hesitate to blow srads of it in the broad path of the policemen's beat.

"Flight" To Nowhere

R. J. Thomas, president of the United Automobile workers of America and member of the U.S. War Labor Board, gets final instructions on how to operate a Link trainer from Private Donald E. Contreay before actually controlling the trainer at Maxwell Field, Alabama. Mr. Thomas took his "flight" during a visit of A.F.L. and C.I.O. leaders to the southeast air corps centre as the guests of Undersecretary of War Robert P. Patterson.

Road Construction Out This Year Government Refuses Subsidy

Cancellation by the Department of Highways of its customary fifty per cent. subsidy on road construction will not affect Peterborough county.

The county council at its January sessions trimmed its sails to the financial straits of the third year of the war, confining its progress to road maintenance. The tax rate was set at 2.5 mills, the same levy as last year, and on the new assessment that appropriation produces $25,842.07.

The council set aside $10,000 of that fund for the Suburban Area Commission, requiring the city to contribute an equal amount, and the Department doubles their combined requisition, giving the Commission a total of $40,000 to spend. The Commission, according to M. H. Gainey's statement to the city council this week, speaking as one of the Commissioners, said that construction work on the Buckhorn Road was under consideration but nothing had yet been decided. In fact the Commission has two or three months to mark time before getting on with its year's work. Since the Department of Highways is refusing this year to pay a subsidy on highway construction, it may be that the Commission will confine its activities to maintaining its 61 miles of suburban area roads.

After providing for the Suburban Area Commission, the county council has $15,842.87 left for its own roads. This money is placed at the disposal of the county roads commission, and the Department pays a like amount on the basis of a 50 per cent. subsidy. However, the subsidy applies only to the cost of maintenance, and the net result of the with holding of grants from the government will likely mean that Peterborough county will not see any road building this year.

County authorities may simply plan to keep the roads in good repair. That policy was emphasized at the January sessions, a desire to keep expenditure down to a serviceable minimum in anticipation of demand fo rwar purposes.

There was a large lump on the back of his head, and he complained of a headache. The older boy has to report to the Chief Constable tonight for an investigation into the affair.

Demand On City For Education Show Reduction

Indications that there would be a substantial reduction in the demand made on the City Council for educational purposes was forecast by D. G. H. Melton, chairman of the Finance Committee of the Board of Education meeting on Friday evening. While the actual figure will not be available until the Board meets next week to go over the estimates of all the committees, and agree on a total figure for the year.

Sitting on the Finance Committee with the chairman were T. J. Carley, K.C., D. V. Canning, H. G. Walker, and William Anderson, the County representative.

The members dealt first with the salaries of Public School and Collegiate teachers, considering totals which are practically fixed, and which this year show an increase due to salary increases for various teachers, according to the existing salary schedule. The total expended for salaries in the Public Schools in 1941 was $137,361, and this year the estimated total is $140,975. For the academic section oof the Collegiate the 1941 expenses were $58,205 and the 1942 estimate is $58,000. In the the Vocational section, $54,745 was spent in 1941 and the 1942 estimate is $57,000.

Other items were as follows: Supply teachers—spent in 1941 $2,500, estimated 1942 $2,354. Caretakers' salaries in the Public Schools—spent in 1941 $10,422, estimated 1942 $11,000. The Collegiate, spent in 1941 $18,158, estimated for 1942 $19,658. The increases are due to the cost of living bonus which was in effect just a portion of 1941, and for the chief caretaker's salary. School officers and stenographers— paid in 1941 $8,042, estimated 1942 $8,450. Insurance—paid in 1941 $2,036, estimated 1942 $2,800. Workmen's Compensation— 1941 $176.50, estimated 1942 $242.00. The increase here also is due to the fact that the expense in 1941 covered a portion of the year only. Unemployment insurance— spent in 1941 $152.48, estimated 1942 $325.00. The latter figure covers the entire year as against a partial year in 1941. Cartage—spent in 1941 $203.52, estimated 1942 $150.00. Express and freight—spent in 1941 $68.00, estimated 1942 $90.00. Stamps—spent in 1941 $294.00, estimated 1942 $325.00. Telephone and telegraph—spent $763.00, estimated $770.00. Travelling expenses—spent $300.00, estimated $250.00. Car allowances— spent $431.00, estimated $705.00. Printing and stationery — spent $1,551, estimated $1,665. Advertising— spent $142.00 estimated $150.00.

The total of salaries and other items of the amount spent in the past year was $299,627, and the estimated total for the current year is $308,937.

Revenue for the Board received during the past year was $65,248 and this year the Board expects to receive $70,305 which with the surplus on hand of $18,558.61 shows an expected revenue of $88,863.61.

Considerable discussion developed when the committee was considering county fees for pupils, and it was argued by T. J. Carley and Mr. Melton that the secretary of the Board should not only give the county clerk and treasurer a statement in March showing the amount owing the Board for non-resident fees for the preceding year, but should also submit an estimate of the fees expected for the current year.

This, both men contended should be of considerable benefit to the County Council when it sets its tax rate at the June sessions. Mr. Anderson heartily endorsed the suggestion and this will probably be approved by the Board.

Salaries this year will include the cost of a teacher for the handicraft class which is expected to be started, and will also take care of the salary of the new teacher for the drafting class who is taking Bob Maybee's place. The latter item, however, has a compensating feature as the Board will receive a substantial grant on his salary due to the fact that he is a fully qualified drafting teacher.

Troops Be Heard Radio Broadcast

Since a list was published in the Examiner Tuesday of a number of men and officers of the Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry Highlanders now in England whose voices will be heard over C.B.L. (radio station) in Toronto next week, several calls have come to this office today reporting new names among those soldiers who will be heard.

As far as is known here, two broadcasts will be held next week on Monday and Tuesday nights. The hours of the broadcasts will be from 12 o'clock midnight until 1 a.m. each night.

The Canadian Broadcasting company has sent cards to the next of kin of these officers and men advising them of the broadcasts and stating the time they will be heard.

Since headquarters company of the unit was recruited here in Peterborough, men will be heard who have not been included in the Examiner list. It is also possible that many of these men who came from districts in and around Peterborough may be included in the broadcasts.

Following are names of more members in addition to the list in Thursday's paper, who will be heard from midnight until 1 a.m.; Pte. Aubrey Braund, Peterborough; Sergt. W. R. Sedgwick, Peterborough; C.Q.M.S. Spencer Hope, Peterborough; Sergt. P. D. Howden, Peterborough; Pte. Douglas Taylor, formerly of Lakefield will be heard. Lance Corporal Alfred Levallee, Peterborough, Pte. Clair Huard of Elm street and Pte. Ted Kavanagh of Norwood.

Lost All On Torpedoed Ship

Members of the crew of the torpedoed United Fruit Company's freighter San Gil are shown receiving new clothing from Mrs. Higgins McBaugh, director of Red Cross at Lewes, Del. The San Gil, hit by two torpedoes and 11 shells from an Axis sub, was the 15th victim of U-boat warfare off the Atlantic coast. Two crew members were killed. Forty others and a passenger were rescued after spending seven hours in lifeboats and landed at Lewes.

Nature Club Elects Officers

"If all the birds were wiped out of America, all human life on this continent would be gone in seven years," Alex Kay, well-known local bird authority, told an interested audience at the annual meeting of the Peterborough Nature Club. Mr. Kay amplified this sweeping statement by quoting statistics which showed the value of birds to man in relation to agriculture.

The meeting, which was held in the Green Room of the Y.W.C.A. on Friday evening, was well attended by friends and members of the club. H. H. Graham, retiring president, reported briefly on the field trips which the club had sponsored during the past year. He made the suggestion that members might be more interested in studying nature than in studying the picnic-basket.

Continuing the business portion of the evening, the following reports were received: Treasurer's report by A. J. Madill; report on the activities of the Junior group, by Miss Eastwood; the report of the nominating committee by R. L. Hale, and the membership committee's report by R. G. Lawlor, Norwood. In the latter report it was pointed out that the membership had doubled during the past year, showing a marked increase in the club's activities.

The officers for the coming year are as follows: Honorary President, F. J. A. Morris; President, A. J. Madill; Vice-president, R. G. Lawlor, Norwood; Secretary-treasurer, Alexander Shearer; Advisory committee, Miss H. Gerrard, V. R. Henry, and Alan Brown.

With business finished, the meeting was turned over to the guest speaker, Mr. Kay, who held the audience's complete attention while he gave his intensely interesting address on bird life. Mr. Kay showed the relation of bird life to human life, and illustrated his references with personal experiences and stories. Of particular interest was the fact that every bird has its counterpart in man, from the yellow-bellied woodpecker, which goes on a three weeks' spree in the spring while the sap is running, to the Canada jay, the petty thief of the bird world.

The speaker was very enthusiastic about the work which school-teachers were doing in promoting nature conservation among their pupils. One particularly significant statement which Mr. Kay made, was that he had seen seven thousand more birds this year than last year, an indisputable proof that bird protection does help.

Mrs. R. L. Hale added to the enjoyment of the evening by singing two appropriate numbers.

Miss M. McIntosh thanked Mr. Kay for his splendid address, and the meeting was ended with refreshments served by the social committee.

Cycling Club Gives $15 To War Victims

From time to time, a contribution to the city and district fund for British war victims has come in from clubs or societies who have ceased to function as such, and in this manner the funds wich they had on hand are going back into circulation with the definite purpose of being of some use.

The Peterborough Cycling Club comes under this heading, and to-day the sum of $15.00 is reported received per Edna Millard, being the amount of money remaining in the bank to their credit, which will now go on its way to do some good to those in need of it in Britain.

The penny box total continues to climb, and with $2.86 reported in to-day's list from the Whidden Service Station on Port Hope highway it has now reached the spendid total of $789.54 for this source of revenue for the fund.

Down in the south end of the city, two neighbors, Mrs. Towsley and Mrs. Kitchen of 58 and 60 Ware street, have joined together in an effort to help the fund, and for this purpose they have made a quilt and are now sponsoring the sale of tickets for a draw on it at 10c each or three for 25c.

Another effort on behalf of the fund was made possible by Mrs. O. F. Church of Sherbrooke street west, who has donated a hand-worked table cloth of her own making with a cross stitch in red and black to the fund, and the sale of tickets for a draw on it is being sponsored by the Star of Bethlehem L.O.B.A. with Mrs. C. Johnson as convener.

The cloth will be displayed in the windows of the Cleanrite Cleaners on Simcoe street, and tickets can be secured from the members at 10c each.

City Carpetball

All but one result card showed double wins, the only exception being one drawn game.

Once again all games have been played to schedule, which shows good interest all round.

The L.O.L. and B.E.S.L. worked on an exchange basis—No. 6 lost to No. 4, while No. 5 won from No. 3. Looks as if King Billie is losing the Battle of the Boyne.

That Hook and Ladder squad is still going to town and is now in second place, just one point behind the league-leading Westclox Alarms.

It looks like a rush to see who can keep in the cellar with the Auto Tops doing their darnedest to get there. Guess that ship of theirs needs seaming up.

What happened to the Fighting Parsons this week? Ask the Mad Masons.

"The Authority on Authorities"

MANUFACTURING ENTRIES

MANY contracts would be easy to make if you could have the lead be wherever you want it at various crucial moments. But unfortunately the laws do not allow you to lead out of the wrong hand and get away with it. As a consequence, you sometimes have to fenagle to the limit in order to have it be at the right place at the right time. Even such devices as discarding a perfectly good ace may be necessary—if you can think of them.

For unusual play, you will have to go far to beat the performance put up on this deal by Herbert J. Gerst, of Norfolk, Va., who is rapidly establishing himself in national tournament circles as a brilliant manipulator of difficult contracts.

His unorthodox methods were inaugurated on the opening trick, when he let the heart K win. Figure out, if you can, any way to have made the contract if this trick had been taken. How could the loss of three diamond tricks have been prevented? To the second trick, West led his heart Q, and again the A was not played. The trick, instead, was ruffed by the spade 4—notice, not the 2.

Next came the spade A and K, then the club Q. If East covered this, the A would win, three more clubs would furnish two diamond discards and the heart A another, producing an extra trick, but East ducked. The heart A was called then and the club A discarded on it. What a play! This enabled him to keep the lead in dummy if East ducked the next club, but he, of course, covered it, and it was ruffed.

Now the spade 2 to the 3 put the lead back in dummy, whereupon the club 10 and 9 brought discards of two diamonds, and the diamond K was then given up to West. The spade 9 and J, of course, took the last two tricks of a beautifully made contract.

Normal Child No Worry

In this day of new ideas, we do not worry about the child of normal intelligence like we used to—it is the child with low intelligence with whom we become concerned. When a pupil is about two years behind the average pupil in his studies then he becomes a problem child.

Mr. Copp explained that intelligence tests are not intended to determine what the child has learned but his ability to relate subjects. He cited as an example a pupil might look at a picture and see a woman, a basket, a post office and other things but the difficulty is to make him understand that the lady with the basket full of eggs is going to the post office for her mail. Intelligence tests also show ability of a child to look at a square and copy it on paper. "Would you believe it," said Mr. Copp, "years ago teachers had pupils drawing difficult figures before they learned the simple ones."

Child Far Above Normal

Another example he pointed out was a child here in Peterborough attending school who has a rating of 145 per cent—far above normal. This child also becomes a problem child because he is not average—he is a genius. Average problem children are those with ratings from 70 down to 50 per cent. Below 50 per cent, they can be excluded from school.

After intelligence tests are made, special equipment is brought into the school to aid those who are behind in the matter of text books, reading glasses and so forth.

All Can Make Progress

"It is definitely known now that all children can make progress in all subjects if the problem children are discovered soon enough. In almost all rural schools, special courses are available for those children not absorbing normal educational diet. Teachers must be sympathetic," he said. "If for instance a child can not spell, the cause must be found. Occasionally out of seven or eight reasons why he lagged, the teacher was found to blame for three or four of them."

Another phase of the subject, said Mr. Copp, was the treatment of the problem child before the class. The teacher must be understanding and not bawl a pupil out before the class which would tend to make him worse. "We have many teachers from 19 years up trying to handle most complicated systems of teaching. If a child swears, he will have a shorter vocabulary of words than the child who does not because he uses swear words too often and does not develop normal expression."

Slow Tedious Job

Application of teaching principles to the problem child is slow and tedious work but must be carried out with the greatest understanding, he said.

The speaker, a member of the Kiwanis club, was introduced by Ralph O. Standish who pointed out that Mr. Copp was popular with the young people. A vote of thanks was extended by Stan Longhurst, who added that the iron rule was definitely in effect when he attended school.

The meeting was under the chairmanship of Adjutant Norman Buckley, of the boys and girls committee. Two little boy guest artists were Wilfred Jones, 8, who played two cornet solos and David Buckley who sang two numbers.

Interest in the meeting was stepped up by the attendance contest with Dick Raine's Builders and Leo Copp's Boosters each trying for the top honors at the end of the month. The losing team must buy a free dinner for the winners.

As members sat down to dinner, both teams were tied with three members from each missing. Gordon K. Fraser, M.P., of the Boosters was unavoidably absent because of his presence in Ottawa but it was ruled that if he returned to Peterborough with an attendance ticket from the Ottawa club, he would be accorded the same privilege as those actually attending. As Mr. Copp began his talk, Dr. J. J. Craig, on the boosters team, walked into the meeting to give the boosters an edge of one to the good.

AIR Secretary Air Archibald Sinclair disclosed in the House of Commons today that the Royal Air Force is receiving dive bombers from the United States.

His statement was in answer to a question whether Britain was producing "any substantial number" of dive bombers and how they compared with German types.

The air secretary said a special new type was being produced in the United States and, without divulging specifications, commented that "there is good reason to suppose their performance will be satisfactory."

Elzevir Farmer Killed In Bush

TWEED, Feb. 7—(ENS). —Jeff Brough, 82 year old resident of Elzevir township, near Johnston's Corners, was instantly killed at three o'clock on Wednesday afternoon, when he was struck by a falling tree while working in the bush with his son.

The aged man went to the bush with his son, Joseph Brough, and they were engaged in sawing a tree which accidentally, in the descent, caught in the limbs of another tree. Joseph shouted to his father to move quickly but the elderly man was struck and hurled to the ground. His chest was badly crushed, while several ribs were fractured. He died instantly.

Dr. M. G. Dales, Coroner of Tweed, was called and stated that the man's death was entirely accidental, and no inquest was called.

Born in Quebec, the late Jeff Brough had resided in Elzevir near Johnston's Corners for some years.

British Blasts

be set on fire if the Japanese launched invasion barges.)

The shelling of Singapore residential areas opened the second week of siege for the fortress British Headquarters have sworn to defend until help comes.

First Shels in City.

It was the first time that the Japanese artillery, presumably emplaced on the shores of Johore Strait across from the northern shore of Singapore Island, had found the range beyond the coastal stretches on Johore Strait.

Singapore City proper is on the opposite end of the 14-mile-wide island from Johore Strait, but the outskirts extend some distance to the north of the city itself.

With the British commander of the beleaguered fortress vowing that "we will hold Singapore; there is no question about it," authorities today ordered a complete blackout every night for Singapore.

The new rule abolished the "brown out" regulations which heretofore permitted householders to have limited subdued lighting except during alarm periods.

"The Japanese may land in small parties on the coast of Singapore or by parachutes by night," the advertisements said.

Citizens were urged to watch for disguised Japanese and to report suspicious strangers.

The declaration that Singapore would be held gave new strength to the island's defenders.

Planes, Ships In New Bases.

While firmly pledging resistance, Lt.-Gen. A. E. Percival, commander of Imperial land forces here, officially disclosed what many in Singapore had known for some time—that some of the men, planes, ships and supplies had been removed from the naval base and several airfields on the island.

Gen. Percival hastened to offer reassurance, however, that the withdrawal did not mean Singapores defences had been weakened.

"Just because we do not see so many of our aircraft overhead and our naval units about does not mean the air force and navy have abandoned Singapore," he declared.

"They have gone to places whence they can bomb Japanese bases just as effectively and build up our naval strength. The navy is continuing to do a lot of work around the island and Malayan shores under difficult circumstances."

The navy underscored his declaration with an announcement that more than 1,000 Imperial troops cut off from their main force by the Japanese march down the west coast of Malaya had been rescued by British ships.

The rescue work was undertaken over a space of several nights under extremely dangerous conditions. British boats sailed up Malacca Strait under the noses of the Japanese, took aboard the soldiers, and returned.

Many soldiers hid on the mainland for several days while waiting for the fleet of sampans and fishing boats to take them to larger ships offshore.

Boats Well Packed

"The last launch to reach Singapore was so packed the men couldn't see anything but the mast," said one naval officer who took part in the operation.

General Percival called on all civilians to give their best to the defence efforts. He declared it would be necessary to thin the ranks of military defenders to keep essential services oprating unless civilians stepped forward to man them.

The commander said many women were being sent away because they would be better off elsewhere. However, he declared that a number of women were remaining in Singapore, "doing valuable work."

Some island areas have been cleared of civilians, he said, to eliminate the possibility of Fifth Column activity in forward areas and for the good of the cvilians themselves.

Reduction of duplications and non-essentials, such as competitive salesmanship, duplication of deliveries of milk and coal and manufacture of less essential commodities; and employment of the people released by such moves in war activity;

Serious consideration to a capital levy for war purposes.

"A deliberate attempt is being made at this time to stir up political strife in Canada—sectional strife, racial strife," said Mr. Cleaver. "I protest against this with all the vehemence of my being."

He appealed to members on all sides of the House to avoid adding to occasions for strife and said if one were a paid agent of Hitler he could do not better than to promote a controversy over conscription in order to set one group of Canadians against another.

Gone Beyond Dreams.

Pensions Minister Mackenzie, first speaker of the short Friday sitting, said that " in this war we have gone far beyond anything dreamed of by the most ardent advocates of conscription of wealth in 1917."

If the C.C.F. sub-amendment to the address in reply, calling for conscription of industry, accumulated wealth and financial institutions meant conscription of large incomes, prevention of profiteering and utilization of material resources owned by anyone for the prosecution of the war, the government had been doing it "and is accelerating the application of its power at a rate that has amazed the entire world."

The government had limited profits, taxed away a lot of the remaining profits, prevented profits altogether on many war activities by establishment of state-owned companies, taxed personal incomes "almost but not quite to the point of confiscation" and informed the owners of raw materials that the nation and not they would decide how those materials were to be used and at what price.

If, on the other hand, the C.C.F. sub-amendment went further and meant institution of state socialism and the upsetting of the system of free enterprise, that was absurd in war time. In peace time, he said he would be prepared to debate such an issue and "perhaps go a long way" with those who favored a change, but discussion of all such notions should be left until peace was restored.

The minister said the plebiscite policy of the government was the only honorable course. He quoted from speeches by Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen, the new Conservative leader, and said in other years Mr. Meighen had declared himself opposed to sending men out of Canada without consulting the people.

Last War's Setup

Dealing with conscription, Mr. Mackenzie said that in the first Great War 536,281 men enlisted voluntarily and 83,355 had been conscripted. While conscription was in force 90,645 had volunteered. Even while conscription was in effect it had not produced as many men as the voluntary system.

Mr. Mackenzie said that in the present state of hostilities he could see no necessity for increasing the overseas forces beyond the establishment now projected — a two-corps army.

In war, however, any contingency might arise and the government wished to be free to take whatever measures might be necessary. The only way to obtain the necessary freedom has to consult the people.

Mr. Esling, in opposing the plebiscite, said it left the people uncertain as to whether conscription would be imposed if they voted to release the government from its pledges. In the Quebec East by-election, he said, Justice Minister St. Laurent gave the impression it would not be imposed; in the Welland by-election Labor Minister Mitchell gave the impression it would be.

Mr. Harris took objection to speakers who attacked the city of Toronto. He said their remarks did not help in the promotion of Canadian unity.

As a solution to the Japanese problem in British Columbia Mr. Harris suggested the Japanese fishermen be moved to Lake Winnipeg and Lake Winnipegosis to fish for gold-eye and Icelandic people from Manitoba be moved to the west coast to fish for salmon. Other Japanese might be moved to Ontario and Quebec, he said.

The plume in the sky over the Municipal airport at Kansas City is not a "twister" but the frozen trail left by a high-flying army pursuit ship. Condensed moisture from exhausts of the plane was frozen into a white cloud.

IN THE HARVEST FIELD . . .

. . . AND ON THE BATTLEFIELD

MODERN EQUIPMENT WINS THE DAY

THAT the prodigious task of providing the foodstuffs for an Empire at war can be undertaken by Canadian agriculture with but little re-organization of its regular activities and with less man-power than ever before is due to the high degree of mechanization of the farm which had been reached before the outbreak of war. Fortunate, indeed, it was that we had a highly developed mechanized agriculture ready at the very outset of war to back the Empire's fighting forces.

Massey-Harris leadership in the developing and building of such labor-saving equipment for the farm is recognized throughout the world, and has resulted in an enviable reputation for this great Canadian Company wherever grain is grown.

It is but natural, therefore, that a Company with such great resources in plant, skill and experience should place its facilities at the disposal of the Government and be chosen for the production of various munitions of war. Several types of shell, aircraft wings and parts, and considerable equipment for military transports are being turned out with the skill and efficiency which have made the name Massey-Harris famed throughout the years for products of highest quality.

Massey-Harris is proud of its part in providing the implements so essential in modern farming under war conditions and in furnishing munitions and equipment so vital to the success of our fighting forces.

Vast Hun Mine Fields Fail To Stop Reds

(By EDDY GILMORE.)

MOSCOW, Feb. 9 — (AP) — Desperately pressed German troops laid vast mine fields in the Donets Basin today in an attempt to halt the onrushing Soviets, but the forces of Marshal Semeon Timoshenko surged forward over the snowdrifted Steppes.

One mine field nearly two miles long was discovered and Red sappers cut five lanes through it. At another point the Russians said their extracted 2,600 anti-tank mines buried beneath the snow.

Despite these and other obstacles, the Russians swept three more Donets villages clear of the Nazis.

Eighteen other populated paces were captured on the central front as the Reds pressed toward Smolensk. Heavy artillery was said to have destroyed 10 German planes on the ground near the front lines.

While front line news was scarce, dispatches told of behind the lines destruction by the Red army from Sevastopol to the northwestern sector beyond Kalinin.

Russian scouts slipped through heavy German lines at one point and blew up an anti-tank post killing 10 Germans.

During the last four days, Sevastopol artillery and planes have smashed nine Nazi artillery batteries hurling shells into that besieged Crimean naval base.

Rumanians Angry.

On the southwestern front, the Russians said 20 members of the Rumanian 1st Division had surrendered with their junior officers, complaining of treatment from the German command. The Russians said the Rumanian captives fought German prisoners. They complained that the German commanders had assured them of artillery and German infantry support which did not materialize.

On the Kalinin front northwest of Moscow, a guerilla detachment led by a "grandfather" attacked a German rear guard detachment, killing 179 officers and men, capturing five anti-tank guns and other supplies.

The Soviets captured an order of the day of the German 290th infantry regiment which said:

"Lately a number of instances have occurred showing a decline in dicipline and a lowering of morale of the unit. During fighting, positions are surrendered prematurely without good reason. In addition, arms are abandoned and wounded are left behind. While on the march men singly and even in groups have been leaving the marching column without permission, abandoning their arms. Officers must put an end to this situation by all means at their disposal."

The Russians reported German massed artillery had lost its sting.

British Units Strike Back Near Tobruk

Air Force Smashes At Lengthening Axis Supply Lines

CAIRO, Egypt, Feb. 9 — (AP).— British desert fighters holding their positions firmly before Tobruk, have thrust out patrols against the enemy in the El Mechili area south of the Gebel El Achdar Ranges, headquarters said to-day in a communique.

Mobile columns engaged infantry and artillery forces of Field-Marshal Rommel 12 miles west of Ain El Gazala, coastal point which the Axis claimed was captured on Saturday.

Air forces supported the land troops again, and continued to harry the lengthened Axis communication lines.

Patrol activities near El Mechili brought that strategic desert point into the battle zone for the first time in this campaign.

Some 60 miles south-west of Derna, El Mechili is considered a key to the desert region south of the mountain zone which the Axis forces have overrun.

Cold and Roads Keep Vote Down

TORONTO, Feb. 9.—(CP).—Early voting in the York South by-election, being contested by Conservative Leader Meighen and J. W. Noseworthy, C.C.F., was reported to be light to-day because of the bad road conditions after a week-end storm and the cold

Election officials said they expected a vote of about 25,000 in the 134 sub-divisions, compared with 33,-582 in the 1940 general election which returned Maj. Alan Cockerman, Conservative.

Maj. Cockerman, on active duty with the Canadian army, resigned his seat, bringing on the by-election. He polled 15,346 votes for a plurality over the Liberal candidate of 2,482 with Mr. Noseworthy third with 5,372 votes.

The polls opened at 8 a.m. and will close at 7 p.m. E.D.T.

Oshawa Schools Industries Forced To Shut As Ice Plugs City's Lone Water Intake Pipe

OSHAWA, Ont., Feb. 9—(CP).—Oshawa's water supply was shut off today. Civic officials said the trouble was probably caused by ice blocking the city's only water supply—an intake pipe-line out in Lake Ontario.

All schools and industries in the city were shut down and hospitals were forced to "import" water from nearby centres. There is no alternate water supply system.

Arrangements were being made with the City of Toronto to send down a tug and experienced men to clear the mouth of the intake which is about three-quarters of a mile out and 40 feet down.

Waterworks Engineer Covin reported at 11 a.m. that the pumps were taking about 400 gallons to the minute, less than half the normal supply. He hoped that the flow of water through the intake would loosen the ice at the entrance. It is expected the situation will be cleared up within 24 hours.

Six Children, Man Perish In 3 Fires, Woman Slain For Weekend Toll 11

TORONTO, Feb. 9—(CP).—Six children and an unidentified man died in Ontario during the week-end as a result of two serious frame-dwelling fires, raising the total week-end fatalities in the province to 11. Three persons were killed in a head-on collision between a bus and an automobile, and the eleventh person, an elderly widow, was found slain in her home.

Norman Redmond, 28, of Weston, a few miles northwest of Toronto, was arrested Saturday and later charged with the murder of his mother, after her battered body was found in the Redmond home by a sister, Gladys, arriving home from work.

Police said Redmond was left alone with his mother about six o'clock Saturday night. A sister, Gladys, returning home, met Norman who did not speak to her, but apparently continued his way to the home of an uncle, Edward Redmond, 69, whom he allegedly attacked with a breadboard, and left him bleeding and only partly conscious. No explanation for the attacks was discovered, police said.

At Markham a few miles northeast of Toronto five children burned to death early Sunday when fire gutted the two-storey fram dwelling of Mr. and Mrs. Nick Schouten. Burned to death were Mary, eight; John, six; Frank, five; Arlene, three; and Herman, two. Mrs. Schouten carried one-year-old Patricia with her as she ran from the house after

Canada Awaits Election Result

OTTAWA, Feb. 9 (CP) — The nation awaited today the results of four by-elections in Ontario and Quebec in which two Federal Government Ministers and the Leader of the Conservative opposition, Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen, are standing for election to the House of Commons.

The period of intensive campaigning for the 11 candidates in the field for the four seats has ended after a week of speech making which saw an alignment of some Ontario Liberals and Conservatives against the Federal government, a resurgence of the feud between Premier Hepburn of Ontario and Prime Minister Mackenzie King, formation of a new "Canadian Party" sponsoring two candidates and a sharp cleavage among Quebec Liberals.

Here is a line-up of the constituences where voting takes place, with the candidates:

Welland: Hon. Humphrey Mitchell, Liberal, Minister of Labor; Douglas Watt, Independent; Mark Kriluck, Co-operative Commonwealth Federation.

York South: Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen, Conservative; J. W. Nose-

Nippon Drive Breaks In Burma

Crack Chinese, Indian Troops Plug Road To Rangoon

(By DANIEL DELUCE.)

RANGOON, Burma, Feb. 9 — (AP).— Crack Chinese fighters and fresh Indian troops bolstered British forces on the Salween River front to-day where Japan's drive toward Rangoon and China's last gateway to the sea was stalled in northern Burma and, possibly, broken.

The "reasoned optimism" which Gen. Sir Archibald Wavell, the United Nations' commander in the South-west Pacific, voiced after his just-disclosed second visit to the Burma Front was reflected even more forcibly by Lt.-Gen. T. J. Hutton, the British commander in Burma.

With the Japanese still stationary a week after capturing Moulmein and failing repeatedly to get an effective foothold across the Salween or cripple Rangoon as a base by air attack, he declared:

"We are in a far sounder position to call a halt to the Japanese than before."

Gen Wavell flew from his Java headquarters in the Netherlands East Indies to talk with officers and men on the Moulmein front within earshot of enemy cannon and reviewed the whole situation in South-east Asia with Gen. Hutton.

Much weight was attached to the presence of large Chinese forces

Siege Guns Paste Yank Forts Every 4 Mins.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9 — (AP). Japan hurled new waves of seasoned troops and suicide detachments to-day against the thin lines of American-Filipino troops on Batan Peninsula.

"Fighting is increasing in intensity on our left," was the last word received from headquarters of Gen. Douglas MacArthur as indications multiplied that a major new Japanese offensive was developing in the Philippines.

Synchronized with the renewed heavy pressure on the Batan front was the systematic bombardment of the United States forts which still bar the entrance of Manila Bay to Japanese naval forces.

Enemy land batteries, firing methodically every four minutes, threw big shells for the second successive day at the island fortifications which command the harbor's mouth. Nevertheless, no serious damage to the forts was reported in the United States War Department communique which covered developments up until early Monday morning, Philippine time.

On the Batan Peninsula, MacArthur's report to Washington yesterday told of Japanese pressure on both the right and left flank of his line, acompanied by 24 hours of heavy aerial bombardment of the

Sees Reds In Berlin

BRISTOL, Feb. 9 (CP).— Sir Stafford Cripps, former Ambassador to Moscow, told an audience today that if the united nations were victorious the Soviet Union would be the strongest European power and "they are likely to end the war sitting in Berlin."

There is a great deal to be admired in Communism, Sir Stafford said, but "much as I admire many of the policies of the Soviet Union I thing we shall make a much better job of reconstruction in Europe if we have a share in it as well."

Sir Stafford said he was convinced the Russians had no desire to interfere with other European governments. "They have an immense task of their own, with the devastation of millions of acres and hundreds of towns."

Police Station Holdup Ends Tough Guy

CHICAGO, Feb. 9 — (AP). — A setlf - proclaimed neighborhood "tough guy" got into the wrong neighborhood early yesterday, met up with a straight-shooting police detective and didn't live to recount his latest foray into crime.

The last wild exploits of Joseph Skupien, whom police said spent about one-third of his life in prisons, were in a tavern and a police station in the sprawling Stockyards district. They ended with the 26-year-old ex-convict lying dead on a police station floor, only a few hours after two men had been slain in a tavern holdup.

Shortly after the tavern shooting Skupien walked into the new city police station early yesterday. He waved a pistol and shouted:

"I'm going to rescue my partner. I'll get those dirty squealers."

Sgt. Joseph Connelly stepped toward him but the Skupien, firing one shot wildly, dashed into the squad room where 10 witnesses to the tavern killings were waiting to be questioned by detectives.

Skupien forced two women in front of him, lined up several other persons, including a reporter, against the wall and backed up against a staircase. He threatened to kill

Aim To Destroy Enemy Before Night Brings Reinforcements

(By C. YATES McDANIEL.)

SINGAPORE, Feb. 9 (AP)—Determined defenders of Singapore rallied for attack to throw a strong invading force of Japanese off their embattled island today after pinning them down to a 10-mile front along the western swamps and beaches.

"The situation is well in hand," declared Maj.-Gen. Henry Gordon Bennett, commander of the Australians, whose sector the Japanese had chosen for a surprise night landing.

"We have taken a stand on a strong line and are organizing an attack which it is hoped will recover as much as possible of the lost terrain."

(Tokyo broadcasts, heard in Oslo, claimed Japanese parachutists took part in the battle, and reported that the Japanese Navy was expected to join in the attack at any moment in an all-out assault on the island.)

(Another Tokyo broadcast recorded by Reuters News Agency in London today claimed the Japanese invaders of Singapore Island had captured the Tengah airport, about 10 miles northwest of Singapore city. The broadcast claimed the airport was occupied at 1.30 p.m. as the Japanese drove a deep salient into the northwestern part of the island.)

Barrage Blocks Aid By Day

Under a hail of British artillery fire which swept the shallow waters of Johore Strait, the Japanese force was in effect surrounded and unable to receive reinforcements at least until nightfall.

Before dark, the Australians hoped to cut the invaders to pieces.

This initial forced gained its foothold under cover of a withering artillery and aerial bombardment throughout yesterday and all night.

The tempo increased violently in the night, and ragged rows of Japanese special landing boats began moving across the shell-churned straits in the light of a rising moon, between 11 p.m. and 1 a.m.

Plunging into the Mangrove swamps and rubber trees and darting into tiny inlets which penetrate the shore, the Japanese succeeded in making good a foothold protected by machine-gun nests hidden in a tangle of logs and brush.

Then British shells plunged into the mud flats and beaches, as bayonet swinging Australians and hardy Indians drove into the thick of a hand-to-hand fight.

Pushed back to this last bit of British soil in Malaya in a two-months' war, the defenders were a

Reds Crimp Hitler's Style Sponge Speed Out Of Blitz

(What is behind the Russians' successes against the Germans? In two articles, of which this is the first, analyzing and highlighting the significance of recent despatches from the winter front, Gladwin Hill explains how the Russians have taken the sting out of German blitzkrieg.)

(By GLADWIN HILL.)

NEW YORK, Feb. 9.—(AP)—With the neatness and thoroughness of a laboratory experiment, the Russians have been demonstrating how to beat the Nazi blitzkreig style of warfare. Every day's fighting is adding footnotes to their object-lesson.

This is something that military experts and laymen alike have watched for with interest and concern ever since the Germans swept so bewideringly into Poland, the Low countries and France.

Everyone knew there must be an answer to blitzkreig; an answer eventually is developed to every military innovation. But it was not evident in the first phase of the war and it remained conjectural.

The Russians have shown that the weakness of lightning war is inherent in its strength—speed. To obtain speed, you have to sacrifice some weight—fighting strength, "fire power," the weight of metal and men you can hurl against the enemy.

Once a blitz attack has been sapped of its speed, it loses its essential superiority to the older, more familiar type of warfare in which the emphasis was placed on fire power, with speed a minor consideration.

The problem was to shear the attack of its speed. This the Russians did by spreading out their scattered forts, "bins," and pill-boxes over a wide front and a great depth, letting the Germans penetrate; and, in their own words, "soaking up the attack like a sponge."

The Russian soldiers performed the phychological feat of withholding their fire while the German columns swarmed in among them and even behind them, and then when the German momentum had slackened, letting them have it, snapping off and disrupting their spearheads.

This was not just a fortunate working out of events. It was a carefully calculated plan. While Russia and Germany were diplomatic friends, the Russians had ample opportunity to observe the development of German tank warfare and figure out an answer.

The Russians' absorption technique had a doubly devastating effect. First, it slowed down the whole German drive disastrously. Second, stemming the German drive carried the fighting over into cold weather for which the Germans

Nazis Lose Wizard Builder

Super-Engineer Gen. Todt, Who Laid Armies' Roads, Killed

BERLIN, (From German Broadcasts), Feb. 9.—(AP).— Maj.-Gen. Fritz Todt, who literally paved the way for Hitler's armies, has been killed on the eastern front.

With wide, black bands of mourning, the German press told its readers to-day that Todt was killed in an air accident yesterday "while carrying through his military tasks in the east."

He was 50 years old.

Todt, who was Minister of Munitions as well as a construction wizard, has been presented to the Germans as the master builder, the super-engineer, since his completion of the Siegfried Line to guard Germany's western front.

A state funeral was ordered in his honor.

Death overtook Todt "in the east" amid the scenes of his greatest humiliation, for the roads and bridges which his thousands of engineers and pick and shovel workers hastily patched up in the east were designed for a quick passage to Moscow—not for the withdrawal.

In Poland, in the Netherlands, Belgium and France, Todt's men—always at the heels of the army with their picks and pontoons—had shared in the praise meted out to the warriors.

"In the east," where Todt and his men had gone last summer to speed the movement of Hitler's armies into Russia, the "organization Todt," faced new obstacles and new tasks. The army was stalled and not even Todt could smooth a way through the stubborn Russians, the trackless wastes and the mounting snow.

The work of his organization in putting down bridges to replace the hundreds dynamited by the Dutch, Belgians and French drew praise from even his country's enemies.

Todt joined Hitler in the early days of the Nazi movement. In school, he had specialized in road-building and received the degree of Doctor of Engineering. He served in the First Great War and was wounded while acting as aerial observer.

Five companies of these volunteers, many of whom had never shouldered a gun until a week ago, were in the lines on the northern part of Singapore Island when Japanese artillery on the other side of Johore Strait began a heavy bombardment this morning.

The shelling appeared to have little effect on their nerves. Some of the Chinese, stationed in reserve areas, actually slept through the

Tangier Looms New Hot Spot

Bomb Blast In British Luggage Axis Plot To Rouse Arabs

MADRID, Feb. 9 (AP)—Riotous factions in Tangier were kept throttled by Spanish Morocco authorities under martial law today after the latest in a chain of mysterious violent events.

The outburst was touched off by the explosion Friday of a time-bomb in a taxi loaded with British diplomatic baggage on a crowded Tangier pier.

The blast killed 14 persons, several others among 36 wounded are believed to be dying. The explosion destroyed the taxi, two other automobiles, part of the pier and the Customs House.

Thousands of inhabitants of Tangier, in the Spanish-seized former International zone across the Strait of Gibraltar from Britain's "Rock," immediately gave vent to their ire, parading past several foreign missions and Government House with banners saying, "Tangier is not at war!"

Axis agents were blamed in London, where reports said the riots were pre-arranged and that some of the demonstrating Arabs arrived on the scene with baskets full of stones to hurl at the British consulate and business houses.

Britons tied the outburst to Axis efforts to stir unrest among the Moslems all along the Mediterranean shore from the Strait to Suez. One British source said the bomb probably was placed in the luggage of British diplomats with the intention that it go off after reaching the legation and that the riots probably were organized to place the onus on the British for the dockside disaster.

The German radio seized upon the riots for propaganda purposes, claiming they were a mass demonstration of "indignation about the explosion caused by the British" and added :—

"It must not be presumed that Spain is accepting this latest British affront lying down. The indignation of the people of Tangier is as

RUSSIANS STRIKE AS GERMAN GUNS FALTER IN DONETS BASIN

MOSCOW, Feb. 9 (AP)—Russian forces were reported today launching a new offensive in the Donets Basin against German battalions whose massed artillery fire had lost is sting.

(The BBC, heard by CBS, quoted a Russian broadcast announcing the Red Army had recaptured the town of Krasnograd, 60 miles southwest of Kharkov and an important junction on the Kharkov-Dnieperopetrovsk and Odessa Railway. This report indicated another advance for the Russians driving westward in the Donets area toward Dnieperopetrovsk).

The assertion that German artillery no longer was a factor in the Donets and Ukraine fighting came from Col. G. Nadysev, who said that the ammunition furnished each battery had been cut down until the mass fire which usually preceded an infantry attack had been eliminated.

The midnight Soviet information bureau communique said several populated places were occupied by the Soviets yesterday in the face of Nazi resistance and counter-attacks but gave no names.

The Russians also reported that various units operating along the front killed more than 1,000 Germans in isolated attacks.

The midday communique announced the capture of 21 occupied places. It added that Soviet sappers at one point alone dug up 2,600 mines, left in deep snow by Germans in attempts to hold back the Russians.

United States-made planes were said to be operating on various sections of the snowbound front.

were badly unprepared.

It knocked out their airplanes, which were not properly equipped for below-zero starting, takeoffs (many of the Russian planes have skis) or flying.

This eliminated one-half the vital blitzkrieg combination of planes and tanks. The tank end, in turn, was disrupted also by the snow, which prevented the big mass movements to which the Germans were accustomed for gaining their objectives.

What tanks remained, the Russians have assailed by a variety of striking methods. Hidden in roadside ditches, they will draw a mine into the path of an approaching tank at the last minute, too late for the tank driver to see, and explode it from their shelter like a construction-job blasting squad.

Red army soldiers have been trained in digging quick foxhole shelters right in the path of approaching tanks, letting the tanks run over them and then popping out and knocking off the tanks with "Molotov" bottle grenades.

Finally, the Russians have reported perfecting a remarkable new anti-airtank plane, light yet strongly armored so that it can fly with fair safety as low as 500 feet, and fire heavy tank-piercing cannon shells.

Russian soldiers are trained not only to travel on skis, but also to push through military obstacles and do bayonet fighting on them. Ski troops usually are thought of as infantry, but in Russia this training is given also to the artillery, the engineers and the signal corps. Many reserve divisions have been reported in this kind of snow training in Far Eastern Siberia.

great as that of Spain, which is both sick and tired of constantly recurring British provocations."

If Spain allowed it, Germany could use her soil as the jumping off place for an assault on Gibraltar, Britain's guardian of the Western Mediterranean, and across the Strait into Northwest Africa, threatening South America and the South Atlantic.

Violence in Tangier was listed by observers in Spain at the top of a list of travels by European and Moslem diplomats, charges and counter charges between Britain and the Axis and political tension in Egypt and Turkey.

It came just after the Vichy government had denied British charges that Tunisia, bordering Libya on the west, was being used as an Axis North African base and that French merchant ships were carrying war supplies to Field Marshal Rommel.

Goering last week returned to Berlin from Rome where, diplomatic sources said, he had asked all-out Italian naval support for convoys of German soldiers and supplies being rushed to Libya despite the menace o the British Fleet.

Within the last week, two anti-British Arab leaders, the banished Grand Mufti of Jerusalem and Rashid Ali Al Gailani, former Minister of Iraq, have arrived in Rome from Berlin.

Turkey, which sits as a non-combatant bastion at the Eastern end of the Mediterranean — the counterpart of Spain in the West—was reported as hopeful of remaining non-belligerent after closing down an Axis-controlled Arab organization.

His statement that Sir Earle would represent Australia temporarily was taken as an indication that he might be referring to conferences of the British War Cabinet.

Mr. Curtin said the establishment of the Council in London had been agreed to because of the urgency of the Allied position in the Pacific.

Special Chinese Front.

The Chinese troops who have come to Burma assumed responsibility for certain section of the front under their own formation commanders, Gen. Hutton said.

"The bulk of them are stationed in the southern Shan States fronting on Indo-China and Northern Thailand, an area which is unlikely to remain quiet indefinitely. Either the enemy will do something or we shall.

"The Salween is a sound line with reasonably good communications. We are much stronger than earlier, when we were holding the Tenasserim, a long thin line with our backs to the sea, or Moulmein where a big estuary was behind us and communications were difficult.

"We must expect and be prepared for Japanese landings along the Gulf of Martaban and the Rangoon Delta, and hope that by profiting from the lessons in Malaya to defeat the landings here. The Malayan jungle goes down to the sea, but here more open country favors the defenders."

Sir Archibald Clark Kerr until recently, Britain's ambassador Chungking, speaking over the Calcutta radio predicted a "big push" by the British, U. S. and Chinese troops. His reference to American forces was not explained.

veritable suicide army, for they had little or no chance of escape in the event of defeat.

Hurricanes fought desperate engagaments in the skies with some success against the numbers of Japanese planes which sought to dominate the air.

British forces were fighting back over undulating country dotted with mangrove swamps and apple and rubber plantations, under the cover of heavily-armed Hurricane fighter planes.

Easy To Land Tanks.

The commentator said that although there was no confirmation that Japanese tanks were on Singapore Island, landing them from lighters would be extremely easy because the Strait at Berih Inlet is narrow and the water at low tide is only three or four feet deep.

The tanks were reported landed under cover of intense land and air artillery barrages.

The Japanese left flank rests on Sungei Kranji, opposite Johore Bahru, and the right flank is on Pasir to the south, he said.

The British forces were counter-attacking all along the front, probably with mobile columns hinged on strong points.

Some observers said the Japanese invasion on the west might be a feint to draw British strength away from the east flank, opposite which the Japanese captured the Johore Island of Palau Ubin Sunday.

Strong forces were reported concentrating in the area behind Palau Ubin and ritish artillery was active in dispersing enemy troops and batteries.

It was pointed out that a feint on the west end of the Island would be in keeping with Japanese tactics used elsewhere in the Pacifc.

Despite the presence of a huge civilian population in Singapore City, military opinion here was firm there would be "no surrender."

The artillery bombardment preceding the assault, in anticipation of which British headquarters had been mustering every resource on the island, began at dawn yesterday and continued unabated throughout the day and night.

From guns and mortars of all calibres the Japanese rained steel upon defence positions fronting the 35-mile long strait.

Japanese planes ranged overhead, unloading tons of bombs and screaming down to machine-gun every sign of movement on roads for some distance behind the front.

Shot For Shot

British batteries answered the Japanese guns shot for shot.

After launching their bombardment the Japanese, in an apparent attempt to trick Singapore's defenders out of position and pave the way for the main attack in the west, feinted suddenly yesterday at the British right flank, landing troops on tiny Palau Ubin island at the eastern end of Johore Strait.

Although Palau Ubin is only about half a mile from Singapore Island at some points, there was no indication that the Japanese were pressing home the assault from there.

Before the defenders retreated from the Malayan mainland Palau Ubin was a strongly-garrisoned fortress, with 14-inch guns guarding the approaches to the great Singapore naval base situated a few miles to the west on Johore Strait.

The Japanese, however, apparently found Palau Ubin abandoned, for the communique announcing its occupation made no mention of resistance.

In landing on Singapore Island the Japanese drew on the experience of repeated landings in pushing down the Malayan mainland.

In that campaign specially-trained Japanese shock troops again and again landed on the shores of the peninsula behind the British lines, forcing the Imperial troops to retreat to avoid being cut off.

British inability to win control of the air contributed in part to the success of these Japanese tactics, and an acknowledged deficiency in air strength is one of the greatest obstacles now facing the defenders of Singapore.

How many trained troops are available to meet the Japanese invasion is a military secret. Prime Minister Churchill declared last month in the House of Commons there were 60,000 troops in Malay at the start of the campaign there, but did not give any figures on casualties.

Madman Carves Three With Axe

HAMILTON, Ont., Feb. 9 (CP)—Charged with attempted murder, Adam Kosetukewey, 55, of Hamilton, appeared in court today. He was remanded in custody one week.

The charge followed an assault upon three persons with an axe Saturday night. One of the three persons is not expected to recover, while the other two are also in critical condition in hospital.

Most seriously injured is 54-year-old Victor Sinwaski, who suffered a deep gash down the centre of the forehead while he was asleep in his bed. Agnes Sinwaski, 49, his wife, was awakened by the first blow and when she started to scream was attacked, suffering head lacerations, a fractured arm and other injuries from the blows. A roomer, Alex Collendo, 58, who was sitting in a downstairs room, also was struck when he went up to investigate and suffered lacerations on the top of the head. He is reported least seriously injured.

Montreal-St. Mary: Raoul Perillard, Canadian Party; Marcel Ostiguy, Dr. Gaspard Fauteux and Emile Naud, all running as Liberals but without the official Liberal party's support.

The Welland By-election has been the most bitterly fought with Premier Hepburn and the Ontario Conservative Leader, Lt. Col. George Drew, campaigning in support of Mr. Watt, chosen by a "Citizens Committee" of Conservatives and Liberals after Prime Minister King announced the plebiscite on the government's no-conscription pledges. Mr. Hepburn has declared "Mr. King is the issue" and both he and Col. Drew have suggested that if Mr. Watt were elected, the Prime Minister would call a general election instead of a plebiscite.

Two members of the government, Hon. C. D. Howe, Minister of Munitions and Supply, and Hon. Angus Macdonald, Naval Minister, have campaigned actively for Mr. Mitchell.

Car Is Weapon In Assault Case

CAMPBELLFORD, Feb. 9 (ENS). —An admission he had been in the wrong and an apology in court got Louis Kelly, 33, Norham, a light fine and costs when he appeared on an assault charge before Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., Friday. Kelly pleaded guilty to a charge of committing a common assault against Mrs. Minnie Carr on January 24, and according to evidence submitted by her, the accused had not only threatened to "slap my ears" but had come down the road behind her and Mrs. Kelly and bumped into her with his car while she was on foot. "I don't think he had any reason for doing it," she told the court.

Said Kelly, "I admit I was wrong and I'm very sorry. I'm too poor a man to be acting so foolish." Five dollars and $5.25 costs or ten days," said Magistrate Langley. Kelly paid the fine.

News Flashes

WASHINGTON, — (AP). — The State Department disclosed to-day it had received new information from the Vichy government of such urgency that it was being given immediate consideration. There have been unconfirmed reports in recent weeks that the German and Italian armies in Libya had been receiving supplies through French Tunisia.

Want Bond Act Changed

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9—(AP). — President Roosevelt asked Congress to-day for repeal of a section of the Neutrality Act prohibiting United States citizens from purchasing or selling the bonds, securities or obligations of belligerent nations — including Canada.

In a message to the Senate and House of Representatives, the President said it was his opinion that there was never any intention that this section of the Act should operate when the United States was at war.

Cut Size Of Papers

ATLANTA, Feb. 9.—AP).—A voluntary reduction in the size of newspapers to meet a possible shortage of newsprint was agreed upon by directors of the Southern Newspaper Publishers Association in session here Sunday. The reduction would be made in the number of pages through greater condensation of news matter, directors indicated in informal discussion.

24-Hour Gale Buries Province

Hundreds Marooned As Cars Stall, War Plants Affected

TORONTO, Feb. 9. — (CP). — Bright, clear weather with temperatures hovering around the zero mark and in some localities many degrees below zero today followed the blizzard which swept over Southern Ontario during the week-end. People in many parts of the province are digging themselves out from under the heavy fall of snow that blocked highways and city streets, and held up trains and road traffic alike Saturday night and part of yesterday.

Buses and private cars were marooned in drifted banks of snow on many highways and sideroads. Passengers were forced to spend Saturday night in the bogged-down buses and many travellers had to seek refuge in farm houses along the road.

Harassed Government traffic experts acknowledged late last night that unless the wind abated almost immediately, it would be several days before they can restore communications even on the main east-west provincial arteries.

The weather prospect is fair and cold, with the temperature down close to the zero mark. The wind will continue strong, but will moderate in velocity toward night. Four inches of snow fell in the city on Saturday.

At 2 a.m. yesterday the weather bureau at Malton Airport reported that the wind was blowing 35 miles per hour with no sign of abatement.

Ottawa had seven and a half inches of snow Saturday and early on Sunday, and Kingston had five inches. The fall was heavy in the lower lake regions. The weather bureau expects conditions to moderate somewhat to-morrow.

The greatest storm of the year brought its full quota of stories of drama, tragedy and humor. Hundreds of travellers were stalled on snow-choked roads overnight as the temperature dropped alarmingly.

Drama Involved.

High point in the drama of the week-end was recorded at Derry West, four miles south of Brampton, when two young nurses, one of whom was snowbound on her wedding trip, supervised the birth of another traveller's daughter. The mother, Mrs. George Preston, was being taken to hospital in a sleigh by her husband, but when they couldn't get through the storm they sought shelter in a farmhouse where the two nurses already had taken refuge.

Farmers who had gone to market on Saturday were unable to return to their farms. Skiers from the cities were trapped in outlying sylvan communities.

Toronto's plight was typical of other cities throughout the Province. It was announced here that milk deliveries probably will be curtailed to some extent because the dairies haven't been able to obtain their regular supplies from the farms.

There will be no garbage collections here until Thursday because all garbage-collecting trucks are being employed to clear snow from the streets.

Deep In Niagara

The Niagara Peninsula was hit hardest, according to highway officials. However, all roads are in such shape that motorists are advised to consult highway information offices before attempting any trips.

"We're plowing the snow in every section of the Province," said one official, "but it's a pretty discouraging job until this wind drops. We get the road clear and half an hour later the snow has drifted over it as deep as ever."

The blizzard even affected war industries. Nine hundred night-shift workers at two Malton airplane plants were unable to get through from Toronto to their jobs last night. They got as far as Weston but the roads past there were impassable, and the workers were instructed to disperse to their homes.

Howe and Carmichael Hike

The storm was no respecter of persons. Hon. C. D. Howe, Minister of Munitions and Supply, and Harry J. Carmichael, director-general of munitions production, were forced to trudge two miles through the howling blizzard when they abandoned their car outside St. Catharines Saturday afternoon.

Port Hope Fair Board To Back Barley Contest

PORT HOPE, Feb. 9—(ENS). — The monthly meeting of the Port Hope Agricultural Society was held in the Town Hall on Thursday evening with the president, William Lightle, in the chair. This was the first meeting for the year with the newly appointed executive in charge. In the absence of the secretary, William Marvin through illness, Lloyd Marvin read the minutes.

Report of the Belleville convention was given by William Lightle, in which he said every man and woman must do their part, because production is so necessary in the present day. Agricultural societies never have had such an opportunity to serve in the 150 years of their existence as they have at the present time. He urged th holding of filed crop competitions as there is nothing more important in the production o grain. Stressing the necessity of clean seed, he pointed out that the society would procure this for the farmer if he cannot get it otherwise. Attention should be paid to the attractiveness of these exhibits.

It was moved and seconded that the Port Hope Agricultural Society sponsor a field crop competition, with barley, and that a Hamilton Calf Club, a Durham Calf Club, and a Durham Swine Club be formed.

It was moved and seconded that William Lightle, M. McHomer, E. Scott, William Marvin, and two lady directors be sent to the Ontario Fairs convention to be held in Toronto in February.

Cobourg Dogs Being Poisoned

COBOURG, Feb. 9.—(ENS)—An epidemic of dog poisoning is reported here as several dogs are said to have been poisoned in last few days. The Cobourg police are investigating and officials point out that it is illegal to put poison of any kind out so that animals may get it.

10 Below In Cobourg

The second cold spell of the year hit Cobourg yesterday when the temperature dropped down to 5 below at 5 p.m. and continued on until late at night when Division street, the coldest of all local avenues, recorded a low of 10 below on all thermometers there.

First-Hand Study On War Industry Made By McNaughton

Vitally interested—both as soldier and engineer—in the output of Canadian war industries, Lieut.-Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton, Canadian Corps commander now in the Dominion, visited factories working on guns, tanks and other fighting machinery in several cities in eastern Canada and heaped lavish praise on the quality and quantity of Canadian equipment going overseas. At LEFT, Lieut.-Gen. McNaughton, a scientist as well as a soldier, minutely examines a part of the breach mechanism of a two-pounder anti-tank gun, accompanied by Maj.-Gen. E. E. McRae, military technical adviser to the Department of Munitions and Supply. At RIGHT, Lieut.-Gen. McNaughton is explaining to production executives what is required in tank treads—a rolled tread before him as he talks.

HASTINGS

War Vets Form Organization

HASTINGS, Feb. 9.—(ENS).—At a meeting held in the council chambers Saturday night plans were formulated for the formation of a War Veterans' Association in Hastings. Capt. Gerald Marryat, World War 1 veteran, explained the purpose of the meeting.

"We are attempting to form a veterans' club here with an eye to the future so that we will have the rucleus of a larger organization when the boys come back from this war," he said.

Later it was decided an attempt would be made to join the Canadian Legion if sufficient members join the local organization.

Previous to 1925 Hastings veterans were affiliated with the Legion and it is believed that the charter of that organization still exists.

Although the meeting was sparsely attended due to inclement weather, it is belived that twenty-five potential members live in Hastings and district.

An invitation fee of $1 was set for the organization which, on motion of Iden Bonds and Gerald Marryat will be known as the Hastings War Veterans' Association.

Officers appointed were: Iden Bonds chairman, Gerald Marryat secretary, A. J. McKenty treasurer, organizing committee, Frank Pantling, Iden Bonds, G. Walker, George Seymour.

Another meeting concerning this organization will be held Saturday, Feb. 20.

Price Ceilings Canadian Cheese Discussed As Producers Meet

CAMPBELLFORD, Feb. 9 (ENS) —Cheese producers of Northumberland County got the inside story on what the Ontario Association did in the matter of price ceilings on Thursday evening when S. L. Joss, secretary of the Ontario Cheese Producers' Association, addressed factory presidents at the annual meeting of the Northumberland Cheese Producers' Association. He reviewed correspondence the Association had with the Minister of Agriculture dealing with the price question and hinted there had been lack of uniformity of opinion by members of the Association throughout Ontario. Mr. Joss quoted one director as suggesting a vigorous protest to the Department over the proposed 25 cent ceiling and several days later the same man "sent me telegram in which he intimated 25 cents was a good price." "We must be very careful to have unanimity of opinion" warned Mr. Joss. From another communication he quoted the sender as claiming that 25 cents would not promote the maximum winter production. "But this is wrong because we have reached maximum winter production" said the speaker. He held however, that on the open market cheese would have brought more than twenty-five cents a pound adding "I make this statement despite the fact that cheese is temporarily below this figure."

In answer to the question concerning a higher price for factories making special types of cheese Mr. Joss declared it was definitely held by the Wartime Prices and Trade Board that maximum prices apply regardless of size, weight or color.

On September 15th a communication was sent from the Association to Hon. J. G. Gardiner again taking up the price question and at this time the difficulty of competing in the labor market was pointed out. Other factors justifying a reconsideration were that factories were discontinuing to make cheese and dairy cattle exports to the United States were up 35 per cent. There was too much margin between the purchase price (25c) and the retail price 30 to 40 cents. Saying that a result of efforts on the price question finally brought the suggestion that a two cents per pound increase might be in the offing for next year. Mr. Joss emphasized this was not definite or official but directed attention to the fact this occurred before the war in the Pacific was a reality. He raised the question of the possibility of the 210,000 tons of cheese from Australia and New Zealand reaching Britain. "I believe that this year we will be asked to produce more than last year but it has been suggested in Ottawa that these added requirements (for Britain) may come from the United States. Despite this Mr. Joss said it was his unofficial opinion the price increase might be "more than two cents a pound."

Cheese Boxes 35c

Referring to the cheese box question the speaker said this also had been gone into thoroughly at Ottawa and had resulted in the discovery that a suitable material could be obtained from a firm making aeroplanes. The material was a by-product and came in sheets one-tenth of an inch thick but would be satisfactory if two thicknesses were used. It would be supplied at a cost of 12½ cents a box (veneer only) and from the regular dealer it would cost from 13½ to 14 cents a box, making a total price including nails, labor, etc. at 29 cents. With a ceiling of 35 cents established this left a margin of 6 cents "which will take care of wastage, interest on investment, etc." Mr. Joss concluded it would not pay the cheese producer to go into the manufacture of boxes. Evidence the farmer was not the only one affected by rising prices came from the Cheese Box Manufacturers, who according to Mr. Joss had met with the Prices and Trade Board who they told definitely it was an impossibility for them to make boxes this year under 40 cents. "They felt (the 35 cent ceiling) was a grave injustice and swore by everything they held Holy that they couldn't make them under 40 cents." Since there is no minimum price the speaker concluded "if there is enough competition we'll be able to get them at a few cents less than the 35 cent ceiling."

A Resolution

Following Mr. Joss' remarks G. S. Vanvolkenburg, president of the Woodland Factory and an ex-president of the County Association, presented a resolution urging the Government to set a price of 22 cents for 1942 cheese. Text of his resolution, endorsed unanimously by the Association, was "Owing to the high cost of production and the difficulty of procuring experienced labor we therefore urge the Cheese Producers' Association to ask that the price of cheese be not less than 22 cents plus the Provincial subsidy (2 cents) and the Dominion premium on quality. Also passed was a motion by F. W. Barnum instructing the secretary to write to the Provincial Minister of Agriculture thanking him for the bonus paid during the past year and asking that it be continued.

Factories in Northumberland County will no longer pay their own individual board fees since by another motion it was decided that during 1942 these would be paid by the Association. The secretary M. West, was also instructed to write letters of sympathy to the family of the late W. H. Nelson, 1941 president of the Association, and to the wife of the late Horace Way, former salesman on the Campbellford Board.

The meeting, presided over by vice-president Hector Arnold, was still under the heading of general business when George McCubbin of Norham, arose to suggest the grading at Campbellford was too strict.

PORT HOPE

I.O.D.E. Appoints Mrs. Hawkins As 1942 Regent

PORT HOPE, Feb. 9 (ENS)—Reports read at the annual meeting of the Colonel Arthur Williams Chapter, I.O.D.E., revealed a very successful year with gratifying results especially in the war work department.

Mrs. J. L. Westaway, the retiring Regent, was in the chair for the annual meeting hel in the Library hall on Frida evening.

Mrs. D Wanner, secretary, read many interesting letters from the men overseas who had received parcels from this Chapter at Christmas.

Secretary's Report.

Her report follows: Nine regular meetings have been held but the average attendance has only been a little over eleven.

During the year we have had addresses by Mrs. Elli tt, Miss Ferguson, Miss K. Baines, Mrs. F. Douglas and Mrs. C. Moore.

Weekly sewing meetings have been held in the work rooms in the town hall and several quilts were quilted at Mrs. Wanner's home. Mrs. Sainsbury, Mrs. Roberts, Mrs. Westaway and Mrs. Wanner also gave their homes for sewing meetings early in the year before the work-rooms had been organized.

Mrs. Hills gave her home early in the year for a euchre and considerably augmented the treasury. In March, Mrs. Halford, Mrs. Box and Mrs. Hawkins were a committee for a rummage sale which was most successful. In April Mrs. Jex gave her beautiful home for a tea. On May 6 a pot luck supper convened by Mrs. Wanner was held in the work room, and on May 17 the most successful tag day in the Chapter's history was convened by Mrs. Halford. In September Mrs. Halford was again convener for a tag day in aid of the Navy League and this was even more successful than the previous one held in the spring. On October 21, Mrs. Wanner convened a tea and display of work in the work rooms with the assistance of all members. In January Mrs. Bruce with the help of the members convened another tea in the work rooms, this time in aid of Polish relief.

The annual prize for the best all-around pupil graduating from public school was divided equally between three boys and three girls.

Donations have been made to St. George's Day in the schools, the Music Festival, Children's Aid Society, Endowment Fund, Inland Mission, Home and School Association and the Lucy Morrison Memorial Fund. We pay tribute to the efficient manner in which Mrs. Bruce has conducted our war work activities.

Slate For 1942.

The following officers were elected for 1942: Hon. Regent, Mrs. J. L. Westaway; Regent, Mrs. M. S. Hawkins; 1st Vice-Regent, Mrs. W. Bruce; 2nd Vice-Regent, Miss M. Ferguson; Secretary, Mrs. D. Wanner; Treasurer, Mrs. G. Halford; Educational Secretary, Mrs. J. A. R. Elliott; Standard Bearer, Mrs. W. Hill; Councillors: Mrs. J. Box, Miss N. King, Mrs. A. Fisher, Mrs. E. Barber, Mrs. R. Sainsbury, Mrs. C. Roberts and Mrs. S. Brickell.

A presentation of a silver hot-water jug was made to the retiring Regent, Mrs. J. L. Westaway, by Mrs. G. Halford and Mrs. J. A. R. Elliott, in appreciation of her three years of faithful service for which she thanked the members.

Mrs. Hawkins, the new Regent, then thanked the members for the honor given her in once more being elected their Regent, having previously been Regent of this same Chapter for eight years.

Three new members were enrolled, Mrs. W. Dear, Mrs. Gunn and Mrs. J. Clement, bringing the total membership up to about 35 members.

Mrs. George Strong gave a very interesting talk on our minesweeper, H.M.C.S. Port Hope, of which she is chairman of supplies, and is doing a great deal in contacting all the women's organizations of the town and district to find out what and how they want this venture carried out.

Supplies For Minesweeper.

The secretary then announced that with approval from I.O.D.E. headquarters in Toronto they could now offer 180 jairs socks, 60 scarves, 60 helmets, 60 pairs gloves, and 60 pairs of seamen's socks to be delivered in April for the supplying of the minesweeper.

In the war work convener's report 297 articles of clothing were made in the I.O.D.E. rooms and shipped to Britain 32 quilts and 453 knitted articles. In December, there were 90 packages of cigarettes forwarded to overseas Port Hope men and 103 knitted articles distributed to local men in service. A goodly number of well-equipped ditty bags were sent to sailors and a number of shelter bags for the bombed victims.

Owing to a secial request sent out from I.O.D.E. headquarters within the last two weeks for the Polish war victims' relief this Chapter has shipped 2 quilts, 9 sweaters, 3 children's knitted suits, 2 bonnets, 4 pairs bootees, 7 pairs mitts, 2 scarves, parkas, toques, slippers, nighties and stockings as well as $12 in cash.

Donations made during the year were, the usual prize given to the best all-round students graduating from the public schools of $12 which was divided between 3 boys and 3 girls, which were considered ties; musical festival, $5; Children's Aid, $10; I.O.D.E. endowment fund, $5; Navy League, $269.49; Sailors' and Inland Mission, $5; Lucy Morrison Memorial Fund, $5.

Total contributions for the year from donations, quilt and cake sale of tickets on teas, bridges, rummage sale, Navy League tag day, were $448.39.

First Things Come First

Political controversies, no matter what their cause nor how strong one's feelings may be for this policy or against that, should have nothing to do with the Victory Loan to be launched on February 16th.

The cold, plain fact is this: Canada is engaged in a life and death struggle, being waged against powerful, organized, ruthless foes. Wars cannot be fought by faith. They cannot be fought or won on the casual, selfish theory that, "The other fellow has more money than I have. Let him put up the cash." The sum of $600,000,000 is needed by the Government to meet the enormous expenditures daily necessary to turn out munitions, equipment, supplies; to pay the cheques that have to go out regularly to more than 387,000 men in the armed services and to their dependents, and to provide for countless other enormous outlays incident to the struggle. If that sum is urgently required as it is, then it should be raised and from the pockets of every last man and woman of us.

What you or I may thing about one political party or another, about one candidate or another, about one government action or another—that is entitled to have its place in our discussions here—at home, in Canada—but it is your bond, my bond, our neighbors and his neighbor's bond which must be put up to beat Hitler, Mussolini, Togo and their infamous kind abroad. Politics or no politics, those gangsters, and all they represent, must be fought or we come under their grinding heels.

The Examiner has received a letter, one of scores that could no doubt be written also by other women, from a wife and mother living near Peterborough. Her husband, she says, has been overseas almost a year, and their six months' old baby has never seen him. He went because he felt his experience in a certain line of work would be vital in the defence of this country. This woman says she finds her allowance insufficient to maintain even the modest home the family had before the father put on uniform. She declares her "blood runs cold" when she hears friends here at home, living in comfort and security, no hardship, no shadow of loss or death fallen on them—when she hears people of that kind grumbling and criticizing and yet doing practically nothing themselves to help win this titanic conflict.

Is it any wonder she feels that way? Should not her case, which could be multiplied in every community from coast to coast, stir every one of us to a deep sense of patriotic zeal, to say nothing of the humane sentiments that quicken in us for dependent mothers, children, brothers, sisters, who are left behind, or for the gallant service the men are giving on the war fronts, wherever they may be?

Yes, that money is needed and we who are earning in offices, shops, industries, schools, on the railroad, on the farm—no matter where or how, we have to face up to the job. It is our job—your duty, my duty, and the most we may put up, secure as the investment is by the entire assets of the Dominion—will be a trifle compared to what the lad in uniform is doing, or has done, to save our freedom, our homes and our loved ones for us!

The person who is so callous and so indifferent to his or her own definite obligation in this war as to grouch about having to take a bond, should be ashamed to enjoy the protection other people are giving to this land!

Many Experienced This

"... Why, when I was a boy I used to have to get up in the morning, do chores and then walk two miles to school."

Just a snatch, that, out of a conversation heard of a number of responsible men who happened to be casually discussing public questions.

The remark is interesting because it is so true of what young people in rural communities all over Ontario had to go through years ago. Interesting, also, because that kin[illegible] in sharp contrast to pr[illegible] [illegible]ons generally. No doubt there are hundreds of boys and girls on farms and in villages even in this generation who have to get up in the morning—which used to mean six or six-thirty a.m., do a few simple chores and then trudge from half a mile to two, back and forth, to get a public school education. In the larger urban centres, though, one has observed quite different circumstances. Many well-fed young people have complained because they had to get up in time for breakfast and walk two or three blocks to school.

The facts are, as any person will know who looks up a "Who's Who," or otherwise obtains biographical data, that a large percentage of the outstanding men both in this province and all over the Dominion came from farm, village or small town where the simple, hard work principles of life prevailed. The leaders in law, medicine, science, theology, journalism, education business, banking, transportation—they frequently are the products of the stern reality which is associated with toiling for what one gets. It is not, never has been, the "wish" of any youth to have many tasks and to walk if a ride were possible. In fact that applies equally as much to older people, but, strangely enough, it is honest labor, discipline and a realization of what physical and mental training mean that builds strong, rugged character. A person can't see in youth how these things all work together in life, but they do.

Consequently any trivial demands made upon any of us in these war times should not produce the grouching and complaints one hears every now and then because this slight sacrifice or the other has to be made. The most anyone can do at home, safe and sound, thousands of miles from the scenes of war, is modest compared to what one man gives who goes into battle and is perhaps killed or seriously wounded.

Surprising, This!

Writing in the Windsor Star, W. L. Clark says:

"At the last session of the Canadian Parliament, Jean-Francois Pouliot, Liberal M.P. for Temiscouata, referred to our Canadian soldiers in Great Britain as 'young fools.' He made that assertion on the floor of the House of Commons.

"To date, no responsible Liberal Cabinet Minister has taken exception to that description of our fighting men. At this session of Parliament, should not someone say that the Government does not agree with Mr. Pouliot's description of our soldiers?"

It is regrettable that any person honored enough by the public to be sent to Parliament—the highest forum and tribunal of the nation—should have so little regard for the dignity of his position as to make a statement of this kind, if it was spoken, but it is equally to be deplored that his fellow "honorable members" should not have politely rebuked Mr. Pouliot for his puerile remark. It was utterly unworthy of anybody having M.P. after his name. Were it not for thousands of young men who have a higher sense of patriotism than Mr. Pouliot is credited with having displayed, where would his family and the families in his constituency be?

There is a law of compensation, however, that seems to work out with the faithfulness of the law of gravitation. It applies in public life as it applies elsewhere. Men who are silly and intemperate in their public statements never rise very high in the councils of a community or a nation.

Uniformity At Last

Though it won't be pleasing to farmers, who have never taken to the daylight savings invention, and for very practical reasons of their own, so far as they are concerned, most of the remaining population of Canada will probably send up a prayer of thankfulness that at last a wretched muddle and confusion of times is to be wiped out beginning February 9th. Of all the infernal annoyances, the patch-work situation, which has existed for some years, has been one of the worst that intelligent people could devise.

Either fast or standard time should have prevailed all over the Dominion so that a person wouldn't need a travel agency guide to help thim get about. One municipality an hour ahead or behind another; railways and steamships running on what Greenwich has established for generations, and buses, businesses, legislatures, schools, running in competition to Greenwich. Hurrying like mad to a station only to learn that you had an hour to sit around and wait, or getting your mathematical talents all mixed up so that you couldn't figure out whether mother-in-law was coming to visit you or getting ready to leave—oh, what a lovely twentieth century system!

Now, with the fast time going into operation all over the country, and in conformity with a similar government order in the United States, a person of ordinary intelligence will know what he is doing and when.

It has taken a war need—need for the conservation of electricity—to bring this improvement along, but it has come, so from now on clocks and watches should be able to tick-tick in quite a sane way.

Increasing Traffic Fatalities

Five people were killed on the highways in North York in the first eighteen days of January. There were only nine traffic deaths in the same township during all of 1941. As a consequence of this alarming increase in fatal accidents, Reeve Mitchell states that he is again going to appeal to the Provincial Department of Highways to reduce the speed limit from fifty to thirty miles an hour.

It is appalling how large the number of traffic deaths and injuries is becoming throughout Ontario. Surely it is time that some drastic measures were taken to protect human life against the calamities, with all their resultant sorrow, law trouble, domestic disruption and expense, that are now so frequent.

When casualty lists come through from war fronts, the public is saddened and much is said and written against enemies who have caused a conflict among the nations, resulting in so many husbands, fathers, brothers and sons, as well as women and children being swept into eternity or piled into hospitals. At the same time traffic casualties keep on month after month, year after year, and nothing much is done about the matter.

The reduction of the speed rate from fifty to thirty miles is one way, but not the only way, to cut down this mad conduct on the highways of the country. Much severer penalties could be imposed than now are provided for. Certainly the conscience of those in responsible positions, so far as public safety is concerned, should be disturbed by what is constantly going on, not alone in North York but all over.

NOTE AND COMMENT

One of the supreme jokes of the season is that the Nazis are complaining that the Russians are tricky.

That Michigan hen certainly was lucky, being born with four legs when she has to scratch for a living.

The Japs are soon due for a big earthquake, says a Chicago scientist. Does he mean the Hitler-Goebbels-Goering-Himmler rumble, by any means?

Probably just as well if the Mikado's subjects don't get out too many Japanese lanterns to celebrate the fall of Singapore. Better wait till it falls.

Everybody in an entire British Columbia regiment will have to learn to ski, according to the commander's orders. Well, getting up and down mountains shouldn't be anything new for them.

Hitler has been nine years in power in Germany. One wonders if the spirits of the countless thousands he has been responsible for killing, wounding and torturing during that period ever haunt him?

When Hitler pins an iron cross on the deflated breast of Mussolini he should say: "In the name of the New Order, blasted out by Germany, I invest you with the insignia of An Exploded Reputation. Rise, Sir Puppet."

Mayor Conboy, of Toronto, spoke wisely when he said before the Lions' Club, in connection with the war, that Churchill and Roosevelt were great men who have risen to meet the supreme challenge of the world, but that they are dependent on the support given them by the "lesser greats." And there are always some in every community.

The best wishes of hundreds of men now scattered all over, will join in congratulating Prof. C. R. Young, Dean of the Faculty of Applied Science and Engineering, University of Toronto, on his election to the Presidency of the Engineering Institute of Canada. Prof. Young has been a popular and distinguished figure among students for long years.

IRONING DAY

A sentimental eulogy
Was on its lyric way
When suddenly my conscience said:
"But this is ironing day,
And why should any housewife,
Who's worth a tinkers' curse,
Just shove the dishes in the sink
And spend her time on verse?"

So, while I ironed the pillow-slips,
I sought a glib reply.
Whene'er we come to grips
I'll simply answer, "Why . . ?
Because it's rather pleasing,
In this efficient age,
To see my thoughts all neatly rhymed
And printed on a page."

Crux of War Is To be Found in Atlantic, Russia

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9 — (AP) — Events of the first two months of war in the Pacific, culminating in the siege of Singapore, have diverted attention somewhat from the greatest battle in history being fought in Russia. It still is there and in the Atlantic rather than in the Pacific or Mediterranean theatres of action that the crux of the Allied-Axis war centres.

In both critical zones can be found offsets for initial British-American reverses in the Pacific. To the extent that Axis strategy summoned Japan into the conflict last Dec. 7 in expectation of diverting American war efforts wholly to the Pacific it has failed.

American troops in Northern Ireland and strengthened American garrisons in Atlantic outposts evidence that. American warships and planes co-operating to keep Britain's Atlantic life lines open despite enemy U-boat raids in North American waters is another item. American-made war machines participating in battles in North Africa and in Russia is a third example.

RETIREMENT UNEXPLAINED

The second British retirement in Libya is yet to be explained. No action has been fought there which would disclose the actual strength of Field Marshal Erwin Rommel's reinforced Axis army, or the extent to which strategic design dictated the British withdrawal eastward without a stand-up-and-knock-down fight.

In Russia, also, the German retreat to a winter line under furious Russian counter-attacks from the Baltic to the Black Sea defies accurate appraisal. So far as the front can be mapped from either German or Russian battle reports, no distinct line can be drawn. Its indicated configuration shows many deep salients difficult to associate with any definite strategic or tactical pattern.

There is one such salient indicated on the Southwestern Moscow Front spearing deeply into the Bryansk-Smolensk-Vyazma triangle, an area bisected by the Smolensk-Sukinichi road. A Russian spearhead has been reported in the vicinity of Elnya, eighty miles northwest of Sukinichi and forty miles or less from Smolensk on that road.

It is north of the Bryansk-Smolensk-Vyazma triangle, however, that the most menacing Russian thrusts, those chiefly noted by the Russian President, Michael Kalinin, can be checked off. The sector includes the great plateau south of Lake Ilmen.

It is in that sector, south of Novgorod and north of Smolensk, that triple Red Army drives leaped ahead swiftly, only to disappear for days from the Moscow news reports until Kalinin himself discussed them in his message of last Friday to his people. It is there that Russian borders with the Baltic States lie closest.

SPRING OFFENSIVE PROBLEMATICAL

The message said return of all Western Russian Republics to the Soviet "family" is near. It cited the approach of Red Armies to Russian borders with Esthonia, Latvia and Lithuania.

In the sector northwest of Moscow three Russian jabs have been aimed to converge on Velikie Luki junction on the Riga-Moscow railroad. That junction is not much more than 100 miles east of the Russian-Latvian border. One jab has been recently reported twenty miles from Velikie Luki. North of that, on the south flank of the Valdai hills, another was said to be on the upper Dvina. North again, in the Lovat valley, a third had passed Kholm, sixty miles from the junction.

The Kalinin message strongly suggests impending developments on that front, or even further north on both sides of Lake Ilmen. A break-through to the Latvian or Esthonian frontiers would sweep the Nazis out of Russian proper north of Smolensk and realize much of Kalinin's prediction.

The date of the Berlin-advertised German spring offensive in Russia is problematical. It could come as early as late April in the Southern Ukraine or in the Crimea by normal weather expectation. It would take a month or two longer to loosen winter's grip north of Smolensk sufficiently for Nazi blitzkrieg operations. Red winter attack forces would have that much longer to benefit from their greater mobility in that region.

WHAT ELSE EXPECTED

ON a day when the news was particularly dark a Service chief stunned a gathering of journalists in London with the statement, "Japan has acted in an ungentlemanly manner." He did not say this ironically. It was a simple and sincere remark. It reintroduces the disturbing thought that among the men who control our Forces there is still hope that plans can be based in part on an assumption that neutrals will act always with an honorable regard for treaties and the Ten Commandments. Were we really surprised that Japan had acted in an ungentlemanly manner? Did we really assume that should Japan decide to come in against us, she would at least give honorable notice of her intention, and possibly, for old times' sake, a rough outline of her operational plans?—London Sunday Dispatch.

COLD COMFORT

—New York World-Telegram.

• Mechanized Power

THE Yanks are not only in North Ireland. They are or will be on every front in a war that has a central front only in the sense that it must be ended where it began. The president pledged the United States to this global effort in his message to Congress, and he confirms in the announcement that the army landed in Ulster is but one of several American expeditionary forces operating in various parts of the world.

The news coincides with Mr. Churchill's statement in the House of Commons that the outline of a long-range plan for victory was worked out during his visit to Washington. It fits into the scale and scope of that strategic plan and is useful for two reasons. By suggesting that American armed forces are likely to turn up in a number of unspecified places, the president adopts the Hitler tactic of keeping the enemy guessing. He proves further that this country is determined to strike anywhere that an effective blow can be delivered. This is what the American people expect; they are in this struggle now wherever it takes them. They are increasingly aware that in places hitherto only vague names on a map—the Straits of Macassar, Mekeli in the Libyan desert, the Kabul Pass—they are fighting for the life of the United States.

Nevertheless, it would be a grave disservice to ourselves and the people looking to us for help if the talk of "six, eight or ten" expeditionary frces raised premature hopes or spread a false impression. The symbolic value of the troops in Ireland is very great; wherever it appears the vanguard of an American army is a heartening sign of our unlimited participation in this conflict. But even if these first contingents of American manpower were larger than they are, they could not take the place of the vast batteries of planes and tanks and ships on which victory depends. In the imposing success of the combined attack of American ships and Dutch air force in Macassar Straits we see what a local edge in machine power can accomplish at little cost. In the heroic stand of General MacArthur's troops at Batan, and in the hard-fought but losing action in Johore, we have the reverse side of the picture; without superior air force land armies are hopelessly exposed and weakened.

Two powerful enemies confront us; and although the Russians are now draining the strength of the Germans, neither the Soviet military machine nor the combined force of the United Nattions is yet able to engage both aggressors at once in a decisive battle. For the moment grand strategy must adapt itself to present resources and use them as wisely as it can. What is clear beyond question is the justice and urgency of the claims of all our Allies for assistance. Campaigns of vi[t]al importance not only to the immediate combatants but to us all are being fought on a dozen fronts, and the common cry is not for men but for tanks and guns and planes.

The first need is for machine power, and it follows inexorably that our first duty is to gear the American industrial system to its maximum capacity to fill that need. Never for a moment can the United States afford to lose sight of the fact that it is indeed the arsenal of all the fighting forces — for some the only arsenal. The full supply of our skilled labor must be employed day and night on the production front. Only when the machinery of war is available in quantities beyond any present conception can all the other fronts be manned for decisive battles. — New York Times.

'UNITED NATIONS' FUTURE

THIS phrase "United Nations," which Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Churchill have used to designate the great group of free peoples who have banded together to oppose Axis tyranny, is a phrase which may carry important implications for the future.

The name, which has come to be generally applied to the opponents of Germany, Italy and Japan, carries a deep significance. This is no mere "alliance," its use seems to say. These nations are "united."

Perhaps in the years after the war, when the time comes to lay the foundations of a peace which it is hoped will last and will provide an opportunity for progressive development, this name "United Nations" will set the standard.

There will have to be some supernational organization if the objectives set out in the Atlantic Charter are to be achieved. The ideals which inspired the men who proposed the League of Nations are to be forgotten.

But in the name "United Nations" there is perhaps a profounder meaning than in "League of Nations." In the latter name the emphasis was still on the "nations." In the phrase "United Nations" the emphasis is on unity—and unity is essential.—Sault Ste Marie Star.

MALAYAN SNAKES

It is said there are over one hundred varieties of poisonous snakes in the Malaya jungles. Doubtless the most poisonous of these is the little yellow-faced serpent which started to wiggle his way through the greenery within the last month.—Almonte Gazette.

And the Next One!

"Yes, I came face to face with a lion once," said the club liar, "and I was alone and unarmed."

"Heavens, what did you do?" asked a new member, who didn't know his man.

"What could I do? I tried staring straight into his eyes, but he just continued crawling towards me."

"How did you get away, then?"

"I just left him and passed on to the next cage."

SIR JOHN TOPS 'EM ALL

SIR John A. MacDonald still holds the record for length of service as Prime Minister of Canada.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier holds the record for longest continuous service as Prime Minister.

Sir John piled up 19 years as Prime Minister. He was in office for six years and four months between 1867 and 1873. Then, he was in office for 12 years and eight months between 1878 and 1891. That gave him 19 years as Prime Minister.

Sir Wilfrid was in office for 15 years and three months between 1896 and 1911.

Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King has been Prime Minister three times. He was in for four years and six months between 1921 and 1926. Then, he was in for three years and 11 months between 1926 and 1930. And, he has been in office for six years and four months since 1935. That gives him 14 years and nine months as Prime Minister.

Next in line for total service is Sir Robert L. Borden, whose eight years and nine months between 1911 and 1920 were also continuous. — W. L. Clark, in Windsor Star.

KEEP RIGHT PERSPECTIVE

WE must not allow anxiety about the Far East to distort our perspective on the war as a whole. Russia's recent successes, which have been a tonic to all the United Nations, might not have been possible if British troops and American supplies had been diverted to the Far East before Japan struck. Defending British policy, Sir Archibald Sinclair, Minister of Air, asserted that the concentration of resources on the Russian and African fronts had brought results commensurate with the risks involved and stressed the assistance given to the Soviets by R.A.F. activities that "compelled the German air force to keep more than half its fighter squadrons stretched along the coast from Norway to France." As a result, the Russians were able to regain that ascendancy in the air which proved invaluable in turning back the Nazis.—The Nation (New York).

To The Editor

A PLEA FOR PATRIOTIC ZEAL

Editor Examiner:

Sir,—At such a tense moment as this in the course of this war, when I look around and see homes secure, plenty of money for luxury and waste, and not the slightest shadow of the war falling across their threshold, I cannot help but feel bitter at the unfairness of war.

My husband has been overseas almost a year now. My six-months-old baby has never seen him, and I find my allowance insufficient to maintain even the modest home we had before duty called, because my husband felt he had experience in work vital to the defence of Canada—namely radio.

When I hear my friends criticizing, complaining,—out for every dollar there is to be made—and doing nothing that they really feel to win this war, my blood runs cold. Why must some spend lonely, agonizing hours worrying about their loved ones, while others quibble for a higher wage—and scold because they have to pay an income or defence tax?

After listening to another of these useless conversations on "how to win this war," I have been impelled to write a poem and send it to you. Maybe you'll see fit to publish it, and maybe not—no matter, I've gotten it off my chest. I've gotten rid of the burning desire to tell the world that everyone's got to knuckle down and do their bit, and do it till it hurts, before we can ever hope to win this war.

A MOTHER,
ALL OUT FOR CANADA

MUST GET BEHIND LOAN

THIS country, we repeat, must not permit controversy over its methods of raising manpower to weaken its efforts in subscribing to the full, and brimming over, the coming Victory War Loan. Some of us may feel that a plebiscite over conscription at this time is a mistake and a wrong to Canada. That is understandable. It would not be understandable, and it would be still graver wrong to Canada, if we carried our grievance, real or imaginary, to the point of sabotage against a Canadian war loan. That would be cutting off our nose to spite our face, and with a vengeance.

Money raised by Victory Loans and war savings certificates has been put to good use. It has been used to build Canadian industry and production into a war effort of power and magnitude that is a credit to this country. Let us, as Canadians, go on with that work, nad better it if possible.—Ottawa Journal.

A graceful frock for dancing was fashioned of dusty pink wool crepe with a full skirt of unpressed pleating.

Y Huts and Hostels Cheerful Places

The Girls' Supper Club has donatd $75 to the Mrs. Winston Churchill Fund, to be used in the hut or hostel nearest Peterborough, England. Perhaps readers wonder what that hut or hostel will be like; where the money will go?

In contrast to the prevailing dullness of uniforms and barracks, the hut will be gay with color, striped canvas chairs, attractive curtains and brightly painted tables.

There will be an open fire-place, or a stove, around which to gather for sing-songs, or friendly conversation; a piano for singing and dancing. And the blackout precautions will be good enough to permit the bright lights that are a welcome change from the blanketing darkness of the camp.

But best of all, there will be a trained leader present at all times, ready to plan a party, organize games, solve a personal problem, or just talk to these girls as one individual may talk to another. Not one who is set in authority over them, or yet as an inferior, offering service, but simply a friend and companion. For that is the chief job of these supervisors, who must be mother, sister and friend to these girls who stand on guard for freedom.

The hut is a place where a girl can meet and entertain her men friends in an atmosphere more like that which she is accustomed in civilian life, than the crowded men's canteens.

Two Girls Now On Active Service

VOLUNTEER JEAN CARBONE DRIVER JEAN METCALFE

Among the 30 girls who formerly belonged to the Peterborough Women's Service Corps and are now on active service are Driver Jean Metcalfe, who is the first girl in M.D. No. 3 to be chosen to drive a staff car, and Volunteer Jean Carbone, who is in the stores department at Kingston.

Women's Service Corps Has Already Thirty Members In Active Service Branches

Ignoring the criticism of many people who thought women had no special place in the war scheme, the Peterborough Women's Service Corps was organized more than 15 months ago and already thirty of the members are wearing the uniforms of the active service branches of the Canadian Auxiliary Army and Air Force, a record unmatched by any similar organization in any city of a similar size in Canada.

The organizers of the local group anticipating the eventual need for women in actual war work, hurdled all obstacles in getting the city group organized and into training, and their long range view is now completely justified by the turn of events. The local corps is an affiliate of the British Columbia Women's Service Corps, having branches all across the Dominion, with Mrs. N. Kennedy as controller. Now Mrs. Kennedy is senior commander of the Canadian Women's Army Corps.

Unit Re-organized

The local organization has now been re-organized because of the depletion in numbers and is a highly efficient unit, training women for the Canadian Women's Army Corps, the Canadian Women's Auxiliary Air Force and the Naval section.

Two of the four originals in Peterborough have volunteered for active service. Miss Willa Ahern, a trained nurse formerly in this city as Metropolitan nurse, is with the army, and Miss Lahring Parsons is a Pilot Officer with the C.W.A.A.F. stationed at Ottawa. Another soldierette who has risen from the ranks is Miss Jean Metcalfe, who is the first driver of a staff car in Military District No. 3. Miss Phyllis Lawrence is a second subaltern in charge of the C.W.A.C. at Gananoque, Miss Louise Hall and her sister, Miss Mary Hall, are both stationed at Ottawa. Miss Wida Saunders has received her call to the air froce; Miss Myrtle Boreham is stationed at No. 6 Service Flying Training School. Many others from the local group are now trying for commissions which indicates that the training given them locally helped materially in their latter effort. Jessie Stevens is driving a truck at Kingston and aims to be a dispatch rider.

A complete course of training was given the girls in this city. Since January, 1941, 76 members were awarded St. John's Ambulance Certificates, and later in June the members of "C" Company were awarded senior awards in the same branch of training.

Other courses given were St. John Ambulance Home Nursing, anti-gas protection, map reading, sanitation, dietetics, canteen work, army correspondence and orderly room routine, recognition of badges, and practical motor mechanic. Besides this every member receives the rudimentary training of the average soldier, such as foot drill, platoon and company drill.

The work is voluntary and is patterned after the system of the British Auxiliary Territorial Service with a clerical set-up similar to the Canadian Army. The unit has been able to give valuable service assisting in the orderly room of the Peterborough Rangers. More practical experience has been obtained at Military Training Centre No. 32, at the Kiwanis Recreation Centre uptown and with the Iron Duke, in mobile canteen work.

All the members who have stepped up into active service have spoken in tribute to local officers of the Peterborough Women's Corps for the fine training they received.

Openings For Women

At the present time the Peterborough unit is anxious to bring its membership up to full strength, consequently there are openings for girls willing to take their army training seriously and who are desirous of fitting themselves to be of service to their country in any emergency locally or elsewhere. The local branch is a non-active military unit, essentially for army service and emergency service in this city, but naturally is acting as a feeder to the active service if and when any member wishes to go "active."

The Corps falls in for drill at the Peterborough Armouries at 7 on Wednesday evenings, after which there are lectures in the Collegiate from 8 until 9. On Saturday afternoon "B" Company takes a course in practical motor mechanics at the South Central School and each member will receive a certificate of proficiency on the completion of the course.

Officers of the Corps wish it definitely known that the ranks of the Corps are open to every woman who is a British subject, physically capable of rendering useful service and who is in sympathy with and wishes to abide by the high standard of the Corps, and its motto, "Loyalty, Faith, Service." Strict discipline is maintained at all times. Emphasis is placed on the fact that girls and women who attend classes are expected to take their training with the seriousness demanded by the aims and standards of the Corps. As in any military group, regular attendance is essential. Briefly the members of the Corps are doing what they can to furnish an intelligent and satisfactory answer to the oft-repeated question, "What can we do?"

Premier Winston Churchill has said, "Every woman should prepare to do her duty, whatever it may be with special pride and care," and this challenge applies as much to the women of Canada as it does to the courageous and resourceful women of the British Isles.

Col. J. A. Dewart, M.C., officer commanding the local garrison has publicly commended the local Women's Corps for their fine work, and other local leaders who have spoke highly of the unit, and who have taken a lively interest in it, are His Worship Mayor James Hamilton, Gordon K. Fraser, M.P., His Honor Judge Smoke, and members of the City Council.

Old Magazines Can Still Give Pleasure

Don't light the fire with your discarded magazines; and don't let the baby cut the pictures out. Some soldier, sailor or airman will be glad to read them when you have finished with them.

The Peter Robinson Chapter, I.O.D.E., sent to Halifax last year 11,000 magazines, 821 books, 44 packs of cards, and 60 victrola records. In addition to this, 2,240 magazines 260 books and 72 packs of cards and games, were sent to the local Trailnng Centre. The Chapter is grateful for the response which made these contributions possible, especially for the swift response which brought in five hundred magazines to fill an emergency need at the Training Centre last week.

The contributions, however, have fallen off so badly that it has been impossible to do more than fill the quota for the canteen during the last month. Surely you are still buying, using up and discarding magazines. Leave them at Belleghem's Furniture Store, Hunter Street West, or telephone Mrs. W. Belleghem, 6237.

Milk For Britain Aided By Bingo

The Kinettes are making a name for themselves as givers of very worthwhile prizes in their monthly bingo series, and many favorable comments were heard at the latest one, which took place on Friday evening in the Legion Hall. Mrs. Maurice Holt, assisted by Mrs. Lorne Bateman, was convener; and Mrs. Harold Worton was responsible for the prizes, which consisted of chickens, canned goods, eggs and bacon, and grcoeries.

After the fifteenth game a special game was held when a wicker tray, hand-made and donated by Mr. H. Barton, a veteran of the last war, was won by Mrs. S. Black, 406 Water street.

The tentative date for the next Milk for Britain Bingo is Friday, March 13. The Kinettes would like publicly to thank all who helped to make the bingo a success.

MAKING A HOME AND KEEPING HUSBAND HAPPY WIFE'S BUSINESS

Women Who Are Temperamental, Have Careers or Hate Domesticity Should Not Marry

The other day I discussed in this column various types of men who should not marry because they are temperamentally unfit for matrimony and are not only unhappy themselves in the so-called holy estate, but wreck the lives of the unfortunate women they wed. Many women are in the same category. They may be beautiful, intelligent and possessed of all the major and minor virtues, but matrimony is not their dish. They have no gift for wifehood. They never learn the trick of managing a husband and making him like it, and their marriages are long drawnout endurance tests, or quick short trips to Reno. Among the women who should never marry are the career women. Most of them do, of course, and most of them have as many divorces as they have had husbands, for the perfectly logical reason that feminine careers and matrimony do not mix. Each is a separate job that takes all of the brains and heart interest and energy and strength that any woman possesses, and when she tries to superimpose one on top of the other, she makes a mess of both. Of course, it seems a cruel thing that a gifted woman, who has spent thousands of dollars and years of hard work preparing herself for her profession, should not be able to go on with after marriage, as a man does with his, but few have ever done it successfuly.

Making a home and keeping her husband eating out of her hand is a wife's business, and she cannot do it if she is careering around the country lecturing, or giving concerts, or off to Squedunk to bid on a contract, or telephones not to keep dinner waiting because she is entertaining a buyer from Oshkosh.

Man Wants to Be Ruler

Nor does it make for peace and happiness in the home for the wife to earn more money or be more prominent in any way than the husband. No man resents any insult as fiercely as he does being called Mr. Mary Jones, and you will find that when the gray mare is the better nag that her teammate generally jumps the tracks.

The sentimentalist should never marry. Marriage is always a failure to her because she demands the impossible of it. She expects it to be a perpetual petting party in which everything will always be romance and roses and her husband will spend his time making passionate love to her. She expects a life in which there will be no work, no worry, nor cooking dinners, nor dirty dishes in the sink, and where her children will be miraculously born with golden curls tied with blue ribbon and wearing embroidered white dresses.

And when she finds out that marriage is a life sentence at hard labor, with more bills than thrills in it, and that her good, practical, kind husband exhausted his visible supply of love talk during courtship and thereafter says it with beefsteaks instead of flowers, why, she simply can't take it. She develops a heart hungry complex that keeps her weeping over her pitiful, being-starved-for-affection condition, and that makes her bewildered husband wonder what ails her.

Sense of Humor Important

No woman who lacks a sense of humor should ever marry, for marriage is full of such a lot of things over which one must either laugh or cry and only those who can see the funny side of family life get any fun out of it, or are agreeable to live with. It is the wife who can nail on her face the smile that won't come off when poverty and sickness come in at the door, who braces her husband up to do the very best that is in him.

It is the wife who finds something amusing and tender and lovable in her husband's little peculiarities, and who makes a good story out of the time when he came home lit from his class reunion, who stands the wear and tear of marriage without breaking under it, and who binds her husband and children to her with hoops of steel.

The woman who feels that she is called upon to reform the world should take it out on the world instead of inflicting it on some poor defenseless man who didn't know that he needed to be made over until his wife undertook the job.

The monopolistic woman who feels that she acquired a title to her husband, body and soul, along with her wedding ring, and that he has no right to have any affections or interests outside of her should never marry, because she makes a home that is a jail and neither her husband or her children ever love their jailer.

Nor should the undomestic woman every marry, because making a comfortable home is either a bit of Heaven or a taste of the other place to a woman, according to whether she is allergic to pots and pans and the cook book or not.

So there we are, and before a girl says "yes" when the Boy friend pops the question she does well to examine herself and decide how she is going to fit into the matrimonial picture.

DEAR MISS DIX—My husband has just bought me an expensive pair of earrings and says that is all I need to make me look like the wife he really wants. To wear them I will have to have my ears pierced and I have told him that I will not do this, but he insists upon it. Should I do this to plase him—MRS. E. S. H.

ANSWER—Yes, but it is not necessary to have your ears pierced nowadays in order to wear earrings. The jewelers will put a little gadget on that will hold them in place.—DOROTHY DIX.

CURLING NEWS

By HERB MARTIN

With two open bonspiels, a double-header to-night, and then the regular schedule games it looks like a week of real curling down at the Charlotte Street ice palace.

And by the way, have you made your entry to Secretary J. Harkness for the Canada Packers Trophy to be played for on Wednesday next? If not, line up a rink to-night and get in the fun with the rest of the boys. Remember the grand 'spiel two weeks ago? Well, it looks as if this one is going to be just as good. So don't be left out.

The ladies are going ahead making preparations for their bonspiel on Friday Next. It will be the first of its kind ever staged at our club.

Congratulations to the Lindsay boys on winning the Ontario Tankard. While the honor did not come to our club, still it is mighty nice to know that it came to our district.

We notice our friend Jim Skinner made the headlines the other night when he cashed in on a quiz program or something of that sort. Nice going, Jimmy.

Not many came out on Saturday afternoon. The ice was just at the touch and go mark. However, those who did come out had a good time. The winning skips were G. Putnam, J. M. Williams, and F. Green.

SCOUT CRAFT SHOW

If the enthusiasm shown by the attendance of the central committee is any means of judging the results of the coming scout craft show, we will predict a real success as every member of the committee turned up at the last meeting.

The various scouters in charge of the different districts of cub and scout displays talked the various matters over and were allotted the groups that were to operate under their control.

Also the scout and cub craft committee was revamped, with Mr. A. Hope placed as general chairman.

With these men now working, we hope to be able to publish a full list of details within a short time.

When complete, lists of articles for the craft work will be posted in every group meeting place.

Proceeds to the Milk For Britain Fund

SPORTS – DAY BY DAY

By FRED D. CRAIG

With Toronto Marlboros booked to meet the Military Training Centre team, Syl Apps, ace centre of the Maple Leafs, billed to referee the contest, other Maple Leaf celebrities making a personal appearance and lightning fast ice assured, the game at Brock St. Rink Tuesday night in aid of the Milk for Britain Fund promises to be a feature event of the season. This big hockey spectacle has been arranged by the local Kinsmen's Club, with the co-operation of Frank Selke, business manager of the Maple Leafs and of the Maple Leaf Gardens, and it promises to be a gala affair. Better than that, a substantial sum for the splendid cause for which the game will be played, is assured as the rink has been secured for a purely nominal sum and all the other expenses have been cut to a minmum. It will be a real test for the Petes and a splendid workout in preparation for the playoff games that lie ahead. Marlboro will bring down a strong team including Gaye Stewart the sensational junior left-winger who has been going great guns since promoted to the senior ranks and already is regarded as a sure-fire professional prospect. Red Ellis, former Lindsay star, may also see action with the visitors. He has been getting lots of favorable publicity on his work this season.

* * * * * *

The Petes will ice their strongest lineup against the strong Toronto invaders. They know they will have tough opposition and they are anxious to use this game to polish up their teamwork and generally to ready themselves for the battles that are coming next week with the winners of the Belleville-Kingston vs. Whitby-Oshawa series. Coach Jim Ellis will start his two regular forward lines against the visitors and the game should be a fast and clever exhibition of hockey between two smooth-working and well-balanced machines. The presence of Syl Apps, Red Horner and other N.H.L. stars will be a decided attraction in itself and there should be a capacity audience on hand for this benefit attraction. All the proceeds will go toward providing milk for the hard-pressed folk in Britain. That in itself should be enough to pack the rink.

* * * * * *

When Bun Kingdon went on a scoring rampage at Belleville the other night and picked up two goals and three assists against the Flyers the spurt was just enough to put the clever centre ice player of the razzle-dazzle line at the top of the Petes' scoring list for the regular group schedule. Kingdon's total for the 11 games in which he performed was 29 points, 13 goals and 16 assists. His linemate, right-winger Honey Tompkins was just a point behind with 28 in 12 games, made up of 16 goals and 12 assists. He led the pack with 16 in the matter of actual goals scored. Third in the list is Joe Blewett, left winger of the second line with 21 points and fourth is left-winger Art Heal of the razzle-dazzle trio with 20. Heal had a slower start than this two pals on the first line but has been matching points with them over the latter part of the schedule. Here are the team's scoring averages for the regular group games:

	Goals	Assists	Points
Kingdon	13	16	29
Tompkins	16	12	28
Blewett	11	10	21
Heal	9	11	20
Nichols	7	7	14
Reilly	7	2	9
Godfrey	2	4	6
Crowe	0	4	4

Outboard Marines took another scalp Saturday night when they defeated Shag Park's Royal Canadian Navy squad 60 to 44 at the Y.M.C.A. gym. Making allowance for the fact that the visiting Sailors played four games last week and were tired the Peterborough basketeers nevertheless earned their win by smart ball-handling and by accurate shooting. In the latter department Jim Thorburn was really hot, looping in fourteen baskets for a total score of 28 points. He tossed nine in the first half alone when his deadly marksmanship was the main factor in piling up a lead for the Marines that they were able to hold during the second half. They were 38 to 21 in front at the rest period and scored basket for basket with the Navy in the second session. Bill Devitt was the scoring star for the visitors, racking up 14 points. Shag Park contributed 9 to his team's total and that is low scoring for Mister Basketball. This Saturday night the Eglington R.C.A.F. squad, featuring Tony Golab will be here for a battle with the Marines.

Basketball fans who did not hit the Y.M.C.A. gym early Saturday night missed a real treat. Coach Bamforth's Collegiate squad pulled a real upset by out-running, out-scoring and out-lasting the powerful C.G.E. squad to win by 40 to 35 in a fast-moving, exciting City League game that was in doubt until the last minute or two. C.G.E. had added Jack Gemmell to the squad that had handed Dominions, the league-leaders, their first beating of the season the other night and were counted on to take the decision from the students. However the school team, sparked by Eric Taylor who ran up a score of 16 points, were 19 to 18 in front at the half and after C.G.E. had taken the lead in the second session, fought back to win out in a driving finish. Joe Stewart scored 19 points for the losers. It was a real ball game all the way.

After faltering badly for several weeks the Toronto Leafs returned to their winning ways over the week-end with victories over the New York Rangers and the Brooklyn Amerks. Rangers with seven wins in a row were beaten 6 to 4 Saturday night in a wide open scoring affair in which a four-goal spurt by the Leafs in the second period was enough to win for them. Rangers came back with the hat trick by Lynn Patrick who scored three goals in the last period but that brilliant performance only closed the gap a little. Sunday night the Leafs had a tough battle in New York with the Amerks who outscored them 2 to 0 in the first period. The Toronto gang retaliated with three counters in the second session and ran in a fourth in the last stanza before the Amerks could pick up their last goal of the game. A penalty to Wilf Field was the turning point in the game, Apps and Drillon scoring for the Leafs in 28 seconds.

* * * * * *

As a result of the week-end doings the Leafs picked up two points on both Boston and Rangers but are still in third slot. The Bruins after losing three games came back Sunday night with a 3 to 0 win over the Detroit Red Wings and the Rangers did not allow the Toronto check to get them down. On the contrary they invaded Chicago last night and took the scalps of the Black Hawks before one of the biggest crowds of the season by 4 to 3, coming from behind to do the trick. The Hawks led by 2 to 0 and then by 3 to 2 but the Patrick brigade came through with two goals in the final session to take the nod. Once more rookie Grant Warwick shot the winning goal.

P.C.I. Quintette Defeats CGE Boys 40-35

P.C.I.'s Senior basketball team made it plain that they are not to be left out of the battle for play-off berths in the Senior City Cage League by pulling out an unexpected 40-35 victory over C.G.E. at the Y.M.C.A. Saturday night. The upset further complicates the battle for first place in the League, already made hectic enough by C.G.E.'s defeat of the league-leading Dominions earlier in the week and leaves four of the five teams in the league within striking distance of top place. The standing to date:—

	W	L
Dominions	3	1
Quakers	2	1
C.G.E.	2	2
Soldiers	0	3

The Garnet and Gray quintet staged their best effort of the season to lead C.G.E. over most of the route and had to keep the pressure on all the way to just barely squeeze out the Electrics who were in the ball game to the final whistle. P.C.I. held a precarious 19-18 lead at the half way mark and it just about indicated the play in the first twenty minutes with very little to choose between the two teams. The losers came back battling in the early minutes of the last half but P.C.I. turned it on midway in that stanza to build up a five point lead that they held to the finish with the teams just about trading baskets in the dying minutes. It was a slam bang, driving battle all the way with P.C.I. holding just enough edge on the play to earn the verdict. The school team exhibited a more potent passing attack than the losers and a lot of their scores came at the end of nice passing plays. oth teams checked hard and both had to do some sensational sharp-shooting to score against them. P.C.I. registered on four of their nine free throws and the losers threw in three of their six chances. Taylor and Ferguson were the spearheads of the P.C.I. team and Stewart and Currie were outstanding for C.G.E. The teams—

P.C.I. 40—Taylor 16, Ferguson 10, Richardson, MacTavish, Gardner 7, Saunders 4, Burns 3.

C.G.E. 35—Dyer 4, Dundas 2, Currie 10, Pulkinghorn, Stewart 19, Gemmell, Barabe, Deblois, Smith.

Scoring Started Early Seconds Exhibition Game

Outboard Marines scored the first basket on the opening seconds of play and were never behind as they turned back Shag Park's Royal Canadian Navy quintette in an exhibition basketball game at the Y.M.C.A. on Saturday night.

After McArthur scored from Stewart's tip-off in the first five seconds of play, the Navy came right back and scored a long field goal in the next play to tie it up, but Marines forged ahead again soon after and were never headed. They had built up a 38-2 lead at the half-way mark, and despite Navy's slightly superior play in the final twenty minutes the best the Toronto team could do was get back one point of their 17 point deficit, and the Marines won comfortably.

The locals, spearheaded by Thorburn's sensational sharpshooting, shot baskets rom all angles and nullified some nice long range shooting by the Navy five to slowly but surely forge ahead in the opening half, and although the visitors opened it up in the last period and had a slight edge in the play the best they could do was keep Marines from going further out in front. The winners' big edge from an offensive standpoint was in their superior shooting, particularly in the early part of the game when they rang in shot after shot from every angle and looked to be going to run away, but the losers came back and scoring most of their shots from well out crept back into the ball game.

They never stopped trying and several times in the last chapter looked to be on their way towards catching up, but Marines always managed to come back with a basket at just the right time to stop the Navy drive.

The R.C.N. quintette passed nicely and had a good part of the play, but their big weakness was in shooting, as they passed up chance after chance, particularly in the later stages of the game with faulty marksmanship. Thorburn highlighted the Marine offense with 28 points in a brilliant shooting exhibition with Stewart having 14 and McPherson also prominent going both ways.

Devitt was the ace performer from a Navy point of view, throwing in 14 points as well as playing a bang up game at guard, with Park and Murphy also starring.

Marines were guilty of ten fouls, with the Navy scoring six points that way, while the visitors were guilty of fouling only on one occasion with Marines missing the chance. The teams:

R.C.N. 44—Wiley 4, Devitt 14, Rogers 11, Murphy 6, Park 9, and Starky.

Outboard Marines 60— Thorburn 28, McArthur 6, McPherson 4, Stewart 14, McIntyre 2, Jakafby 2, Rogow, Craig 4.

Referee—Nels Stanger.

TORONTO LEAFS DEFEAT NEW YORK RANGERS AND THE AMERKS

Rookies Score Winning Goal In Two Games

By SCOTT YOUNG
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

The two outstanding candidates for the National Hockey League rookie-of-the-year award, the Caldder Trophy, came out of the league's week-end skirmishing as close as if hitched in double-harness.

Grant Warwick scored the winning goal when New York Rangers beat Chicago Black Hawks 4-3 in Chicago last night, and Johnny McCreedy performed almost similar duty for Toronto Maple Leafs in turning back Brooklyn Americans by the same score. The slight difference in the effectiveness of their achievements is something for only the more exacting of experts to ponder.

From an hitherto unheard-from source came warning that Warwick and McCreedy may not have all the rookie balloting to themselves. Rookie Bill Mosienko, recently called up from Kansas City by Chicago Black Hawks, scored two of Hawks' goals and made the play for the third in the game against Rangers. The 19-year-old Winnipegger was flying.

In other games, Boston blanked Detroit 3-0 Sunday night in Boston; Toronto upset Rangers 6-4 in Toronto Saturday night, and Montreal Canadiens defeated Detroit 3-1 in another night game.

McCreedy On Top.

In the jousting between Warwick and McCreedy, the slim Toronto winger came out slightly on top in points, but Warwick accomplished the most difficult chore. McCreedy's goal against Americans gave Leafs a 4-2 lead and in light of a later Brooklyn score, proved the winner. But it is easier to score on a losing team—which must press and partially abandon defence for attack—than it is to break a tie. That's what Warwick did, his goal late in the third breaking a 3-3 deadlock to provide Rangers' winning margin at Chicago. But McCreedy scored against Rangers Saturday night, while Warwick was held pointless.

This is a revival of traditional Regina-Winnipeg rivalry. Warwick was with Regina Rangers last year and McCreedy played with Winnipeg Monarchs before jaunting around Canada on various senior teams.

Bob Goldham and McCreedy were single-goal scorers for Toronto Saturday, with Syl Apps and Lorne Carr netting two each. Lynn Patrick blasted home three for Rangers—all in the third period. Alf Pike counted for New York in the first.

In Montreal Saturday, Les Canadiens burst out with three goals in the last period to beat Detroit. The Wings led entering the third on Don Grosso's second goal, but Murphy Chamberlain tied the score early in the third and Charlie Sands and Gerry Heffernan bagged the other two.

Scored Two Goals

Wee Willie Mosienko looked brilliant on the new Chicago line of Mosienko-Red Hamill-Bob Carse. His first goal was from Art Wiebe and his second—21 seconds later in the first period—came after a two-way play from Carse and Joe Cooper. In the second Hamill scored from Carse and Mosienko after Clint Smith and Bryan Hextall counted for Rangers, Neil Colville tied the score at 11.28 in the third and Warwick won the game at 13.20. Mosienko is a cinch to stay up.

Norm Larson and Tommy Anderson scored in first period against Leafs, but Don Metz, Syl Apps and Gord Drillon counted in succession in the second to send the revived Torontonians ahead. McCreedy made it four after midway in the third before Joe Krol counted Amerks' last goal. Leafs apparently have snapped out of their slump.

Boston's victory over Detroit was goalie Frankie Brimsek's third shutout of the year. Bobby Bauer scored for Bruins in the first and after a scoreless second Eddie Wiseman and Dutch Heiller finished off the scoring in the third.

Leafs pulled a couple of points closer to Boston and Rangers with the double-triumph, but are still two points behind Bruins and six back of the Rangers. Leafs' Saturday victory snapped a seven-game winning streak for Rangers and Boston's win Sunday ended a three-game losing streak for the Bruins.

Hockey's Big Seven

(By the Canadian Press.)

Bryan Hextall of Rangers chalked up a goal against Chicago last night to retain his one-point edge at the top of the National Hockey League individual scoring race over his linemate, Lynn Patrick. Hextall's total is made up of 19 goals and 22 assists compared to Patrick's 23 goals and 17 assists for 40 points. Another Ranger, Phil Watson, is in third place with 38 points.

Gordie Drillon of Toronto and Bill Thoms, Chicago, share fourth place with 34 points each, while trailing them with 32 points apiece are Milt Schmidt, Boston, and Tommy Anderson, Americans.

PROVIDENCE, R.I., Feb. 9 — (AP). — Hershey Bears, Western Division leaders of the American Hockey League, had enough last night to withstand a third-period surge by Providence Reds and emerge with a 5-4 victory.

The Reds scored three times in the last six minutes, but they could not overcome the early lead piled up by Hershey. Bob Gracie, obtained recently in a trade with Buffalo, pushed in three of the Bear tallies.

Sets New Swim Record

NEWARK, N.J., Feb. 9—(AP). — Gloria Callen of Nyack, N.Y., bettered Eleanor Holm's 6-year-old world's record for the 150-yard backstroke by more than a full second Saturday night.

Miss Callen swam the distance against time in the Newark Athletic Club pool in 1:48.2. Miss Holm's mark, made in 1936 at Buffalo, N.Y., was 1:49.4.

The Sports Round-Up

By HUGH S. FULLERTON, JR.

NEW YORK, Feb. 9 — (AP). — Les MacMitchell, who ran the Wanamaker mile in the "slow" time of 4:11.3 on Saturday, spent Friday in bed with a cold....Headline: "Lombardi traded to Braves for two players"....Seems a fair enough trade unless Schnozz has reduced a lot since we last saw him....Sam Byrd, who quit baseball because of advancing age, has just become eligible for P.G.A. membership after serving five years as a golf pro.

Penalty—stroke and distance.

When Golfer Julian Kovas was playing Lido's famous seashore course, his ball landed on the ice of a deep channel. Trying to save the valuable bit of rubber as well as a penalty, Kovas shoved out a plank and stood on it to swing. Just as he finished the shot, the ice gave way and Julian had to hang on to the plank until caddies rescued him and carted him off to the warmth of the clubhouse, a mile away. There's no record of what became of the ball.

Just the Leaf-ings.

At their recent meeting, the International League baseballers got big-hearted and voted to help out Toronto Maple Leafs by providing one player each to build up the last-place squad....First contributions were Jack Haley, Newark pitcher whose arm has been bad since he pitched an 18-inning game three years ago, and Lynn Myers, Rochester infielder, whose greatest fame came from scoring seven runs in one game without getting a base hit.

To-day's guest star.

Jim Reed, Topeka (Kans.) Daily Capital: "Why doesn't the Oregon coach who put the basketball officials in the crow's nest back of the backboard plant the whistle-tooters in the stands with the spectators? ....Who ever heard of a spectator missing one from his pew?"

Everton Gains Tie For Lead

LONDON, Feb. 9—(CP Cable). — Everton moved into a first-place tie with Bristol City in the Fooball League Cup qualifying competition Saturday by beating Burnley 3-2, while Bristol City was dropping a 2-1 decision to Swansea.

Only eleven games were played in the Cup competition, which saw Liverpool lose its unbeaten and untied record. Unable to field a full team, Liverpool called on the help of the Irish internationalist, Peter Doherty, who was watching the game from the grandstand.

But despite his presence in the forward line, Liverpool was trounced 6-3 by Blackpool, who moved into second place, one point behind the leaders.

Preston, last year's league and cup winners, improved its position with a 6-0 victory over Chesterfield, but was still five points out of first place.

Half the London league games were postponed, and the only important change in the standings was that Portsmouth broke its second-place tie with the idle West Ham by beating Crystal Palace 3-1. It is three points behind Arsenal, who dropped a 1-0 decision to Aldershot.

In the Scottish Southern League, where only two games were played, Celtic moved into second place by drawing with Third Lanark. Clyde beat Queen's Park 2-1 in the other game.

Week-End Stars

by The Canadian Press.

Syl Apps, Toronto, whose second of two goals for game proved clincher in Leafs 6-4 win over New York Rangers.

Lynn Patrick, Rangers, continued hot scoring pace as he sniped three goals against Toronto's (Turk) Broda.

Charlie Sands, Canadiens, came through with payoff goal as Habitants beat Detroit Saturday, 3-1.

Grant Warwick, Rangers, tallied goal which defeated Chicago, 4-3.

Johnny McCreedy, Toronto, scored marker that toppled Brooklyn and enabled Leafs to sweep week-end assignments.

Frank Brimsek, Boston, who chalked up his third shutout of season as Bruins downed Detroit 3-0. Bill Mosienko, Chicago, paced Hawk attack with two goals and an assist.

WOOD VS. STEEL

The tensile strength of wood, with the grain, is greater than that of structural steel.

Simmons Places A's In Fourth

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., Feb. 9—(AP).—The Philadelphia Athletics who wound up last season in 8th, will finish the coming season in fourth place if they get the breaks and "no worse than fifth, no matter what happens."

That's the starry-eyed prediction of Al Simmons, "Old Bucketfoot," who is now a coach for Connie Mack.

Simmons' optimism wasn't shaken by the fact that the Athletics lost their brightest star, Outfielder Sam Chapman, and their regular second baseman, Benny McCoy, to the army and navy.

"We hit only a point less than the Yankees last season," he explained, "and we lost a lot of games that a little better pitching might have won. I think our hitting will be as good and our pitching better this year.

"Naturally, losing Chapman is going to hurt plenty. He hit .322 and should have had a big year. But McCoy was coming along fast and should have had a big yeer. But we've still got a pretty fair outfield with Bob Johnson, Dee Mills and Mike Kreevich, and this young fellow 'Crash' Davis is a good looking second baseman."

As for the A's pitching, Simmons tabbed the prospects "mighty bright."

He predicted big things for Phil Marchildon, the young Canadian who won 12 games for the A's as a freshman last year.

"He was a little wild and lacked experience, but he learned a lot last year and ought to win 15 games for us this season," Al declared.

56 Rinks Enter Oshawa Bonspiel

OSHAWA, Feb. 9. — Fifty-six members of the Oshawa Curling Club participated in a one-day "local" bonspiel here on Saturday. This was the second half of an event staged two weeks ago for the British War Victims' Fund for which prizes were donated by Oshawa firms and businessmen. The first half of the event was limited to "visiting entries" in order to complete play in a one-day session and Saturday's tournament was closed to outsiders.

Chalking up three wins for a total of 16, Frank Michael's rink took down the first set of prizes, while Ted Colvin's four was next in line, to take second, with three wins for a total of 12. Bill Brownlee's rink won third place in the two-win class, with a total of 17, and Donald Hall was next with two wins for 9. The fifth set of prizes went to W. H. Ross' rinks for the best single win of the day, a ten plus four triumph over J. H. McDiarmid in the third round.

Barron Breaks 13-Year Jinks

PHOENIX, Ariz., Feb. 9—(AP).—The name of Herman Barron, a newcomer to golf fame, was added today to a list of illustrious past winners of the 42-year-old Western Open championship.

To a roll of honor that includes such stars of the game as Hagen, Sarazen, Long Jim Barnes, Macdonald Smith and Chick Evans, the name of this 32-year-old White Plains, N.Y., professional was placed after a sparkling triumph in the tournament finals yesterday.

Leaving the better known pros in an also-ran scramble, Barron wound up his 72-hole climb to the top with rounds of 69, 69, 71, 67—216, which was two strokes better than his nearest competitor, Henry Picard of Oklahoma City.

Lanky E. J. (Dutch) Harrison, Chicago, finished third with 270 and final rounds of 72-70, and Herman Keiser, helping himself to 72 and 74, was one shot back. Lawson Little made a belated last day challenge, with 69-73 for 281, while one of the early leaders in the tournament, Amateur Johnny Dawson, topped his division with 72, 74—282.

Rangers And Dukes Battle To Overtime

TORONTO, Feb. 9.—Young Rangers and Marlboros did little to clear up the final playoff standings of the Big Seven Junior loop as they battled to a 5-to-5 overtime tie in the single game at Maple Leaf Gardens Saturday.

The game, a rugged, bruising struggle, produced thrills galore as each time cracked down in an effort of lift a four-point victory. Al Brownridge, speedy Marlboro forward, was the only serious casualty when he suffered a fractured collar-bone when crashed to the ice by Doug Smylie in the overtime period.

Hershey Bears Whip Providence Reds

NEW YORK, Feb 9.—(CP).— The battle for top honors in the respective divisions of the American Hockey League seemed to be settling down to-day as individual shows for the present leaders following the heavy week-end which saw nine games played.

In the eastern section, Springfield enhanced its leading position by beating Hershey 3-2 in a Saturday game and thereby boosts its lead to 13 points over Providence and New Heaven, tied in second place.

In the western division, Hershey Bears enjoyed a similar position, although splitting its week-end assignments by winning last night over Providence, 5-4. The Bears are three games ahead of both Cleveland and Indianapolis, co-holders of second spot.

Indianapolis Capitals were the only other team to make an appreciable gain as they pulled out two victories in as many days. The Caps toppled the Philadelphia basement dwellers in the eastern section, 5-2, Saturday then scored a 5-2 triumph against New Haven.

Cleveland Dropped Two.

Washington Lions handed Cleveland its second reverse of the week-end 2-0. Saturday, the Indians bowed to New Haven's Eagles 5-3.

In a home and home affair, Pittsburg and Buffalo ended up all even. The Bisons came through with an 8-5 decision last night after Hornets had chalked up a narrow 5-4 verdict the night before.

It took a goal by Fred Thurier in the last minute of play to decide the game in Springfield's favor against Hershey after the teams had waged a close tussle. Hershey twice held the lead only to see Joe Hunt come through on each occasion to put the Indians back on even terms.

The Bears nearly suffered the same fate in their Sunday game with Providence. The Reds came surging from behind with three goals but Hershey managed to withstand the test and made good their early five-goal lead. Bob Gracie, obtained recently from Buffalo, paced the Hershey attack when he performed the hat trick.

The veteran Louis Trudel sent Washington Lions in front against Cleveland in the second place. Alex Singbush tallied goal No. 2 with less than 30 seconds of the game time left.

Indianapolis had to tally three goals in the third period to keep their week-end slate clean. Up to that point, New Haven had held the Caps on even terms at 2-2. Les Douglas scored the clincher and Joe Fisher and Johnny Brown added two more tallies.

Rapid-fire scoring in the third period gave Buffalo a clean-cut win over Pittsburg after two periods of even hockey. The Herd picked up four goals in five minutes and 10 seconds to eke out a 4-4 tie and topple the Hornets 8-5.

Johnny Sherf led the Pittsburg attack with two goals, with the others going to Cecil Dillon, Jim Currie and Jack Howard.

They Menace Canada on Both Coasts

Canada is now menaced directly on both coasts.

The war has spread in a twinkling across two oceans. This is now a WORLD war — Canada stands squarely in the path of conflict.

We who are fighting for freedom have great resources. But the enemy was ready years ahead of us.

Only work, sacrifice and grim determination to battle with all the weapons at our command will bring ultimate triumph.

From those of us unable to bear arms, dollars are needed to forge new tools of victory. We must be prepared to do OUR part — to the utmost.

Come on Canada!

MAIN STREET TOPICS

A NORWOOD SOLDIER.

Pte. Ormonde Hogg, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Hogg of Norwood, will be heard on the radio broadcast on Monday midnight from 12 until 1 a.m. His parents live at Norwood, R.R. 2.

PLOWMEN'S CONVENTION

Peterborough plowmen will be represented at the convention of the Ontario Plowmen's Association in Toronto Tuesday. Members of the directorate, Melville Johnston and Howard Quinn, are leaving tonight, and those going tomorrow will be G. A. Gillespie, R. T. Lillico, Alex Huston, Walter Burns and F. C. Paterson.

TWO DRUNK CHARGES

Changing his plea to guilty this morning an Indian accused of being drunk was fined $10 and $1 costs by Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C. in police court. Another man, facing the same charge, was successful in securing a week's engagement, intimating that he wanted time to secure the money for his fine.

ECHOES FROM ENGLAND.

Many homes in the city and district will be burning the midnight oil at midnight on Monday night to hear the voices on the radio of loved ones who are in far-away England wearing the uniforms of the Glengarry Highlanders. It is understood the messages have been recorded on records and if this is correct the voices should be heard quite distinctly as the records will be broadcast directly from a Canadian station in the CBC chain. CBL at 750 should be fine for local listeners.

KEENE CAR BURNS.

A late model coupe, owned by James Elmhirst of Keen., took fire as he proceeded along the Sixth Line, half a mile below Number 7 Highway, Sunday afternoon. No one was injured in the fire, but the car is a total loss, except for a few parts for salvage.

DAMAGE NOT HEAVY

Cars driven by Norman Lewis, 310 Stewart street and Gordon Whiteside, 512 Park street, were damaged Sunday in a collision at Charlotte and Stewart street, the right front fender of the Lewis car and the front bumper and front left fender of the other machine suffering. Lewis had been travelling north on Stewart street and made a left turn to go west on Charlotte street, as Whiteside also moving west on Charlotte street came along.

SERIOUS FIRE AVERTED

A short circuit in a conduit box at Loblaw's Groceteria might have resulted in serious consequences Saturday night about 11:15 p.m. if it had not been discovered before the staff locked up for the week-end, Chief George Gimblett reported this morning. Two firemen and the Chief were called and they found the conduit pipe and an outlet box red hot. The circuit was cut with a switch but it was still grounded so the fireman electrician cut the wires before everything was put in safe order.

ST. PAUL'S CHOIR ASSISTS.

The coir of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church assisted in the Y.M.C.A. Friendly Hour service last night at which a good attendance was present.

COMMITTEES MEET

Meetings of the fire and light, manufacturers and legal committees are slated for tonight at the city hall in the program of component drafting of the 1942 budget.

SIDE ROADS HEAVY

Rural mail carriers expected slow going along the side roads this afternoon. Provincial and county roads were open to traffic, but the township lines were deeply drifted in long stretches. Sunday's wind from the north had blown the loose snow across fields, tumbling it into the road cuts.

A BUCKHORN SOLDIER.

On the "Greetings from the Beaver Club" radio broadcast on Sunday afternoon from 5 to 5:30, a soldier from Buckhorn sent a greeting to his parents and friends in Buckhorn. He is Lance-Corporal W. E. Wood, and message came through clear as a bell. He reports he is in fine health.

OFF TO A GREAT START.

After a discouraging midwinter weather session, local skiers are off to a fine start in pleasure and competitive skiing, and over the week-end hundreds took advantage of the deep snow for a jaunt on the wooden runners. Skiing conditions were ideal and out at Jackson Park where the trees afforded protection, there was a great mob of girls and boys. Both Bethany and the ski-tow at the Rifle Ranges were liberally patronized.

NO WORK FOR BLIND BOY

The personal secretary of Hon. J. L. Ralston, Minister of National Defence, has replied to a letter from Edwin Wheeler, 21-year-old blind boy of Brown street, Peterborough, to the effect that there is nothing in the armed forces to which Edwin could be assigned but the letter was forwarded to the department of civilian war services. The reply was much the same. It was suggested Edwin try local industry. He is an accomplished typist and has many other abilities.

Marlboros Coming For Hockey Game

Peterborough folk will have an opportunity tomorrow night to see one of the best hockey games of the season and at the same time to make a worthwhile contribution to a most worthy cause, the Milk for Britain Fund conducted by the local Kinsmen's Club.

The Toronto Marlboros, with a team of star players, will be seen in action at Brock Street Rink against the Military Training Centre squad and the game should provide all kinds of fast and clever hockey from two well-balanced outfits. Syl Apps, star centre player of the Toronto Maple Leafs, will referee the game and other members of the Leafs, including their good will ambassador, Red Horner, will be here for the game, anxious to do their bit for the fine cause in behalf of which the fixture has been staged and also to lend aid to the 2nd Victory Loan.

With the proceeds all going to the Milk for Britain fund, and such a stellar attraction as the Marlboros the rink should be packed for this fine hockey spectacle.

Valentine Tea Held By Mission Band

HAVELOCK, Feb. 9.— (ENS).— Despite the inclement weather on Saturday afternoon, there was a good attendance at the afternoon tea in the United church, which was sponsored by Mission Band, with Miss Laurabelle Wing and Mrs. H. Hoard as the conveners. The basement was attractively decorated with red and white streamers, red hearts and gay Valentines. Mrs. George Chiles poured tea at a lace covered table decorated with red candles in silver candleabra and various Valentine novelties. The guests were received at the door by Mrs. W. J. Wilkinson and Mrs. Clare Price and were served at six daintily set little tables by the senior girls of the Mission Band, Misses Elaine Iles, Ruth Wilkinson, Madeline Lews, Helen Price and Stella Wilkinson. Throughout the afternoon soft music was played by Mrs. Harry Watson. The proceeds of the event netted the Band over $14.00.

Chief Draper Is On Trial In Cobourg Court

COBOURG, February 9 — (By Staff Reporter)— D. C. Draper, Chief Constable at Toronto faced a charge of dangerous driving before Judge L. V. O'Connor in County Court here to-day.

The charge was laid following an accident on Highway 2, near Newtonville on September 28 last, in which A. Burton Miller, McDonnel Street, Peterborough and his three sisters, Mrs. Lillian Schneider, and the Misses Ada and Ethel Miller were injured. The women seriously Chief Draper was also a casualty.

On January 22 at Port Hope when the preliminary hearing was held, Chief Draper pleaded not guilty. He was represented by T. N. Phelan, Toronto, who is defending him today, at the conclusion of the hearing Draper was committed for trial at Cobourg to-day and allowed bail of $1,000.

The Crown alleges that Draper cut out of a line of traffic on a long curve while driving towards Toronto and his car collided almost head on with the Miller car which was proceeding East.

Crown Attorney Anderson of Lindsay has been named special Crown Prosecutor and H. R. Deyman, Crown Attorney for Northumland-Durham is assisting Mr. Anderson.

Witness Is Ill.

A wire was read by Mr. Anderson advising that J. K. Hughes, a defence witness was confined to bed with acute lumbago and unable to appear as a witness, counsel for Draper agreed to accept the evidence given by Mr. Hughes at the preliminary hearing.

Wm. F. Thompson, traffic officer at Bowmanville was the first witness for the Crown. There had been a heavy rain an hour before the accident he said but when he arrived the weather was clear, it was still daylight and the pavement was wet.

In describing the position of the two cars, he said the Miller car had the right rear wheel two feet off the road on the south shoulder, and was facing in a south-easterly direction with the right front wheel 10 feet off the road on the shoulder and the left front wheel 4½ feet off the pavement.

The right front wheel of Draper car was embedded in the left front fender of the Miller car and stood at right angles to the road, facing almost due south, and 51 inches south of the road.

The road is 20 feet wide and the only skid mark was behind the Miller car for a distance of 16 feet. The Draper car had not made any skid marks that he could find.

Marks also indicated that the wheels of the Miller car had been shoved south 57 inches by the impact, and to the East for 40 inches.

Photots taken by Bob Holden, Oshawa were admitted as exhibits.

In cross-examination by Mr. Phalen. Constable Thompson said he had concluded that the point of impact had been 34 inches from the south edge of the road. He also admitted that the accident while it was on th curv was also on a straight level stretch of the road about 300 yards long. There was no centre line because the road had been recently resurfaced. There is a curve sign however, he said, indicating to a motorist driving from the east that a curve was ahead.

Ken Siddell, an engineer with the Ontario Department of Highways told of making a plan of the Highway at the scene of the accident. He explained that a gouge mark on the pavement near the south edge of the travelled position had been pointed out by the traffic officer. This gouge mark according to the officer was in his opinion made by the left front wheel of the Miller car.

Describes Mishap.

Burton Miller, the driver of the car which figured in the collision, in describing the mishap, said he was returning from Toronto, about 5.30 on the afternoon of September 28. There was a slight drizzle but visibility was good.

"I noticved the Draper car nosing out from behind about 6 cars and immediatley applied my brakes. There was a collison but by this time I had steered b car off the road, and my right front wheel was riding on the shoulder. I was travelling about 35 miles an hour when I approached the curve and I slowed to about 25 miles an hour."

"When you managed to get out of the car what was the position of your car?" asked Mr. Anderson.

"It was pointing southeast with both front wheels off the road."

"Where was the Draper car?"

"It was at right angles to the road and jammed nto my car just back of the left front wheel."

"Were your tires damaged?"

"Yes—the left front tire had collapsed."

"How were the Draper tires?"

"They were standing up, they had not gone flat," Miller replied.

"How fast was the Draper car travelling?"

"I could not say, because I didn't notice it until it started to nose out."

In cross-examination, Miller said the Draper car could not get back into the north lane because it had not started to pass the car directly in front travelling the same way.

Court adjourned until two o'clock.

Asks For Term In Reformatory

The unusual request that he should be sent to the Ontario Reformatory rather than to the county jail was made in police court this morning by John Coldwell, a transient, after he had pleaded guilty to having been drunk on Saturday night and admitted two previous convictions for the same offence.

Coldwell was found by Officers C. J. McGillen and John Moyes in a snowbank at the rear of the American Hotel on Saturday night and might have frozen to death if the constables had not located and rescued him.

"I would like you to send me to Guelph," he said to Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., this morning. "I want to have my teeth fixed and the dentist at the reformatory will attend to them if you send me there. I will be in much better shape when I come out."

Coldwell added that he had enough money to pay for the materials for artificial teeth and that the reformatory dentist would do the work.

Magistrate Langley complied with the request of the accused and sentenced him to four months definite in the Ontario Reformatory.

Boy Of 17 Fined For Being Drunk

A seventeen-year-old boy appeared before Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., in police court this morning and admitted having been drunk.

"There should be some investigation as to where this boy obtained his liquor," Magistrate Langley commented after asking the boy his age.

"Inquiries are being made," Inspector James F. Reid informed the court.

Magistrate Langley fined the youthful accused $10 and $1.

Y.M.C.A. Dance Adds $100 For War Victims

Just one week short of a year ago, the Saturday Night Club of the Y.M.C.A. staged a dance on behalf of the Peterborough and District British War Victims' Fund which was highly successful, and was responsible for one of the larger contributions so the fund.

Repeating this effort on behalf of the fund on Saturday night, once again, in spite of the bad weather, it turned out to be very successful in every way, for today we are able through it to acknowledge the splendid sum of $100, as a further contribution to help the people of Britain. Mr. and Mrs. Charles Lacheur and Mr. and Mrs. Ian F. McRae were patrons and patronesses for this event, and a group of sailors from the R.C.N. at Toronto, who were in the city for an exhibition game of basketball with a team from the Outboard Marine Manufacturing Co., Ltd., were the guests of the club for the occasion.

Music was supplied by Lloyd Budge and his orchestra, and towards the close of the evening's proceedings, Mr. Charles Lacheur, the president of the Y.M.C.A., presented the secretary of the fund with a cheque for $100 on behalf of the club, whose president in Allen Holmes, and the secretary, Steve Csumrik.

Lily Lake Sunday School.

Last Wednesday, the Lily Lake Sunday School with Miss E. Hancock as convener, held a basket social, preceded by an entertainment program of a varied nature, in the school house on the Second Line of Smith, in the interests of the fund.

Clarence Hancock auctioned off the baskets, and at the same time, the draw was made for a spread which had been made and donated by Mrs. M. M. Young, for which tickets had been on sale for some time.

The winner of the spread proved to be Mrs. George Spence of Lakefield, and in all the splendid sum of $32.50 is reported in our lists today, augmenting the already large total which has come in from the folk in this section of the surrounding district.

Two nice personal donations are listed, and we would wish that this personal concern for the welfare of those needing help in Britain was more widespread.

Gala Night At Omemee.

An effort on the part of the men of Omemee to keep pace with the splendid work their lady folk have been doing for the past two years for the various war charities has been going on for the past few weeks in the sale of tickets at 25c each or five for $1 for a chance to win Ferdinand of Omemee. Ferdinand is a registered bull, and the winning ticket for him will be drawn at the Omemee Arena at the close of a hockey game between Peterborough and Omemee junior teams this coming Friday night. The whole event will be climaxed by a dance in Coronation Hall, and the whole of the proceeds from the three ventures will be divided equally between this fund, the Canadian Red Cross, and the Soldiers' Aid Society which has been doing a real service for the men who are serving the country. Tickets may be procured from any of the merchants in Omemee, and an indicator in front of the Morton Hotel gives up-to-date reports on the progress that is being made in the interests of the three funds.

County Roads All Open After Big Storm

District motor traffic was only temporarily impeded by the fairly heavy snow storm which began Saturday morning and gradually developed considerable depth and nuisance rating before disappearing into the darkness along toward Sunday morning.

Duncan Maciver, county road engineer, informed the Examiner today that all the county roads would be clear by this evening with the likely exception of a part of Ennismore. The county truck and plow crews set out at noon Saturday, and kept going through the night and again yesterday. The Maciver operatives took an early grasp of the snow problem, and just refused to let go until the job was done.

City Engineer Parsons reported that Street Commissioner Burgess started the graders out early Saturday afternoon and had three of them at work Sunday. And three graders can push the snow off Peterborough streets in fast time.

"Our real job is to get the snow entirely off the streets," Mr. Parsons said. "The scraping job is a comparatively simple one because the machines can take care of that, but we need men to shovel the snow from the ridges we have piled up, and all I can see to it is to take some of the men off the west end sewer job."

Alderman Swanston went to Toronto Saturday afternoon, returning Sunday. His account of the trip was that more than forty cars were in difficulty here and there, some of them in the ditch and deep snow, others jammed in collisions, and generally a lot of motoring grief scattered along No. 2 Highway. The fall of snow was much heavier toward Toronto.

Several of the rural couriers said they had been asked by farmers to leave mail at main highway points, indicating that the side roads were blocked, and that traffic was out of the question until a big shovelling job was done.

Farmers in the western section of Otonabee said the township lines were opened yesterlay but they had filled in again during the night, and roads were "blocked tight." The county road was open to Bensfort, but the other main road to Wallace Point was snow-filled this afternoon.

C.N.R. Trains.

Snow hampered C.N.R. lines this morning, locally and in connections The train from Belleville, due at 7.48 o'clock on the new schedule, did not reach Peterborough until twenty minutes to nine, and the noon train from Toronto, due at 12.02 was 1 hour and 55 minutes late.

Railway plows put in the busiest week-end of the winter; in fact they have been comparatively idle until General February took hold of the winter and tangled transportation.

De Nure Lines.

De Nurse bus lines were slowed down to several hours behind their regular arrivals last night. The Peterborough-Trenton bus which ordinarily follows the Trent river south from Stirling through Frankford, switched to the provincial highway into Brighton to-day. Drivers reported heavy snow in all directions, but the buses got through to their destinations.

C.P.R. "War" Time.

Trains through Peterborough this morning missed the up-beat of the new war-time schedule which went into effect at 2 a.m.

Snow, extra trains plus plows, and weather conditions generally caused two hour delays on the night express and its companion shuttling in from the east.

The night train from Toronto to Ottawa, which was due here at 1.35 a.m., an hour earlier than the former schedule, did not arrive until 3.45 o'clock.

The west bound passenger train from Ottawa, due at 5 am., pulled into the local station at 7.20, and that dislocation of the time table held up the local to Toronto.

The local should have left at 7.10 a.m. (put that one in your hat band) did not get away until 7.47. Bruce Scott, day agent at the C.P.R. station, said traffic was heavy this morning, and has been steadily increasing since Christmas.

Mel Jamieson, uptown agent, told the Examiner that in spite of recent publicity of the time changes, he answered at his home yesterday something like twenty-five telephone enquiries, chiefly about the two west bound trains this morning.

Police To Aid Spitfire Fund

The Peterborough police department launched its drive for a Peterborough contribution to the Canadian Police second Spitfire Fund campaign at a meeting Saturday night when arrangements were made for the local effort.

Detective Sergant W. E. Meagher was elected chairman of the committee and Inspector James F. Reid was chosen as secretary-treasurer.

It was decided that the drive would take the form of a combined dance and draw, to be held on the night of April 19 in the drill hall at the Military Training Centre, if suitable arrangements can be made for the use of that building.

The prizes for the draw are being donated by the police themselves. They have decided to subscribe $200 to be offered to the public in the form of Victory Bonds or War Savings Certificates. The officers and men of the department are paying for these bonds out of their own pockets as their contribution to the second Spitfire Fund.

The first prize will be a $100 Victory Bond, the second a $50 bond, the third $25 in War Savings Certificates, the fourth $10 in War Savings Certificates, and the next three prizes will be $5 in War Savings Certificates.

It was decided that the tiskets for the dance and draw will be $1 each, admitting a couple to the dance. They will go on sale almost immediately.

The local police raised over $2,000 for the first Canadian Police Spitfire Fund.

400 A.R.P. Wardens Take 1st Lecture

Four hundred Air Raid Precaution volunteers for Peterborough and immediate suburbs were given their first lecture in the basic course for A.R.P. workers in the Lyceum on Sunday afernoon by W. J. Scott, K.C., Ontario Fire Marshall. Under the command of Lt.-Col. Max Sloan and an able committee, the city has been completely organized first into wards under chief wardens and then into divisions with a chief at the head of each division and a number of wardens.

The course will take four weeks, with a lecture every Sunday afternoon at 2.15 in the Lyceum. Mr. Scott outlined the formation of the A.R.P. and also discussed the organization at the inaugural lecture. Mayor James Hamilton presided, and following the lecture the class went to the Capitol Theatre, where Manager Art Cauley had held over the picture, "March of Time," which showed what happened when air raids strike and what to do and what not to do.

Three Honored At Wesley Annual Meeting

Wesley United Church held their annual congregational meeting recently in the Orange Hall. Following the transaction of business the members of the congregation and other friends of the community gathered to pay their respects to three members of the community.

The first was in the form of a presentation to Mrs. J. A. Northey of a beautiful walnut end table. For many years Mrs. Northey has been assistant organist of the chuch and for the last year has accepted the entire responsibility of supplying the music each Sunday. Mrs. Northey has, of necessity, given up her duties as organist, and in a well-worde daddress read by Mrs. Russel Davis, the congregation expressed their appreciation to Mrs. Nothey for her sacrifice and co-operation.

Two young men of the community, George Sage and Roger Armstrong, who have enlisted were then asked to come forward and were presented each with a lovely zipper-bound coupy of the New Testament and a purse of money. In the address of presentation, read by Willie Pearson, the sentiments of all were expressed as the boys were wish the best fo luck and an ever present knowledge of God's presence and guidance wherever they are called to serve.

The evening was fittingly concluded when the ladies of the community served refreshments, after which the gathering rose and sang the National Anthem.

30 Cars Abandoned Near Bowmanville

COBOURG, Feb. 9 —(Special)— Motorists from Toronto today report more than 30 cars abandoned on Highway 2, due to snow conditions, between Oshawa and Bowmanville, a huge transport was reported upside down in the ditch.

Highway 28 from Peterborough to Port Hope is clear but the northwest wind has whipped snow drifts across the road on the five miles east and west strip near the city, plows are busy and motorists should have no trouble getting through.

Several Peterborough Soldiers Tonight On Midnight Broadcast

In many homes of Peterborough and district radios will be tuned to Radio Station CBL in Toronto tonight between 12 o'clock midnight and one a.m. from which will be heard a group of Canadians now in England on active service. The recording was made in Britain and brought to this country for broadcast. Many members of the Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry Highlanders from the city and district will be heard for the first time since they left Canadian shores in midsummer.

Soldiers on the program will broadcast greetings to members of their families in Canada. Although the Examiner has published lists of names of some of the men on the broadcast, there are probably many more whose names have not been published. This fact is compensated by the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation sending out cards to the next of kin of these men advising them of the broadcast.

It is expected the program will virtually amount to a Highlander night on the air judging from the number of men from the city and district who will be heard.

In addition to the names already published, the following names of men to be heard tonight have been phoned in today:

Pte. Ralph MacKenzie King Tulley, Cpl. W. M. Mackenzie, Pte. W. C. Sharpe, Sergt. William "Bud" Clarke, former member of Peterborough police force; Pte. Fred Drummond, Cpl. Dave Best, Pte. A. E. Bailey, Pte. Walter Cox, Pte. Jack Peel.

Tuesday night from midnight to 1 a.m. more greetings from members of the Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry Highlanders serving overseas will be broadcast over CBL. The names of Peterborough men to be heard include:

Price Ceilings

He was of the opinion that graders were inclined to err on the side of over-caution, knowing that the cheese they graded might be gone over again in Montreal. Said he, "We had cheese turned down here that subsequently passed in Montreal. If the grader has to make himself safe, he's going to be very careful. He was of the opinion the grader shouldn't know whose cheese he was grading and pointed out it was the custom in New Zealand to take the plugs to the grader in a separate room.

"The inference is that the cheese grader might be influenced by certain conditions which he knew existed at the factory," injected Mr. Joss. Further discussion brought out opinion that grading could be done in a separate room locally if it was felt desirable, but no action was taken on the matter.

Commenting further J. A. Murray, District Dairy Instructor, suggested the best plan was to make the cheese of such quality there was no question about its grade.

Salary Increase

When it came to the question of appointing a milk tester for 1942 the retiring tester, Thomas Fry, recalled he had been working overtime owing to the extended season and claimed he wouldn't consider the position again unless he received more money. The Association got around this by leaving the testing with the dairy instructor for the period from January to March.

Under existing agreements (with Britain) District Agricultural representative Ian MacLeod saw no danger of any over-production with its resultant price slump. He told the gathering that both Canada and the United States would probably be asked to supply even larger quantities of food to Britain next year. "If you give the producer a decent price it's the best stimulant for production you can get," he added. Cheese production in Northumberland County in December, 1941, was 142,000 pounds or 134,000 pounds above the same period in 1940. He felt the farmer needed an extra two cents for cheese this year to take care of added production costs. Pointing to the 14 per cent increase in production in Northumberland County J. A. Murray asserted cheese brought a lot of money into the county "approximately $750,000.00 last year" he said. Only one-half the factories in his district were making whey butter he confided, put their total production was upwards of 65,000 pounds. Cheese showed very good results getting an average score for the district of 93.475, and turning to the question of grading he commented "I believe the grader puts the cheese right where they belong...we fought for local grading and I would hate to see it go." He strongly urged the producers to continue grading locally.

Officers Named

Following the election of officers a motion was passed authorizing the treasurer to invest $300.00 of the Association's surplus in Victory Bonds. They also moved to pay $15 towards the expenses of all presidents who attended the annual convention in Toronto on Feb. 17 and 18th. The motion was subsequently changed to include only those presidents who were present at the meeting and the voting delegates Hector Arnold, Roy Walker, G. G. Stephens, Earl McAdam and George McCubbin. J. A. Murray presided for the election of officers which resulted as follows:—President, Hector Arnold (Crow Bay factory); vice president, Roy Walker (Menie factory); directors, F. W. Barnum (Rylstone); George McCubbin (Norham); George S. Vanvolkenburg (Woodland); Percy Oddie (Brae); H. E. MacColl (Wooler); Earl McAdam (Hoards); secretary-treasurer, M. C. West; auditors, Ian MacLeod and J. A. Murray.

THE STARS SAY . . . .
By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Tuesday, February 10

THE LUNAR transits ruling on this day point to harmonious and profitable relations in all contacts and interests of life, excepting possibly in connection with the public groups or social welfare bodies where there is need for tact and diplomacy rather than forced issues. Otherwise there should be encouragement for all manner of satisfactory fulfillments in which personality, efficiency, charm, and graciousness should be brought to bear, even on very ambitious objectives. But shun extravagance and the squandering of substance, whether financial, emotional or of the energies. Travel, change and writings flourish and the young are especially favored.

Those whose birthday it is may be confronted by a splendid year for accomplishments of high aims and aspirations, whether these be financial business, social, cultural, sentimental or aims for power and prestige. In all such quests the personal appeal is a strong factor for attaining results, with finesse, grace, charm or other methods rather than force. But this might be overdone through extravagance of the funds—a sort of indulgence or excess—of the energies or emotions as well as more sordid stresses. There should be gain through travel, change, or intellectual expression.

A child born on this day should be efficient, ambitious, with both business as well as personal appeal and powers of broad scope. It will be benevolent, hospitable, ambitious but likely to overstep itself by extravagance and overacting.

Efficient Typing Studied at Home

Poor Typing Business Handicap

You can't hide poor typing in business! Your mistakes tell everyone you're not trained, you haven't learned the touch system.

As you learn it at home—why handicap yourself? With a learner's keyboard chart and a few simple instructions, it doesn't take long to be a good touch typist.

Tested by an employer on business-letter rules you'd have them down pat! No abbreviations, except "Mr." You'd spell out "President," "Street," "Company," "Illinois."

Where an abbreviation is allowed, like "C.O.D.," you wouldn't divide it at the end of a line or put spaces between letters and periods. Nor would you divide a word like "amount"; one-letter syllables look odd.

You'd avoid amateurish mistakes—such as spacing before commas and colons! If you did make an error, you wouldn't type over it. You'd erase it neatly first.

Our 32-page booklet shows how to touch-type according to modern business requirements and is helpful as a foundation for a business college course. Has learner's keyboard chart, exercises and speed drills; rules for typing business, social letters.

For your copy of "Teach Yourself Touch Typewriting" send 15 cents in coins or stamps to the Examiner, Home Service, Peterborough. Be sure to write plainly your name, address, and the name of booklet.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

WRITTEN FOR THE EXAMINER

By SHEPARD BARCLAY

"The Authority on Authorities"

WHY THEY FAVOR IT

WHEREAS MANY advanced players favor the Blackwood slam convention, because it keeps the opponents in the dark regarding the number of aces held by the entire side, others prefer the Culbertson four-five No-Trump convention for just the reverse reason. In making clear to everybody whether all aces are held by the entire side or not, it also enables the partner of the 4-No Trumps caller to know how many aces he has. With the Blackwood, only one partner is in position to bid the slam safely or refuse to, but there are many cases in which the other one may safely decide when the Culbertson method is used.

North: ♠ K Q J; ♥ K Q 4 2; ♦ K Q J 10 3; ♣ 5
West: ♠ 6 2; ♥ A 8 7 6; ♦ 8 4 2; ♣ K 9 7 6
East: ♠ 10 7 5; ♥ J 10; ♦ 9 7 5; ♣ 10 8 4 3 2
South: ♠ A 9 8 4 3; ♥ 9 5 3; ♦ A 6; ♣ A Q J

(Dealer: South. Both sides vulnerable.)

	South	West	North	East
1.	1 ♠	Pass	3 ♦	Pass
	3 ♠	Pass	4 ♠	Pass
	4 NT	Pass	6 ♠
2.	1 ♠	Pass	3 ♦	Pass
	3 ♠	Pass	4 ♠	Pass
	4 NT	Pass	5 ♣	Pass
	5 ♠	Pass	(?)

There was no guess at all to the No. 1 bidding above, where the Culbertson four-five No Trump convention was in use. There the 4 No Trumps announced possession of either three aces, or else two aces and the king of a previously bid suit. Since North had the kings of both bid suits, he knew his partner had three aces. After thinking a bit, he could see that it didn't make any difference what three aces South had, so he promptly bid 6-Spades, knowing the opponents figured to take only one trick, with the missing ace.

At several other tables of the duplicate where this hand was dealt, the Blackwood convention was used, as with the second bidding given. There South's 4-No Trumps told nothing about his aces, only asked North about his, the 5-Clubs reply meaning "none." So South signed off at 5-Spades, and North had to guess. He could not tell whether the slam invitation indicated three aces, or perhaps only two with fine distribution. In some of these cases North guessed that a pass was best, in others that 6-Spades was better, but in each case he guessed.

Tomorrow's Problem

North: ♠ 7 4 2; ♥ 8 5 3; ♦ A K J 6 5; ♣ 5 4
West: ♠ None; ♥ A K 10 9 6; ♦ 9 8 4; ♣ J 10 9 8 2
East: ♠ 9 8 6 5 3; ♥ J; ♦ Q 10 7 3 2; ♣ K 7
South: ♠ A K Q J 10; ♥ Q 7 4 2; ♦ None; ♣ A Q 6 3

(Dealer: South. East-West vulnerable.)

If you get into the wild contract of 3-No Trumps on the South cards of this deal and West leads the heart K, followed by the club J, which East ducks, how would you play for the contract?

Scorched Earth In Malaya

Before the British retreated from Kuala Lumpur, capital and rubber centre of the federated Malay states, they set fire to every factory and plant that would be of possible use to the enemy. Here is a blazing rubber factory that was put to the torch by British troops. Japanese columns finally won the peninsula, but at terrific cost.

Cottage Robbers Get 10, 5 Years

LINDSAY, Feb. 9 — (ENS). — Harvey Coones of Lindsay and Wilfrid Ferguson of Eldon Township on Friday received sentences of ten and five years respectively in Kingston Penitentiary on three charges of breaking and entering a number of cottages in the district around Balsam Lake, and with the theft of chattels therefrom. The accused pleaded guilty on all three charges.

Provincial Constable McBrien, who conducted the investigation, was the only witness. According to information fully twenty cottages were entered in the Balsam Lake area over a period of two months by the accused. Not only were the contents of some of the cottages carried off, but great destruction was wrought in many of the homes. In one house French doors and windows were broken and a large oak door was completely split in two sections. One of these homes, built by a London citizen, costing many thousands of dollars, was badly damaged and in all the cottages visited the contents were thrown about in great disorder.

Officer McBrien traced footprints in the snow from the different cottages visited, and he followed the prints across the ice to the other side of Balsam Lake and to the home of Ferguson, near Victoria Road, where some of the loot was found. Later the officer followed certain clues, and with other officers made an early morning raid on a hut near Schepeler where he found both Coones and Ferguson with some of the loot in their possession. When the accused were brought to Lindsay, Ferguson made a voluntary signed statement in which he admitted complicity in the crimes charged. He also told where certain parts of the loot were placed. Ferguson was convicted of theft a year ago, and was given two years' suspended sentence, while Coones served a penitentiary term back in 1930, after being convicted on a theft charge.

Yank Counter Goes Through.

The Japanese, the War Department communique disclosed, gained some ground in an infiltration thrust against MacArthur's right, anchored on Manila Bay. They were thrown back in a sharp counter-attack.

Details of the heavy fighting on the left, or China Sea, flank were not disclosed, but it is on that side of the peninsula that the Japanese have been using suicide detachments in a costly and futile attempt to turn MacArthur's line.

In their methodical blasting at the harbor forts, the Japanese apparently were relying on concealed batteries on the southern or Cavite side of the bay. It was believed here that the enemy was using 155-millimetre guns, which throw a shell of some six inches in diameter and weighing upward of 100 pounds.

Eggs Plentiful 30 to 35 Cents

February caught up with the local produce market Saturday delivering an east wind with snow that must have made the motoring home for farmers much heavier than their coming. The attendance was fair in the face of unfavorable weather, and the outdoor vendors earned every cent they took in.

Eggs were the most plentiful staple offered in the big hall, with prices 30 to 35 cents. Butter was 36 to 38 cents, chickens 25 to 28 cents, and a few turkeys were noticed at 30 cents for hens and 28 for gobblers. Some of the older chickens were down to 23 and 24 cents, but they were comparatively few.

Beef was 16 and 18 cents as quoted by H. Gill, pork 18 and 20 cents and lamb 20 and 22 cents. Potatoes were $1.60 and $1.75.

Norman Moncrief's apple prices were: Northern Spies 60 and 70 cents a peck, Salomes 60c, Starks and Scotch Winters 50c and Ganos 40 cents. Herb Doig's vegetable prices were: White Star potatoes $1.75, carrots and parsnips 35c for six quart baskets, beets 25c, onions 45c and Talman Sweet apples 40c a peck.

Arthur Stenson offered White Star potatoes at $1.65, turnips at 80 cents a bushel, carrots 35c for six quarts, beets and parsnips 25c for six quart baskets and onions 35c.

J. Healey, Asphodel, quoted White Star potatoes at $1.75, eggs 30 to 35 cents and turkeys at 28 and 30 cents a pound.

The market was confined to every day fare, with prices generally at the same levels as a week ago.

SINGAPORE LINES EASE AS JAPS POUR IN TROOPS

CCF Beats Meighen,-Mitchell Back

TORONTO, Feb. 10 (CP)—Two of the hardest fought Federal by-election campaigns ever enacted in Ontario had these aftermaths today:

1. The defeat of the Canadian Conservative Leader, Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen by a comparatively unknown high school teacher, Joseph Noseworthy, first C.C.F. candidate ever elected in the province.

2. The election of the Dominion's newly-appointed Labor Minister, Hon. Humphrey Mitchell, and his subsequent atttack of what is believed to be pneumonia.

Voters in the highly industrialized riding of Welland which takes in Niagara Falls, Welland and Fort Erie, endorsed Prime Minister Mackenzie King's selection of Mr. Mitchell by returning the veteran Hamilton Labor man over two other opponents—Douglas Watt, Independent candidate, and Mark Kriluck, C.C.F.

Overshadowing this, however, was the upset caused by Mr. Noseworthy in York South—a constituency located on the northwestern outskirts of Toronto and comprising the town of Weston, the village of Forest Hill, where there are many wealthy homes, and the township of York.

York South, a traditional Conservative seat, gave Mr. Noseworthy a majority of more than 4,500 over his opponent, who twice held the Prime Ministership of Canada and resigned his seat in the Senate, where he was Opposition leader, to contest the election.

Considerable Edge

Complete official figures for the 211 polls late last night gave Mr. Noseworthy 16,464 votes and Mr. Meighen 11,979.

Conceding his oponent's election two hours after the polls closed, Mr. Meighen in a statement declared he was "defeated by a part-

80 Cities, 48,000 Towns Taken In 10 Weeks, Storms No Barrier

(By EDDY GILMORE.)

MOSCOW, Feb. 10—(AP).—The Red Army, having cleared three provinces in the moscow area of invaders, pushed on today in the face of stubborn Nazi resistance and the Germans' own version of the scorched-earth policy—applying the torch to each village and settlement with which they are forced to surrender.

With the Nazis completely driven out of Moscow Province and Tula and Ryaban provinces to the south, Russian divisions were reported to have freed a large portion of the Kalinin region northwest of the capital, and to be continuing their advance against withdrawing German columns around Leningrad, east of Smolensk and in the Ukraine.

On the Kalinin front, the Germans for the first time used ski troops in large numbers. Soviet dispatches declared 300 were killed of a force of 600 which tried to break the Russians' hold on a populated place.

The Soviet Information Bureau announced recapture of seven populated places, without giving specific names and sectors.

The Red Army liberated 80 cities and more than 48,000 towns and villages between Nov. 29 and Feb. 7.

Only the Kalinin front, 95 miles northwest of Moscow, was named in the mid-day communique, which said a Russian column killed 400 German officers and men in two assaults there and then repulsed a

Van Of U.S. Navy Bolsters Route To East

BOSTON, Feb. 10 (AP)—The arrival at Wellington, New Zealand, of the vanguard of a United States naval force was reported today to the Christian Science Monitor by its correspondent, Joseph C. Harsch, who described also the landing of American reinforcements at "way stations along the route" from Pearl Harbor.

In a copyrighted story, Harsch told of his landing at Wellington from a destroyer, described as the first unit of Admiral Herbert F. Leary's American forces. He said the landfall was reached even before the public announcement of Admiral Leary's appointment to command all Allied forces in the Anzac area.

The Monitor's correspondent said he travelled part of the way from Pearl Harbor with the forces that attacked the Japanese mandated Gilbert and Marshall Islands.

Then he changed to another unit by breeches buoy in mid-Pacific.

Thereafter, he said, he "spent

Tip Germans Massing Biggest Push

Aimed At Caucasus To Join Japs, Timed For March

(By THOMAS F. HAWKINS.)

BERNE, Feb. 10 (AP)—The German army is making a gigantic new effort to stabilize the front in Soviet Russia in preparation for a spring offensive concentrated in the Mediterranean and to the east, usually well informed persons, with Axis connections said today.

The Caucasus, Egypt, Iraq and the Suez Canal were laid down by these observers as ultimate goals of a Nazi drive which, they said, likely would bring Bulgaria into action and involve Turkey.

This is the critical month.

Much depends on Germany's ability to solidify her positions in northern and central Russia before thawing snows, mud and rain make those sectors difficult for major operations.

The weather in the Mediterranean basin will be at its best in March when, it is stated, the offensive is expected to break in full blast. In one sense, it may have begun already with Field Marshal Rommel's comeback in Libya aided by considerable reinforcements.

Greatest Blitz Yet?

Foreign observers here who have talked with persons recently in Germany and the Balkans believe the Axis command has plans in the making surpassing the scope of any previous campaign and based on this strategy:—

1. To continue withdrawing under Red Army pressure on the central and northern Russian fronts to bases closer to supply centres, striving for a fixed, positional front.

2. To make every effort to regain lost ground in the southern Ukraine while pressing through the Crimea and the Donets Basin toward the Caucasus.

3. To work toward the objective of ultimate unification of columns designated to push against Egypt with those aimed at the Caucasus, Iran and Iraq.

4. If possible, with Bulgarian assistance, to seek from Turkey at least transit rights for a third column as well as water rights for transit into the Black Sea.

This gigantic scheme, foreign observers believe, is based on an even

Sixpence a Day Nest Egg For British Tommies With Less Deductions, Extra For Kiddies

LONDON, Feb. 10 — (CP). — Prime Minister Churchill today announced a "nest egg for use after the war" of sixpence a day for non-commissioned ranks in the Army and Navy would be set aside by the Government.

He said the plan which would cost more than £30,000,000 a year would not prejudice the granting of a war bonus.

Other allowances he announced to the House of Commons were an increase of a shilling weekly for all children of soldiers and sailors, at a total cost of £5,000,000 yearly; and a reduction of three shillings and sixpence in a man's compulsory family allotment from his pay, with the Exchequer increasing the family's resources by the same amount, at a total cost of £17,500,000 yearly.

A White Paper issued later in the day said the nest egg for women members of the forces will be fourpence daily. The total concessions will increase cash resources of a soldier's wife with three children, on the lowest rates, to the equivalent of $11.80 a week, compared with the pre-war rate of $8.20.

Hail Of Aussie Fire Over Straits Foiled By Japs Barges Of Steel

(By SERGT. IAN FITCHITT.)

SINGAPORE, Feb. 9—(Delayed)—(AP).—The military position on Singapore island by late afternoon could only be described as serious.

Enemy landings followed the smashing barrage which grew to a crescendo from 10 p.m. Sunday following an afternoon of destructive shelling and mortar fire.

Shortly after dark Sunday night some of our searchlights were knocked out. They were our only means of observation until the moonrise at 1 a.m.

Our strongest-held positions on the coast running west from the Kranji estuary were left completely unmolested but on either flank the fire was poured in, making the approach of troops holding those areas difficult.

Towards 11 p.m., the enemy started getting ashore.

No sooner were the first Japanese landings engaged than the enemy started to pour in in "hordes"—as a battalion commander put it.

Our artillery and machine-gunners were sweeping the straits with fire all this time and also concentrating on the beach opposite, but the enemy seemed to be in strength. Meanwhile, his gunfire was crashing into our positions.

It was a solid drumfire which went on four hours without cease.

Bullets Glance Off.

The colonel of a West Australian machine-gun battalion told me he thought that the enemy was using steel troop landing craft. He had report after report from his gunners that they saw their bullets striking flashes of flame as they hit the steel sides of the boats.

How the enemy got them down is uncertain. Possibly he embarked his troops from a p[illegible]t farther north

Invaders Believed 10 Miles From Base Itself Paying Bloody Toll For Each Inch; Dive Bombers, Barrage Rage Without Halt

LONDON, Feb. 10—(CP).—Gloom pervaded London today as reports from Singapore told of the grave situation of defenders of that important base, but authoritative quarters believed earlier suggestions that the Japanese had penetrated as far as Singapore and attacked the radio station in the city itself were incorrect.

Latest reports, these quarters said, place the Japanese about 10 miles from the city.

Reuters, which has kept constantly tuned to the Singapore station, said it went off the air at 12.30 p.m., London time (7.30 a.m., E.D.T.)

Japanese poured men onto the island along a two-mile front between Sungei Mandai and Sungei Kranji.

An Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Singapore today said the defenders had begun to apply a scorched earth program with the blowing up of all oil tanks and the firing of all rubber, pineapple and other factories in the northwest area of the island.

Russian Edge In Artillery Gives Hun Shelling Of Lives

(By GLADWIN HILL.)

NEW YORK, Feb. 10.—(AP)—"Fame," Prime Minister Churchill told the Royal Canadian Artillery recently, "awaits the commander in this war restores artillery to its its prime importance upon the battle- who in this war restores artillery to ousted by heavily armored tanks."

With the German blitzkreig deprived of its essential co-ordination between planes and tanks, the fighting in Russia has boiled down to ground warfare, basically a battle of artillery, and superiority in this fundamental has enabled the Russians to push the Germans back.

The recapture of Mozhaisk was brought about by artillery. "Big guns blasted away at the Nazi night and day, never giving them a rest," dispatches said.

"The other day," a German soldier wrote home—in a letter that never got mailed—"we were shelled by the Russians. Our headquarters receive a direct hit, and many officers were killed."

A German correspondent who had been at the home front reported that the Russian artillery fire was so intense that they had not dared even to stick their heads out of a dugout for three solid days.

"The Russian gave us no respite," another German soldier wrote, "They keep up terrific artillery fire."

What is the secret of the Russians' artillery success?

There are three main points of possible competition in artillery: the guns themselves; their distribution among various types and sizes; and the way they are used.

It is doubtful that the Russians have any radical new "secret weapon" gun. For generations artillery has been a pretty standardized affair from country to country, like automobiles and ships. Armies keep up with each others' ordnance developments, and even stick pretty closely together in the matter of gun sizes.

A standard light gun is the 37-millimetre (about an inch and a half). It was once considered a good anti-tank gun, but lately has proved too light.

The next major size bracket is the 75-millimetre class (about three inches), the size of France's famous first Great War gun. Then there is the 105-millimetre, a staple of the United States, German and Russian armies. Above this, the armies have various sizes, running up to 16 inches and more.

In these basic types Russia does not differ radically from other countries, with one significant qualification. In several size brackets she has guns slightly bigger than what might be called the standard.

She has 37-millimetre guns—but she also has a 46-millimetre. In the

Hint Coalition for Ontario

Other Views See Tories Agreeing To Extra Year To Save Vote

TORONTO, Feg. 10—(CP).—The question of whether the Ontario Government will prolong its life for another year; coalesce with the Conservatives or go to the country for a new mandate is one that will be settled during the course of the Legislative session opening tomorrow.

The session, the seventh of the 20th Legislature, officially is the last for the Hepburn Government elected in 1937 for a five-year term. The Government has 63 members to the Conservatives' 21.

Consent of the Conservatives is necessary if the Government is to extend its term for another year. Because of the war emergency and to avoid the cost of an election, the Government may just possibly seek this consent.

A coalition government is another possibility. Premier Hepburn and the Opposition leader, Lt.-Col. George A. Drew, have been more or less in harmony in criticizing the Federal Government on its conduct of the war and may join together for the purpose of accentuating their criticism.

If such an eventuality occurs no doubt Col. Drew and two or more of his colleagues would be invited into the Cabinet. Among those mentioned in recent rumors are Leopold Macaulay, financial critic for the Conservatives, and T. L. Kennedy, party whip.

Ontario, as far as it can be ascertained, has never had a coalition. However, the Liberal Government of Manitoba, headed by Premier John Bracken, already has set a precedent in this respect by granting Cabinet posts to members of the Opposition.

The possibility of an election, despite Premier Hepburn's professed opposition to elections during wartime, cannot be ruled out completely, however.

The fact that the two candidates —Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen and John Watt— who had the active support of the Premier in yesterday's

China Chief In New Delhi For Parley, Bodes Japan No Good

NEW DELHI, India, Feb. 10 —(CP).—Fuller collaboration in the united nations' cause by the 850,000,000 inhabitants of China and India—one-third of the world's population—apparently was taking form today through the visit here of Gen. Chiang Kai-Shek.

What specific mission brought China's war leader and the united nations' supreme commander in the China war theatre here with his staff to confer with Indian officials was not disclosed.

Lord Linlithgow, Viceroy of India, however, said the meeting set the seal on the comradeship-in-arms of China and India and that Japan would learn to her sorrow that it "bodes our enemy no good."

Apart from his key post in the united nations' high command, Chiang has tremendous stakes in defence of Burma and India against the Japanese invaders driving toward Rangoon from Thailand.

Rangoon is the sea gate to the Burma Road, China's last transport route to the outer world, and India may become a second, alternative avenue for the foreign supplies China's fighting millions need.

Chinese forces already are battling the enemy alongside Indians and British Imperials in Burma, and Chiang referred to this in a statement pledging "our friendship and co-operation in defeating the common foe, prepared to defeat aggression and insure victory for the democratic front."

The defence of Rangoon is expected to be at the head of the list for discussions, both political and military, because of the urgency for keeping the Burma Road open.

Work already is in progress on a road southward through Tibet from Chungking to join the Indian railway system in northeastern Assam and this is expected also to be reviewed. If this route were opened, China's heavy reliance on the Burma Road could be lessened considerably.

British Lines Pierced, Withdraw

Defenders Make Japs Pay Terrible Toll; RAF Far Outnumbered

(By C. YATES McDANIEL)

SINGAPORE, Feb. 10 (AP)—Japanese troops were pouring onto this beleaguered island today and maintained heavy pressure against battered British Imperials, forced to fall back before the guns and airplane attacks of the invaders, British headquarters announced today.

It was announced that Japanese forces made further landings on Singapore Island during the night, sending reinforcements to the advance guards which had crossed Sunday night and established fighting bases.

The communique also stated the invaders were continuing the familiar infiltration tactics by which they forced British forces to withdraw time and again in the battle of Malaya.

A communique said there had been "some further withdrawal of our forces" in spite of stubborn resistance.

"During last night the enemy succeeded in making further landings on the island in the area between Sungei Mandai and Sungei Kranji," the communique said.

The Sungei Mandai region is immediately west of the causeway while Sungei Kranji is nearly two miles west of Sungei Mandai.

No Let Up in Dive Bombing

As in a special communique issued last night, the British headquarters said the Japanese had maintained continuous dive-bombing and machine-gun attacks on Imperial forward areas in the western sector as well as high-level bombing attacks by large formations of planes.

"At the same time, he has maintained heavy pressure and has continued to infiltrate in this area," the comunique issued today said.

"Despite stubborn resistance there has been some further withdrawal of our forces.

"On the north coast of the island there was some enemy machine-gun fire during the night and slight enemy shelling."

It was learned here that the Japanese, confronted last night with the bitter and savage hand-to-hand opposition of the British Imperials, had reinforced their advance units with strong forces.

The Japanese apparently were pouring everything they had into the battle, pressing the Imperials with dive-bomber and aerial machine-gun attacks, artillery bombardment and the crafty infiltration.

But the defenders were exacting a fearsome toll of blood and men for Federal by-elections were defeated may prompt Mr. Hepburn to go to the country to seek endorsation of the policy he pursued.

As if to support this possibility, Attorney-General Gordon Conant announced yesterday he would introduce an amendment to the Active Service Elections Act for the purpose of granting a franchise to those Ontario residents in the armed forces who are under the statutory voting age of 21.

Premier Hepburn has given little indication of what the Legislative program for the new session is to be. The Government may proceed with its previously announced intention of setting up a select committee to investigate the distribution and sale of Hydro-Electric power with the view of establishing a flat rate throughout the province.

The motion was entered under the name of Works Minister Farquhar Oliver but never was called when the Legislature finished its work last Easter. At that time, Mr. Oliver indicated he intended to re-introduce the matter at another session.

There will be but a slight change in the personnel of the Legislature. Robert Laurier, who served his first term last year as Minister of Mines, resigned last week in protest of Premier Hepburn's support of Mr. Meighen. He will continue to sit for Ottawa East but will not be located along Treasury row.

Archie Haines (Lib., Lincoln) has resigned his seat in protest over the granting of a new beer licence in St. Catharines. His resignation leaves six vacancies in the House. The others have been caused by deaths and resignations.

Fo. Allan Lamport (Lib., Toronto St. David's), Major Colin Campbell (Lib., Sault Ste. Marie) and Lieut. David A. Croll (Lib., Windsor-Walkerville) are all on active service, the latter two overseas. Fo. Lamport is stationed at a school in the province and may be able to attend some of the sittings of the new session.

HOW TO RELIEVE PILE TORTURE
QUICKLY AND EASILY

If you are troubled with itching piles or rectal soreness, do not delay treatment and run the risk of letting this condition become chronic. Any itching or soreness or painful passage of stool is nature's warning and proper treatment should be secured at once.

For this purpose get a package of Hem-Roid from McDermid & Jury or any druggist and use as directed. This formula which is used internally is a small, easy to take tablet will quickly relieve the itching and soreness and aid in healing the sore tender spots. Hem-Roid is pleasant to use, is highly recommended, and it seems the height of folly for any one to risk a painful and chronic pile condition when such a fine remedy may be had at such a small cost.

If you try Hem-Roid and are not entirely pleased with the results, your druggist will gladly return your money —(Advt.)

There was speculation, too, that Chiang's visit presages formation of an Asiatic alliance to counter Japan's grandiose co-prosperity sphere aspirations. Chiang is widely regarded as the best-fitted leader in the Orient to galvanize India's political parties into realistic action.

Chiang left Chungking with Sir Archibald Kerr, former British Ambassador to China, who has been designated as Envoy to Russia, and en route through Burma conferred with Lt.-Gen. T. J. Hutton, commander of British forces there.

How long he had been here before his presence was announced last night was kept secret.

British sources in London compared Chiang's visit to New Delhi with those of Prime Minister Churchill to Washington and of Foreign Secretary Eden to Moscow.

on the mainland and sailed them down the coast after dark.

These landings soon had our forward troops in trouble and they had to fall back to a level line. In the desperate early morning fighting, party after party found their way cut off and there were a hundred small struggles of the moment, infantry, gunners and anti-tank men joining together to get themselves and their gear out.

Reinforcements were of Indians as all further Australians were rushed to the area.

Dawn gave light for enemy bombers again. They have been at it all day. The longest period from dawn to 4 p.m. that they did not have some planes bombing was 31 minutes.

Our fighters made a gallant effort to aid the troops, but it was the old story.

So it has gone on all day with very little definite information coming in beyond confused tales of desperate fighting.

These gains came on top of a night communique which pictured the Germans floundering westward in disordered retreat from "one village after another."

These, too, were unspecified—apparently in order not to fill in any information lacking from the enemy's disrupted communications.

The Russians, however, were making their greatest progress in the Donets Basin despite heavy, gale-swept snowstorms, and were pressing heavily on the central front in the drive toward Smolensk.

In the Crimea, Soviet commanders said the Germans had lost 40,000 or more men in the battle for the Sevastopol Naval Base alone.

An announcement that 204 German planes have been destroyed since Feb. 1 against 49 Soviet losses indicated a sharp spurt in aerial warfare in recent days.

many days among the tropic islands where ships well known to the luxury trade poured American reinforcements into way stations" along the 4,000 mile route from Hawaii to New Zealand. After describing the waving of hats and flags as the destroyer came into Wellington Harbor at 23 knots, Harsch added:—

"Behind the color of this little act in a great drama lay a symbol of an important American victory. The battle of the supply line from America's factories to the Far Pacific battle front has been won. Japan has suffered its first serious reverse. An American admiral commands the terminus of the supply route. The way stations have been secured. Bluejackets are here. And the way is open for reinforcements and the vital weapons of war."

On a Carrier

The correspondent said he left Pearl Harbor on an airplane carrier, accompanied by destroyers and cruisers, but that "no battleships encumbered swift movements."

One night, he said, the Japanese radio announced the sinking of the force with which he was sailing, including the aircraft carrier. At sun-up, he added, he climbed to the sky control and found the entire force intact. He added:

"The Japanese literally did nothing to interfere with the original mission of this force which was to cover the movements of reinforcements to way stations along the supply route. It was life built around planes from the launching of the dawn patrol when the dark deck far below suddenly came to life with jets of licking blue flames until night when the last patrols came in to a dusk-darkened ship and we rode along to another dawn.

"The movement came to choose between remaining with the force for an attack on the mandated Marshall Islands or taking a chance on getting to the Far East. The breeches buoy carried us to a destroyer and a destroyer to a tropic island. There we lived among natives whose homes are thatched domes on stilts and watched with them in awe as American forces moved into places where Robert Louis Stevenson has in the past been the major link with the outside world. Next only to a carrier is the excitement of travelling on a destroyer. Our final leg of the journey was in a world of speed driving through everything . . . .

"Japan won first blow at Pearl Harbor. But Japan lost the battle of the supply lines for our destroyer was only one unit. What else Admiral Leary commands is a closely guarded military secret. But as an eye-witness to the whole vast proceeding spreading over thousands of miles of ocean I feel completely confident that whenever the initial enemy thrust can be stopped the final result is only a matter of time. Our materials can get through and our factories are producing."

Harsch said he was not privileged to tell what had happened since the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor, but that it would make "every citizen of the Allied Nations lift their chins a notch."

FiredByWelder's Torch, Normandie Rolls On Side In N. York Harbor

NEW YORK, Feb. 10—(AP).—Like a great wounded monster but, somehow, majestic still, the fire-seared and waterlogged former French liner Normandie succumbed to the surging tide today and topped to ignominous rest on Hudson River mud.

Ravaged by flames, a gaping hole cut in her hull in a vain attempt to counteract pressure of the incoming tide, the $60,000,000 vessel rolled over at 2.45 a.m., E.D.T., and now lies on her port side in 40 feet of water alongside her pier.

The Navy, however, has not abandoned hope of still using the one-time blue ribbon liner. Queried on reports that she was beyond salvage, the public relations officer of the Third Naval District, stated: "The navy supports no such contention at this time."

As fireboats continued to throw streams of water on the still burning ship, naval officials planned to meet later in the day to determine what to do with her.

Touched off by sparks from a welder's torch, flames raged through the naval craft for 3½ hours yesterday before being brought under control by every available piece of land and sea fire-fighting equipment in Manhattan.

Two hundred and twenty of the 2,200 workmen and naval personnel aboard suffered injuries, and one welder, Frank Trentacosa, 36, died last night in hospital of a fractured skull received when he jumped from deck to pier.

It was ever so gently and with scarcely a noise that the 80,000-ton ship—now the United States naval auxiliary Lafayette—dipped her fire-blackened superstructure to the water's surface in surrender.

Hope For Salvage.

Hope that she could be salvaged even in her present position and condition was expressed by Rear-Admiral Adolphus Andrews, commandant of the third naval district, as he ordered the big ship abandoned.

Quebec Liberals Beat New Party

QUEBEC, Feb. 10—(CP).—Liberals were returned in two Federal by-elections in Quebec Province yesterday, and the newly-formed anti-conscriptionist Canadian party was given a double defeat.

Justice Minister St. Laurent swept to victory with a 4,000 vote majority over Paul Bouchard in Quebec East, and thus became the new representative in the House of Commons of the riding held for many years by his predecessor as Justice Minister, the late Rt. Hon. Ernest Lapointe.

In holding the riding for the Liberals, the new Justice Minister defeated the man who lost out in the 1940 elections to Mr. Lapointe by about 5,000 votes. At that time Mr. Bouchard ran as an Independent Nationalist.

In Montreal St. Mary, Dr. Gaspard Fauteux was elected over Raoul Perillard, Canadian party, and two other Liberals, Marcel Ostiguy and Emile Naud. Mr. Perillard supplied the most determined opposition to Dr. Fauteux, but lost by more than 2,000 votes.

There was no official Liberal candidate in St. Mary, traditionally Liberal since it came into being in 75-millimetre class the Russian gun is just one millimetre larger, a 76. In the higher bracket she has the 105—but she also has 115 millimetre guns and 120 millimetre.

These are just fractions of an inch bigger, but in an otherwise even artillery contest, that difference might be just the "extra something" needed to win.

In sub-machine guns the Russians are reported to have a distinct edge with a gun that is effective at 200 yards and fires 70 shots, against a lighter German gun effective only 100 yards, and firing one-half as many shots.

On the second important point, the amount of artillery and its assortment, the indications are that the Russians have a considerable advantage.

They have been able to marshal far more artillery in general than the Germans, who has to transport their guns as much as 1,000 miles to the battle line.

Huns 105's Too Light.

There have been indications that the Germans concentrated on bringing up 105-millimetre guns, not heavy enough to cope with the Russians' bigger guns, and not as manoeuvrable as their lighter ones, like the 46-millimetre, which in a pinch can be moved by a crew of eight men.

These difficulties are reported to have forced the Germans to make makeshift emergency use of mortars. These are short, stubby big-barrelled guns ('stovepipes on wheels') pointed at a high angle, designed to be operated from trenches to loft big shells over a few hundred yards of No Man's Land, so they would drop straight down into enemy trenches.

Used As Auxiliary

A lot of mortars are fired simply by dropping the shell down the muzzle; when it hits the base, the concussion sets its off. But mortars cannot shoot nearly as far or as accurately, or do the damage of long-barrelled guns with flat trejectories.

The Russians have been using mortars as utility weapons, but in their case instead of being a desperate resort it has been a helpful auxiliary. They have used mortars with devastating results where the Germans had no adequate counter-artillery, or as stop-gap weapons until proper artillery could be rushed up.

Large sections of the Russian artillery have been trained to operate on skis—a point where the Germans were caught flat-footed. For the siege of Mozhaisk, big guns were hauled up on sledges. Whole artillery batteries on runners were reported by the Russians to have played an important part in their progress on the Kalinin front.

The latest artillery development reported by the Russians is an "artillery wedge," modelled after the blitzkrieg Panzer wedge, but with units of powerful artillery, co-ordinated with infantry, in place of fast but light motorized forces.

greater goal—to work eventually into Asia in liaison with Japan.

The Russian Snag

But there are some big "ifs," the greatest and most immediate being Germany's ability to regain the control required to allow necessary withdrawals from Russia.

The Russians predict confidently the Nazis will not be in position to launch any offensive. The Reds, apparently, hope to hit such a decisive blow in the north that it will upset German plans in the Ukraine.

The test may be in the capacity of Germany and Russia to marshal and equip new armies and in the merits of reserve men and machines. It was suggested that some of Russia's optimism springs, no doubt, from the time she has had to whip new forces into shape.

But the Germans, too, surely are putting all they have into their preparations.

See 7 Divisions

Commons:

"The Government were advised by their military staff in pre-war years that having regard to population and claims of other services the number of divisions which this country could maintain in warfare was seven. We have already formed six and we have made demands upon our manpower for other purposes not fully anticipated when those estimates were made."

As the Active Army now stands five divisions have been mobilized and brigade groups of a sixth division have been called.

In addition, the Royal Canadian Air Force has the equivalent of six army divisions in manpower and the Royal Canadian Navy the equivalent of two divisions.

The division of manpower between the fighting forces, war industry and civilian requirements of the country has been under study since before the war started with adjustments and revisions made necessary to meet changed conditions, authorities said.

At present the whole problem of manpower is under study of a manpower committee headed by War Services Minister Thorson, with representatives from the various Federal Government Departments. Main study is the manner in which the Dominion's human resources may be distributed to best advantage.

No Unemployment.

Justice Minister St. Laurent told a Quebec political rally Sunday night that when the manpower committee completes its work there will be no unemployment in the country.

The National Defence Department recently ruled tht voluntary enlistment in the reserve army henceforth will be confined to men under 19 and over 35.

Compulsory call-up regulations now require men from 21 to 26 to take military training and extension of this call-up to men up to 35 years who are single or childless widowers has been seen as a logical sequel.

The picture some authorities developed from these various factors is that the bulk of Canada's fighting men will be drawn from the select age group between 21 and 35 years old.

Men of these ages who volunteer for army service will form the bulk of the replacements for the already-constituted active army divisions. Those called for compulsory service will increase the size of the reserve army trained and prepared to defend the country and operating on a full-time basis.

Behind this striking force will be built a large and well-equipped reserve formation composed of men more than 35 or under 19 who would take their training on week-ends and in the evening while remaining at home to perform their normal civilian daytime tasks.

Behind the fighting services now are the men in the war industries which need 625,000 persons, 550,000 of them men. In 4½ years of the First Great War 275,000 men were engaged in war industry.

With the forces and the war industries cared for, the need for key men on farms so that production can be maintained appears as the third most important manpower consideration.

Some sources indicated that co-operative use of machinery and exchange of labor will probably be encouraged as far as possible, with efficient farm management and soil conservation assisted by the government so that the food requirements of Canada and her Allies may continue to be filled.

It was known that five Japanese divisions, perhaps 100,000 men, were in Malaya and evidence to-day was that all were concentrated either in South Johore or on the island.

The city of Singapore had one air raid alert this morning, but enemy planes were constantly dive bombing and strafing troops deployed over the northern defences.

Military commentators added there was "no comfort at all" in the situation, and that the British forces were withdrawing under very severe pressure."

Military commentators left unanswered the question as to whether the British forces were moving back on prepared positions.

City Not Fortified

Singapore City itself is not a fortified position, although the increasing Japanese pressure may force its use as a fort.

The possibility that the garrison had been left without air support was seen in the commentator's inability to answer a question as to whether the R.A.F. still was operating in conjunction with the army.

Singapore's Governor, Sir Shenton Thomas, told the Straits Settlements Legislative Council:—

"We are all in the hands of God from whom we can get comfort in our anxieties and strength to play the man and help one another in all the ordeals which are to come."

Civilians concentrated in the city area in the southern tip of the imperilled island did not need the Governor's words to bring home to them the fact that they were near the front. Throughout last night and early today artillery rumbled from the west. The northern sky was bright with the glow of oil tanks burning for several days.

The noise of battle intensified after dawn. The drone of Japanese dive bombers and the sharper cracks of British anti-aircraft guns could be heard from the sector where the gallant British, Australian and Indian troops were fighting grimly to stem the Japanese advance.

The Japanese were reinforced during the night.

More than once this morning residents heard the whine of machine-gun bullets as enemy planes flew over the outskirts of the city.

The fire glow of last night became a morning pall of gray smoke which hung low over the northern part of the hot island. Above the grey blanket of haze, darker smoke billowed upwards forming a great black pillar which dominated the scene of battle.

Tories Request Hanson Stay On

OTTAWA, Feb. 10 —(CP)—Conservative party sources said today a caucus of Conservative members of the House of Commons and the Senate probably would be called soon to consider the question of party leadership as a result of Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen's defeat in yesterday's by-election in York South.

Hon. R. B. Hanson, acting party leader until Mr. Meighen was chosen for that post last November and acting House of Commons leader for the Conservative party, will probably be urged to continue in that post although it is known that because of his indifferent health he is not anxious to continue on the job indefinitely.

It was said much will depend on whether Mr. Meighen, former Senate Conservative Leader, can be prevailed upon to run in another constituency which might be opened for him, through resignation of a Conservative member of the Commons. One Conservative member said he thought the result of yesterday's by-elections would be to shorten the debate on the address in reply to the Speech from the Throne now in its third week.

Most of the Conservative members have spoken and were unanimous in opposition to the government's plebiscite proposal. This member said the official opposition members were likely to interpret the by-election votes as an endorsation of the plebiscite to release the government and parliament from its commitments not to conscript men for overseas service, and therefore will not put up more speakers.

Defence Minister Ralston is scheduled to speak this afternoon and it is probable Agriculture Minister Gardiner will also speak today.

Most of the members of the C.C.F. and New Democracy already have spoken so the bulk of the remaining speeches will be by Liberals.

It was reported Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Lang had gone to a show leaving their child in the care of the older boy. Shortly before 10 p.m. Mrs. Victor Vaillancourt, a next door neighbor, saw smoke and fire shooting from beneath the eaves and from an upstairs window of the log home. Obituary

MRS. JAMES MARSHALL McBAIN

The funeral of Mrs. James Marshall McBain, who passed away on Sunday, took place this afternoon from the family residence, 217 Rubidge street, to the Little Lake cemetery. The service was conducted by Rev. Dr. G. S. Easton of Trinity United church, of which the deceased was a member.

Many beautiful floral tokens were fragrant tokens of the esteem in which Mrs. McBain had been long held by those who knew her. For forty-five years she had been a member of Onward Bible Class of George Street United Sunday School, of which she was a charter member. Mrs. McBain was born at Lang, daughter of the late John Faux and his wife, Elizabeth Lynn, and had been a resident of Peterborough from her youth. Illness had shadowed many years of her life, and her cheerfulness and fortitude had deepened her friends' sympathy and appreciation of her deeply Christian character.

During the service this afternoon her favorite hymn "Stand Up, Stand Up, for Jesus," was sung in respect to her memory.

Mrs. McBain is survived by her husband, two sons, Lawrence and Eric; two sisters, Mrs. Annie Fee of Hamilton and Mrs. Margaret Madill of Uxbridge; and two brothers, William Faux of Alberta and Leonard Faux of Oshawa.

The pallbearers were Bert McBain and Harvey McBain, of Toronto, William McBain of Madoc, Victor Fee of Peterborough and Vincent Fee of East Emily, nephews; and Bert O. McLeod.

General Draper Found Guilty Is Fined $300

COBOURG, Feb. 10 — (By Staff Reporter). — A dangerous driving charge against General D. C. Draper, Chief of the Toronto City Police, was disposed of, after 6½ hours of argument, and evidence at Cobourg on Monday, when the well-known police officer was fined $300 by Judge L. V. O'Connor, County Judge.

An eloquent argument by T. N. Phelan, K.C., of Toronto, counsel for Draper, failed to convince the Judge that negligence of some kind had not existed. Mr. Phelan stated he would appeal the verdict, despite the fact that the Judge saw fit to pass over the freezing of Chief Draper's driver's licence. When this added penalty was pointed out by Crown Attorney J. E. Anderson of Lindsay, the Judge said, "I have had that particular in mind, the accused has every need for his car in the performance of his duty, and I do not intend to prevent him from driving. It is the first offence."

The trial got under way shortly before 11 o'clock in the morning, and the final statement was not made until 4:55 in the afternoon. Highlight of the proceedings came when Mr. Anderson started to cross-examine the accused after General Draper had taken the box in his own defence, and at one point

Batavia Raided For First Time

BATAVIA, N.E.I., Feb. 10 (AP)—Japanese planes made their first raid of the Pacific War on Batavia, capital of the Netherlands East Indies, today in an intensifying series of air attacks believed here to be a prelude to an attempt at invasion of Java, centre of the United Nations' resistance to the Japanese in the Southwest Pacific.

Enemy actiity also was reported over other parts of Java, Sumatra and Borneo.

The Netherlands East Indies high command said Japanese patrols were pushing south from the charred oil port of Balik Papan [illegible] East Borneo coast "ap[illegible] planning to reach Bandjer[illegible] important trade centre on the [illegible] shore of Borneo facing Java.

The port was said to be a prime Japanese objective as they attempted to force an arc around the vital island of Java in preparation for invasion.

Palembang, oil centre in South-east Sumatra, was bombed again, but the communique said there were no Allied losses.

At least two and probably three enemy planes were shot down over the great naval base of Surabaya Saturday.

THE STARS SAY . . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Wednesday, February 11 .. ...

A difficult day in many phases is read from a series of adverse configurations. Many obstacles, disappointments, frustrations and defeats are possible, even though indomitable will be brought to bear on the most tenacious situations. It would be well to postpone all major operations until more benefic auguries rule. In fact this may be required because of a debilitated state of body and mind, which may be morbid, melancholy and not able to behold the silver lining. So resort to fortitude, philosophy and courage.

Those whose birthday it is are enjoined to try to take a space of relaxation and diversion, if possible, since the auguries show many forms of defeat and frustration. There are divers obstacles, limitations, and stagnations to cope with, the major impediment probably being a lowered state of the health, with its mental depression and spiritual obliquity. The physical condition of those near and dear may also cause grave concern. Under all circumstances rigidly avoid intriguing, treacherous and sinister entanglements.

A child born on this day should be trained to a rational and philosophic, as well as spiritual and optimistic, outlook upon life, since it may meet vicissitudes of various aspects in life.

Cobourg Council Urges Free Electricity

COBOURG, Feb. 10—(ENS). — In the absence of Councillor Joe Delanty, Cobourg Council did not appoint a new clerk to the market scales here last night. Councillor Delanty is a member of the Market committee and the question will be left until he is present. It was stated that Mr. Delanty's enforced absence was due to illness.

Council heard a letter from F. Ward, Park street, asking the removal of some trees which were cuasing some trouble to his property. It was referred to the Highways and Street committee.

Stairway Dangerous

Mrs. E. Barnard, Station street, wrote asking that snow removal on Cobourg streets be enforced. She also said that the stairway leading down from Station street to Division at the C.N.R. subway was in a dangerous state. The handrail was broken and it was very difficult to get down the steps. Council decided to write the railway company in regard to the stairs and to refer the snow cleaning request to the Streets committee.

Mrs. W. S. Handbury, District Commissioner of the Girl Guides, wrote asking approval of Council in the collection of grease by the guides. Council moved to send a heartfelt reply of approval and acceptance of the collection by the guides.

Grant Listed

A request of the Canadian Institute of the Blind for the annual grant of $50 was referred to the Finance committee and will be included in the estimates.

Miss H. Robinson wrote saying as a result of a fall her sister, Miss J. Robinson was under medical care. It had happened on George street. The letter was referred to the insurance company.

Stores Open Sunday

Councillor Rollings then said the Police committee had met the Business Men's Association in regard to the closing by-law. The association did not want to prosecute anyone, but there had been drygoods stores open after hours for six weeks prior to Christmas. There were also two groceries who stayed open Wednesday half holidays and Sundays. They wanted the police to go around and read the by-law to the errant ones. The councillor said, however, they had admitted staying open themselves. Mayor Burnet said in his opinion it was a case of let "him who is without sin cast the first stone." It was finally decided to leave the matter in the hands of the Police committee.

Permission was given Rev. Father Ryah to extend the coming C.Y.O. Irish concert one day, thus taking up the 17th and 18th of March in the Opera House. The request first made two weeks ago had been for one day only.

Want Rebate Now

Council moved to have the Utilities grant a rebate now in view of their surplus. Councillor Love thought a month now at least, he said, in bringing in the motion. Mayor Burnet agreed, and said it would be best to grant it now before some legal restriction by the H.E.P.C. on surplus rebating was passed. Due to the war effort there was not telling what rulings might be made in future as to utilities surpluses, the Mayor thought.

War Loan Underway

The War Loan Committee wrote requesting the Council to decorate the Town Hall, and to have the Mayor issue a proclamation asking the business men to decorate their places as well and to ask the churches to name Sunday, February 22, as War Loan Sunday, and to stage special services that day. Council decided to accede to the request. Council will also meet the Public Relations Committee of the War Loan Committee to arrange the ceremony connected with lighting the "beacon fires" which will be the symbol used in this drive.

The use of the Opera House for the war loan show was also granted by the body. The date was February 24.

Regret Voiced

Mayor Burnet took time out to express sadness at the passing of the late George Wood, another of Cobourg's fine citizens. Council will send a letter of sympathy to the bereaved family.

Reeve R. D. Dodge again reminded all committees to have their estimates in by February 23; it would take some time preparing them for striking the rate, he said.

Council renamed Allan C. H. Field to the committees which as deputy reeve he had been on, but was forced to resign, when he left the post of deputy reeve only to be renamed to Council, as a councillor by the civic body itself.

The following accounts were passed by Council: Highways and streets, $417.29; Public buildings and Printing, $102.39; Police, $7.50; Fire, water and light, $31.79; Market, $4; Finance, $150.59; direct rerelief $266.23.

Prisoners Rationed

London, Feb. 10 (CP).

ENEMY prisoners of war — except those in working parties —were limited to the food quantities allowed British troops employed on sedentary duties under new rations regulations which became effective today.

Working parties will continue to receive the normal home service ration scale but it will be modified to meet the tastes of the nationals concerned.

Prisoners not in working parties will be allowed 2 4-7ths ounces of meat daily, six-sevenths of an ounce of bacon, two-sevenths of an ounce of sugar, 32 ounces of potatoes and 5 5-7ths ounces of fresh vegetables.

Firemen Honor Late Veteran

COBOURG, Feb. 10 — (ENS). — Borne to his grave by fellow-members of the Cobourg Fire Department, the late George Wood was laid to rest in Cobourg Union Cemetery here Monday. He joined the fire department in his early 'teens and has been a member for the past 56 years. He could recall the first days of fire fighting in town and was one of the few members who helped fight the Town Hall fire after it had been struck by lightning just before the turn of the present century.

A devout member of St Andrew's Presbyterian Church, the late Mr. Wood was known to every citizen of Cobourg.

He is the last of a family of ten and was the youngest member of that pioneer family here. His parents were the late Mr. and Mrs. James wood of this town.

Two daughters are left to survive. They are Mrs. H. Greer of Cobourg and Mrs. R. Doane of Toronto.

Although not a member of any lodge, the late George Wood had a host of friends in this district, who will mourn his loss.

The funeral was from his home on Spring Street, with Rev. O. W. Nugent of St. Andrew's officiating at the service there and at the cemetery.

The pall-bearers, all members of the Fire Department, were: E. Middleton, G. Turpin, E. Hogan, G. Mitchell, W. Campbell and E. Thompson.

Motorists Stranded As Blizzard Paralyzes Ontario Traffic

The worst snowstorm of the season caught all Ontario unawares and scenes like this were common as motorists were forced to leave their cars and seek shelter in the nearest farmhouses. Even department of highways' snowplows hadn't much luck in bucking the heavy drifts which blocked highways and made country roads impassable.

Japs Finest Soldiers In World Teach Germans ABC's Of Warfare

"As surely as we are here to-day, unless we are prepared for a time to sacrifice our democracy we will lose our democracy," Dr. D. B. Avison, acting Medical Officer of Health, warned Rotaritans in an earnest address at the regular meeting of the club at the Empress Hotel on Monday.

Dr. Avison, born and brought up in Korea, presented what he termed a brief study of certain characteristics of the Japanese peoples, and of what it means to be a colony of Japan as exemplified by Korea.

He scored the complacency with which the people of this continent viewed the war, declaring that Japanese were the finest soldiers in the world and could teach even Germany the ABC's of warfare. There were nearly 5,000,000 trained Japanese soldiers, he said, each of them prepared to igve his life in the firm belief that if he were killed his spirit would still live on, continuing to serve the Empire.

Introduced by Rotarian James Dutton, who declared that the speaker had more than made good in his work as medical officer of health, Dr. Avison began by discounting the widely accepted idea that Japan took lessons from Germany in the art of military science.

"On the contrary," said Dr. Avison, "aside from techniques of mechanized warfare, Japan could teach Germany and all us white nations the ABC's of warfare. The element of surprise and initial attack which Germany has practised with so much success in this war is old stuff in Japan. The most glaring example in modern history was her attack on the Russian Fleet at Port Arthur while their crews were ashore attending a circus in the calm assurance that as yet there was no war."

Lack Imagination.

"We democrats seem to lack imagination if our conduct of the war so far is any example," continued the speaker. "In the Philippines and in Malaya which were not far from Japanese bases the men we had there were on the alert and the Japanese attack did not come as an altogether unexpected surprise. But not one had the imagination to believe that any one would dream of a large scale attack so far from home as that made on Pearl Harbor."

"I don't think we should blame the commanders of our forces there too much," said Dr. Avison. "They rested in the calm assurance that they had forces too strong for anyone to dare attack even if they had been nearer to Japan and that an attack so far from Japan was contrary to any conceivable plan where a failure would mean the loss of so much to the enemy. They lacked the necessary imagination and the Japanese acting on that assumption scored not only a great victory, but assured herself of complete domination of the far Pacific for some months. She completely ruined all the nicely-worked-out plans of the democracies for handling Japan if war should break out."

Pointing out that Japan had had considerable experience in modern warfare in defeating China and Russia, in Manchuria and again in the present war against China, the speaker said that if one discounted the loss of occasional battles the Japanese had always been successful.

The Japanest Ideal.

"This success," said Dr. Avison, "has depended not only on her leadership but on the training of her men. From the dawn of history Japan has been a military nation, and the ideal of every boy is to be a great soldier. His training for thousands of years has started from kindergarten age and drill, manoeuvres, and military tactics are a part of his very being. Poor eyesight may be far more prevalent in Japan than in our Western countries, but the wearing of glasses does not shut the Japanese man out of the army. In modern fighting sharpshooting does not play a big part anyway.

"But the greatest asset to Japan is not training in ordinary military science, but it is spiritual," said the speaker. "Not only does the Japanese soldier believe that the Emperor is a god, but he believes that he himself is a lesser god. He is convinced that if he dies in the service of his country that his spirit will continue to serve it even after death. We read with considerable satisfaction that the Japanese are losing ten men to our one, but that means nothing to the Japanese. His one concern is to win an objective, regardless of loss. Every man in the Japanese army really believes that he has a life to give. In Japan the soldier is the nation's ideal."

Different in China.

In China, on the other hand, the speaker pointed out the ideal had always been that of the scholar or the merchant. "To the Chinese the soldier was the lowest of the low," said Dr. Avison, remarking that there was good reason for that belief. He pointed out how Chinese governors of different provinces seeking to extend their powers had armies of mercenaries who were attracted only by the lure of loot. They had no loyalty, except to their own welfare and were always ready to join the enemy if sufficient reward were offered.

General Chiang's Rise.

The speaker told of the rise to power of General Chiang Kai-Shek, who had preached the doctrine in China that Japan was the natural enemy of the Chinese with the result that the Japanese realized that in the course of time China would become a united military power of too great a strength and that she must be attacked before that time. When Chiang was finally compelled to fight in 1937 much had been accomplished in the years of preparation, but the Chinese nation was still as a whole a nation of scholars and merchants.

"His armies," said the speaker, "were for the most part unable to win victories, but they did remain loyal. Fortunately the country was big and allowed plenty of room for retreats and the terrain was terrible for moving modern armies, so that he was able to drag the war on in the hope that he would eventually exhaust his enemy."

"His allies were nature and the sympathy of the democratic nations. His enemies were Japan and those same democracies which offered supplies to both Japan and China on equal terms, "Come and get them." As China couldn't come and get much, the democracies while vocally supporting China were practically supporting Japan."

Korea's Experience.

Dr. Avison then told the story of Korea as the best example he knew of what it meant to be under Japanese or any totalitarian power. Korea had been under Japan since 1905, and in those 37 years there had been no attempt to establish any form of self government, even municipal. The whole government was under a military governor from Japan whose orders-in-council were carried out by the police. The days of early tutelage were a nightmare. Public shooting by firing squads were quite common, all Korean histories had to be given up, the possession of a Korean flag was a criminal offence and the Korean language was abolished as a national language. The Japanese language was now the only language of instruction in all schools.

"Every individual had a police record. Dangerous thoughts were the worst of crimes, and thousands had been in jail under suspicion of dangerous thoughts. Every lesson for the Koreans had been taught the hard way by cajolling, beating and imprisonment.

"The Koreans have become obedient," said Dr. Avison, "but not loyal." He added that what has occurred in Korea is occurring in Manchuria and occupied China.

"All this is very interesting, but how does it affect us?" asked the speaker. "How complacent we are here in Canada, so far from the scenes of actual conflict. We still comfort ourselves with thought that the Japanese is a poor soldier and airman, that his present victories are due to a temporary numerical superiority, that Britain always wins the last battle, anyway. You will not believe me when I tell you the Japanese is the best soldier in the world, not excepting the German. His numerical superiority is permanent. She has nearly 5,000,000 trained troops."

"Here in Canada we are going to take a plebiscite to see what we are going to do in the future and we are told that the people of one province will vote against doing anything more and that many in our own province will vote the same way. A large proportion of South Africans are against war participation. Malaya gave us little real help. How much help can we rely on from the millions of Burma or the three hundred millions of India? Certainly we have some fine Indian troops, but if India were with us, as we would like to hope, we could smother Japan with sheer numbers."

Greatly Outnumbered.

"As a matter of fact we are greatly outnumbered. Every Japanese has accepted for hundreds of years the ideal that he has a life to give. Can we match that with our common ideal that we have a life to live? In Japan every man, woman and child feels it an honor to sacrifice for the Empire. There is hunger, cold and sickness, but no strikes or even vocal protest. We still claim the right not only to refuse to work ourselves but to keep others from working. We call that right, democracy. We call it democracy to allow one union to deny the right of any other union to operate in a given industry. As surely as we fight each other for our democratic rights, just so surely can we never win this war though we may keep it going for a long time. Why can't we forget about rights for a while and recognize the necessity that is upon us. It is still true that necessity knows no laws."

"We of this continent are the best talkers the world has ever known. In Canada and the United States we listen with comfort to the talk of billions of dollars voted for war, we talk of clouds of airplanes, fleets of ships and tanks, and millions of men in armies is only talk unless they are produced and used."

"As I write this I read of 23 strikes that were averted this past

Kinsmen Club Plans To Entertain Notable

COBOURG, Feb. 10 — (ENS). — The Kinsmen Club of Cobourg are highly honored in having as their guest speaker at their 22nd anniversary dinner, Squadron Leader Sir Alexander Seaton, senior administrative officer of No. 31 Bombing and Gunnery School R.A.F., Picton.

In Britain's "Who's Who" he is Sir Alexander Seaton, squire to the Royal Bodyguard, wearer of the Rare Order of Nova Scotia, brother-in-law of Sir Archibald Sinclair, Britain's Secretary for Air, and a descendant of one of Scotland's greatest families.

Formerly an officer in the Royal Scots, the oldest regiment in the British Army, Sir Alexander was loaned to the diplomatic corps in 1936 and transferred to the R.A.F. at the outbreak of war. On his tunic the ribbon of the jubilee and Coronation Medals he wears the ribbon of the Order of Nova Scotia, a hereditary honor bestowed on one of Sir Alaxender's ancestors by King Charles II. Originally 70 Scottish families were honored but only about 20 now exist.

He paid his premium... but HE BOUGHT A MACHINE GUN too!

THIS IS HOW. Total renewal premiums paid by Canada Life policyholders last year on all policies and annuities amounted to $23,229,466.00.

In Canada, the Canada Life purchased during 1941 over $12,000,000.00 of Canadian government war bonds.

In the British Isles, the Canada Life subscribed $5,200,000.00 to British war loans.

In the United States, the Canada Life purchased more than $7,000,000.00 of new United States government bonds.

In total, the Canada Life purchased during 1941—and still holds—$24,200,000.00 of government bonds, an amount which would pay for almost 75,000 Bren guns.

Thus, the company's investment in government war and defense bonds during the year was greater than its entire renewal premium income.

By-election Results

The one big surprise to most people in connection with four by-elections held yesterday, was the defeat by a considerable majority of Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen, at one time Prime Minister of Canada, and who recently resigned his seat in Senate to accept leadership of the Conservative Opposition. The choice of J. W. Noseworthy, C.C.F. candidate in preference to him, in what has long been a strong Conservative riding, would have been considered even a remote possibility before the victories won by C.C.F. candidates in British Columbia election a short time ago.

Voters have registered their choice and it has to be accepted but in defeat of Mr. Meighen the Commons loses an able man. Time has never yet shown that it is well that there should be no experienced and gifted critic of a government, no matter how good it may be. Broad-minded statesmen will themselves acknowledge, invariably, that a strong, carefully guided Opposition is healthy, even for administration in power.

However, the member-elect is a person of outstanding ability. Mr. Noseworthy has been a prominent figure in education in Ontario and now that he is to go to Ottawa, the public will expect a good deal of him. The turn over in the constituency is so remarkable that much can be learned from it by those who are ready to recognize political trends.

Considerable interest throughout the country as a whole centrede on Welland results which was one of those three-cornered contests where anything might happen, depending as much, perhaps, upon the personal popularity of this candidate or other as upon national issues. A two-candidate battle is clear-cut, as a rule, but the triangular situation rarely brings out as sharp and defined opinion as was given expression, for instance, in South York. Nevertheless, election of new Federal Labor Minister, Hon. Humphrey Mitchell, over his two opponents, Douglas J. Watt, Independent, and Mark Kriluck, C.C.F. candidate, is a win for the King Government. Mr. Mitchell said he would stick to his "skipper," an intimate nautical term applying to the Prime Minister at Ottawa, and so electors decided to stick by Mr. Mitchell. Welland for many years elected a Liberal member to Commons, the late Manley German, K.C., having represented that riding election after election.

That Hon. Louis St. Laurent was victorious in Quebec East is no more than was expected there. As new Minister of Justice in the King Government in succession to the late Rt. Hon. Ernest Lapointe, he followed one of Canada's most distinguished parliamentarians and it is well that a man of his standing in the legal profession should be a member of the House. The candidate he defeated with a considerable majority, namely, Paul Bouchard, was carrying the banner of L. Lacombe, M.P., who recently announced he would lead a "Canadian Party." The ballot returns do not appear to have been in love with Mr. Lacombe's isolationism.

The Montreal-St. Mary riding chose Dr. Fauteux, Liberal, in preference to two other Liberals and a Canadian Party man. There was no "official" Liberal candidate, but inasmuch as the constituency has never returned anybody but a Liberal since it was formed, Dr. Fauteux will sit with followers of Premier King.

Now that electors have made their selections, the smoke of four contests should clear away at once so that the country can get on with the war and the Victory Loan.

Getting Down To Earth

In one suburb of Montreal, a few days ago, residents, including 700 boys from English and French schools, collected approximately 200 tons of waste paper, rags, metals, bottles and other waste material for the war effort of Canada.

Splendid! A big day's work, a kind of day that probably has been crowded with somewhat similar efforts at different times in different parts of Canada, but when considering the facts, this query comes up in the mind at once: "Why, if all this waste and cast away stuff is so useful now, why was it of no particular value before? There must have been tremendous wastage and wanton extravagance in this country before the war came." Probably there was both, but the public didn't notice, didn't care, because people had been educated to a rather affluent way of living.

Not that everybody lived in affluence by any means! Far from it.

There was the unemployed roll and a few years ago the bread line, but the cold truth is that the majority of people who had enjoyed a fair amount of comfort and a regular income, though it was small, seemed unable to think in terms of saving odds and ends and trying to make money out of them. They just tossed the left-overs and the containers, the bones and the fats, the rags and the bottles—just chucked them out in the garbage can when they felt like putting them out at all.

In an earlier generation in Canada—and the same applies of course, to the United States—men and women were obliged to be thrifty and frugal. They made use of every scrap. Because they did so, their children grew up to think in the same terms, to do the same thing. It was just a "second nature.' Then the period of "squandermania" came along and many persons, even in humble walks, had to have only the best of everything. They simply couldn't "exist" without the latest and the smartest even though, often, they couldn't pay for it. That was the level of society generally, and everybody wanted to be as good as the Joneses and dwell on that level. Why be considered so "common" as to save trash?

The stern realities of the past two years have taught a new and better lesson. They have taught that much of what is ordinarily thrown away as useless may be salvaged and a few bawbles picked up out of the trade or sale. But the question is: Will people, once the war is over, go on the economical road, which leads, ordinarily, to some measure of personal security, or will they return to the easy habits of the wastrel? Obviously Time will have to chalk that question up on its calendar and give the world an answer "after due consideration."

Impressive To The Eye

It is natural for people to ask, now that another Loan is being floated by the Government, "Where does all the money go, anyway?"

Those who went to the C.P.R. station and looked at what the Canadian Army equipment train offered to the eye would have a partial answer suggested. Even a hurried glance at the various military items, from a Bren gun carrier to hospital and dental services, would quicken the mind to some realization of what enormous funds are required to produce what the fighting forces need. Let the imagination increase that equipment by thousands of times, picture the investment in plants to turn out the munitions, guns, supplies, etc., the pay rolls to armies of men and women employed in these industries and the cost of maintaining three or four hundred thousands of men in army, navy and air force—let the imagination be active and the expenditure per day will total to amazing figures.

There is no better way of educating people to the need for their purchase of bonds than to give them a visual demonstration of this kind. Much of human thought and conduct is the result of what is seen. The sense of sight is an effective instructor.

War cannot be carried on by wishful thinking. When the Victory Loan gets under way the middle of this month it should be a success. It will be if every person realizes that any sacrifice he makes, any dollars he can scrape together to help put the Loan through, is not only going toward protecting himself and all his connections, but is a sound investment. The entire resources of the nation will be behind every piece of paper given out by the Government in return for every dollar lent to the Department of Finance.

Land Settlement Scheme

Until all the facts are made public through the submission of the proposed Land Settlement Bill to Parliament, no sound opinion can be formed of what practical value it may have as a scheme to take care of thousands of service men who return to the Dominion after the war, or who may be coming back after their experiences renders them unsuited for further action in the war zones. It is to be hoped, though, that the measure will prove more successful than a similar Act passed in 1919 to take care of the returned men following the Armistice of '18.

Only the regular newspaper forecast of the Bill is available as yet but it states that much has been learned by officialdom from the mistakes of the previous experiment but the lack of real knowledge shown by those who drafted the '19 measure leaves some doubt in one's mind as to whether any kind of land settlement plan will compete with the lure and pull of cities where businesses and industries of all sorts are located.

The provisions of the new scheme as given in generalized reports from Ottawa are at least a serious effort to meet a big and difficult problem of the future. Pensions Minister Mackenzie has expressed the opinion that it will, he feels, be found by all members of the House to be one of the most constructive and far-reaching proposals of its kind ever submitted to Parliament. Much the same was said no doubt in good faith, of the measure of twenty-two or three years ago but time brought out that there was more "Parliamentary" zeal than there was sound economics and "close-to-the-earth" sense in the terms as drafted and put into operation at that time.

It is understood the legislation, if adopted, will assist soldiers not only to go on to farms but also to establish suburban homes with plots of land in cases where men are not fitted for farming.

Those who have no farming experience will be helped to establish homes in suburbs where they can have small gardens and not be entirely dependent on their work in industry, it was stated.

The land will be purchased from present owners in most cases but it is understood the new bill will be broad enough to provide for community settlement of veterans on Crown lands presently held by the Provinces if such appears advantageous.

In view of these advance statements, there is evidence that Hon. Mr. Mackenzie and his department have at least been trying to work out something to give the men who fight for the country a chance to get re-established when they are demobilized.

The danger of bomb raids hasn't diminished the population of old London. In fact it has grown so much that a serious housing shortage has developed, particularly for the middle income group. Rents are reported to have gone up nearly 100 per cent., furnished apartments can scarcely be had at all, and hotels are so crowded that many transients have to sleep in bunks in air raid shelters. Any person living in London though is supposed to be "on top of the world" so probably no "ceilings" are considered necessary there.

JUST A CENT

Although I go to India
  And Africa to trade
In golden cups and ivories
  And finest fabrics made,
I sometimes fall to looking back,
  When market dealings end,
And wish to be a child again
  With just a cent to spend.

I wander through the grand bazaars
  And dream about the shop
Where bargaining was very grave
  About a lollipop:
An alabaster box that brims
  With gems, all reds and greens,
Has no attraction like the jar
  That held the jelly beans.

But now, instead of brandy balls
  And bays of toffee chips,
I buy the treasure stowed below
  The decks of many ships.
I purchase pearls like little moons,
  And property by streets—
But I would rather be a child
  With just a cent for sweets!

Sugar Rationing Is Good For Canadians

By SAMUEL MARCHBANKS

THE rationing of sugar in this country has been greeted by many people as though it involved considerable hardship. Three quarters of a pound a week for each person is not, they consider, enough. And they appear to feel that the government's request that citizens should apply the ration to themselves is a wanton addition of insult to injury. Perhaps they do not realize that it would cost an enormous sum to establish a government system of rationing in this country, adding to our taxes and the swelling list of civil servants, and that such a rationing system would be, at the present time, a waste of money. There is no serious shortage of any foodstuff on this continent as yet. All that the government has done is to ask that we be a little more sparing than usual with sugar. Surely that is a reasonable request and one which may be complied with readily and cheerfully?

Seemingly not. Many grocers have reported a run on sugar, and several restaurants have been forced to conceal their sugar basins from customers who behave as though they might never see sugar again; some have even gone so far as to empty the contents in their pockets, from whence, presumably they will later extract it, well mixed with tobacco crumbs, string and street-car tickets, to add it to the family hoard. Nothing can be done about such people; they are not wicked, but merely silly, and of silliness there is no end.

But although silly people may mourn, a more judicious part of the population may rejoice at the reduced consumption of sugar in Canada. For there is no doubt about it, we eat too much sugar, as a nation. We are not as bad in this respect as the United States, but we are bad enough; our national diet is exceptionally sweet — far sweeter than physicians and dentists like it to be. The American Dental Association has revealed that 50 per cent of the men rejected by the U.S. Army were suffering from bad teeth, and it does not hesitate to attribute this to the amount of sweet stuff eaten by the average American. Although no figures are available at the moment we may assume that a similar condition, perhaps somewhat less severe, exists in Canada. Sugar rationing, if it lasts long enough, may have a beneficial effect on our teeth.

The per capita consumption of sugar in the United States is 105 pounds a year, or a little more than two pounds a week; the present American limitation to a pound a week cuts this in half. This is only surpassed by Australia, which consumes 109 pounds a head every year. The Australians are immoderate eaters of candy; it is no accident that one of their wealthiest families, the MacRobertsons, are manufacturers of sweets. The popular idea that alcohol and sweets are mutually exclusive tastes is decisively disproved in Australia, where beer and candies disappear down the same gullets with equal alacrity. They seem to raise a strong and hardy people on this queer mixture, but as a nation their teeth are not good.

It is not necessary to explain here why it is important to have good teeth. Anyone who visits the dentist has heard it all before; anyone who does not visit the dentist — if it is possible to conceive of such a person reading this column—will not benefit from any remarks on the subject. Dentists wage a never-ceasing war on excessive use of sugar, particularly by children. Of course, a child may eat a good deal of sugar without eating it excessively. Sugar is a ready supplier of energy, and children need an enormous amount of energy. And a child's palate, which cannot appreciate more subtle flavors, enjoys the delicious stimulation of sweet things. School children and adolescents have the same taste; they live in a state of continuous physical and mental ferment, and sugar gives them the energy which they need to sustain life under such circumstances. A school girl's idea of a tasty dish is a bowl of fudge with nuts and maple syrup on it, the whole thing being smothered in whipped cream. Delicious, no doubt, but bad for the teeth. Adults eat sweets to excess either because they have never broken the childish habit, or from boredom. Many women, particularly, who cannot live without a good deal of sweet stuff every day eat it as a palliative for their overmastering ennui.

The obvious course for national health is the moderate use of sweets; no one wants to see them disappear altogether, for that would only cause a different sort of trouble. We all know what sweet things do to the teeth if they are eaten to excess, but some of us do not seem to be so clear about the effect of the many sweet dishes which are popular in our diet. It has been said with some truth that alcohol numbers its victims by the thousands, but that pie slays its consumers by the million. Acid indigestion is the curse of countries like ours, where good food is cheap and plentiful, and acid indigestion is caused in most cases by immoderate consumption of sugar. A survey of the advertisement columns of any paper will show how subject we are, as a nation, to digestive ailments which arise from unwise eating.

Let us not regard the government's request that we reduce our consumption of sugar as a calamity, but rather as an opportunity to improve our national health. There is no need to be fanatical about it. There is no need to turn against candy and pie and confectionery as against poison. In this matter, as in almost anything else in life, the secret is moderation.

Letters To The Editor

COUNTERACT BEVERAGE ROOMS

Editor Examiner:

Sir,—To make a more effective drive against the beverage rooms the Temperance organizations will have to open rooms in various parts of the city to counteract their attraction, which is mainly the social feature. There the people find a public room where they can entertain their friends for a time.

Did you ever think that a great many people in a city have no room in which to entertain their friends? The beverage rooms are warm, comfortable places in which to spend the time and to drink; hence their popularity, for they fill a much-felt want.

The proprietors of hotels think it worth their while to not only alter the plan of their hotels to provide space for beverage rooms but often to invest their money in brick and mortar to enlarge the premises for that purpose.

Until Temperance organizations invest money in Social Temperance rooms which will prove a counter-attraction to the beverage rooms, their present efforts are practically futile. Such rooms could serve a dual purpose; one section might be used as a writing and reading room; the other where soft drinks could be obtained.

Surely the churches could set aside a sum for the purpose of this phase of the temperance cause, to save the people from the deadly scourge of alcohol, to save the morals of the young people. Is it a fact that we are taking for our slogan "Let's drink our way to Victory?"

WHY NOT MILL OUR WHEAT?

Editor Examiner:

Sir,—In a recent issue of the Examiner, the news columns carried a thoughtful address on the general theme of "Agriculture." I unfortunately forgot to identify the following paragraph, but it is duly in my scrapbook, credited to "Peterborough Examiner":

"Agricultural production is just as much a part of our war effort as the production of munitions. There are many food products which can be kept indefinitely. One thing about storing food is that it never goes out of style. We will need ourselves, but far beyond our needs will be the needs of the starving people of Europe...."

In this rural reader's opinion, that is something which has badly needed saying. I have been reminded of this principle in a variety of ways, for I am a careful reader of all news affecting the vital farm front — the source of "the rations," without which no country's war effort would amount to much.

Frankly, I was disappointed in the following news item on the market-financial pages, from Ottawa, and dealing with Canada's flour production thus: "Production in 1941 aggregated 18,694,178 barrels, compared with 16,264,921 barrels in 1940. Percentage of output to capacity for December rose to 71.5 from the December 1940 figure of 47.6."

Flour, assuredly, would be among the aforesaid "food products which can be kept indefinitely?" I imagine that our mills have been operating around 60 per cent of their grinding capacity. Why?

We have the wheat, Mr. Editor, and the inevitable emergency "demand" coming up, as surely as the months pass. Flour is a speedier gift to hungry folk than the raw grain. The time to get rolling is now, rather than a year from now. Our authorities should show some vision along this food supply front—to avoid the shocking experience once again—"too little and too late?"

"BE PREPARED."

CLUB LICENSE AT LEGION HALL

Editor Examiner:

Sir,—Re letter in your paper on Friday last I was surprised to hear of such conditions being allowed to take place in the Legion Hall. I was led to believe by some of those in charge of the Legion that they had an official license to sell beer to their own members, but now I understand they have been hoodwinking and deceiving the public and their friends for some years past. I am also told the members of the Legion some years ago voted to make application for a club license, strictly to be confined to the use of members only. The vote carried by a large majority, the officers in charge at that time used the Prussian iron heel and the great hand of dictatorship and threw the result of the democratic ballot into the waste-paper basket.

The officer for what reason at that time preferred the bootleg system to the lawful order of the Province of Ontario. Again later on several returned soldiers joined the Legion for the sole purpose of again testing the opinion of the local branch in regards to the much discussed question of getting a club license. One bold and fearless member drafted two resolutions and placed them before the meeting, one was submitted requesting that they make application for a club license, the other requesting them not to allow beer or liquor in an shape or form into the Legion Hall under any circumstances. I may say both of these resolutions were turned down flat, so therefore I leave you to judge for yourself.

I don't think any blame should be attached to the soldiers at the training centre, the quartermaster at the training centre is one of the officers of the Legion and he knows perfectly well who was at fault, not the troops.

• Real Crisis for Singapore

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10 (AP)—Savage fighting on Singapore Island itself, with British troops trying desperately to crush Japanese bridgeheads thrust in the night across mile-wide Johore Strait, marks the gravest crisis of the two-months-old Pacific war.

Not days, but hours could decide the fate of the powerful fortress base, second only to Gibraltar as a bulwark of Empire and United Nations defense. The enemy, besides trying to consolidate and expand his bridgehead positions, may launch an attack from Ubin Island in the eastern mouth of the strait. There is some indication that the main invasion thrust is to be expected there rather than across the swampy ground west of Singapore Causeway where first landings were effected.

British guns have been pounding for days at Japanese troop concentrations in the Masai region across the strait. The Japs appeared to be massing men in the Masai area for an attempt to use Ubin Island as a stepping stone to invasion of Singapore Island from the northeast.

Naval support, not available on the Kranji attack front, might be possible there, although British batteries on Changi Point command approaches to Johore Strait both north and south of Ubin Island.

Whatever the future may hold, the grim fact is that the Johore Strait moat failed to stem the first assault. Whether it took the Singapore defenders by surprise is not clear; but its initial success testifies to the vulnerability of the island to attack from the mainland. If the enemy has the will to storm the island regardless of casualties, the plight of its defenders is all but desperate.

It remains to be seen, however, whether that is the Japanese purpose or whether the attempt to cross Johore Strait is primarily an operation to test out British defenses and the extent to which reinforcements have reached its garrison. Should they prove too strong the Nipponese command could revert to siege tactics and by-pass Singapore to concentrate against Sumatra and Java.

On Luzon, General MacArthur's men and guns appear again to have beaten back an all-out Japanese attack closely synchronized with the attempt to storm Singapore. The twin operations indicate that orders have gone out from Tokyo to crush both Allied resistance centres by frontal assault and without delay in order to mass against the Netherlands Indies.

That both Bataan and Singapore would be dangerous position on opposite flanks of the Japanese surge southward if by-passed and left to slow siege tactics is obvious. There is always the possibility that they could be relieved and become menacing springboards for Allied attacks.

Yet the costly assault strategy against both points suggests that losses in the Battle of Macassar Strait and the growing menace of Anglo-American air and other reinforcements reaching the Netherlands Indies and Australia is forcing the hand of Japanese strategists.

They have already drawn heavily on garrisons in China for shock troops sent to the Philippines and the Malay Peninsula. They are able to provide only limited air support for attack troops on Bataan and for preliminary air raids over Java to soften-up its defenses. They are fighting on too many fronts at too great distance from each other, and paying the price in loss of vitally important time. Their answer seems to be orders to smash Bataan and Singapore regardless of casualties, then concentrate against Java, central bastion of Allied defense.

Still Need Help For Vital Salvage Work

Mrs. R. J. Kearns and Miss L. Hurley were guests last week at a meeting of the Ottawa Salvage Committee, to whom Mrs. Kearns described the set-up for collecting salvage in Peterborough, and told them of the good results obtained by interesting school children in the necessity of salvage.

Mrs. Kearns has been an indefatigable worker at the salvage depot. She and her able co-workers, Mrs. C. Collins, chairman of the Salvage Committee, and Miss Mary Medd, who is responsible for the transportation, have done a fine job despite the difficulty in getting help.

The help situation is improving, but there is still room for more, both at the depot and on the truck. A plan is being organized whereby organizations in the city will make themselves responsible for supplying helpers on a certain afternoon or evening. The plan seems to be working out very well, but the timetable is not yet complete. Any organizations in the city who wish to help should get in touch with Mrs. Kearns.

The collection of salvage is a vitally important part of our national war effort. It is work in which everybody can—must—help. If we are to win this war—and win it we must—not one scrap of salvageable material must be wasted. If this is to be accomplished the Salvage Committee must have the cooperation of the public. This is everybody's war.

C.W.L. To Help In Salvage Depot

The regular meeting of the Catholic Women's League, St. Peter's sub-division, was held on Monday evening in the Stone School with a very good attendance. Mrs. F. J Lynch, president, was in the chair. Reports were given by various officers and a telegram from the National president, Mrs. McCabe, was read, asking the members to co-operate to the fullest extent with the Government with regard to the rationing of sugar.

Tickets are being sold on an afghan and a considerable sum of money is expected to be raised for war work purposes.

A number of the members are knitting and sewing each Tuesday at the Red Cross rooms.

Miss L. Hurley, who is a member of the Civic War Service Council, gave an interesting account of the salvage work being carried on in Ottawa, from which city she has just returned. Each Tuesday five members of the League are going to help in the salvage work at South Central School.

This week the C.W.L. is starting a series of diminishing teas, as a means of raising money to help in the League's war work. A donation has been made to the British War Victims' Fund.

Miss Margaret Corkery addressed the meeting, choosing as her subject, "The Cooking of Beef," and showed the ladies the need of proper cooking of the less expensive cuts of meat, so that in these times, economical meals may be planned and served, in this way saving money for the purchase of War Savings certificates and Victory Bonds, so necessary, if we are to win this war.

Home and School Association News

CONFEDERATION SCHOOL

Mrs. P. White, president, took the chair at the Founder's Day Meeting of the Confederation Home and School Association, on Wednesday evening. After the usual business, the members were entertained with numbers by pupils of the school. Donald Floyd opened the program with a piano solo and was followed by Jean Wildman, Doreen Ferguson and Joyce Wilson, in costume, who sang a trio, "Young Richard." Rosemary McCall performed two tap dances, "The Sailor's Hornpipe," and "The Highland Fling." After the children the Welsh quartette, Mrs. E. V. Davies, Mr. and Mrs. J. Cairns and Mr. A. Kirkaldy, accompanied by Mr. W. R. Potter, sang two very pleasing numbers. Joyce Pitchford closed the entertainment with a recitation, "The Man in the Moon." Mrs. E. Pearse accompanied the children's numbers.

Mr. R. F. Downey, school inspector, gave a talk on the work which the boys and girls in that school district are doing to aid in the War Effort. Mr. Downey explained that the children save money for War Savings Stamps, not in nickels and dimes, but in coppers, and that the children have bought between $1,800 and $1,900 worth of stamps between September 1 and December 31. The children have also filled ditty bags for soldiers.

After Mr. Downey's talk the candle-lighting ceremony was held and the Home and School song was sung.

MAY'S SCHOOL

May's School Home and School Association held a Founder's Day meeting on Monday evening in honor of the late Mrs. A. C. Courtice, founder of the Home and School Association. The meeting opened with the school hymn, "Faith Of Our Fathers," followed by a beautiful prayer by the president, Mrs. George Robinson. Mrs. E. Wand took the chair for the entire evening.

Mrs. Wand gave a short talk, telling of the many faithful workers who have carried on the work of the association started by its founder.

Gwen and Leonard Cooper, two pupils of the school, sang "Drink to me Only With Thine Eyes," and "O God Our Help in Ages Past," very beautifully.

Rev. W. McArthur was the speaker of the evening and talked on the life of the child, at school and at home. He told of the need for more godly home in helping the child of today to grow into a good citizen. The central theme of the address was "Honor thy father and thy mother." Mr. McArthur's talk was an inspiration to all who heard it.

Mrs. E. Chambers, president of the Home and School Council, conducted a very interesting and entertaining quiz contest.

Members of the association and teachers of the school took part in the candle-lighting ceremony. While the candles glowed, Mrs. E. Frizzelle sang "My Task," the favorite hymn of the late Mrs. Courtice. Mrs. H. F. Doig was guest pianist.

Tea was served from a table centred with school crest. A lovely lace cloth and a shining silver tea service adorned the table. Tea was poured by Mrs. W. Wedlock, and Mrs. W. Wheeler, past president. Mrs. R. Leach and her committee assisted at the serving of the refreshments.

Lily Bacon Wed At St. John's

A pretty wedding took place in St. John's Church on Saturday afternoon, when Lily, elder daughter of Mrs. Bacon and the late John Bacon, was married to Pte. Robert Neale, of Hamilton, second son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Neale of McArthur's Mills, Ontario. The Rev. Canon W. P. Robertson performed the ceremony. Wedding music was played by Mr. F. G. Mann, L.Mus., and during the signing of the register Mr. Victor Coleman sang "O Perfect Love."

Given in marriage by her brother, Mr. Arthur Bacon, the bride wore a street length dress of queen's blue wool crepe, a blue hat with a veil and biege accessories, and a pearl necklace. She wore a corsage of red roses. The bride was attended by her sister, Mrs. Frank N. Biddle, who wore a dusty rose crepe dress with a hat to match and wore a corsage of roses. The groom was attended by Pte. Robert J. Latchford.

After the ceremony the bride's mother served a buffet luncheon to about 30 guests, at her home. Later the happy couple left by motor for Toronto and Mimico.

The groom's gifts to the best man, organist and soloist were bill-folds, and to the matron of honor a necklace.

DOROTHY DIX

PARENTS FAIL TO CONSIDER NEW VIEWPOINT OF YOUTH

Changing Economic Conditions Have Made Platonic Friendships More Possible.

Dear Dorothy Dix—I am a girl of 20 and want to live the normal life of a girl of my age. I enjoy shows, love to dance, hike and so on, and the company of nice boys. But my parents are always telling me to do this and not to do that; that they didn't do this and didn't do the other thing when they were young, so now they have me going around in circles and I don't know what is proper and what is not. My mother, for instance, tells me that I should have no boy friends and that I should be suspicious of the intentions of all boys, that none of them mean a girl any good. What is your opinion concerning this? Mother also says a girl should never let a boy kiss her. Is that true? She says that it is not possible for there to be a platonic friendship between a girl and a boy. How about that? Is there any general rule to follow regarding the friendship between young men and women who are in their early twenties? I am an attractive girl and have no trouble about dates, but my mother has made me so suspicious of boys that I just simply freeze up when I am with them. My mind keeps saying: Is this right? What does a boy think? Does he really like me, or is he just playing up to me? All this muddles me so that I do not know what to think. Can you help me?—Josephine.

ANSWER: In trying to protect you your mother has made you so much afraid of boys that she has destroyed all of the pleasant comradeship that there should be between the sexes at your time of life. Undoubtedly there are many young men who, as the old melodramas used to say, "bode a girl no good," but there are many more lads with whom a girl is just as safe as she would be with her own brothers.

Most Boys Are Manly

Not every boy is any more of a seducer than he is a thief or a murderer, and it is a pity for a girl to have been put so on her guard against all boys that she is afraid to play around with the nice, young chaps who only want what she wants—someone to dance with and go to the movies with and have a good time with.

In her advice to you your mother overlooked one important point, and that is that the whole relationship between boys and girls has changed in the last 20 years. When she was a girl few girls worked outside of their own homes. Now practically all girls do, and it is impossible that the boys and girls who work together, side by side, every day should be on the formal terms with each other than they were when a girl rarely saw a boy except when he came and made a call upon her in her own parlor.

Then the lad might sit on one side of the room and the girl on the other and they might pass the evening discussing Shakespeare and the musical glasses, but she can't treat the boy who works at the same desk with her as a perfect stranger. The most that she can do is to erect a little wall of feminine reserve between them and watch her fences.

Petting Is Always Dangerous

As for petting, that is as dangerous now as it always has been, and always will be, and leads to the same consequences. The girl who cares for her own safety cuts it out, but there is no harm in a casual good-night kiss and generally there is no flavor to it.

I think that this is the first time in the world when a platonic friendship is possible between a girl and a boy, because now, when women have financial security and do not have to marry for a living or for an interest in life, they are not so anxious to marry as women were in the past.

Likewise, when men find it more difficult to make enough money to support a family than they used to, and when they do not have to marry a woman to get her society, they are less willing to marry. So they both find pleasure in a companionship that is not altarbound.

Want Some Real Tough Hunting? Then Take A Try At Brown Bear

By SAM JACKSON
(Associated Press Staff Writer.)

JUNEAU, Alaska, Feb. 10—(AP). —In case you're a rich sportsman who has been sulking because the war has interrupted your lion and tiger hunting, this may cheer you up.

You can stay right in North America and tangle with what many hunters consider the most dangerous animal on earth—the mighty brown bear of Alaska.

Many a mangled body found in the northern wilderness testifies that the mild and playful aspect of this animal conceals a ferocity possibly unmatched by the jungle kings of the old world.

"The brown bear is the largest carnivorous animal on earth," says Frank Dufresne, executive officer of the Alaska Game Commission, "the elephant and hippopotamus being strictly vegetarians.

Some Big Hides.

"Our records show hides eleven and a half feet long and carcasses ranging up to 1,500 pounds. When a really big bear stand erect he may reach 12 feet. I've timed a bear running down the road ahead of my automobile at 34 miles an hour. The only defect in his whole makeup is poor eyesight."

Dufresne says that the brown bear is one of the three animals that will deliberately stalk a man. The others are the rhinoceros and water buffalo.

The brown bear and his slightly smaller kinsman, the grizzly, range the Alaska mainland as far north as Yakutat Bay and occupy several adjacent islands. The common black bears and wolves are never found on an island where the brown bear rules.

Guides who have studied the monsters' habits for years say that during the two months when they are catching salmon in the river shallows they are rather peaceful. At such times they have often been photographed with impunity.

But during the courting season, during their voracious hunt for food prior to hibernation, and particularly when they are protecting their cubs, they are likely to be murderous.

Must Be Good.

"Of course, there are bears and bears," one guide explains. "They have just as much individuality as pedigreed dogs."

When a bear charges it takes a bullet between the eyes to stop him. If he's not stopped it's all over. Last summer a luckless woodsman was knocked into a bramble thicket with such force that it took two hours to extricate his body.

Alaska has set two seasons for brown bears and charges a $50 non-resident fee for hunting them. One is from September 1 to the hibernation period—about mid-October—and the other is from when the bears emerge from their winter sleep in mid-April until June 20. The young are born during hibernation.

The Game Commission estimates that these "greatest wild animals in the world" number about 28,500, and that they are on the increase.

CURLING NEWS

By HERB MARTIN

Late last night it was definitely established that we would have our full quota of rinks for to-morrow's bonspiel. This being so we are making this urgent appeal to our local curlers—Please be on Time—One late rink not only holds back the 'spiel but it tosses a monkey wrench into the whole system. 9 a.m. is the hour of the 1st draw.

We have not had time to check up the standing of the groups following last night's games, but offhand we would say that James Harkness holds the edge in Group A and E. Thomas holds the lead in Group B, but if some other rinks keep on winning their games we might easily have "play-offs" for group honors. However, there are still to many "ifs."

There will be a single draw tonight at 7.45 p.m. and the games to be played are the ones listed in the schedule book for this date— Feb. 10th.

Campbellford Boys Defeat Frankford

CAMPBELLFORD, Feb. 10. — (ENS). — Campbellford Juveniles romped through Frankford by a 9-2 score in the liveliest O.M.H.A. contest fans have seen here yet this season. Fast, wide open hockey which resulted in numerous penalties and a free-for-all in the final canto combined to make it the most spectacular session of the season and though the visitors were out-battled by the home crew they stayed in their punching till the final gong, literally giving everything they had. The visitors were no match for the fast skating, hard checking Campbellford outfit after they blew up in the third, but up to that time it was a fairly close contest with the homesters leading at the end of the second by a narrow 4 to 2 margin.

Pollock opened the scoring in the initial stanza and Hamilton, who bagged a total of four during the evening, rifled one past Lawes be-

SPORTS – DAY BY DAY

By FRED D. CRAIG

There is a perfect sheet of ice at Brock St. Rink for tonight's battle between Toronto Marlboros and the Peterborough Military Training Centre and the game in aid of the Milk for Britain Fund promises to be one of the feature events of the season. Word has been received from Frank Selke that three well known members of the Toronto Leafs, Syl Apps, Gordie Drillon and Turk Broda will be here for the game, with Apps handling the whistle and possibly one of the others officiating as linesman. The Dukes are bringing a strong lineup with them and the Petes will have to step to town all the way if they hope to earn a victory over the powerful Toronto squad. The local Kinsmen, with the aid of the Victory Loan officials have been successful in booking this outstanding hockey attraction and they deserve general thanks for making the contest possible. The net proceeds will be turned over to the Milk For Britain Fund and a substantial sum will undoubtedly be raised for this most worthy object. The merit of the attraction and of the cause rates a full house and it probably will be forthcoming.

* * * * * *

The Petes welcome tonight's game as a fine opportunity to keep in shape for the big playoff games that are looming up for next week. They have to lie around waiting for Belleville and Whitby to declare a winner and want to keep on edge for the acid test so that this tussle with the Marlboros will be plenty strong opposition but the Military Training Centre team has been playing smart hockey and should be able to give a good account of itself against the best the Dukes send out there tonight. Incidentally it should be a wide open affair with both teams featuring speed plus and plenty of action in front of both nets. The game is billed to get under way at 8.30 o'clock sharp and there should be few dull moments until the final whistle is sounded. The opportunity to see Syl Apps, Gordie Drillon and Turk Broda is an added attraction that will help to pack the rink and help to swell the Milk For Britain Fund.

Twenty-five years ago last night the Peterborough junior team played a memorable game in Kingston. The Frontenacs had been in Peterborough a few nights before for the first game of a home-and-home second-round series and had won 6 to 2, and on the return trip the youthful Petes found themselves short one man when one of the defence players missed the train. It was seven-man hockey with no subs at that period and when the Peterborough team arrived at the rink Kingston refused to drop a man and play six aside unless the visitors would default the game. The Petes declined to do that. They said that their club had never defaulted and so far as they were concerned it was going to be a regulation O.H.A. game. Frontenacs then iced iced a team of seven players against the Petes' six and for fifteen minutes the short-handed visitors held them without a score. In fact it was not until the late Frank Montgomery, the Petes' lone defence player and one of the stars of the team, was tossed into the boards and hurt so badly that he had to retire that the Kingston team began to pile up a score. Playing six men against five they pulled away and finally won by 17 goals to 2 but long before the battle was over the many of the Kingston fans were rooting for the Petes.

* * * * * *

Playing for the Frontenacs that night was Wallie Elmer, coach of the Kingston Combines and according to the Examiner's report of the affair he seems to have been the bad man of the party. The story says: "Not satisfied with their odd man advantage the Kingston gang disgusted some of their best supoprters by roughing it considerably with Elmer the chief offender. Bernie Park was knocked out once with a slash across the neck. Graham got butt-ended and several other Petes received souvenirs while Elmer capped his performance by slashing Murray, the little Peterborough goalie across the face." The Peterborough team that faraway night had Mickey Murray in the nets, the late Frank Montgomery on defence, Fred Graham rover, the late Roy Cherrett centre, the late Bernie Park right wing and Leith Bartley at left wing.

Members of the Grove School ski team made a fine showing Saturday at the opening of the Pat Moss ski camp at Trinity College School, Port Hope, donated in memory of an old boy of the school. The skiers from Lakefield finished second to T.C.S. in the team competition and finished ahead of Upper Canada College and the individual honors went to Pope of Grove who ran up a score of 279.9 points. The Lakefield students gave an especially good performance in the three mile event. Pope of Grove took first and McTaggart of Grove second in that feature competition. In addition Pope took second place in both the downhill and slalom events and gave a fine exhibtiion all afternoon. The Lakefield boys deserve plaudits on their success against strong competition.

Request of the Wartime Housing employees for opposition for a friendly game of hockey has opened the way for the launching ing of what should prove a very interesting and successful league. An industrial loop on a small scale has been organized with four clubs lined up with Wartime Housing, Brintons, Genalcos and Outboard Marines ready to battle it out for the Industrial title. The outfits should have a lot of fun out of the league before the championship is decided.

After blowing the game a week ago that would have left them in position to grab off second place in the senior B group race Oshawa-Whitby Combines really went to town at the expense of the Trenton R.C.A.F. team last night in the final game of the group race to win 16 to 5. It was a notable effort in goal-getting but not notable enough to snatch second place from Belleville Reliance who have the better goal average on the season's play and therefore will have the advantage in the semi-final series for the right to meet the Petes in the final round for the group title. It was Carl Gamble who set the pace for the winners with four goals and Doc Dafoe had three as Whitby went all out to pile up a score on the Flyers. The Airmen were without Fleet and sadly missed the clever defence player who has been one of their mainstays all season. The R.C.A.F. squad have only won one game this year but they battled all the way and deserve credit for coming in to round out the group and doing their best to make every game a tussle.

The games in the National Hockey League tonight, involving as they do the two leading clubs, Boston playing Canadiens and Rangers entertaining Chicago will have considerable effect on the standing at the top of the league ladder but the chief interest is that tonight's game is the swan song of one of hockey's greatest lines, the famous Krauts, who will play their final engagement with the Bruins before reporting for duty with the Royal Canadian Air Force. It is probably the first time in the history of hockey that a club has lost a whole line at once and if Boston can stand that loss and also the absence of Dit Clapper, Bill Cowley and Herb Cain at the same time the Bruins will rate in the miracle class. Art Ross is trying to fill the gaps with rookies right from the amateurs but he would have to be awfully lucky to come up with enough first line material to keep the Bruins up near the top.

Sporting Chili Con Carne: Ken Colling wants to know where the Petes dug up their new goalie Johnny Johnson....Mister Colling must be slipping. The Western lad was with the Petes all last season, as sub-goalie and was with them on every trip to Belleville....Grant Warwick, Rangers' sensational rookie is well up in the scoring race with 29 points, a fine total for a youngster....Bill Calladine is fourth in the American League scoring race with 43 points, made up of 23 goals and 20 assists.... Pete Kelly has grabbed off the leadership in the past week. Trudel leads in goals scored with 26 and the Peterborough lad is second in that department with 23....Three Peterborough rinks will go to Oshawa tomorrow for the bonspiel there....For once the Peterborough curlers haven't to worry about ice conditions for an open bonspiel. There should be plenty fo it for tomorrow's big event here....Windsor has a fighter by the name of Dubs. It is a tough to use in a head without causing a few misapprehensions.

Marlboros Shade St Mike's In 3-2 Tangle

TORONTO, Feb. 10. — Marlboros advanced into third place in the Big Seven O.H.A. junior group standing last night by shading St. Michael's in a keen struggle at the Maple Leaf Gardens 3 to 2.

Adam, who scored twice for the Dukes, sank the deciding counter at 4:36 of the third frame.

Sparked by two brilliant individual goal-scoring efforts by Winger Doug Adam, Coach Eddie Powers' Junior Dukes edged a hard-fought 3-2 victory over St. Michael's Majors at Maple Leaf Gardens last night.

The four-point win boosted Marlboros into third place in the Big Seven Junior standings, two points ahead of Guelph Biltmores, who dropped a 7-3 decision to Oshawa in the only other game scheduled.

Hampered by a lack of reserve strength, both teams skated themselves into exhaustion in the battle for four valuable points, but after taking the lead in the final period, Marlies had enough left to stand off St. Mikes' rousing finish.

The battling Irish twice came from behind to give Dukes a real run for the honors and came within an ace of turning the trick for the third time in the dying minutes of the game.

Liscombe Opens It.

Frank Liscombe gave Marlboros an early edge in the first period, blazing a ten-foot shot past Goalie Cleary from a difficult angle. Tommy O'Neil got the equalizer at the 16-minute mark, converting a triple passing play with Stanton and Bennett. Adam connected for the first of his counters midway through the second period blasting a long shot through a maze of legs into St. Mike's cage. Again the Irish climbed on even terms, as they took advantage of a penalty to Defenseman Red Garrett to send Dodd through for a score five minutes before the end of the period.

Adam's game-winning tally came on a sensationally executed play. He stole the puck inside St. Mike's blue line, skated right in on Cleary and after faking him out of position, rammed the puck into the unprotected side of the cage.

St. Michael's brought up Gerry Midghall and Don McCreavy from their Junior B squad to help bolster their depleted ranks. The pair gave a good account of themselves in the fast company.

Marlboros' first line of Mara, Liscombe and Webster did yeoman service in the attacking division, while Jack Gair turned in a stout defensive game.

St. Michael's — Goal, Cleary; defense, Rebstock and Dodd; centre, Bennett; wings, O'Neil and Stanton; alternates, Schmaltz, Morrow, G. Midghall, McCreavy, Foley.

Bill Calladine In 4th Place

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Feb. 10.—(AP)—Pete Kelly of Springfield, scoring a goal and tossing in valuable assists on five others, today hopped from third place to the top of the American Hockey League scoring heap.

Kelly's eighteen goals and thirty assists give him forty-eight points, two more than DeMarco of Providence, last week's leader who went scoreless during Kelly's spree. Les Cunningham, the West's chief threat from Cleveland, added a goal which brought his total to forty-five points.

Pete Bessone of Pittsburg spent nine minutes in the penalty box for a total of seventy-six minutes so far. Nobody else is close.

Challedon Looks Mighty Good

NEW YORK, Feb. 10 (AP)—Having had a good look at Challedon in the stretch, the Florida folks probably are willing to admit today that there is something good about California after all.

For when Big Pete came roaring down to a smashing second at Hialeah Saturday he was running on legs made sound again by daily baths in the Pacific off California's shores.

Last Summer W. L. Brann's horse had been well-whipped several times and looked more like a selling plater in fast company than the champion of 1939 and '40.

Brann decided to try the Pacific baths on the ailing legs of Challenger II's big bay son. It worked so well Challedon was able to turn on that famous run home Saturday for the first time in a year—the same run down the straight road with which he stole Johnstown's thunder three years ago and which made him the horse of the year two seasons in a row.

And now, he not only ranks as one of the choices for the rich Widener coming up, but with Whirlaway shut out of picking up any loose change this winter, Challedon also may get first crack at Seabiscuit's $437,730 money winning record.

At this moment, Whirly stands in third place with some $372,000. Challedon's total is about $325,000.

See Vezina Cup Winner With New High

(By SCOTT YOUNG.)

TORONTO, Feb. 10 — (CP). — The goalkeeper who wins the Vezina Trophy in the National Hockey League this season probably will have more goals scored against him than any of his predecessors since the trophy was placed in competition in the 1928-29 season.

Frankie Brimsek leads the current field in the running for this award, presented annually to the N.H.L. goalkeeper with the least number of goals scored against him. But Brimsek has allowed 81 goals in 36 games. With 12 games to go and the Boston defence weakened by the loss of Dit Clapper, Brimsek probably will hit 108 for the season. The most goals ever scored against a Vezina Trophy winner in the past was 102, against Normie Smith of Detroit in 1936-37.

Turk Broda of Toronto still has a moderate chance of winning the trophy, since apparently the Leafs have remembered how to back-check after a two-week lapse. But Broda has allowed 88 goals in 35 games. He'll probably hit 110 in the remaining 13 games.

Brimsek has light workout scheduled for tonight when Bruins meet Canadiens in Boston. Toronto, Detroit and Americans are idle. New York Rangers and Chicago Black Hawks clash in New York, but neither Rangers' Jim Henry (101) nor Chicago's Lo Presti (98) are in the running for the Vezina award.

The record shows conclusively that the playing rules in hockey are becoming progressively tougher on goalkeepers. George Hainsworth allowed only 43 goals in 44 games for Canadiens in the 1928-29 season to be first winner of the trophy.

Other winners. — 1929-30, Tiny Thompson, Boston, 98; 1930-31, Roy Worters, Americans, 74; 1931-32, Charlie Gardiner, Chicago, 101; 1932-33, Thompson, Boston, 88; 1933-34, Gardiner, Chicago, 83; 1934-35, Lorne Chabot, Chicago, 88; 1935-36, Thompson, Boston, 83; 1936-37, Smith, Detroit, 102; 1937-38, Thompson, Boston, 89; 1938-39, Brimsek, Boston, 76; 1939-40, Davey Kerr, Rangers, 77; 1940-41, Turk Broda, Toronto, 99.

Founded by Ivan A. Shortliffe, then a schoolboy of 13 years, the paper is now edited by Rupert E. Cann with the assistance of his sister, Flora. The founder is now foreman of the Digby Courier, whose editor, James J. Wallis, gave him a small hand press and a few fonts of type to start the Tattler.

Generals Thump Biltmores By 7 to 3 Score

GUELPH, Feb. 10.—The third place Guelph Biltmores Junior "A" Hockey Club had their position in the Big Seven group seriously threatened last night when they went down to a 7-3 defeat at the hands of the powerful Oshawa Generals.

The game, a rip-snorting tussle from beginning to end, was aided by excellent ice, which enabled both teams to turn on the heat with plent of vim and vigor. The Oshwans, second place holders in the league, virtually clinched that spot by virture of last night's triumph.

The visiting team lost no time in grabbing the lead when Davies took Ronnie Nelson's pass on the second rush of the game to beat Little in the Guelph cage after only forty seconds of play. Three minutes later Ralph Orlando, Guelph, tied the count when he stole the puck at the Generals' defence, broke in fast from the side and caught the corner of the net with a rising back-hand drive. This seemed to inspire the Motor City Club to greater effort, and for the remainder of the period they dazzled the home team with their brilliant skating, neat passing plays and fine back checking.

At 8:11 McNaught sent the visitors into the lead for the second time when he scored unassisted. Less than a minute later, Tilson, the red-headed Western Canada product, made it 3-1 on a beautiful passing play with Linemates Curry and Smith. At the 12-minute mark Oshawa added another, Ronnie Wilson scoring on Nelson's assist.

Guelph Edges Middle Canto

The Guelph club had most of the play in the second period, forcing the Generals back on the defence time and time again. Orlando bagged his second marker on Cressman's assist, but McNaught nullified that one when he broke down the ice for a solo tally. At 18.10 with the home team outplaying the visitors by a wide margin Shep Mayer tallied for Biltmores.

Oshawa showed to better advantage in a sparkling third period, which saw Wilson bag another tally at 7.57, and Smith score at 17:30. For Guelph, Orlando, Cressman, Grasser and Mayer were best and for Oshawa Wilson, Nelson, Tilson and Mortimer stood out.

Oshawa—Goal, Waddell; defence, Mortimer and Guidolin; centre, Tilson; wings, Curry and Smith; subs, Nelson, Wilson, Davies, Depew, Galbraith and McNaught.

Guelph—Goal, Little; defence, Swales and Mayer; centre, Martin; wings, Voll and A. McDonald; subs., Cressman, Orlando, Grasser, McNamara, Olenski and Hilliard.

Ranger Dazzlers Cling To Lead

MONTREAL, Feb. 10 (CP)—The smart Ranger front line of Bryan Hextall, Lynn Patrick and Phil Watson continued to dominate the scoring column of the National Hockey League, statistics issued today showed.

Hextall remained in the top berth with 19 goals and 22 assists for a point total of 41 but his linemate, Patrick had the best goal total with 23. Patrick had 17 assists for a point total of 40. The other member of this powerful trio, Watson, had the best assist total with 27. He scored 12 goals for a point total of 39.

Behind these educated sticks, largely responsible for keeping the New York Club atop the League standing, were Toronto's sharpshooter, Gordie Drillon and Chicago's Bill Thoms with 34 points each. Drillon's total was made up of 19 goals and 15 assists while Thoms was made up of 13 goals and 21 assists.

Pat Egan, scrappy American defenceman, kept his title of "League Badman" with penalty total of 76 minutes. This included two misconduct penalties.

Joe Archibald Whipped By Constantino

NEW YORK, Feb. 10.—(AP)—The "sweetest" thing in New York boxing circle today is Charles (Lulu) Constantino, 20-year-old son of a confectionery store operator.

Constantino celebrated his birthday 24 hours early last night by hammering out an eight-round decision over Joey Archibald, former featherweight champion. It was the 52nd fight without a setback since the youngster turned pro two years ago.

Four of his bouts have ended as draws.

The victor had difficulty solving the former champion's weaving style and didn't land his hardest punch until the final round when he caught the Providence, R.I. veteran with a potent left hook. A right that followed immediately opened a small cut over Archibald's left eye.

1st Sacker Mack Goes To Leafs

TORONTO, Feb. 10 — Joe Mack, a first-baseman who is no stranger to International League company, has been purchased outright by the Toronto Baseball Club from Indianapolis of the American Association, it was announced last night.

Mack, who has played with seven teams in five seasons in professional ranks, was with Newark Bears, International League champions last season, on option from Indianapolis. He played in seventy-eight games for the Bears, and in that stretch he hammered out ten homers, nine doubles and two triples, batted in forty-three runs, and finished with a .263 batting average.

Mack, who started with Waterloo in 1937, has had three previous flings at International League competition. He played the 1938 season with Syracuse and half the 1939 season with Newark prior to his 1941 campaigning for the Bears. Other clubs he has played with are Waterloo of the Western League, with which team he broke into the moriled ranks; Columbus and Indianapolis of the American Association, and Birmingham of the Southern Association. His best offensive year was his first, with Waterloo, when he whacked away at a .337 clip.

The Toronto acquisition, who makes his home in Chicago, is 25 years of age, one inch shy of the six-foot mark, and tips the scales at 185 pounds. He is a switch-hitter.

Mack's record:

Year Club	R.B.I.	Pct.
1937—Waterloo, Western..	85	.337
1938—Syracuse, Int'l	73	.236
1939—Columbus, Am. As...	56	.279
1939—Newark, Int'l	44	.293
1940—Indianapolis, Am. A.	17	.221
1940—Birmingham, So. As.	22	.255
1941—Newark, Int'l	43	.263

New Summons Act

TORONTO, Feb. 10. — (CP).—With the idea of saving an estimated $100,000 an amendment to the Summary Convictions Act is to be introduced at the coming session of the Ontario Legislature to provide for the serving of summonses by mail for offendrs under all provincial and municipal by-laws.

Announcing this Monday, Attorney-General Gordon Conant said the practice of mailing summonses for offences under the Highway Traffic Act has proven satisfactory and it was decided to extend it even further. It was estimated that in Toronto alone the saving would amount to $35,000. At present summonses are served by constables.

Blame 1 U-Boat For 3 Sinkings

LEWES, Del., Feb. 10—(AP). — Survivors of the American tanker China Arrow expressed belief today their ship was sunk by the same Axis submarine which destroyed two other United States vessels off the Atlantic coast within the preceding 36 hours.

The Socony-Vacuum Oil Company's 8,403-ton China Arrow was torpedoed, shelled and set afire 100 miles off the United States coast on Thursday morning, the Navy Department announced. Her entire crew of 37 was saved by the coastguard after spending 56 hours in three open boats.

The ship was the 21st victim announced by the United States, British and Canadian sources, since January 12, when the present Axis submarine campaign in American waters began.

The China Arrow's sister ship, India Arrow, was sunk Wednesday night and the freighter San Gil went down at midnight Tuesday—not far from the scene of the latest sinking.

In all three attacks, the raider refrained from shelling the sinking ships until their crews had left in lifeboats.

MORE ABOUT— General Draper

the discussion became so warm, that T. N. Phelan put in a bit of advice to his client to "Answer as best you can just to satisfy him," when the Crown was pressing for an answer.

The charge arose out of an accident on Highway 2 near Newtonville on September 28 last when a car being driven west by Draper cut out of a line of traffic and came into collision with an east-bound car driven by Burton Miller, 212 McDonnel Street, Peterborough. Miller's three sisters, Mrs. Lillian Schneider, Miss Ada Miller and Miss Ethel Miller were passengers in the east-bound car and all three were injured seriously. Mrs. Schneider was not able to appear at the trial because of her hurts.

Gave Evidence.

Evidence during the day was given by Miss Ada Miller and Miss Ethel Miller, both of whom were permitted to sit in a chair in the witness box, and who were accompanied by a nurse, by William Thompson, the traffic officer who investigated the accident, by Burton Miller, and by an engineer for the Department of Highways. The evidence which J. K. Hughes of Peterborough gave at the preliminary hearing in Port Hope on January 22 was accepted and was read by the Crown.

General Draper and Chief Constable Newhall of Peterborough were the only witnesses for the defence.

After the testimony of J. K. Hughes had been read Miss Ada Miller was called and at the request of Crown Attorney was allowed to be seated while giving evidence.

She corroborated the evidence given by her brother Burton. In describing the accident she said the "car nosed out and came straight at us. We were terribly frightened and it all happened in an instant."

In cross-examination she described the Draper car as "darting out" in front of their car.

Miss Ethel Miller, the other passenger in the back seat of the car, was the next witness. A third sister, Mrs. Lillian Schneider, was unable to be present as she is still suffering from injuries received at the time.

Miss Ethel's testimony was substantially the same as that given by her brother and sister.

"A third car in the line was not noticed by me until it plunged out from behind the last car. The next thing I knew the accident occurred," she said.

General Draper in Box.

When the Crown evidence was in General Draper took the box in his own defence.

"I have driven a motor car since 1918. For a number of years past I have driven more than 12,000 miles a year. I have driven in Canada, U.S.A., Europe and several times to Florida, and in all that time have never been in a motor accident with the exception of a fender scrape."

"What occurred prior to this accident?"

"I had driven from Montreal. My trip was without incident until the accident. After I left Belleville it rained hard, from Welcome to the scene of the accident it was drizzly."

"What about traffic?"

"There were several west-bound cars but little east-bound traffic."

"How did the accident happen?"

"East of the scene of the accident within a half mile there are two curves. I came up to a car and followed it at 30 miles an hour. We came to a straight level stretch of highway. I decided to pass it.

"I looked ahead to make sure no east-bound traffic was approaching, but I was not aware that the road ahead of me curved to the left, as there was no white line to indicate a curve. I am used to these lines and am guided by them. I could see nothing when I looked ahead. I thought it was perfectly safe to overtake and pass the car ahead. I was misled by the curve I could not see."

"In other words, if there had been a white line, would you have tried to pass?"

"No."

"I did not dart out, I pulled the car over in a perfectly normal way. My mind and my eyes were on the car I was overtaking.

"When I looked ahead a second time I saw a car approaching. If it had turned to the shoulder at that time the accident might have been avoided but he came right at me.

"Mr. Miller turned his car to the south hitting my car and turning it around to the south and east in other words it was my car that was thrown back by the force of the impact.

"After the accident I understand you stayed to direct traffic and help those injured?" "Yes, that's right."

In cross examination Mr. Anderson questioned Chief Draper on the distance he had travelled that day, and Draper stated he had left Montreal at 8 in the morning, had spent half an hour at Gananoque for lunch and another 20 minutes stop at Kingston. He admitted too, that driving through a heavy rain is tiring after a long journey.

"You say you followed a slow car for ¼ mile?" "Yes." "And you got a bit impatient and decided to pass it?" "When I had a straight clear stretch ahead."

"You are familiar with Department of Highway curve signs?" "I am."

"There was a sign marking the curve?"

"If it was there I didn't see it."

"If you could see a car half a mile ahead you could see a curve sign a considerable distance ahead of you. Was there anything to stop you?"

"Yes, the car I was following."

"You said you saw no centre line. How far back of the scene of the accident had the marks stopped?"

"About 200 yards."

"If you look ahead you can see if a road is straight?"

"As a rule you can."

"Then why not this time"

"Although I have been over the road before I did not remember that curve being there."

"The accident occurred almost at the end of the straight-away?"

"In the straight-away."

"You say having turned out, there was 2 or 3 seconds in which you were watching the car?"

"Yes."

"Why, didn't you sound your horn?"

"No I don't think I did."

"Your only concern would be normally to watch for traffic approaching?"

"I watch the car, I watch the road ahead."

"Do you realize how far you would go in three seconds?"

"Quite a few yards."

"How fast was Millar's car travelling," Anderson asked.

"I wouldn't estimate it."

"Was it going faster than your car?"

"Yes."

"Well, then, if you were going 35 miles an hour and the other car was going 35 miles an hour that is 70 miles an hour. How far then would both cars take to go 125 feet—about one second, isn't that right?"

"I would like to see my answer to the question I gave Mr. Phelan," Draper replied.

The answer was read and Mr. Anderson repeated his question.

"You say there was only 125 feet between you and at the last moment the Millar car turned to the south. What is the difference between a moment and a second?"

"You'll have to answer that yourself," said Chief Draper.

"I am asking you."

"Do the best you can to satisfy him," Mr. Phelan interjected.

"We'll see how good a witness he is," Anderson replied. "You admit Millar applied his brakes?"

"Yes."

"Did you apply your brakes?"

"I don't think so."

"After the accident was over was there anything on the road to show you had applied your brakes,"

"I found nothing on the road."

"How did the accident occur, what direction were you travelling,"

"Almost due west."

"You had almost a head-on collision?"

"No we met at an angle," said Mr. Draper.

"I'm putting it to you this way," Mr. Anderson said, showing a picture. "After the accident was not your right front wheel locked behind the left front wheel of the Millar car?"

"These pictures do not show the cars at the time of the accident."

"Well, there was no change in the damage?"

"How do you know?" Mr. Draper snapped back.

"Well, I'm asking you; you raised the point."

"I am not suggesting for a moment that the damage was changed," replied Draper.

"What explanation have you as to how your right front wheel got in behind the left front wheel of the Millar car?"

"I can't explain that."

"Did you see the gouge?"

"No."

"What would cause this gouge?"

"I'm not attempting to explain it."

"What part of the road was your car on when the accident occurred?" asked the judge.

"Partly on the south," was the answer.

Chief Constable S. Newhall was the next defence witness.

"How long have you known General Draper?"

"Fifteen or 16 years."

"What would you say as to his reputation as a safe and considerate driver?"

Mr. Anderson objected to the wording of the question.

Mr. Phelan changed the question to say, "What is your observation of Mr. Draper as a driver?"

"I have driven more than 3,000 miles with him in different cities and I have always found him a careful and capable driver, never getting into any traffic difficulties."

Mr. Anderson did not ask Chief Newhall any questions.

every precious inch of the island while Hurricane fighter pilots facing odds which a spokesman said were at least twice as great as those encountered at the height of the battle of Britain, tore into swarms of Japanese fighters all day yesterday.

10 Miles Off Heart of City

A special communique issued by British headquarters at 10 p.m. last night as the fighting raged within 10 miles of downtown Singapore announced "some further withdrawal" of British forces.

The communique said:—

"Strong enemy attacks which have developed from the landing on the west coast have been supplemented by dive-bombing and machine-gunning from the air throughout the day and by heavy enemy artillery bombardment.

"As a result of this pressure and enemy infiltration, there has been some further withdrawal of our troops after stubborn fighting."

After several shells fell in one residential area of Singapore proper yesterday morning, the city was not touched by the battle throughout the rest of the day.

Singapore had several air-raid alarms yesterday but the Japanese were devoting the full punch of their high-level and dive-bombing attacks against the men in the main combat zone and those manning other defence positions along Johore Strait.

The Japanese, however, did not have things all their own way in the battles which went on almost incessantly in the sky over the island.

Pilots of the heavily-gunned but outnumbered Hurricane planes unhesitatingly tackled the enemy and the final tally was not made as night fell. With the results of some dogfights yet to be reported, the official score stood at three Japanese planes destroyed for certain, three probably destroyed and 13 damaged.

There was no loss to the Royal Air Force.

Whole Force Over Singapore

The British pilots apparently had their hands full over Singapore, for there were no reports yesterday of any R.A.F. or Allied bombing of Japanese bases in Johore or of any reconnaissance over Malaya.

Yesterday—nine weeks after the first Japanese bombs fell on Singapore—authorities announced the intention to build at government cost public air-raid shelters near markets, food shops and in congested areas.

At the outbreak of war Singapore had few shelters except those prepared by large firms in basements of their downtown offices and by some residents in the hilly suburbs.

In the early days of the war, authorities repeatedly urged and helped the people dig slit trenches and almost daily warned the populace to take whatever shelter the basments and drains afforded.

Singapore citizens learned their lesson quickly, for despite the intensity of the raids last week the daily casualty list averaged less than 100.

However, Japanese bombs and shells Sunday killed 34 and wounded 158 civilians, it was announced.

doned three hours before it rolled over. At that time a 21-degree list had developed and the "clear ship" order was taken as a precaution against loss of life. The pier also was cleared.

"I don't believe the fire was caused by sabotage," Admiral Andrews said. "There was nothing to indicate it."

A big hole was cut in the ship's starboard side to allow water to be pumped into tanks amidships, he explained, in an attempt to offset a list to port by settling the ship more firmly on the bottom, but the pressure of the tide counteracted this emergency measure.

Thus was written another chapter in the seven-year history of the erstwhile blue-ribbon Normandie. She glistened once with smart black and white paint; this gave way to wartime grey. Then the fire turned this to shroud-like black; now red mud swirls about her hull and innards.

"Get off the ship" was the terse warning over the ship's loud-speaker system which gave many of the workmen their first word of the fire.

As blistering flames and acrid smoke raced through upper decks, workmen scurried from the holds in droves and leaped like rabbits to the safety of the pier.

Alarm after alarm brought every conceivable type of first aid and rescue organization to the scene. Many air-raid wardens and auxiliary firemen already mobilized for defence got their first taste of rescue work.

Together with disaster units from hospitals, the Red Cross and the American Women's Voluntary Service, worked for hours over the injured, hampered by dense clouds of smoke.

Priests from nearby churches administered the last rites to many of the 220 injured, but although 110 of them were in hospital, the death of the welder was the only fatality.

Wounded Prisoners Released

Parts of the fruits of victory at Halfaya Pass was release of some hundreds of British prisoners held by Axis defenders. Many were wounded and British stretcher-bearers are shown struggling to bring them down the steep sides of a wadi where ambulances were waiting. The prisoners praised the German commanding officer for his fair treatment of them under the terrific siege which preceded fall of the stronghold.

1896, but Dr. Fauteux had the support of several Liberals, including Senator Leon Mercier-Gouin, his cousin; Vincent Dupuis, Liberal member of the House of Commons for Chambly-Rouville, and J. A. Francoeur, Liberal member of the Provincial Legislative Assembly for Mercier.

3,975 Majority

Complete figures from the 158 polls in Quebec East gave Mr. St. Laurent 16,676 votes and Mr. Bouchard 12,701.

In Montreal St. Mary, with 194 out of 206 polls reporting, Dr. Fauteux received 7,061 votes, Mr. Perillard 4,421, Mr. Ostiguy 3,361 and Mr. Naud 726. Deputy returning officers in 12 of the polls locked their counts in the ballot boxes and the complete returns will not be available until the boxes are opened.

Mr. St. Laurent dropped the first poll to report in Quebec East, but forged ahead on the next, and increased his margin with practically every poll reporting. The contest drew about 2,000 less voters to the booths than did the 1940 campaign when Mr. Lapointe fought his last Federal campaign. He died in hospital in Montreal last November.

Dr. Fauteux was ahead all the way in St. Mary, but his margin was much smaller than the huge majority that Dr. Hermas Deslauriers piled up in 1940 when he polled more than 23,000 votes against 6,000 divided among three opponents. Dr. Deslauriers died last May after representing the riding since 1917.

nership of the Dominion Government and the C.C.F., with the government dictating and directing the whole character of the campaign."

Mitchell Taken to Hospital

Mr. Mitchell was stricken and taken to hospital before his election was conceded by Mr. Watt three hours after the polls closed. At that point in the ballot counting the Labor Minister had 10,236 votes; Mr. Watt 9,528 and Mr. Kriluck, 5,888. The night's final count, 220 out of 245 polls, gave Mitchell 11,179; Watt 9,757 and Kriluck 5,986.

The death of A. B. Damude, Liberal member, left the seat vacant. The late Mr. Damude first won the seat in 1935 and retained it in 1940 election when he polled 19,132 votes to 14,491 for A. L. Brooks, National Government candidate, and 2,818 for E. Woodworth, C.C.F.

An unusual feature of both contests was the fact that Ontario's Liberal Premier, Hon. Mitchell Hepburn joined Lt.-Col. George A. Drew, Provincial Conservative chieftain, in campaigning for Mr. Meighen and Mr. Watt. Arthur Roebuck, one-time Attorney-General in the Hepburn cabinet, supported Mr. Noseworthy. Mr. Roebuck also spoke for Labor Minister Mitchell, who had the help of Navy Minister Angust Macdonald and Munitions Minister C. D. Howe.

Premier Hepburn and Col. Drew contended the Welland election was a "test case" against the Federal Government's war effort, and declared a defeat for the Labor Minister might precipitate a Dominion election and cancel the proposed conscription plebiscite.

Hepburn Not Downhearted

Premier Hepburn, who saw both his candidates defeated, said at Chatham last night he was "never elated over victories nor downheated from defeats." He reiterated the course he followed was that dictated by his own convictions which he would continue to adhere to "in or out of public office."

Mr. Mitchell, chided by Mr. Hepburn for his remark that he was being loyal "to the skipper" in supporting the proposed conscription plebiscite, said from his hospital bed in Niagara Falls last night that "the voice of Welland has spoken for unity and loyalty to the skipper on the bridge."

ALPARKA DISAPPOINTED

In his broadcast from England last night, Sergeant Hugh Davidson just hadn't time to put in a word of greeting to his former Alparka associates, and the midnight disappointment still clouded the coffee atmosphere this morning. 61 Glengarrians Heard On Radio Broadcast

Interference on the radio waves within the city caused distress to some people who waited until midnight to hear the voices of the Glengarrians from England. The interference was said to be particularly bad on Water Street near the Market area, and one home was unable to hear anything on the radio because of interference.

The voices came in perfect on other sets, and it was heart warming for parents, wives, sweethearts, brothers, sisters and friends to hear and recognize the voices of the boys who joined up almost two years ago.

The unfortunate part of the whole thing is that the record was made last November and the boys, thinking it would be heard in Canada before Christmas sent messages about parcels and letters that for the most part are of little value now. Many people to-day were asking the question as to why it took so long for the authorities to get the record to Canada so that the people over here could get the messages, and the rumors indicate that the CBC will get letters from people in this city asking that very question.

The messages indicated the boys were in fine shape, training hard for the job ahead and anxious for more letters from home. Many asked for cigarettes, and their appeal will no doubt be met locally by those who knew them and worked with them here.

Tuesday night at midnight another bunch of the Glengarrians will be heard on the CBC stations starting at midnight.

Those heard on the broadcast were: Lt.-Col. R. T. E. Hicks-Lyne, M.C., Major E. Cockburn, Kingston, now acting O.C. of the Glenagrrians, Captain Graeme Falkner, Lt. Ken Kingston, Lt. Soldiers Died Protecting Canada's Shore

Churchill's ringing message to Canadians during his recent visit to Ottawa when he said, "There is service in a thousand ways, all can help, all have a part to play," echoed through the Capitol Theatre this morning as 60 canvassers saw a film educating them in the need for putting the Second Victory Loan across.

Prior to the showing of the film, C. L. McCutcheon, organizer for this district, gave a short talk to the canvassers in which he said, There is more money in the banks of Canada today than there was when the First Victory Loan was sold, factories are busy, people are saving their money, but many are spending for non-essentials, and if they will just stop buying the things they do not need, and put that money in Victory Bonds, they will not only prevent the price ceiling from going higher but they will buy a stake in freedom and provide security for later on."

"A Victory Bond is as good as money in the bank, better, because it earns more, and it can be cashed in an emergency at any bank, the client obtaining the money just about as fast as if the actual money was on deposit in the bank."

He urged the canvassers to buy bonds themselves, and he read a news item glaned by a reporter from a Belgian refugee which indicated that Belgian children are falling asleep at their desks in the late morning from malnutrition. "They are raising a generation of weaklings," he stated.

The films, titled "Come On Canada," depicts a typical scene in a Canadian home as compared to the same early morning scene in bomb torn countries.

"The war chest is almost empty and Canadians must replenish the money, turning their savings into armaments if we are to win this struggle," was the warning given.

Mr. McCutcheon explained that instalment buying of a bond was actually instalment saving in which a person increased his assets. It is not a donation, but an investment, with Canada's entire resources as security.

"The men who lost their lives fighting at Hong Kong and tlso the Canadians who died fighting over England were lost protecting the shores of Canada. It is your job and mine to keep the battle over there, to keep the damage and the sufferings away from our country. We must supply the fighting equipment, the tools of war, and thus bear our share of the responsibility."

"A short bit of the film gave a few of Churchill's memorable words at Ottawa, and they seemed a fitting climax to this appeal to the men and women of this county to get on with the job of financing Canada's war effort." If we are to underestimate the strength of the enemy we are jeopardizing the safety of our nation. There is service in a thousand forms, and all have their part to play," the Premier stated.

The campaign to raise $2,750,000 in Peterborough County gets under way next Monday, February 16, and forms to sign for a bond may be obtained at the Victory Loan office or from any of the 60 canvassers in the county. Instalment saving can be arranged by almost any person working, if not through their employer, then through the bank, where every consideration will be given one seeking to invest his money at 3 per cent in the Second Victory Loan.

Buckhorn Youth Is Arraigned

Robert Shearer, 18-year-old Buckhorn youth, was arraigned in police court this morning on a charge of reckless driving, arising out of an accident on Water street north on January 9 in which Henry Booth, elderly garbage collector, received fatal injuries.

Defended by Hon. G. N. Gordon, K.C., Shearer pleaded not guilty and elected trial by judge and jury.

Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C. asked that the case be tried as an indictable offence.

Shearer was remanded until Thursday morning when the preliminary hearing will be staged.

The Buckhorn youth was the driver of a south bound car which struck Booth as the elderly man was walking across Water street north. Booth was badly injured and died in hospital some days later.

Truck Stalled On Crossing Hit By Train

Stalled in the snow on the Armour Road crossing of the C.P.R. on Monday a truck belonging to the Better Beverages Company was struck by a double-header C.P.R. freight train and carried 255 feet down the track in a badly damaged condition.

John Keating, 383 Edison avenue, who had been driving the machine and not in the truck when it was struck.

He had been driving north on Armour road and when he reached the railway crossing the vehicle slid into the deep snow and stuck there. Keating got out and started to shovel some of the snow away with the result that the truck slid still further along the tracks and partially in the ditch.

Just then the train, east-bound, came along and hit the motor vehicle broadside, pushing it far down the track. The train was in charge of Conductor Westfall and Engineer Cochrane of Lindsay.

Fire Department Needs $43,935

Tentative appropriation for the Fire Department was recommended at $43,935 by the Fire and Light Committee last night. This amount includes $5,000, estimated requirement for cost of living bonus.

Expenditure last year was $42,050, of which $1,445 was paid in the living cost bonus. The committee, with Alderman Sullivan presiding, recommended purchase of 1,000 feet of 2½-inch hose and 500 feet of 1½-inch hose. Chief Gimblett's annual report was received, and copies distributed to the members for their scanning and study.

The manufacturers' committee is asking for $1,750 this year after spending $1,533.88 of their appropriation of $2,900 in 1941. Alderman Bradburn, chairman, said expenditure would be confined to carefully placed advertising.

The legal and reception committee of which Alderman Sands is chairman, sent on to the finance committee a requisition for 300 for reception, $500 for law and legislation and $2,000 for insurance; total, $2,800. This is the same amount as the estimates of last year. This committee spent $3,078 in 1941, and of that amount $500 was a contribution to the British War Victims' Fund.

Alderman Dutton said the Board of Works would probably attack its estmates some time this week.

Little Lake Cemetery Board Shows $1,464 Surplus $10,000 For Victory Loan

Dr. J. E. Middleton was re-elected president of the Little Cemetery Company at a meeting of the directors Monday.

The other officers were retained by re-election: Mayor Hamilton as vice-president; Miss E. J. Saunders secretary-treasurer.

C. Frank Kitney is superintendent of the cemetery. The directors who were elected January 19 are: E. A. Peck, K.C., R. J. Kidd, H. A. Morrow, W. J. Thompson, Dr. Middleton, Mayor Hamilton, E. H. Howson, W. A. Richardson and Alderman H. I. Bradburn.

In the annual report of the directors, Dr. Middleton announced the expectation of having funds available this month to subscribe at least $10,000 of the new Victory Loan "with which to help win the war, and maintain the privileges we enjoy as free people."

The rest of the 91st annual report follows:

"A survey of the financial statement issued by our auditor reveals the fact that we have increased our holdings by $4,000.00 with a balance or $8,604.26. Five thousand of this balance is derived from Peterborough bonds which matured the end of the year.

For the permanent care of 22 additional lots we have received during the year $4,205 as compared with $2,020 in 1940.

Keeping the grass in good shape is a very difficult task especially during a dry spell similar to what we experienced last year. A liberal application of commercial fertilizer is a great help, but our lot owners can understand that so large an area to cover it cannot all be done in one year. In this too, we are working to a plan.

We have visions of our lot owners being able to get nearer their plots with their cars and may we say to the older people who find it very inconvenient to walk and carry their flowers such long distances that permission may be obtained from the office to enter the ground, provided that entrance at that time does not interfere with the general work of the cemetery.

We are fortunate this year, in that we have not lost any of our board members by death. We trust that in the coming year, we may continue to keep to keep our number in fact, and that the victory of our allies which we long and pray for may be consumated in the not too distant future."

Superintendent's Report

Mr. Kitney's review of work and improvements in 1941 was, in part, as follows:

"The stone wall has been continued 150 feet farther along the lake shore at the point where the land rises the highest from the water. This has been done in connection with the general work, stones and surplus earth from graves were used in this work. There remains 120 feet to complete the rip rap.

The unsightly trees on the north east corner of Section "O" have been removed, the low parts filled and graded, ready for seeding, this will add 112 five grave lots to this section. Section "X" two ranges have been filled, graded and sodded ready for burying, adding 160 graves to the singles.

To comply with the new Provincial regulations, a babies' plot has been planned east of Section "D" and Mr. John W. Pierce has underway a new plan of the cemetery.

285 feet of water pipe has been laid, pipe, fittings and labor $54.

During the summer the Ware street house was painted on the outside. A new fence was built on the west side of the superintendentss residence, this work was done by our own men, and the lumber used was cut from the trees removed from the cemetery.

A new stoker was installed in the greenhouse at a cost of $365.

During the season we have used 336 loads of topsoil, muck and fill and 2,753 sods from the Otonabee lot, also 95 loads of fill and stones from other sources.

During the year there were: 261 interments, 22 lots put under permanent care, 33 foundations for monuments, 4 cement borders, 36 lots sold.

I wish to thank the president, his committee, and the members of the Board for their cheerful assistance during the past year, and for their many kinds words of encouragement.

Financial Statement

Operating revenue of the Cemtery Company last year totalled $16,-360.16 as compared with $15,478.47 in 1940 and $16,073.11 in 1939.

Total expenditure in 1941 was $14,896.21 as against $15,387.86 in 1940 and $16,0E3.11 in 1939.

The increased income with reduction of the expenditure during the last three converted a deficit into a surplus.

The balance for last year showed a surplus of $1,464.02. In the previous year there was a surplus of $90.61, but in 19393 the accounting left at deficit of $1,462.83.3

Danger Of Bombings In British Cities Are Not to be Compared to Women's Fear of Mice

Men have laughed through the ages at women's fear of mice, but the depth of it, and a final almost infinite measure, is suggested by a grimly humorous incident in a letter received by Alderman Sands from a relative in Belfast, Ireland.

The unadorned telling of one woman's experience in fleeing from mice and security in the country to the dangers and terror of German bombing probably is more effective than any paraphrasing or embellishment can add to it.

"Well, we had three night of the Blitz. We were in the country last night, and we heard the bombers going over the house in waves for hours. Gina (an aunt) was in our house in the city. She said that there were mice in the country house, and she simply would not stay in it."

That little paragraph tells more of a woman's emotion when mice appear on the scene than a whole chapter of psychologic assaying of such heroic fear. To flee from mice to a German blitz, three nights of it beyond man's comprehension. But, there it is.

Here is another little significant sentence disclosing the extent of deprivation in war circumstances.

The letter is superlatively grateful for a gift of goloshes, and then, "We also thank you for the onions; they are the first we have had for two years."

Whole streets of houses in Belfast were destroyed by the German bombing of last Spring. Two hundred and twenty people were killed. "In a shelter about 300 yards from our house there were 23 killed in it. We had only five panes of glass broken. We returned from the country in June as we could not stand the fatigue of going out and in night and morning."

Local Motorist Fined For Reckless Driving

A fine of $40, and $9.00 costs, with the alternative of one month in jail, was the sentence imposed by Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., in Police Court this morning on Joseph Carey, London Street, after he had found the 23-year-old driver guilty on a charge of reckless driving.

His Worship suspended the driving licence of the accused for a period of four months.

The charge originated in a traffic accident at Perry and George Streets in which a car driven by Carey was involved in a collision with another automobile driven by Thomas Ephgrave. Mr. and Mrs. Ephgrave were injured in the crash.

Evidence in the case was heard last week and there was an adjournment until this morning for argument and judgment.

W. J. Arthur Fair, who had left the court room in the course of his argument at the last hearing of the case because he alleged that the magistrate was not paying attention to his remarks, was on hand this morning and concluded his address to the court. Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C., argued the case on behalf of the Crown.

"I am satisfied said Magistrate Langley in giving judgment, "that the accused was driving in an unreasonable and reckless manner. I would not have the slightest hesitation in convicting him of driving without due care and attention if the charge had been laid under the Highway Traffic Act. The only matter that has given me some concern is whether his negligence was sufficient to bring it within the reckless driving charge under the Criminal Code."

His Worship added that having considered the evidence he had arrived at the conclusion that a conviction was justified.

Havelock Lady Injured In Car

Leitha Brunton, Havelock, had her side injured when a car in which she was riding was involved in an accident with a truck on Lansdowne street.

T. Watson of Havelock was driving his car east on Lansdowne and was about to pass an east-bound truck driven by Hector S. Brady, 634 George street, when the transport started to make a left turn into a driveway and there was an accident. The car was caught by its headlight and right front fender and dragged 50 feet, according to the police report. It suffered damage to headlight and fenders and the handle of the door was broken.

The only person injured was Leitha Brunton, a passenger in Watson's automobile.

NOT SO GLOWING

Alderman Glover reminded the Examiner last night that the council began 1941 with a surplus of about $14,000. It also closed the year with $18,000 on the right side of the ledger, but, he said, that meant only about $3,000 financial improvement over the preceding year. Alderman Glover said that the interpretation of City Treasurer Shaver's announcement of an $18,-000 surplus might lead taxpayers to expect more than the figures quoted in the news account warranted.

Draw On Coat Nets $100 For War Victims

The Peterborough and District War Victims' Fund has passed the $37,000 mark in today's report for the fund, largely through the splendid amount of $100.25 realized from the sale of tickets for a draw on a ladies beaver-lamb fur coat which had been donated to the fund by the ladies of the Women's Institute of Bailieboro. The draw was made Monday afternoon by D. B. Falkner, manager of the Bank of Commerce, who is also the treasurer of the fund, and resulted in ticket No. 731 held by J. Revoy of 287 Park street, being the winner.

The fund management expresses its thanks to Don Roode, E. J. Hotston, C. B. Merrett, L. F. Dyer, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Parker of Norwood, H. B. Cowan, Jr., C. Murray, J. Heffernan, A. Black, E. Jenkinson, D. McGregor, V. McDonald, Zellers Store, D. J. Eldred, W. J. Welch, A. Bacon, J. Marshall, P. E. Moore, R. Burrows, J. McMahon, L. Burnham, L. Cooper and the Misses H. Ross, G. Collins and H. Lytle for the assistance they all rendered in the sale of tickets, and to the ladies of the Women's Institute of Bailieboro, whose gift made this effort for the fund possible.

One personal donation listed as "A Friend" not only helps from a monetary standpoint but also serves as a reminder that one can demonstrate their own personal interest in helping the people of Britain in this manner.

Zellers Dance Wednesday

The staff of Zellers Store is out to give the fund a good boost by holding a dance on Wednesday night in the Knights of Columbus Hall on Simcoe street which will commence at 9 p.m. from which all the net proceeds will be given to help things along. This will be a St. Valentines dance, with all that accompanies such events, and patron and patronesses will be Mr. and Mrs. D. J. Fitzgerald, and Mr. and Mrs. L. P. Hatton. Music will be supplied by Patsy Connell and his orchestra, and tickets for this event will be $1.25 per couple, while dress will be optional.

His Worship Mayor James Hamilton has received by letter Official Receipt No. 83990 for the 15th donation of £500 cabled in the early part of January, accompanied by a letter which says in part "May I again say how very much I appreciate this further donation expressing the sympathy felt by your citizens for our air raid victims, and I shall be glad if you will accept yourself, and convey to all contributors my very warmest thanks for the splendid efforts they are making on our behalf. I am very glad to know that I have behind me such solid support as you are giving me, and I should like all donors to know how very much their friendship is valued."

651 Fire Alarms Last Year Set New Record

Chief Gimblett reports a new peak of 651 fire alarms in his reviews of the department for 1941.

Aggregate loss was $44,565, an increase of $35,862.75 over the previous year, and accounted to 47 more serious fires.

Of the 651 alarms that were rung into the fire hall, 600 were by telephone, 27 from street boxes, 21 verbal, 2 by sprinkler systems and one is described as Chief's special.

The 1941 records present an increase of 120 alarms and 7 fires more than 1940, and "sixty alarms more than ever registered in any other year of the department's history."

Inhalator calls during the year were for five drownings, three victims of gas and one accident. Chief Gimblett reported one person was resuscitated and one gas victim saved.

Fires in the first weeks of January began ringing alarms where those of 1941 left off. Most of them were chimney fires, and as a preventive of that economic hazard and nuisance the Department obtained a local statute which demands cleaning of chimneys, and puts a penalty instead of some neighborhood excitement on chimney fires.

It is expected that the bylaw will be a deterrent to householders who used to neglect chimneys until they burned themselves out.

ACCIDENTS

Almost daily we read about someone being injured or badly shaken up because of an accident.

It is almost impossible to get a bad jar or twist without causing a strain to the spinal column.

This may produce a slight derangement of spinal joints or tightness of spinal ligaments and muscles which will result in nerve constriction.

PAIN

stiffness, backache, stomach trouble or headache may develop.

These discomforts are frequently the direct after-effect of an injury and it has been our experience that spinal treatments do afford genuine relief.

ALPARKA DISAPPOINTED

In his broadcast from England last night, Sergeant Hugh Davidson just hadn't time to put in a word of greeting to his former Alparka associates, and the midnight disappointment still clouded the coffee atmosphere this morning. However the Alparkites were delighted to hear the voice of Sgt. Davidson sounding to all his friends.

TO FACE THE PUCK.

Mayor James Hamilton has consented to get to-night's Milk for Britain Fund hockey games between Toronto Marlboros and the Petes off with proper eclat by facing the puck at the opening. In addition to the other hockey celebrities who are here for the game Harold "Baldy" Cotton, former Leaf star, is in town and is expected to be on hand to-night.

61 Glengarrians Heard On Radio Broadcast

Interference on the radio waves within the city caused distress to some people who waited until midnight to hear the voices of the Glengarrians from England. The interference was said to be particularly bad on Water Street near the Market area, and one home was unable to hear anything on the radio because of interference.

The voices came in perfect on other sets, and it was heart warming for parents, wives, sweethearts, brothers, sisters and friends to hear and recognize the voices of the boys who joined up almost two years ago.

The unfortunate part of the whole thing is that the record was made last November and the boys, thinking it would be heard in Canada before Christmas sent messages about parcels and letters that for the most part are of little value now. Many people to-day were asking the question as to why it took so long for the authorities to get the record to Canada so that the people over here could get the messages, and the rumors indicate that the CBC will get letters from people in this city asking that very question.

The messages indicated the boys were in fine shape, training hard for the job ahead and anxious for more letters from home. Many asked for cigarettes, and their appeal will no doubt be met locally by those who knew them and worked with them here.

Tuesday night at midnight another bunch of the Glengarrians will be heard on the CBC stations starting at midnight.

Those heard on the broadcast were: Lt.-Col. R. T. E. Hicks-Lyne, M.C., Major E. Cockburn, Kingston, now acting O.C. of the Glenagrrians, Captain Graeme Falkner, Lt. Ken Kingston, Lt. Soldiers Died Protecting Canada's Shore

Churchill's ringing message to Canadians during his recent visit to Ottawa when he said, "There is service in a thousand ways, all can help, all have a part to play," echoed through the Capitol Theatre this morning as 60 canvassers saw a film educating them in the need for putting the Second Victory Loan across.

Prior to the showing of the film, C. L. McCutcheon, organizer for this district, gave a short talk to the canvassers in which he said, There is more money in the banks of Canada today than there was when the First Victory Loan was sold, factories are busy, people are saving their money, but many are spending for non-essentials, and if they will just stop buying the things they do not need, and put that money in Victory Bonds, they will not only prevent the price ceiling from going higher but they will buy a stake in freedom and provide security for later on."

"A Victory Bond is as good as money in the bank, better, because it earns more, and it can be cashed in an emergency at any bank, the client obtaining the money just about as fast as if the actual money was on deposit in the bank."

He urged the canvassers to buy bonds themselves, and he read a news item glaned by a reporter from a Belgian refugee which indicated that Belgian children are falling asleep at their desks in the late morning from malnutrition. "They are raising a generation of weaklings," he stated.

The films, titled "Come On Canada," depicts a typical scene in a Canadian home as compared to the same early morning scene in bomb torn countries.

"The war chest is almost empty and Canadians must replenish the money, turning their savings into armaments if we are to win this struggle," was the warning given.

Mr. McCutcheon explained that instalment buying of a bond was actually instalment saving in which a person increased his assets. It is not a donation, but an investment, with Canada's entire resources as security.

"The men who lost their lives fighting at Hong Kong and tlso the Canadians who died fighting over England were lost protecting the shores of Canada. It is your job and mine to keep the battle over there, to keep the damage and the sufferings away from our country. We must supply the fighting equipment, the tools of war, and thus bear our share of the responsibility."

"A short bit of the film gave a few of Churchill's memorable words at Ottawa, and they seemed a fitting climax to this appeal to the men and women of this county to get on with the job of financing Canada's war effort." If we are to underestimate the strength of the enemy we are jeopardizing the safety of our nation. There is service in a thousand forms, and all have their part to play," the Premier stated.

The campaign to raise $2,750,000 in Peterborough County gets under way next Monday, February 16, and forms to sign for a bond may be obtained at the Victory Loan office or from any of the 60 canvassers in the county. Instalment saving can be arranged by almost any person working, if not through their employer, then through the bank, where every consideration will be given one seeking to invest his money at 3 per cent in the Second Victory Loan.

Buckhorn Youth Is Arraigned

Robert Shearer, 18-year-old Buckhorn youth, was arraigned in police court this morning on a charge of reckless driving, arising out of an accident on Water street north on January 9 in which Henry Booth, elderly garbage collector, received fatal injuries.

Defended by Hon. G. N. Gordon, K.C., Shearer pleaded not guilty and elected trial by judge and jury.

Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C. asked that the case be tried as an indictable offence.

Shearer was remanded until Thursday morning when the preliminary hearing will be staged.

The Buckhorn youth was the driver of a south bound car which struck Booth as the elderly man was walking across Water street north. Booth was badly injured and died in hospital some days later.

Truck Stalled On Crossing Hit By Train

Stalled in the snow on the Armour Road crossing of the C.P.R. on Monday a truck belonging to the Better Beverages Company was struck by a double-header C.P.R. freight train and carried 255 feet down the track in a badly damaged condition.

John Keating, 383 Edison avenue, who had been driving the machine and not in the truck when it was struck.

He had been driving north on Armour road and when he reached the railway crossing the vehicle slid into the deep snow and stuck there. Keating got out and started to shovel some of the snow away with the result that the truck slid still further along the tracks and partially in the ditch.

Just then the train, east-bound, came along and hit the motor vehicle broadside, pushing it far down the track. The train was in charge of Conductor Westfall and Engineer Cochrane of Lindsay.

Fire Department Needs $43,935

Tentative appropriation for the Fire Department was recommended at $43,935 by the Fire and Light Committee last night. This amount includes $5,000, estimated requirement for cost of living bonus.

Expenditure last year was $42,050, of which $1,445 was paid in the living cost bonus. The committee, with Alderman Sullivan presiding, recommended purchase of 1,000 feet of 2½-inch hose and 500 feet of 1½-inch hose. Chief Gimblett's annual report was received, and copies distributed to the members for their scanning and study.

The manufacturers' committee is asking for $1,750 this year after spending $1,533.88 of their appropriation of $2,900 in 1941. Alderman Bradburn, chairman, said expenditure would be confined to carefully placed advertising.

The legal and reception committee of which Alderman Sands is chairman, sent on to the finance committee a requisition for 300 for reception, $500 for law and legislation and $2,000 for insurance; total, $2,800. This is the same amount as the estimates of last year. This committee spent $3,078 in 1941, and of that amount $500 was contribution to the British War Victims' Fund.

Alderman Dutton said the Board of Works would probably attack its estmates some time this week.

Little Lake Cemetery Board Shows $1,464 Surplus $10,000 For Victory Loan

Dr. J. E. Middleton was re-elected president of the Little Cemetery Company at a meeting of the directors Monday.

The other officers were retained by re-election: Mayor Hamilton as vice-president; Miss E. J. Saunders secretary-treasurer.

C. Frank Kitney is superintendent of the cemetery. The directors who were elected January 19 are: E. A. Peck, K.C., R. J. Kidd, H. A. Morrow, W. J. Thompson, Dr. Middleton, Mayor Hamilton, E. H. Howson, W. A. Richardson and Alderman H. I. Bradburn.

In the annual report of the directors, Dr. Middleton announced the expectation of having funds available this month to subscribe at least $10,000 of the new Victory Loan "with which to help win the war, and maintain the privileges we enjoy as free people."

The rest of the 91st annual report follows:

"A survey of the financial statement issued by our auditor reveals the fact that we have increased our holdings by $4,000.00 with a balance or $8,604.26. Five thousand of this balance is derived from Peterborough bonds which matured the end of the year.

For the permanent care of 22 additional lots we have received during the year $4,205 as compared with $2,020 in 1940.

Keeping the grass in good shape is a very difficult task especially during a dry spell similar to what we experienced last year. A liberal application of commercial fertilizer is a great help, but our lot owners can understand that so large an area to cover it cannot all be done in one year. In this too, we are working to a plan.

We have visions of our lot owners being able to get nearer their plots with their cars and may we say to the older people who find it very inconvenient to walk and carry their flowers such long distances that permission may be obtained from the office to enter the ground, provided that entrance at that time does not interfere with the general work of the cemetery.

We are fortunate this year, in that we have not lost any of our board members by death. We trust that in the coming year, we may continue to keep to keep our number in fact, and that the victory of our allies which we long and pray for may be consumated in the not too distant future."

Superintendent's Report

Mr. Kitney's review of work and improvements in 1941 was, in part, as follows:

"The stone wall has been continued 150 feet farther along the lake shore at the point where the land rises the highest from the water. This has been done in connection with the general work, stones and surplus earth from graves were used in this work. There remains 120 feet to complete the rip rap.

The unsightly trees on the north east corner of Section "O" have been removed, the low parts filled and graded, ready for seeding, this will add 112 five grave lots to this section. Section "X" two ranges have been filled, graded and sodded ready for burying, adding 160 graves to the singles.

To comply with the new Provincial regulations, a babies' plot has been planned east of Section "D" and Mr. John W. Pierce has underway a new plan of the cemetery.

285 feet of water pipe has been laid, pipe, fittings and labor $54.

During the summer the Ware street house was painted on the outside. A new fence was built on the west side of the superintendentss residence, this work was done by our own men, and the lumber used was cut from the trees removed from the cemetery.

A new stoker was installed in the greenhouse at a cost of $365.

During the season we have used 336 loads of topsoil, muck and fill and 2,753 sods from the Otonabee lot, also 95 loads of fill and stones from other sources.

During the year there were: 261 interments, 22 lots put under permanent care, 33 foundations for monuments, 4 cement borders, 36 lots sold.

I wish to thank the president, his committee, and the members of the Board for their cheerful assistance during the past year, and for their many kinds words of encouragement.

Financial Statement

Operating revenue of the Cemtery Company last year totalled $16,360.16 as compared with $15,478.47 in 1940 and $16,073.11 in 1939.

Total expenditure in 1941 was $14,896.21 as against $15,387.86 in 1940 and $16,0E3.11 in 1939.

The increased income with reduction of the expenditure during the last three converted a deficit into a surplus.

The balance for last year showed a surplus of $1,464.02. In the previous year there was a surplus of $90.61, but in 19393 the accounting left at deficit of $1,462.83.3

Local Motorist Fined For Reckless Driving

A fine of $40, and $9.00 costs, with the alternative of one month in jail, was the sentence imposed by Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., in Police Court this morning on Joseph Carey, London Street, after he had found the 23-year-old driver guilty on a charge of reckless driving.

His Worship suspended the driving licence of the accused for a period of four months.

The charge originated in a traffic accident at Perry and George Streets in which a car driven by Carey was involved in a collision with another automobile driven by Thomas Ephgrave. Mr. and Mrs. Ephgrave were injured in the crash.

Evidence in the case was heard last week and there was an adjournment until this morning for argument and judgment.

W. J. Arthur Fair, who had left the court room in the course of his argument at the last hearing of the case because he alleged that the magistrate was not paying attention to his remarks, was on hand this morning and concluded his address to the court. Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C., argued the case on behalf of the Crown.

"I am satisfied said Magistrate Langley in giving judgment, "that the accused was driving in an unreasonable and reckless manner. I would not have the slightest hesitation in convicting him of driving without due care and attention if the charge had been laid under the Highway Traffic Act. The only matter that has given me some concern is whether his negligence was sufficient to bring it within the reckless driving charge under the Criminal Code."

His Worship added that having considered the evidence he had arrived at the conclusion that a conviction was justified.

Havelock Lady Injured In Car

Leitha Brunton, Havelock, had her side injured when a car in which she was riding was involved in an accident with a truck on Lansdowne street.

T. Watson of Havelock was driving his car east on Lansdowne and was about to pass an east-bound truck driven by Hector S. Brady, 634 George street, when the transport started to make a left turn into a driveway and there was an accident. The car was caught by its headlight and right front fender and dragged 50 feet, according to the police report. It suffered damage to headlight and fenders and the handle of the door was broken.

The only person injured was Leitha Brunton, a passenger in Watson's automobile.

NOT SO GLOWING

Alderman Glover reminded the Examiner last night that the council began 1941 with a surplus of about $14,000. It also closed the year with $18,000 on the right side of the ledger, but, he said, that meant only about $3,000 financial improvement over the preceding year. Alderman Glover said that the interpretation of City Treasurer Shaver's announcement of an $18,000 surplus might lead taxpayers to expect more than the figures quoted in the news account warranted.

Danger Of Bombings In British Cities Are Not to be Compared to Women's Fear of Mice

Men have laughed through the ages at women's fear of mice, but the depth of it, and a final almost infinite measure, is suggested by a grimly humorous incident in a letter received by Alderman Sands from a relative in Belfast, Ireland.

The unadorned telling of one woman's experience in fleeing from mice and security in the country to the dangers and terror of German bombing probably is more effective than any paraphrasing or embellishment can add to it.

"Well, we had three night of the Blitz. We were in the country last night, and we heard the bombers going over the house in waves for hours. Gina (an aunt) was in our house in the city. She said that there were mice in the country house, and she simply would not stay in it."

That little paragraph tells more of a woman's emotion when mice appear on the scene than a whole chapter of psychologic assaying of such heroic fear. To flee from mice to a German blitz, three nights of it beyond man's comprehension. But, there it is.

Here is another little significant sentence disclosing the extent of deprivation in war circumstances.

The letter is superlatively grateful for a gift of goloshes, and then, "We also thank you for the onions; they are the first we have had for two years."

Whole streets of houses in Belfast were destroyed by the German bombing of last Spring. Two hundred and twenty people were killed. "In a shelter about 300 yards from our house there were 23 killed in it. We had only five panes of glass broken. We returned from the country in June as we could not stand the fatigue of going out and in night and morning."

Draw On Coat Nets $100 For War Victims

The Peterborough and District War Victims' Fund has passed the $37,000 mark in today's report for the fund, largely through the splendid amount of $100.25 realized from the sale of tickets for a draw on a ladies beaver-lamb fur coat which had been donated to the fund by the ladies of the Women's Institute of Bailieboro. The draw was made Monday afternoon by D. B. Falkner, manager of the Bank of Commerce, who is also the treasurer of the fund, and resulted in ticket No. 731 held by J. Revoy of 287 Park street, being the winner.

The fund management expresses its thanks to Don Roode, E. J. Hotston, C. B. Merrett, L. F. Dyer, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Parker of Norwood, H. B. Cowan, Jr., C. Murray, J. Heffernan, A. Black, E. Jenkinson, D. McGregor, V. McDonald, Zellers Store, D. J. Eldred, W. J. Welch, A. Bacon, J. Marshall, P. E. Moore, R. Burrows, J. McMahon, L. Burnham, L. Cooper and the Misses H. Ross, G. Collins and H. Lytle for the assistance they all rendered in the sale of tickets, and to the ladies of the Women's Institute of Bailieboro, whose gift made this effort for the fund possible.

One personal donation listed as "A Friend" not only helps from a monetary standpoint but also serves as a reminder that one can demonstrate their own personal interest in helping the people of Britain in this manner.

Zellers Dance Wednesday

The staff of Zellers Store is out to give the fund a good boost by holding a dance on Wednesday night in the Knights of Columbus Hall on Simcoe street which will commence at 9 p.m. from which all the net proceeds will be given to help things along. This will be a St. Valentines dance, with all that accompanies such events, and patron and patronesses will be Mr. and Mrs. D. J. Fitzgerald, and Mr. and Mrs. L. P. Hatton. Music will be supplied by Patsy Connell and his orchestra, and tickets for this event will be $1.25 per couple, while dress will be optional.

His Worship Mayor James Hamilton has received by letter Official Receipt No. 83990 for the 15th donation of £500 cabled in the early part of January, accompanied by a letter which says in part "May I again say how very much I appreciate this further donation expressing the sympathy felt by your citizens for our air raid victims, and I shall be glad if you will accept yourself, and convey to all contributors my very warmest thanks for the splendid efforts they are making on our behalf. I am very glad to know that I have behind me such solid support as you are giving me, and I should like all donors to know how very much their friendship is valued."

651 Fire Alarms Last Year Set New Record

Chief Gimblett reports a new peak of 651 fire alarms in his reviews of the department for 1941.

Aggregate loss was $44,565, an increase of $35,862.75 over the previous year, and accounted to 47 more serious fires.

Of the 651 alarms that were rung into the fire hall, 600 were by telephone, 27 from street boxes, 21 verbal, 2 by sprinkler systems and one is described as Chief's special.

The 1941 records present an increase of 120 alarms and 7 fires more than 1940, and "sixty alarms more than ever registered in any other year of the department's history."

Inhalator calls during the year were for five drownings, three victims of gas and one accident. Chief Gimblett reported one person was resuscitated and one gas victim saved.

Fires in the first weeks of January began ringing alarms where those of 1941 left off. Most of them were chimney fires, and as a preventive of that economic hazard and nuisance the Department obtained a local statute which demands cleaning of chimneys, and puts a penalty instead of some neighborhood excitement on chimney fires.

It is expected that the bylaw will be a deterrent to householders who used to neglect chimneys until they burned themselves out.

ACCIDENTS
Almost daily we read about someone being injured or badly shaken up because of an accident.
It is almost impossible to get a bad jar or twist without causing a strain to the spinal column.
This may produce a slight derangement of spinal joints or tightness of spinal ligaments and muscles which will result in nerve constriction.
PAIN
stiffness, backache, stomach trouble or headache may develop.
These discomforts are frequently the direct after-effect of an injury and it has been our experience that spinal treatments do afford genuine relief.

In the second only two goals were scored as the teams gathered one apiece, but when the third came up it was a case of get what you can as the players tore up and down the icse. week and others that are still pending. Our whole chance of success comes back to the spiritual armament of our people which is more important on the home front than on the battle front. As surely as we are here today, unless we are prepared for a time to sacrifice our democracy we will lose our democracy. Unless we accept for ourselves Japan's ideal that we have a life to give instead of a life to live we may find ourselves occupying a place like that of Korea or Manchoukuo. Churchill once said 'Give us the tools and we will finish the job.' Christ said, 'Where your treasure is there will your heart be also.' If our treasure is truly love of freedom there and there only will our hearts be and nothing, money, better working conditions, or even life itself can keep us from a glorious victory and a wonderful peace to follow."

Rotarian Dr. J. A. Bannister expressed the thanks of the club to Dr. Avison for his informative address and Rotarian A. L. Killaly suggested that a copy should be sent to International Rotary.

Hubert Eastwood of the Eastwood Construction Company, was welcomed as a new member. He was introduced by Rotarian M. H. Riddle.

GEORGE HENRY FLINT

CAMPBELLFORD, Feb. 10 (ENS)—A military funeral was given today to George Henry Flint, 66, veteran of World War I who died in Belleville Hospital on Sunday following a lengthy illness. In his youth Mr. Flint, who was born in England and came to this country with his wife and three children thirty-seven years ago was a carpenter and leather finisher. On coming to Canada he settled in this town and was employed in the local shoe factory for nearly twenty years.

In 1916 he went overseas with the 235th Battalion C.E.F. and latter transferred to the 48th Highlanders. It was while in this latter unit he received an injury which nearly cost him the sight of his eye when during a sham battle someone fired a blank shot at him from close range. Mr. Flint received his discharge in April, 1919, and returned to work in the shoe factory. Poor health forced him to retire in 1931 but not until Christmas of last year did he become seriously ill. He had been in Belleville hospital a little over three weeks at the time of his passing.

Surviving him besides his widow the former Elizabeth Nurse of Dartford, England, are six sons, George of Larder Lake, Ont., Danny with the 1st Midland Regiment and Samuel, Walter, Ernest and Edwing all of Campbellford; and five daughters, Mrs. William Seaborn, Mrs. Russell Ayrhart, Mrs. Charles Nicholas, Jr., all of Campbellford, Irene at home and Mrs. Stuart B. Whitney, Laconia, N.H.

The funeral left the family residence Naseby street at 2 o'clock for Christ Church where services were conducted by Rev. T. S. Gault. Interment was at the Church of England cemetery, and members of the local branch of the Canadian Legion were the bearers.

Arrangements for a Lovely Wedding

Details Settled in Advance

"Such a beautiful wedding!" They'll say that of yours if you plan it right! For, though the war forbids extravagance, it doesn't take money to have a lovely wedding.

The important thing is to know what's correct, to budget expenses properly—whether your wedding is formal or informal.

The formal bride looks lovely in her bridal gown and veil, but you may look lovely, too, marrying informally in suit and hat.

The groom's clothes are in key—cutaway and striped trousers for a formal afternoon wedding or business clothes for an informal one.

On the bride's budget will be invitations, refreshments, music and expenses at the church. The groom's will include the license and the ring, the fee for the clergyman.

Our 32-page booklet explains all the etiquette of expenses, describes every detail of correct formal and informal wedding dress for bride, groom, attendants and guests. Tells etiquette for ceremony and reception.

For your copy of "Planning and Budgeting Your Wedding" send 15 cents in coins or stamps to the Examiner, Home Service, Peterborough. Be sure to write plainly your name, address, and the name of booklet.

"The Authority on Authorities"

FREAKS BEGET FREAKS

IF YOU indulge a taste for queer bidding, landing you in bizarre contracts, you are likely to find yourself face to face with grotesque playing problems. This is brought out frequently by strained efforts of duplicate players to get scores different from those obtained by the rest of the competitors, in their desire to shoot for top scores. The problems of play which finally develop may call for moves you do not expect to see ordinarily, some of which are odd in the extreme.

South violated an almost sacred rule of No Trump bidding, to avoid that declaration when you lack a couple of cards of your partner's suit, but with stoppers in hearts and clubs, plus the solid spades, he decided to make a crazy shot, especially since honors do not count in match-play duplicates.

West led his heart K and, seeing his partner's J drop, decided he would not set up the possible game trick for South by leading the suit again. He switched to the surprise lead of the club J. East did not want to advertise the whole club story to South, so put on the 7 and the declarer won with the Q, convinced that West would not have led the suit with less than five cards and that East therefore probably had the singleton K left.

Now for some funny play, superinduced by sound card reading. Five spades brought from West discards of two hearts and three diamonds. That made six tricks. If the club A were now played, dropping the K, West could then run the setting tricks. So South deliberately led a low club, letting the singleton K win. East had to return a diamond to the dummy, where three tricks were taken to make game. The 10 having been East's lead, he had the Q-3 left. So the 6 was led to the Q and the 5 scored an extra trick. Just imagine having to let a singleton K win intentionally, and making an extra trick by doing so.

Tomorrow's Problem

North: ♠ A K 8 ♥ 8 ♦ A 10 9 8 4 ♣ A 6 5 2

West: ♠ Q 10 7 4 ♥ 10 5 4 ♦ Q 2 ♣ K J 7 4

East: ♠ 9 6 5 3 2 ♥ A K J 9 3 ♦ J ♣ 9 8

South: ♠ J ♥ Q 7 6 2 ♦ K 7 6 5 3 ♣ Q 10 3

(Dealer: West. North-South vulnerable.)

If East takes the heart lead, switches to a club, the J being allowed to win the 10, a second heart is led to the A and the club 8 returned, how should South then play in an effort to make an extra trick at 3-No Trumps?

Call For Workers

MELBOURNE, Feb. 10—(CP). — Twenty-nine thousand more men and women are needed for munitions factories within the next six months, an official survey of Australian labor requirements said today. The survey stressed the urgent need for diversion of labor, plants and materials from non-essential tasks.

Hamilton Farm Federation Unit Is Formed

HARWOOD, Feb. 10—(ENS). — Hamilton Township farmers held a meeting at Coldsprings last week in the township hall for the purpose of organizing a township Federation of Agriculture.

Reeve Charles Burrison was in the chair and called on Mr. Harry Sirett, the secretary of the Northumberland Federation of Agriculture, who explained that the membership of the Federation took in all farm groups and everyone interested in agriculture. Its object was to bring to the governments, provincially and federally, the problems of agriculture. He explained that individuals could not obtain the results that the Federation could by all working together. Short addresses were given by Messrs. R. E. Drope, George Holdsworth and Stanley Macklin, who are directors of the county association.

Mr. Ian McLeod, agriculture representative for Northumberland county mentioned the fact that last year farmers were much dissatisfied with industries going ahead while farmers were not. Many indignation meetings were held. He mentioned the London meeting in particular. But the situation has improved considerably in the last twelve months. He did not agree in bonusing production. Farmers would rather receive a just price than government bonus. All production of foodstuffs possible will be required this year owing to war conditions. His opinion was that all farm workers should not be taken from tha farms.

Call For Community Spirit

The main speaker of the evening was Mr. Garnet Shields, reeve of Cavan Township, who said the Federation of Agriculture consists of three main points, educational, social and business. He spoke at some length on each of these strongly recommending farm forums which he thought would bring back community spirit. He explained the organization of his own township and suggested that all farmers in th community be urged to affiliate with the Federation.

It was decided on motion of the meeting to organize as a township unit of federation and appoint a director from each polling subdivision as follows:

Poling subdivision No. 1, M. J. Greer; No. 2, Leo Mulhall; No. 3, George Holdsworth; No. 4, Wilbert Davey; No. 5, Leo Carroll; No. 6, Arthur Jamieson; No. 7, Orville McClelland; No. 8, Charles Burrison; No. 9, William Brooks; No. 10, Glen Cole; No. 1, Hilton Harris.

Reeve Charles Burrison be president and R. E. Drope, secretary, till the first directors meeting which will be held in the council chamber on Wednesday evening, Feb. 11 at 8 p.m.

Mrs. Knox took charge of the program. Mrs. Montgomery, Mrs. S. Leach, Miss Bernice McNaught and Mrs. Chestnut read scripture passages. A reading was given by Mrs. Montgomery; a duet was sung by Mrs. C. McNaught and Bernice; reading from the study book by Mrs. C. Childs; Mrs. S. Leach gave a reading as a Herald.

Mother, This Home-Mixed Cough Relief Is Splendid

Saves Real Money. No Cooking. Real Results.

To get really surprising relief from coughs due to colds, you can easily prepare a medicine, right in your own kitchen. It's very easy—anyone can do it—needs no cooking, and tastes so good that children take it willingly. But you'll say it's hard to beat, for quick results.

First, make a syrup by stirring 2 cups of granulated sugar and one cup of water a few moments, until dissolved. Then get 2½ ounces of Pinex from any druggist, and pour it into a 16 ounce bottle. Then add your syrup. This gives you 16 ounces of really splendid cough syrup—about 4 times as much for your money. It never spoils, and lasts a family a long time.

And for real, quick relief, it is actually splendid. It works in three ways—loosens the phlegm, soothes the irritated membranes, and helps clear the air passages.

Pinex is a special compound of proven ingredients, in concentrated form, well known for prompt action in coughs and bronchial irritations. Money refunded if it doesn't please you in every way.

Surprised When Syntona Gave Long Sought Relief

Suffered Long Time With Acid Stomach, Gastritis, Headaches, Dizzy Spells and Constipation. Pains Extended Into Neck and Shoulders.

JOHN WELCH

When the stomach is out of order and food fails to digest, but ferments, causing a full, bloated sensation; when the bowels are constipated when the back aches and the kidneys do not function properly; and you have headaches, dizzy spells, tired feelings and nerves are on edge, take a treatment of Syntona Herbal Compound, and you, too, may find your suffering can be ended without the aid of harsh drugs or depressors. Here, for example, is the interesting experience of Mr. John Welch, 84 Adelaide Street, London, Ontario:

"For years my stomach was in such a condition that I had to be so careful what I ate, and it just kept getting worse until it seemed almost all food just soured in my stomach and caused gas, bloat and cramps. My tongue was constantly coated, my bowels were constipated, and I was subject to dizzy, billous spells when spots would float before my eyes and I would usually end up with a dull, heavy ache in my head. The pain extended down the back of my neck and into my shoulders. Lately my back became so sore and stiff I could hardly straighten up.

"I kept reading about how Syntona helped so many people who suffered similarly and finally I decided to try it. That was just a few weeks ago, but to-day I feel like a different person. I could tell it was helping my stomach from the first bottle. Then, the pains gradually left my back and shoulders and my nerves became relaxed so I could get a good night's sleep. I am free of dizzy spells and headaches now, my bowels are more regular and my whole system feels toned up and improved."

Syntona is sold and recommended in Peterborough at Elliott's Drug Store.—(Advt.)

Fifty Homeless In $1,000,000 Fire

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 10—(AP). —The city's most destructive fire in 16 years ravaged a large block of business buildings and homes last night and early to-day, causing damage firemen said would exceed $1,000,000.

A woman spectator—one of nearly 50,000 who crowded into the thickly-populated area at Columbia and Ridge Avenues — said she saw a 'teen-age boy plunge from a rooftop into the flames when a wall collapsed, but police reported no one was missing.

A 30-mile-an-hour north wind sent flames hundreds of feet into the air. Eight alarms were sounded.

About 200 persons—most of them firemen—were treated for injuries at the scene. Eleven persons were removed to hospital.

Fifty families were left homeless and 1,000 persons were driven from their homes temporarily by smoke and fear of the fire spreading.

Neighbors said an explosion preceded the fire which started in the four-storey warehouse of the Acme Furniture Company.

Missionary Work Explained At Meeting

CAMPBELLFORD, Feb. 10 (ENS) —A story which adequately emphasized the importance of their work was told by Mrs. Morley Petherick to members of St. John's Day Spring Mission Band at their meeting on Thursday. She told the 26 who attended of a boy named Min Liang who was educated in a Mission School in China and later went to University where he obtained several degrees before returning as a missionary to Chengtu. Six new members were present during the afternoon and according to the leader, Mrs. Morley Petherick, "a decided interest is being taken in the work of the Mission Band." During the business, for which President Marian Maxwell presided, Joan Reynolds, Dorothy Greig and Fay Thomlison were appointed to next meeting's program committee. The program included a reading by the president; a duet by Marian Maxwell and Fay Thomlison; reading, Shirley Burgis and a piano solo by D. Greig.

Indian River Forum Has Excellent Month

INDIAN RIVER, Feb. 10—Tre Indian River group of the Farm Radio Forums got away to a good start for the winter series, when a meeting at the home of Elmo Kidd discussed the problem of "Wheat and the Prairie." The second problem for discussion, "Is the Farmer Inefficient?" was debated at the home of James Barrens, and it was argued that any apparent inefficiency on the part of the farmer is due to insufficient income to carry on as he would wish. The third meeting at the home of Charles Coughlin featured a successful discussion of the topic, "Can We Get Cost of Production?" James Thompson was host to an interested group who discussed the question of "Buying Together." This co-operative idea has been much to the fore in this community recently in view of the fact that a society has just been formed for buying together.

The meeting concluded a series of four in which special study has been made of credit unions and their importance in a progressive community. Immediately following the rationing of sugar, the group decided that refreshments at each meeting should be limited to sandwiches and tea or coffee.

'White Russia Next'-Red Battle Cry

MOSCOW, Feb. 11 (AP)—Red Army soldiers driving forward through villages and strong points fortified for the winter by the Germans fight with the cry "we are going into battle for White Russia," Soviet front dispatches said today. White Russia is the western section of the Soviet Union, beyond Smolensk, which the Germans seized in the first weeks of the war.

One Red Army unit was said to have killed 900 German soldiers in one sector and then proceeded to a second sector where they encountered a battalion and killed 180 and scattered the rest.

One strong point on the southwest was said to have been captured after street battles, and five German counter-attacks repulsed.

The capture of a village "S," described as a key to several other fortified places, also was reported from this front.

Dispatches from the front west of Moscow reported the capture of the village of Maklaki, 10 miles back of the German line.

Tass declared that Red army troops had captured German fortifications on a southeastern sector and 2,750 invaders were reported killed in a series of Russian offensive operations extending from Leningrad to the southern front.

Bastion's Loss To Extend War A Year

Stand For a Month Means Salvation; May Cost All Indies

(By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER.)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11—(AP).—The imminent fall of Singapore was described in United States military quarters here today as a blow of terrible consequences for the Allies—a disaster which would add at least an extra year to a long Pacific war.

It makes a successful defence of the Netherlands East Indies highly problematical, according to this informed opinion, and probably means that the United Nations must fall back eventually on Australia as their main bastion between Hawaii and India.

Moreover, all the strategic advantages lost—whether at Singapore or other key points, fallen or yet to fall—must be bought back some day slowly and painfully at great cost in blood and treasure.

The present grim situation might well have been averted, experts here said, had the Singapore garrison been able to hurl back all attacks on the fortress for just another month. By that time the British bastion probably would have received ample reinforcements to hold out indefinitely.

Turks Swinging Over

ISTANBUL Turkey, Feb. 10 (Delayed)—(AP). — An informed semi-diplomatic source said today the Turks had agreed, in payment of an old debt of honor, to the diversion to Soviet Russia of a part of United States and British consignments of war materials to Turkey.

During the early days of the Turkish republic, when the Soviet position was none too secure, the Russians sent military aid to the Turkish independence army and backed up the Turks diplomatically.

Now, this source said, the Turks are evening up the score by sacrificing needed armaments so Russia may have them.

Claim Guard Lax On Normandie, Fight Muddled

NEW YORK, Feb. 11 (CP) — Criticism of alleged official carelessness in guarding the Normandie, of the alleged lack of synchronization of effort in attempting to save the 83,423-ton pride of the French Merchant Marine and of asserted disorganization of volunteer services at the scene of the fire was expressed freely in New York's newspapers today.

Several papers assailed what they called failure to take proper precautions in guarding the $60,000,000 liner which caught fire at her 50th Street pier Monday and capsized. Whether sabotage was involved was a question freely asked.

Particularly caustic was PM which disclosed in a copyrighted article yesterday how Reporter Edmund Scott spent two days aboard the Normandie disguised as a longshoreman to show how easily the vessel could have been sabotaged by an enemy agent. The article was written Jan. 3 but PM did not publish it at the time as "it was a blueprint for sabotage."

Muddled Civilian Defence.

A Mirror editorial to-day charged that "there was a complete breakdown of the so-called civilian defence system." It said air raid wardens "cluttered the place with no visible central authority directing their activities," and that "reporters and accredited news cameramen were shoved all over the place." The navy's strict censorship also came in for a going-over.

The Daily News asked whether "it wasn't plain, inexcusable dumbness to have a lot of inflammable mattresses (life preservers) lying around where men were working with acetylene torches," and criticized the action of authorities in forbidding news cameramen to take pictures of the actual capsizing of the huge vessel.

Scott's copyright story in PM told how, as a Longshoreman, he wandered over the Normandie lighting imaginary fires and planting imaginary bombs. Scott added:

"What I did, a real enemy agent

Ontario Gets Off Easy On New Acts

Milk, Disease Laws To Be Changed; Only 32,000 Reliefees

TORONTO, Feb. 11 (CP) — A program containing little new legislation was set out in the speech from the throne read by Hon. Albert Matthews, Lieut-Governor, at the opening of the seventh session of the Ontario Legislature today.

There will be a change in the Public Health Act affecting Pasteurization of Milk, a new act pertaining to Social Diseases, and legislation to give all Ontario residents in the fighting forces, irrespective of age or where they are stationed, a vote in the next provincial election.

A change also was forecast in the Ontario statutes to provide for the Federal government taking over the collection of Corporation and Income Taxes for duration of the war.

The Health Act will be amended to change the definition of milk pasteurization enabling the use of more modern methods in the safeguarding of milk.

The Act respecting Social Disease is expected to provide for a compulsory blood test of both principals before marriage in the province, Health Minister Harold Kirby already has announced his intention to bring such legislation into force.

Relief List Slumps.

The speech announced that in January there were only 32,000 unemployables or partially employables on relief compared with 195,000 at the outbreak of the war. The cost of relief to the municipalities now totals only $75,000 a month and to the province, $245,000.

Comparative figures given in the speech were $263,000 for the municipalities and $616,000 for the provinces.

More than 500,000 tourists entered the province last year, the speech continued, promoting an estimated business in excess of $74,000,000. Tourists visiting Ontario comprised ¾ per cent. of the entire Canadian traffic.

Mining production in 1941 had a record value of $270,000,000 and great progress was experienced in the mining of iron ore, resumed in 1939 after a lapse of some years. It was decided to continue the Temiskaming testing laboratory at Co-

Ex-Tokyo Police Chief in Buddhist Priest Garb Netted By FBI As US Cleans Up Pacific Coast

SALINAS, Calif., Feb. 11—(AP).—Two high Japanese policies officials, one of them a former police chief of Tokyo, veiled as a Buddhist priest, are among a score of Japanese seized by Federal agents in their relentless raid on a ring of Nipponese colonies in this area.

A raid on a Buddhist temple here netted three "priests" yesterday, recent arrivals, along with a truckload of contraband. One, the Rev. Koyo Tamanaha, was described by officers as a former Tokyo police chief.

Yaichi Takatayashi, proprietor of a Salinas laundry, was identified as a former high police official of Japan and a close friend of Emperor Hirohito's brother.

The officers searched 45 places, seized 20 Japanese and confiscated the following:

Five pistols, eight rifles, 14 shotguns, six radios, a quantity of sulphuric acid, four floodlights, one crystal microphone, one amplifier, four spotlights, 60,845 rounds of rifle ammunition, 14,833 rounds of shotgun ammunition, 50 rounds of pistol ammunition, four motion picture projectors, eight pairs of binoculars and six cameras.

The round up of Japanese included aliens who had lived and worked on the fringe of Fort Ord and other military zones.

Rationing Retreads

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11—(AP).—Price Administrator Leon Henderson announced today that rationing of retreaded and re-capped tires in the United States would begin February 19, and that it was probable that "there will be no crude rubber available for retreading, except for the small number of vehicles already eligible to obtain new tires and tubes."

The new rationing program, which includes the rationing of "camelback," the rubber compound used in the retreading process, will be carried out by the present tire rationing boards.

McLarty Calls For New Voters' List Plebiscite Likely Early April

OTTAWA, Feb. 11—(CP).—State Secretary McLarty gave notice in today's votes and proceedings of the House of Commons that he will introduce tomorrow a resolution calling for introduction of legislation authorizing the taking of the plebiscite proposed by the Government to seek release from anti-conscription pledges.

Mr. McLarty's resolution reads:

"Resolved that it is expedient to introduce a measure respecting the taking of the vote of the qualified voters on a question submitted by way of plebiscite and for such purposes to make provision for the printing and publication of a plebiscite act and instructions issued thereunder, the preparation of voters' lists and other plebiscite documents, including forms and ballot papers, to provide for the fees, allowances, expenses and other remunerations of certain officials and employees."

Inasmuch as it has been Government policy not to introduce a measure in the Commons before conclusion of the Throne Speech debate today's resolution was taken as an indication that the Government feels the debate will conclude by tomorrow.

RAF Shakes Japs About Martaban

RANGOON, Burma, Feb. 11 (AP)—British bombers with fighter escorts attacked Japanese positions in the Martaban sector at the mouth of the Salween River yesterday and also raided enemy concentrations at Chengrai in extreme northern Thailand, and R.A.F. communique announced today.

Other R.A.F. planes carried out reconnaissance flights over enemy territory, while the only Japanese air action reported was an attack on Thaton, about 40 miles north of Martaban. "There are no details yet regarding casualties or damage," said the communique.

After a night of quiet in which no air raids were reported anywhere over Burma, Rangoon had a 35-minute air raid alarm this morning. But no Japanese planes were sighted.

Dutch Break Up Surabaya Raid

BATAVIA, N.E.I., Feb 11.—(AP).—Netherlands Indies fighter planes intercepted and broke up a Japanese bombing formation before it could reach its objective, the Surabaya naval base, the Indies High Command announced to-day.

The communique, issued through the news agency Aneta, announced a direct attack on Macassar, capital and chief port of Celebes on the island's south-western arm, in saying the Japanese had carried out landings there, at Balangnipa across the peninsula, and at Djeneponto.

But, the communique said, "the destruction which had been previously ordered" in the Macassar area, "has been thoroughly executed." Yesterday's communique had reported only that there were landings in the vicinity of Macassar.

Indies troops inflicted losses on Japanese units advancing on Maro, north of Macassar, while four Indies soldiers were slightly wounded in a machine-gunning attack by an enemy plane.

Three Netherlands planes were lost in last Monday's raid on airdromes near Batavia, the Indies capital. Four of the airmen were killed.

Hedgehopping Raiders Blast Heart Of City; R.A.F. Tragic Heroes

(By C. YATES McDANIEL.)

SINGAPORE, Feb. 11.— (10:30 a.m)—(11:30 p.m. E.D.T. Tuesday)—The sky over Singapore is black with the smoke of a dozen huge fires this morning as I write my last message from this once beautiful, prosperous and peaceful city.

The roar and crash of cannonade and bursting bombs which are shaking my typewriter tell me without need of an official communique that the war which started nine weeks ago 400 miles away is in the outskirts of this shaken bastion of the Empire to-day.

I am sure there is a bright tropic sun shining somewhere overhead, but in my many-windowed room it is too dark to work without electric lights.

Over the low rise where the battle is raging I can see relay after relay of Japanese planes circling, then going into murderous dives on our soldiers who are fighting back in a hell over which there is no protecting screen of our own fighters.

EDITOR'S NOTE

"I am leaving."

That brief message, written at the end of a fragmentary but poignant despatch telling of severe air raids on Singapore during its last stand against the Japanese, was the last word received by The Associated Press from its staff reporter in Singapore, C. Yates McDaniel.

McDaniel was the last American reporter to remain in the city.

Instead of placing the routine time-slug at the beginning of his message, McDaniel marked it "definitely last."

China-born, McDaniel has spent much of his life in the Orient. The despatch received this morning was the first word from him since he sent a bizarre account of the contrasts in Singapore life on Tuesday morning—more than 24 hours before his "definitely last" message was received.

But the Japanese are not completely alone in the skies this morning, for I just saw two "wild beasts"—obsolete bi-planes with an operating speed of about 100 miles an hour—fly low over the Japanese positions and unload bomb burdens with a resounding crash.

At my elbow while I write this last dispatch is Capt. O. K. Fearon, the Ministry of Information adviser on censorship. Henry Steel, army public relations officer, who has seen us through a bad situation from the Thailand border to Singapore, has just told me I have 10 minutes to pack up and leave.

So good-bye to Singapore.

The Ministry of Information representative, the staff of the Malayan broadcasting subsidiary of the B.B.C. and myself—first to arrive and last to leave of the foreign correspondents — are taking our chances of getting clear of this beleaguered fortress on a ship.

Anti-aircraft gun crews kept up a strong fire against the planes but still they flew over the city.

An outlying broadcasting station went dead in the midst of a broadcast in Malayan urging the people of Singapore to stand firm.

British fighter pilots still were taking on the enemy against overwhelming odds.

Tokyo Claims Troops In City Suburbs, Say 30,000 Trapped

LONDON, Feb. 11.—(CP).— The Singapore radio, heard in London shortly after 5 p.m., 12 noon E.D.T. to-day) said the situation on the island was "very serious" but that it had "not deteriorated in any way." The broadcast was heard by the BBC monitoring service.

The Singapore announcer said heavy fighting continued on the island this morning "with the Japanese attempt to advance still meeting with strong resistance."

Reception was bad and those two sentences were the only part of the broadcast intelligible to listeners here.

Earlier in the day British sources in London announced that Singapore's defenders had slashed back at the Japanese with two counter-attacks in the face of overwhelming odds in men, guns and planes.

All they could hope for, British commentators said, was to postpone the inevitable fall of the island fortress—unless reinforcements, chiefly in the air, should arrive in time.

There was no tendency to regard the attacks as more than checking the situation for a few hours and commentators were silent on the question of reinforcements

The Japanese are at a point where they threaten Singapore's reservoirs, its food supplies and vital services.

Like the counter-attacks which erupted from the British perimeter at Dunkirk these British counter strokes perhaps were merely designed to gain time while little British and Netherlands ships ran a gauntlet fo fire to evacuate women and children.

The report of these desperate defensive attacks was the only word from the island fortress to reach the war office. There had been no communique from Singapore since early Tuesday.

Claim Troops In City

TOKYO (From Japanese broadcasts), Feb. 11—(AP). — Imperial headquarters claimed in a communique today that Japanese forces entered "the city area of Singapore" at 8 a.m., local time (7 p.m., EDT, Tuesday).

Domei news agency claimed three columns driving south have trapped 30,000 men of the defence forces.

Japan's Conquests to Be of Little Use

Growing Allied Striking Power To Block Tokyo's Hope Of Taking Booty Home

(By DEWITT MACKENZIE.)

LONDON, Feb. 11.— (CP).—The big question now would seem to be, "Where do we go from Singapore?"—not in any spirit of defeat or despair, but with a grim determination to find the best and quickest solution we can for a problem which we know we can handle in due course.

The plight of this great British base cries out for recognition of the fact that the United Nations are fighting a defensive war in the Pacific and must continue on the defensive until they can equip themselves to assume the offensive. That being the case, we must be prepared to stand up under further harsh blows from the Japanese before we are able to check them.

Gen. MacArthur and his forces are in dire straits in the Philippines under increasing enemy pressure. The fate of the East Indies themselves, so eagerly sought by Japan for their rich resources, is on the knees of the Gods.

All this makes bad reading and is a matter of deepest concern, but it is no occasion for despondence. There is no possible gainsaying that we have the sinews with which to win this war. We need to remember that it is almost two years since the evacuation from the bloody sands of Dukirk and the collapse of France—and the Allies are far stronger to-day than they were then.

So impressive are the Japanese winnings that an international cartel of French and German industrialists is reported to be organizing a campaign for a negotiated peace between Germany and the Allies on business grounds. The argument is that the Nipponese acquisition of territories rich in resources, coupled with cheap labor, will enable them to dominate world markets if the western powers fight to a finish.

At first glance that does sound like a powerful threat, especially when we stop to consider the manner in which Japan has been flooding the western world with products produced by nearslave labor. Western civilization can't compete against starvation wages.

However, if we pursue our analysis of the situation we soon discover that there is a joker in the pack. We mustn't forget that the Battle of the Pacific, like its counterpart in Europe, is a war of resources, coupled with facilities for the the transportation of those resources.

Resources without transportation, are not of much value. In order to profit by their brigandage the Japanese must be able to carry away the swag to their own little island of the rising sun. Oil in the Indies won't lubricate the machinery of Osaka, and rubber in Malaya will absorb no shocks for the backbones of Tokyo.

This means that the Nipponese must (1) maintain naval and air control over the vast expanse of waters surrounding their conquests, and (2) possess a great fleet of cargo ships to move the resources they have stolen. Japan in itself has few resources of any kind, but is almost wholly dependent on seaborne supplies.

And now just as this point in our argument along comes Admiral Herbert F. Leary and lands the vanguard of a United States naval force at Wellington, New Zealand. This

Rules In Far East As U.S. Admiral Shelved, Ill

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11—(AP).—The United States Navy announced today that Admiral Thomas C. Hart had been relieved of his assignment as Chief of Allied Naval Forces in the Western Pacific and that Vice-Admiral C. E. L. Helfrich of the Royal Netherlands Navy had been designated as successor. The Navy said Hart was ill.

No information as to the nature of the illness was given out.

Hart, 64, formerly was Commander of the United States Asiatic Fleet. This was reorganized February 7, when Hart became Commander of the combined naval forces in the American-British-Dutch-Australian area.

The American commanders actually in direct charge of the United States naval forces operating in that area were then announced as Vice-Admiral William A. Glassford, Jr., in the Southwest Pacific and Vice-Admiral Herbert F. Leahy, in the Australian-New Zealand area.

Admiral Helfrich, who now becomes "Acting Commander, Combined Naval Forces, ABDA Area," is the Supreme Commander of the Netherlands East Indian Navy.

Chinese Action In Burma

Clash With Jap Invaders 1st Time In Far South

CHUNKING, Feb. 11 (AP) — Chinese forces taking part in the defence of Burma are understood to have clashed with Japanese invaders for the first time, Maj.-Gen. Lancelot E. Dennys, head of the British Military Mission in China, announced today.

Scene of the first contact was not given. However, a clash has been expected at almost any time, since the Japanese have concentrated about two divisions at Chiengmai, 100 miles from the Burma border in northern Thailand, for a drive at the northern sector of the Burma Road which the Chinese are defending.

Chiengmai is the terminal of a railroad from Bangkok, Thailand capital, and from there the Japanese began to march northeastward toward Chiengsen, almost directly on the border, apparently to launch a drive through the wild and desolate Tenen Taung Zyi mountains, which average 7,000 feet in height and have peaks of 10,000 feet.

"Our troops will soon know the mountain passes with their eyes shut. We have an ancient saying, 'One man at a gap can 10,000 entrap,'" he added.

GERMAN FORTIFICATIONS CAPTURED AFTER STUBBORN BATTLE

MOSCOW, Feb. 11 —(AP)— Tass declared today that Red Army troops had captured German fortifications in stubborn fighing on a southwestern sector and 2,750 invaders were reported to have been killed in a series of Russian offensive operations extending from Leningrad to the Southern front.

Guerilla grenadiers killed a German General by blowing up a staff car in the Smolensk region west of Moscow, and Soviet soldiers repulsed a counter attack which cost the Germans 850 dead on the southern front, the Soviet information bureau said.

"Our units operating on one sector of the Leningrad front in one day's fighting annihilated 1,500 men and officers," the communique went on.

"Soviet artillerymen and scouts destroyed three German tanks, six guns, five heavy machine-guns, three mortars and 46 fortified positions."

Tass reported that Germans in one southwestern zone were "exerting every effort to retain their strongly fortified line, with trenches, dugouts, wire entanglements and large minefields," but had been thrown from a number of villages.

The invaders were said to have counter-attacked with tanks and automatic rifle squads in a vain effort to recapture one village.

Pursuit Still On

"Following up this success our units continued pursuit of the enemy, dislodged him from his fortifications and captured a number of other populated places," the news agency said.

The information bureau said the Germans lost 400 killed in a battle on the Central front.

Its communique listed 16 field guns, 60 motor vehicles and seven tanks among the implements of war wrecked or captured in all the en-

Domei said the Japanese air force had won supremacy in the air over the island. It asserted that army bombers and fighters cleared the way for the ground troops yesterday in a day-long assault.

Fortifications were smashed and one 3,000-ton warship in Singapore harbor was disabled, Domei claimed.

Island Railway Is Uncut; Base Is Holding

LONDON, Feb. 11—(CP).—British forces defending Singapore have slashed back at the Japanese invaders in two violent counter-attacks, defying overwhelming numbers of enemy men, guns and planes in a desperate effort to save the island, British sources announced today.

The counter attacks were said to have scored "some measure of success" and British commentators declared that the position of the bastion's back-to-the-wall fighters "certainly is no worse and indications are that in some ways it is better."

Until news of the counter attacks reached London this morning, the fall of Singapore and its gallant but tired garrison was believed to be a matter of days at most, perhaps only of hours.

One counter-attack was said to be aimed against the Japanese line from Sungei Kranji, on the Johore Strait northwest of the City of Singapore, south to the village of Jurong, and the other against the line southeast from Sungei Kranji to the mid-island village of Mandai.

St. Peter's Boys Win Two Southend Games

A full schedule of four games of minor league hockey again was the offering in the South-end Hockey League last night at the Sacred Heart rink. With the play-offs close, all teams were bearing down last night and all-out hockey was the order of the evening.

The St. Peter's Bantams and the Spitfires collided in the first game, and after sixty minutes of battling, the St. Peter's squad were returned the winners by a 4 to 2 count. Jumping into a one-goal advantage in the opening period, the winners were leading two to one at the end of the second, and outscored their rivals by two to one in the third. Ferren with two markers, and Maloney and Lowe with one apiece showed the way for St. Peter's, while Duggan and Burwick with one goal apiece were the marksmen for the Spitfires.

St. Peter's — Lester, Caccavelli, McCartney, Ferren, J. Basciano, E. Basciano, Maloney, Peel, Conroy, Lowe.

Spitfires—Ritchie, Harrison, Duggan, Aikens, Burwick, Thompson, Burley, Fleetwood, Fontaine, Loucks, McDonald.

The second game of the night was also a Bantam affair, with the Westenders edging the Canuck Beavers by a three to two score. This was one of the most bitterly fought games of the year, with far too many penalties to permit good hockey. But rarely in the game were there twelve men on the ice at the same time. McDougall with a pair of goals, and Giardino with one, were the shining lights for the winning Westenders, while Masters and Fontaine were the sharpshooters for the losing cause.

Westenders—Zavitz, Harding, Williams, McDougall, Darling, McNaught, Doughty, Giardino.

Canuck Beavers—McDonald, Connelley, Lane, Davis, Masters, Phillips, Payne, Fontaine, Hickey, Woods, LaPlante, Schriver.

The Midget game of the night was no contest, with a powerful Colts squad scoring at will against a very much weakened Blue Bomber team, and finally winning by the overwhelming count of 15 to 0. From the opening bell to the final whistle, this game was a complete rout, and only some remarkable goal-tending by Post kept the score under thirty. Jones with five goals, and Meredith with three led the scoring for the Colts, although as many as seven players actually scored goals.

Colts — Dorsett, Griffen, White, Beatty, Hill, Meredith, Dundas, Menzies.

Blue Bombers—Post Baxter, Robinson, Dugan, Ellis, Dayman, Cox.

The final offering of the evening was the Juvenile game with St. Peter's team finally breaking into the win column by a three to one count, scoring in every period, while holding the opposition to a single marker in the middle stanza. St. Peter's made every move a winning one, and may yet get a play-off position. Jordan, O'Donnell, Basciano scored for the winners, while Craig got the single counter for the losers.

St. Peters—Basciano, Jordan, O'Donnell, Dugan, White, Basciano, Stover, Lucy, Dafoe, Bullock, Hughes.

Generals — Parsons, Craig, Wade, Smith, Kylie, Blewett, Heslip, Young.

Important Notice—The postponed games of Tuesday, January 20th, and of Thursday, January 22nd will be played on Thursday, February 12th and Tuesday, February 17th.

is reported by Joseph C. Harsch, ence Monitor of Boston, who accompanied the expedition across the Pacific.

But that is only part of Harsch's thrilling story. He describes the landing of reinforcements at "way stations along the route" from Pearl Harbor. In other words, the United nations have achieved a victory which is calculated to ensure our supply route to the Orient.

What the Japanese are going to be up against is a growing attack against their convoys in their long lines of communication by surface and air-fleets. As the Allies gain strength, so will the enemy gather knocks. And Japan cannot replace her losses, or anything like it, with her own resources. She will be dependent on running a steadily increasing blockade.

Bataan Yanks Hold Off 5 Divisions

American Artillery Teaches Japs Healthy Respect

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11—(AP).— The heavily-reinforced invaders of the Philippines hammered at Gen. Douglas MacArthur's little army in an all-out offensive today as Allied arms in the Pacific faced their blackest hours since Pearl Harbor.

The Japanese evidently are intent on following up their Singapore campaign by annihilating the only other potential threat to their southern drive—the stubborn American-Filipino forces on Bataan Peninsula.

United States War Department communiques left scant room for doubt on the desperate, almost forlorn nature of MacArthur's fight, but President Roosevelt indicated yesterday the value of its contribution to the present grand strategy of the United Nations.

The prime objective of that strategy, Mr. Roosevelt explained to his press conference, was to prevent an enemy break-through on the world front, while inflicting the maximum punishment on the foe and his resources during the period the Allies are creating a superior military machine.

The Japanese, it was announced here, have broken through past the Philippines into the Indies, but MacArthur's resistance is still exacting a heavy toll both in men and equipment.

Holding Off 125,000.

The War Department communique last night gave some indication of the greatly-superior enemy forces. On Bataan, it reported, at least five enemy divisions have been identified as participating in the heavy fighting of recent days. The strength of a Japanese division is 25,000 men.

Besides the Japanese divisions identified in action, the War Department said, another division is guarding communications behind the front. Still another force is divided between the occupation of Manila and the bombardment of the United States forts which bar the entrance to Manila Bay. In addition, there are large numbers of enemy support troops in the other section of Luzon Island. And further reinforcements are constantly arriving.

In yesterday's fighting the main enemy pressure was against MacArthur's centre, but persistent efforts continued to turn the flanks of the line. These attempts were blasted by local counter-attacks and the effective work of the American artillery.

The way American batteries are handled evidently has inspired a healthy respect among the enemy. Dispatches from Bataan report that new Japanese prisoners, while professing no fear of rifles or machine guns, voiced their terror at the intensive artillery fire "which makes the head spin."

At the White House yesterday during the general war discussion President Roosevelt was asked whether he thought the attitude of the American people had been complacent in receiving the "bad news" on the conflict to date, and taking for granted ultimate victory.

Mr. Roosevelt replied that he thought there was a better understanding now in every part of the country that, whether Americans liked it or not, this was a world-encircling war.

Of the activities of the volunteer services, PM reported in another article:

Sinking Deeper in the Mud.

NEW YORK, Feb. 11.—(AP). — Whether the fire-eaten and waterlogged Normandie ever can be salvaged remained unanswered to-day as the former French liner's grotesque hulk settled deeper in her bed of Hudson river mud.

Before that question can be answered by a special board of technical experts, the luckless sea queen is in for many months of slumber lying on her port side in eight fathoms of water and silt alongside her pier.

As salvage experts prepared to launch a lengthy survey on the possibility of saving the $60,000,000 liner that became the United States naval auxiliary Lafayette before fire swept her for four hours Monday, the United States navy indicated it had not abandoned hope.

"The navy supports no such contention at this time," was the third naval district's reply to a question whether the 83,423-ton ship was beyond salvage.

Should the task be deemed possible, the one-time glistening beauty is expected to be found little more than a shell of her former self.

Salt water and silt are already gnawing at her powerful engines and electrical wiring, while her upper decks are a blackened mass of flame-seared wreckage.

Rumores that saboteurs were responsible for setting the blaze that injured 220 and killed one of 2,200 workers and naval personnel aboard the vessel were discounted by Rear-Admiral Adolphus Andrews, commandant of the third naval district, and District Attorney Frank S. Hogan.

"The salient fact developed," Hogan said, attributing the fire to sparks from a welder's torch, "is that a flame, causing sparks to fly, was used within two or three feet of hundreds of bales of inflammable material.

"There is no evidence of sabotage. Carelessness has served the enemy with equal effectiveness."

Havelock Y.P. Plan Valentine Party

HAVELOCK, Feb. 10.—(ENS)— Havelock Young People's United made plans for a Valentine party when they convened on Monday night. The party will be held Monday, February 16 and the entire evening's program will be backwards. Each member is to bring a Valentine and a treat of candy or fruit and wear some article of clothing backwards.

Fern Blodgett Is Only Canadian Aboard Ship

TORONTO, Feb. 11 (CP).—Radio Officer Jacob Pullman of the Royal Air Force ferry command told today of his meeting with Fern Blodgett of Peterborough, Ont., who serves on a Norwegian freighter as radio officer.

Pullman said Miss Blodgett was the only Canadian in the crew and that he met her on one of his rare non-flying crossings. Pullman, a veteran flier, had the unusual job of flying the London papers to the capitals of Europe before the war. He was grounded after injuries suffered in an air crash and took to the air again as a wireless operator.

MUMPS HOLDS UP SALE

The owner of a house on Armour Road failed to persuade the Board of Health yesterday afternoon to relax the quarantine of a family that is being kept indoors with mumps. He has sold the property, and the buyer is demanding actual possession. Meanwhile, the outgoing of the tenant family has been held up by successive infection of five children, and there is still one more who may catch the disease for further extension of quarantine. Eviction of the family was prevented a month or so ago by Dr. D. B. Avison, M.O.H., who asserted the prior authority of the public health department in the interest of the children.

Volunteers Enrolling Seen Enough

Ralston And Gardiner Think Present System To Fill Need

OTTAWA, Feb. 11 — (CP). — Two key members of the Federal Cabinet—Defence Minister Ralston and Agriculture Minister Gardiner—have advocated continuation of the present system of voluntary enlistments but with the proviso they will support compulsory enlistment if that seems the only way to meet the Army's manpower needs.

Both ministers said in the House of Commons yesterday that they believe voluntary enlistments will be adequate to meet the country's needs if they continue at the rate of recent months.

But both called for support of the proposed plebiscite by which the Government will seek release from its past pledges never to introduce compulsory overseas service.

Col. Ralston said he would "advocate the other method" if circumstances develop under which the voluntary system proves unsatisfactory.

Mr. Gardiner said he will "remain opposed to conscription until convinced that it is necessary." He said an affirmative answer to the plebiscite question whether the Government should be released from its pledges would "leave me free to make my decision."

The ministers spoke in the debate on the Address in reply to the Speech from the Throne. From several private members came expressions of belief that agriculture will be unable to meet the demands placed upon it for food supplies unless labor is made available.

Mrs. Dorise Nielsen (Unity, North Battleford) urged formation of a "general service" corps of women to engage in farm and other work—a corps without the restrictions as to family obligations which apply to the existing women's auxiliaries to the army and air force.

W. F. Rickard (Liberal, Durham) and W. R. McDonald (Liberal, Pontiac) urged exemption from compulsory service in Canada of bona fide farm workers who are prepared to remain on the farms.

Other speakers were J. A. Ross (Con., Souris), who asked that the plebiscite proposal be abandoned in favor of immediate action by parliament to impose conscription; Dr.

MORE ABOUT—
McLarty Gets

Mr. McLarty's resolution was the first official and definite word that new voters' lists would be compiled for the plebiscite. Previously it had been intimated there would be new lists but it had also been reported that some arrangement whereby the 1940 general election lists would be used might be worked out.

The question to be submitted to the voters will read:

"Are you in favor of releasing the Government from any obligation arising out of any past commitments restricting the methods of raising men for military service?"

The Government has announced no date for the plebiscite but persons well-posted in the workings of the Dominion's electoral machinery have said that it probably will be at least three weeks after finals details have been approved.

Some sources have suggested early April as a likely date or possibly late in March.

When the resolution presented in the Commons by Mr. McLarty is approved, the preparation of the new voters' list will then be placed in the hands of Jules Castonguay, Chief Electoral Officer.

Qualifications for the Dominion franchise are that a person must be a British subject of the full age of 21 years and have been ordinarily resident in Canada for at least one year and resident for three months in the electoral district in which application is made for registration.

In the last general election in 1940, there were 6,588,890 voters on the voters' list. Of these 4,672,338 cast ballots.

Biggest List in History

Government officials have said that although the list was revised only two years ago in contrast to the usual four or five years between elections, the addition of approximately 400,000 new names, representing young Canadians coming of voting age in the last two years, made the revision essential.

In addition, the movement of Canadians from district to district has been more pronounced than ever because of war activities and changes in employment or places of work.

It was anticipated the new list would contain at least 7,000,000 names which would make it the largest in Canadian history.

In 1935, 5,919,971 names appeared on the list; 5,153,971 in 1930, and 4,665,381 in 1926.

Leading Mason Given 50-Year Jewel

CAMPBELLFORD, Feb. 11 (ENS) —Presentation of a 50-year jewel to John T. Ibey, member of the local Masonic Lodge for the past half century, was a feature of the regular meeting on Monday evening. R.W. Bro. F. C. Bonnycastle made the presentation and in so doing recalled that it was his father, the late R. Bonnycastle, who had initated Mr. Ibey into the Masonic Order.

In his reply Mr. Ibey did his own share of reminiscing and contrasted the well-appointed Temple, now owned by members, with the lodge room of fifty years ago. In those days Masons travelled for several miles with a horse and buggy to attend meetings in a lodge room lighted with coal oil lamps and on arriving in winter time often stood for many minutes beside the stove before they were thawed out. He contrasted this with the modern driving in a heated car to a building lighted by indirect lights and heated with forced warm air furnaces. The initiatory degree was conferred on one candidate during the evening.

Ice 18" Thick Being Harvested

COBOURG, Feb. 11 — (ENS).— At present Cobourg ice cutting gangs are working full time on the two ponds to the north of town. W. Conn has had his cutters and packers in full swing for some time and the other main ice merchant in the town, Stan Pratt, has begun operations to capacity this week. Ice is now over 18 inches thick in the ponds and this depth is said to be the required size. Ice was scarce at the close of the past season here, and the dealers expect to stock the largest amount in years this season.

TAMBLYN
Features Canada-Empire Merchandise

The Tamblyn Drug Stores are an all-Canadian Organization, founded by a Canadian, operated by and for Canadians, and, therefore, we, the staff of the Company, get extra satisfaction out of the sales of Canadian and Empire-Made Merchandise. Frankly, we sometimes wonder how an Empire, compelled to fight for its very existence, can go on producing the necessities of life in such abundance. That they do so speaks volumes for a people with such perseverance and high morale. We Canadians, as a component part of Our Great Empire, accept our share of the responsibility for the Job in hand, and as a means of promoting future security we should, insofar as possible, patronize Home or Empire Industry. We do realize that much of our labor, materials, etc., must be diverted into channels producing War Supplies and Equipment. On the other hand, we know that to survive it is necessary that we keep the wheels of Commercial Industry and Labor turning on the production of other necessities. We do know that the more money we can spend within our own Empire will work to the advantage of our own labor and producers, and so as a sure means to an End, we recommend the purchase of Empire-Made Merchandise, believing it has the utmost in Merit and Economy—the economical phase being proven from the saving which can be effected by making your purchases of Necessities for the Home from this list of

Cobourg Parents Committed OnManslaughter

COBOURG Feb. 11 — (ENS).— Mr. and Mrs. C. Horsburgh of Murray Township, were committed for trial at the Spring Assizes on charges of manslaughter here yesterday by Magistrate R. B. Baxter. The charges were laid as a result of the death of their infant daughter which the Crown alleges was caused by malnutrition. The couple will appear for trial on March 16.

Douglas Longman was remanded a week when charged with an infraction of postal laws.

Clarence Beebe and Joseph Vitali were remanded again on theft charges. Vitali had pleaded guilty and Beebe was convicted on previous appearance in court.

Magistrate R B. Baxter heard all cases.

Midland Unit Needs Wool

CAMPBELLFORD, Feb. 11 (ENS) —Though the 1st Midland Regiment is stationed in Ontario and most of the members are near enough that they are able to make fairly regular trips home the boys still do most of their own mending. At least this is the conclusion reached by the Campbellford and Seymour branch of the Red Cross who recently receved a letter from Lieut. H. R. S. Ryan, ex-mayor of Port Hope, who is adjutant of the unit. According to this communication a great number of the boys have used up the wool in their "housewife" issue and are being compelled to draw on stores for a new one which contains buttons, needles, thread, etc. at a cost of fifty cents when all they need is wool. In reply to this request the branch alloted the entire proceeds of their semi-monthly collection to buy wool for the Midlands and it will be placed on small cards and fowarded at once. At their meeting Tuesday afternoon further arrangements were made for the series of vanishing teas which is being planned and it was also announced the branch would cater for lunch at a sale being held at Wesley Wilson's farm on March 4th. The secretary made a request for the donation of old woollens which would be suitable for making into blankets and also for cotton and woollen scrap materials suitable for quilts. It was pointed out these were badly needed in many of the hostels in England which are being supplied by the Red Cross.

Cobourg Streets Cleared Of Snow

COBOUGH, Feb. 11 — (ENS).— Mild weather returned to Cobourg on Tuesday with the temperature up toward the thirties by mid-afternoon. This was a welcome change after the bitter cold of the week-end. Snow covered streets which had bothered motor traffic during early Monday were cleaned by Tuesday noon and transportation was restored to normal.

Lion Governor Visits Bowmanville

PORT HOPE, Feb. 11.—(ENS).— Deputy District Governor Abbott Lent made his official visito the Bowmanville Lions' Club on Monday, Feb. 9, accompanied by Lion E. B. Hyne and Lion J. Y. Kellough.

D.D.G. Lent in his address stressed the wonderful work these clubs were doing and the great need for even more effort to be put forth.

At present there is a fine picture in Hyne's pharmacy window showing pictures of some of the British child war victims for whom the Lions clubs are contributing through Queen Elizabeth's Fund for the Waiafh and Strays Society and of this money $120 will provide for one of these children for the period of one year.

Victory Club Busy

CAMPBELLFORD, Feb. 11. — (ENS).—Members of the local Bictory Club are planning to ask the Red Cross for a new supply of wool. They have been busy for the past month on a new quota of scarves, helmets and sweaters and at their meeting on Monday held at Miss Jean McArthur's it was revealed their surplus was nearly exhausted. The group is still busily engaged in cutting and sewing quilt blocks for their ninth large quilt which it is expected will be taken off in another week. They will meet at Mrs. Bill Burgiss' next Monday.

Leading Mason Given 50-Year Jewel

CAMPBELLFORD, Feb. 11 (ENS) —Presentation of a 50-year jewel to John T. Ibey, member of the local Masonic Lodge for the past half century, was a feature of the regular meeting on Monday evening. R.W. Bro. F. C. Bonnycastle made the presentation and in so doing recalled that it was his father, the late R. Bonnycastle, who had initated Mr. Ibey into the Masonic Order.

In his reply Mr. Ibey did his own share of reminiscing and contrasted the well-appointed Temple, now owned by members, with the lodge room of fifty years ago. In those days Masons travelled for several miles with a horse and buggy to attend meetings in a lodge room lighted with coal oil lamps and on arriving in winter time often stood for many minutes beside the stove before they were thawed out. He contrasted this with the modern driving in a heated car to a building lighted by indirect lights and heated with forced warm air furnaces. The initiatory degree was conferred on one candidate during the evening.

Ice 18" Thick Being Harvested

COBOURG, Feb. 11 — (ENS).— At present Cobourg ice cutting gangs are working full time on the two ponds to the north of town. W. Conn has had his cutters and packers in full swing for some time and the other main ice merchant in the town, Stan Pratt, has begun operations to capacity this week. Ice is now over 18 inches thick in the ponds and this depth is said to be the required size. Ice was scarce at the close of the past season here, and the dealers expect to stock the largest amount in years this season.

4. That Mr. Fred Lang be made an extra allowance of $5.00 per week from December 1st, 1941 to February 1st, 1942, covering the period of time he was acting as town engineer, 9 weeks at $5.00 per week, $45.00.

It was moved and seconded that the council make a grant of $300 to the treasurer of the Citizens' committee toward outfitting of the crew of the minesweeper 'Port Hope' which is to be commissioned here in May. Council adjourned.

Assessment Act Revision

Those who have been associated with municipal affairs whether in city, town or county, will be interested in the suggestion made by Controller F. Saunders of Toronto, before the provincial meeting held there to consider assessment revision, that assessment might well be made every five years instead of annually, as now.

Though many persons will be disposed to support changes in the Assessment Act, because they are needed, it is doubtful whether so long a lapse between a check-up on all property would be advisable. Unless facts of a very strong character can be produced to justify this change, it is not likely to succeed. Three years, instead of five, would be long enough.

There is much to be said, however, for a departure, during this war time, from the annual assessment. It is a job involving much careful and minute work, both while the staff members are going around and for months after in office labor. The increases put down by the assessors are not many, or need not to be many, from one year to another on the majority of streets in cities and towns and the majority of farms and other real holdings, and yet all the ground has to be gone over. It is true quite a number of changes are made but that is because the assessors, generally, as civic employees, wish to be watchful of every slight improvement on a property or its increase in market value. They are to be given credit for this care and watchfulness, but if they had to go over all the ground once only in two or three years and then took every detail into consideration, the municipality over a period of years would come out quite well enough.

From the standpoint of public policy there would be a tendency on the part of Council to spend less money if the longer term were in force. Taxes in practically all municipalities have been steadily climbing for many years. They have got high because people have wanted so many things done. Therefore, in order to meet financial obligations and get more and more money for municipal works and betterments, good and valuable though they might be, assessment increases have been added year after year on real property. Now, taking the province as a whole, the taxes collected in many instances are double what they were on the same farms, for example, thirty or so years ago. Some farms that used to pay seventy-five dollars a year into the local municipal treasury, when farming was a more profitable industry than it has been the past few years, are at present paying a hundred and thirty or more. In cities and towns taxes have become quite a burden to most home owners.

Then, too, were a two or three-year period in operation, a man putting up a house or other building this year, and perhaps not having it finished and ready for use until mid-summer, would not be paying taxes on it during the year of construction. He would have a short time, at least, to get his breath. He seems to be actually penalized today, in many instances, for trying to create a home of his own and for improving and beautifying it. There has grown up in practice (not in all places, of course, but in most) a kind of mad desire to get every dollar that the law can possibly find ways and means of extracting. So long as everything in a municipality is geared up to a high level in capital outlays, maintenance and operating expenses, just so long will the money now demanded be needed and taken.

If on the other hand, a three-year period of assessment were allowed, a Council could gradually adjust itself to that level and perhaps ninety per cent. of the people of a township, town or city would benefit. There is no better social state on the whole than that which builds up a community of fairly prosperous, frugal people who try to own properties and keep them in an attractive way.

At least the proposal of the Controller, who is a lawyer by profession and has had several years of municipal experience, is giving people a concrete idea to think about and discuss.

The "Ceiling" Extends

When the prices now being paid by consumers in Canada for foods, clothing and materials of all kinds are considered in a calm way, it must be admitted, though grudgingly, perhaps, by some, that as a result of Government control the costs in a vast range of necessities has been kept on a moderate level. People who were of mature years during the first Great War, in 1914-18, will recall how prices then jumped until they finally went boldly down into one's pocket and took out as high as $15 for a pair of shoes which previously could be bought for $5 or $6. Eggs became very "high hat" and demanded as much as $1 to $1.10 for a dozen. Most things, indeed, were hard to get and costly.

There has been war now for roughly two and a half years and yet no one can complain of any particular shortage of food or of exorbitant prices for what goes to make up the average person's needs. The "ceiling," a Canadian measure, has done a splendid job so far and after all, with the exception of imports. In that case the seller can charge more or less what he pleases if you care to buy from him, but with that exception the process of buying and selling and of fair profit-making can go on just the same if there is a law fixing the high to which a commodity may rise as it would if there were no regulation.

A London despatch says that the British Government has put a "ceiling" on clothing prices over there, where the taxes are already exceedingly heavy on every individual. A limit, as here, is to go into effect as to the profit the trade can make on more than 1,000 classes of articles in the clothing category. Complaints have been launched against the ruling on the ground that it will, along with the taxes, drive many out of business. But the Board of Trade, which is the department of government having to do with such matters, is determined that profiteering shall not be carried on to the disadvantage of the millions of buyers, so the law is to stand.

"Ceilings" is becoming a much used word now in the three countries: Canada, Britain and the United States.

Intangible Factors In Success

When the late Elbert Hubbard of Roycroft fame, and a gifted writer, was producing his literary and art beauties, he said that if one man "made a mouse trap better than anybody else, the world would beat a pathway to his door." The truism is brought back to mind by the death at Williamsburg, Ont., of Dr. M. M. Locke, who became so internationally known for his treatments of foot and ankle ailments that he was spoken of as the "miracle man." Patients came to him from all over this Continent.

There is more, though, as a rule, than making or doing this or that just a little bit better than any person else, however necessary that may be. It is not always the best made goods that have the readiest or greatest sale. The authority in medicine, law, surgery, engineering or any other profession who may know infinitely more about his particular vocation than his fellows is not in all instances the one who succeeds—at least in terms of world success. There is an intangible something in the personality of a man, now and then, which draws people and money to him.

Then, again, there are circumstances which in themselves are beyond the control of any individual, that operate against one man and favor another. The proof of that is seen in the acts of Nature, violent acts, that take away one's property and so on. There is the gift of "showmanship," sincere and honest though it may be, often is, nevertheless it is a gift possessed by some people to exercise a winning influence over others.

The word may connote in the minds of many, only the circus man or conjuror. That is not what is meant here. Rather we speak of that gift, for it is a gift, which can act favorably upon the minds of others. The great orator has it. It is a part of the distinguished pulpiteer, of the actor, of the leader in politics and of the salesman in business. That is the high quality of showmanship which is referred to, dignified in general language by such terms as "strength of personality," "charm," "uncanny faculty," etc.

For example, Elbert Hubbard was himself endowed with this power, although it may be argued that what he created in the form of beautiful pieces of typography, binding, printing and such like were what brought people from all over America to see him and what he had built up. Yes, those were the physical productions, the results, but he also knew what to do and how to do it to get popular interest.

* * *

The thought we wish to convey is that often strange, unforeseen and apparently trivial factors enter into the career of any man or woman who gains international renown, in whatever field it may be. Generally the difference between the person who wins an extensive public and the one who doesn't is the ability to know when and how to take advantage of what others would overlook or treat with indifference. Shakespeare has put it in those memorable lines of his:

"There is a tide in the affairs of men
Which taken at the flood leads on to fortune."

The late Dr. Locke understood more than merely what anatomy and medicine teach with respect to the bones, muscles, tendons and nerves of the foot. He understood human nature and the psychology that goes with it. With his knowledge he was able to give relief to thousands of persons, and there is no one more ready to tell about how some person has effected comfort or cure than the patient who has suffered from a serious physical ailment and has perhaps dispaired of ever being free from the pain. In this respect a doctor has ever had, and has still, an almost magical power with humanity if he accomplishes these results.

France Is Paying

Some idea of the level to which France has been reduced as a consequence of its failure to battle the Germans two years ago may be obtained from an Associated Press dispatch from Vichy in which is carried a quotation from newspapers of a statement made by Francois Lehideaux, Secretary of Public Works. It reports him as having said that shortages of materials and fuel have created a grave situation for French industry from which "only strict discipline can save us."

There has been enough information coming out of both occupied and unoccupied France since the capitulation of that country to reveal the heavy price that fallen nation has had to pay for its moral and political decline. The Germans have been like bandits who go out and over-run a village, seize everything they want and then exact toll from the defenceless population as the months go on.

It is rather surprising, nevertheless, to read further that the Minister says this:

"We have no more coal, no more gasoline, no more cement, no more steel, even no more water to feed our turbines."

If this was said and is an accurate report, the plight of the people there must be harassing. The contrast between today and what France once was reminds one of the decline and fall of the Roman Empire as written by the great historian, Edward Gibbon. But it sometimes takes a terrible lesson of this kind to bring a people back to the consciousness that a nation, or empire, is only as strong as the majority of the people who are its life. When intrigue, bribery, deceit and moral looseness is general, a race has to go through a period of travail to purge it of its own follies.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Joy-riding won't be so gaseously joyous now that gasoline rationing has stopped joy-riding from being joyously gaseous.

That "On to Berlin" cry raised by the Russians seems to have been adapted by the Germans, for they are going in that direction themselves.

The four hundred prairie farmers who went to Ottawa have evidently concluded that despite their problems, it is easier to raise wheat than it is to raise any political dust on Parliament Hill.

General Winter, controlling things from his domain in the Arctic, seemed to be of the opinion on Monday that people would have to show they valued their electoral franchise or be denied it at the polls. He ruled that snow, cold and biting wind should cool down the heat of the pre-election days in a hurry and really give people something to think about besides politics.

NEWS FROM BRITAIN

Who rout the foe where battle rages,
Who, when the blow falls, stand,
These know the secret of the ages—
What builds the spirit, saves the land.

Theirs is this saga, these their stories,
The epic of the simple right,
In home and shop their daily glories,
In peace or war their ceaseless fight.

Across the greying waste of ocean
They lift a light and sound a song:
"Who spares not self will save his nation,
Whose heart is right, his cause is strong."

Some Short Bits As Taken Out of Hansard

From the Official Report of the House of Commons for February 4.

Mr. T. L. CHURCH (Broadview): The Government of the day, I suggest, instead of hoisting its patron saint, the plebiscite, might far better put up in front of the Parliament Buildings a bust of Canada's patron saint. And who is Canada's patron saint? Ethelred the Unready. He should be installed as the patron saint of Canada and of this Government. We have been too late in everything we have done in connection with this war, even in the present policy of the plebiscite. I suggest also that the Government might erect a statue to Harold, who left Hastings and by forced marches arrived too late to meet William and the Normans.

Mr. CLARENCE GILLIS (Cape Breton): The hon. member referred to an indemnity of $30 a day, a statement which was also misleading and which might be misunderstood.

Mr. FRASER (Peterborough West): I said $30 for a day and a half.

Mr. GILLIS: That statement might very easily be misunderstood. The indemnity may mean just that to the hon. member who made that statement, but certainly it does not mean that to the members of this group (the C.C.F.). We work for the people we represent three hundred and sixty-five days a year, and if you divide the indemnity by that figure you will see what it means to us. In addition at least fifty per cent of our indemnity goes into the work we do for our people, maintaining offices, endeavoring to assist them iron out their problems and helping them understand some of the legislation that goes through this House. And of course taxes eat into it as well.

Mr. J. A. MARSHALL (Camrose): Three questions, all of them of major importance, have been exercising the minds of the people of my constituency for a long time. The first is, old age pensions, or, where do the old people go from here? The second is agriculture, or, where do the farmers go from here? The third is Canada's war effort, or, where does the Prime Minister (Mr. Mackenzie King) go from here?

Mr. G. K. FRASER (Peterborough West): Mr. Speaker, may I ask the Minister of Finance when the income tax forms for 1941 will be ready? Will they have to wait until the tax agreements with the provinces are signed?

Hon. J. L. ILSLEY (Minister of Finance): All I can do is to bring the question to the attention of my colleague the Minister of National Revenue (Mr. Gibson). The matter is in his department, not in the finance department.

J. G. TURGEON (Cariboo): I will digress and say this, that if the leader of the opposition will rise in his place and officially pledge his party to the total conscription of wealth—

Mr. STIRLING: Nobody knows what it means.

Mr. TURGEON: —the new leader who has been impressed upon them will withdraw. There is no question about that. There is no use fooling ourselves.

I was speaking about delay and discord. In connection with delay I was going to quote only one sentence from a speech made by the Right Hon. Mr. Meighen in 1925. This was the speech in which he made his famous suggestion that there should be no declaration of war without a general election. With the courtesy of the house, I should like to deal with that. He said:

This would contribute to the unity of our country in the months to come, and would enable us best to do our duty. It would not mean delay.

That was the sentence I wanted to leave with the house in that connection.

Mr. HANSON (York-Sunbury): But that was taken out of its context. It was that the country should go on and make its preparation for defence, and the government of the day would stake its whole existence on the election.

Mr. TURGEON: You are right. But, thank God, the country is going on in waging the war, and the government of the day has staked its whole existence on the waging of the war.

Mr. HANSON (York-Sunbury): On a plebiscite.

Mr. TURGEON: The Prime Minister has announced it. And the most that the plebiscite could possibly deal with is whether we are going to have conscription of everything for overseas service.

Mr. HANSON (York - Sunbury): Heads I win, tails you lose—that is the plebiscite.

A "BIG GUN'S" WELCOME

A London military commentator says it is "entirely probable" that Singapore's big guns, intended primarily to meet a sea attack, have been turned the other way to "welcome" the Japanese advancing from Malaya. Let's hope so. The mistake made by the Maginot line engineers was that they never figured on an attack from the rear.—Brantford Expositor.

WHAT DO YOU THINK?

A drunken truck driver at Brockville ran amuck in the streets and smashed three other cars, with damage amounting to over $1,000. He got 30 days in jail and 30 days' suspension of his driving license! What do you think about that? So do we!

Disaster Near Singapore

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11 (AP)—A United Nations disaster of maximum proportions is taking swift shape in the far Pacific. The battle of Singapore, the great British citadel of Empire, is all but lost. Hours may see its fall to overwhelming Japanese attack and signalise the worst blow of this war to British arms, and to Allied hopes, rivalling in effect the fall of France.

It is not only loss of the Singapore base itself as a strategic key that counts. Despite official outgivings from both London and Washington as to Anglo-American reinforcements reaching the Pacific scene of action, forewarnings that Singapore might not prove able to hold out indefinitely have been voiced repeatedly on both sides of the Atlantic.

Yet the intimation has been that it could withstand siege long enough for adequate Allied defense forces to be rallied in the Netherlands Indies. With that in mind, the Allied Commander, General Sir Archibald Wavell, called for a British stand at Singapore as at Tobruk.

MAIN DEFENSES CRUMBLE

Within two days after the first Japanese crossed the Johore Strait moat on to Singapore Island, however, its main defenses have crumbled and the fate of its garrison is ominously uncertain.

The time element is the major factor involved at Singapore at this stage. To what extent the grand strategy worked out in the Roosevelt-Churchill conferences counted upon additional weeks or even months to muster reinforcements in the Indies while Singapore still stood can only be conjectured. It is scarcely possible, however, that the war plan evolved did not rely heavily on a prolonged Japanese delay at Singapore.

It was to reach the Netherlands islands and their precious oil resources that Japan struck in the Pacific. Her case exactly parallels that of Germany. Both must have oil, and Japan struck for it in the Pacific as Hitler struck for it in Russia.

With a complete victory soon at Singapore, Japan will be a long stride closer to that prime oil objective than her Nazi associate. Her next move is likely to be a mass attack on the Java bastion still guarding Netherlands high-test oil sources.

CRISIS FOR CHURCHILL

Release of Japanese attack power, particularly air power, from the Singapore operations would augment the scope and force of the attack on the Indies. The enemy already has obtained some oil in Sarawak and elsewhere, although stern execution by the Netherlanders of the well-destruction orders limits the immediate fruits of Nipponese victory in that respect.

There can be little question, however, that the fall of Singapore will mark the beginning, in full scale, of the Battle of Java as the fall of France marked the beginning of the Battle of Britain. Unless Java can be held the United Nations front will be thrown back into Australia and the Pacific islands. Allied contacts between the Pacific and Indian Oceans via the Straits of China Sea will be ruptured and the China Sea become for long a virtual Japanese lake.

There is another imponderable political aspect to the impending Singapore disaster. Prime Minister Churchill faced down a Parliament restive with apprehensions as to fate of that jewel in the British belt of empire. With Singapore actually lost, he may come to the gravest crisis of his war captaincy.

Letter To The Editor

WANTS NO PLEBISCITES

Editor Examiner:

Sir,—The Parliament of Canada assembled on January 21, and no doubt the people of the Dominion are anxiously awaiting some definite decision from our government in regard to compulsory selective service and that means in Canada or overseas, anywhere at any time. We have no time for a referendum. Delays are dangerous and costly and I feel it is not what the people of this riding would want. We know to our sorrow the suffering and hardships that was caused to other democratic countries by delays and unpreparedness. There is one way to overcome it and that would be to conscript wealth and manpower, and also to increase the age-limit for enlistment from eighteen to thirty-five years for service overseas. We will then get our army built up to where we should have it. It is going to take some time to train and equip the number called, but we would be ready when the time comes to pay Hitler a real visit.

Now, I am a returned man myself from the World War I and I have four of my sons on active service overseas and my two son-in-laws, and not one of those boys waited to be called up.

I feel I would like to say a word for ex-service men. We have a large number of those boys overseas on active service, others serving in Canada doing guard duty, and others unemployed, and can not enlist, but still want to do their bit. I would suggest that before the government call up those hundred thousand women for war work in plants, it would be good business to register all ex-service men and find out through their Legion branches how many men would be available for war work, and place them there, thus releasing those younger men for active service that do not happen to hold key jobs.

We hear a lot about the farmer and that word conscription, for what he thinks is going to be a hardship to him. I cannot see it myself. I have heard members of parliament, I have heard it over the radio, I read it in the newspapers about the farmers going to be hard hit, but if some of those people that do so much talking would take time off and make a survey of those munition plants you will find out where the farmers' sons are.

Now we are all asked to do all we can and we have to do it if we expect to win this war and we must serve where we are most fitted for and that means key men. Now the farmer's son is the real key man on the farm and why should he be working in a munitions plant. He will find out that he can be replaced in the factory, but not on the farm. So if he thinks he should do all he can for his country, my advice to him is to stay on the farm and then he will be serving his country faithfully.

It seems to me to be a lot of nonsense to be calling up thousands of women to work in these war plants, when the veterans of the past war cannot get employment, and many of them with sons now serving overseas.

Hard To Believe How Time Flies

FEBRUARY 11

1912 The quarterly official board of Mark Street Methodist Church votes 28 to 0 for church union.

The Examiner starts a fund to help families who were burned out in destructive Harvey street fire.

Cold weather is still here. It registered 28 below zero at the coldest point during the night.

Harry Rush is elected chairman of the Central Charity Board with J. McClelland, vice chairman.

Complaints are being made that ice-cutting on Chemong Lake has endangered the safety of the temporary road across the lake.

1922 Sir Adam Beck states that there is little chance of a reduction in street railway fares here.

Walter J. Squire, resident of Peterborough for 50 years dies at the breakfast table.

Eggs were selling at 45 to 48 cents, butter at 38 to 43 cents, chickens at 25 and 30 cents a pound and turkeys at 40 cents a pound on the local market this morning.

Grace Blue scores both goals for Campbellford ladies as they defeat the Peterborough ladies team 2 to 1.

1932 C. W. Powers tells the Engineers of the construction of Maple Leaf Gardens.

Premier John Hunter, of the Older Boys' Parliament, is guest speaker at Kiwanis luncheon.

The Kinsmen decide to present the play "The Rivals" under the direction of Adrian Macdonald.

St. Michael's College Juniors defeat the Petes 4 goals to 2 with Bill Calladine getting both of the Peterborough counters.

IN WAR TIME

1917 Major Gerald Hall returns home after 18 months service overseas.

Economy in the use of coal is urged by the local fuel dealers. City council passes a resolution calling upon the railways to expedite shipments to Peterborough.

Only two days this month have not registered a below zero mark. It was 14 below this morning.

A letter from Lieut. Fred Hubbs, interned in Switzerland, describes the experiences of some Peterborough boys at the front.

A WONDERFUL BRIDE

THE average newspaper man can remember his first assignment. It was probably a wedding or a funeral. If the former he probably said the bride looked "lovely," or was "becomingly gowned." In after years he may have even ventured on more pretentious descriptive phrases.

It is doubtful though, if in the wildest flights of his imagination he equalled the following effusion from a Charlottesville, Kentucky paper:

"The bride is a woman of wondrous fascination and remarkable attractiveness, for with manner as enchanting as the wand of a siren and a disposition as sweet as the odor of flowers, and spirits as joyous as the caroling of birds, and mind as brilliant as those glittering tresses that adorn the brow of winter, and with heart as pure as dewdrops trembling in a coronet of violets, she will make the home of her husband a paradise of enchantment like the lovely home of her girlhood, where the heaven-tuned harp of marriage with its chords of love and devotion and fond endearments sent forth the sweetest strains of felicity that ever thrilled the senses with the rhythmic pulsings of ecstatic rapture."

Now is it any wonder that she married?—Guelph Mercury.

VAST AMOUNT OF WHEAT

THE Dominion Bureau of Statistics estimates that Canada's wheat crop for 1941 amounted to 299,401,000 bushels, a small crop compared to those of the previous year, which amounted to 540,190,000 bushels. Two factors were involved. There was a poorer crop due to unfavorable weather conditions and insect attacks. And the acreage had been purposely reduced. In the three Prairie Provinces the wheat acreage was 21,551,000 in 1941 compared to 27,750,000 in 1940, a reduction of approximately 29 per cent.—Kitchener Record.

Cincinnati Reds Swap Glue Foot To Boston Braves

(By WHITNEY MARTIN.)

NEW YORK, Feb. 10.—(AP).—Ernie Lombardi has been traded to Boston Braves and the good people of Cincinnati are going to miss old glue foot.

Not only the fans will miss him. The Red pitching staff, which won two championships and last year lifted an otherwise second-division ball club to third place, will miss him. When a club has pitching like that you know the chuckers haven't been chucking at a barn door.

Which may not be a good comparison, at that, as Ernie is about the size of a barn door, and with his wingspread it's a mystery how he succeeded in leading his league seven years in passed balls. As Bucky Walters once said:

"Don't think that fellow isn't a good catcher. Why, he can reach out with his bare hand and catch your fastest pitch. He's done it lots of times."

An odd fellow is the lumbering, lovable giant from Oakland. He's morose and taciturn. Our efforts to engage him in conversation have resulted in replies which might be expected if someone were punched unexpectedly in an unprotected bay window. That is, Ernie's vocal effort was confined to a non-committal "ugh."

Not that he's a tongue-tied Timothy. He just doesn't believe in wasting conversation, and this trait has more than a little to do with his popularity. He wouldn't alibi for a quick retreat if he sat on a bee.

Lets Friends Talk.

If an explanation is indicated, he'll let his friends do the talking for him. Such was the case when he was the famous sleeper in the Red lineup in the 1939 World Series as the Yanks paraded by him at the plate.

Ernie was injured in a collision with Charley Keller, yet he never opened his mouth to alibi. He took an unmerciful ribbing, and the way he took it earned everyone's respect. They'd still be talking about that incident if Mickey Owen's muff last fall hadn't provided fresh material. Why is it the catchers seem to be the goats, anyway?

Ernie frequently has held out for his rights when he thought a pay increase was in order after a good season, but there was something a little pathetic about his statement this year to the effect that he expected a cut.

He knew he was no ball of fire last year, although the figures are not so terrible. Just terrible by comparison with some of his better years. He hit .264 in 117 games and batted in 60 runs, and there's many a player who would sit back contentedly on that performance and reckon he was a pretty fair major league ball player.

And we can't help but wonder what the big fellow will do when he stands at the plate and faces the Walters and the Derringers and the Vander Meers he's been catching so many years.

Watson Posts A Double

WINNIPEG Feb. 11 — (CP). — Ken Watson's Strathconas, Dominion curling champions in 1936, posted a double victory in the opening of Manitoba's 54th annual bonspiel here yesterday advancing in the Dingwall Grand Challenge and Eaton Trophy events.

Watson's quartette defeated R. L. Howden of the Heather rink, Winnipeg, 12-7, in the Dingwall and knocked over Alexander Sillers of Holmfield, Man., 12-9 in the Eatons.

Earlier, Al Wakefield of Winnipeg whose quartette represented Manitoba in the 1941 Macdonald's Brier Dominion final, won by Howard Palmer of Calgary, was knocked from the Dingwall event 12-7 by G. W. Collins of Manitou.

As Gowanlock of Brandon and Leo Johnson of Winnipeg, Dominion champions in 1938 and 1934 respectively, each had a win and a loss. Gowanlock advanced in the Dingwall with a 12-11 triumph over R. Brown of Balmoral, Man., but dropped an extra-end game with R. Couseley's Strathconas, 10-9, in the Eatons. Johnson lost his Dingwall game 12-11 to Howard Wood of Winnipeg. Dominion champion in 1930 and 1940, but came back in the Eatons to score a 13-12 win over M. Kneeshaw of Winnipeg. Premier John Bracken eliminated 9-8 by A. H. Hume of Oak River in the Dingwall, advanced in the Eaton play with a 12-10 victory over J. Morecombe of Portage La Prairie.

Campbellford's long-time hockey rivals, Stirling, will pay the town a visit tonight (Wednesday) for another Juvenile game in the current series, and with Stirling having just about the fastest crowd in league it should be a real exhibition. The locals lost both their games played in the Stirling bailiwick but against this you can chalk up the fact they have won their last four contests.

Last night's exhibition game at Brock St. Rink in aid of the Kinsmen's Milk for Britain Fund and in the interest of the Victory Loan drive was a gratifying success. The rink held almost a capacity audience and a substantial sum was raised for the Milk Fund. Coach Eddie Powers of the Marlboros brought down a team of fast juniors with a few reinforcements from Native Sons and St. Michael's thrown in with the Marlboro youngsters and they kept the Military Training Centre team stepping to town all the way to nose them out 8 to 7. It was a typical exhibition game, with no body checking and both teams stressing the offensive, rather than the defensive angle and the result was a fast-moving affair with plenty of scoring and lots of speed. The Petes were never worse than tied but the Dukes came on in the third period, outplayed the homesters and made it decidedly interesting. In fact the teams were tied with less than two minutes to go but Bruce Bennett drove in the winning tally then and sent the crowd away happy.

* * * * * *

The game itself, however, about took second place with the visit of three of the Toronto Maple Leafs outstanding stars ranking as the biggest attraction of the night. Turk Broda, the Leafs sterling goalie, Syl Apps, the speed king of the Toronto outfit and Gordie Drillon, goal-scoring expert for the Leafs were all on hand and they were greeted with cheers from the crowd when they were introduced by Mayor James Hamilton. Broda had only two penalties to impose, both of them for more or less accidental trips. Apps in acknowledging the welcome extended by Mayor Hamilton put in a neat plug for the Victory Loan. And when they were not busy with their official duties the Leaf trio had a crowded night, writing autographs for the fans. Their presence was a big help in the night's success.

Belleville Reliance and the Oshawa-Whitby team clash at Belleville tonight in the opening game of the group semi-final series. It is a best two-of-three affair to decide which team will meet the Petes in a best three-of-five series for the group title and the local Soldiers are pulling for the round to be settled in two straight games so that the final argument can be started next Monday. It is expected that Whitby will have their full lineup in action against Belleville tonight and in that event it would not surprise local fans if the team from Ontario county took Mike Rodden's proteges and wound up the series with a win at home on Friday night. Reliance have strengthened their defence by the addition of White of the Kingston Combines and Pepper Martin of Queen's but most of the Petes seem to think that Whitby with a full battle array will still carry too much punch for the Belleville imports.

* * * * * *

According to Bill Walshe at least four of the Kingston Combines have played their last game in a Kingston uniform. Bobby Neilson, smart little winger and in our book always one of the most effective and dangerous attackers on the Combine lineup will likely be moved for further service as a naval officer. Pug Young who has been doing a stout job on the defence will also be away in the Navy, Bre'er Walshe reports. Norv. Williamson, right-winger has ended his career as a hockey player with medical work taking all his future time. Still another who declares that he has finished as an active participant in Canada's national winter game is the veteran Yip Radley who is hanging up the uniform after what Scribe Walshe describes as a 17-year busy puck career. Of course all this was said in the gloom of an unexpected defeat. Some of the retiring stars may see the thing in a different light at the beginning of another season.

* * * * *

Says Ken Colling in the Belleville Ontario-Intelligencer: "With Belleville and Peterborough having completed their 12 group games we find the Petes have only scored eight more goals than Belleville. The scoring averages show that the Petes bagged 69 goals in 12 games, while Mike Rodden's sextette sank 61 pucks behind opposing goalies. In the goals-scored-against column, however, the Peterborough Training Centre team have only had 36 scored against them in comparison with 53 against Belleville. These statistics would indicate the Reliance team is practically on a par with the Petes in the matter of offence, but defensively the Petes are 17 goals stronger on the season. Since the addition of Dud White and Pepper Martin the Belleville defence has tightened up to a noticeable degree and from now on Martin will team with Williamson and White with Hamilton, so says Manager Ken Soden.

* * * * * *

Continues Mr. Colling: "Don Bowen, shifty centre-ice player with Mike Rodden's Belleville Reliance seniors, is the leading scorer for the white-clad locals at the end of their regular senior "B" group schedule in the O.H.A. Bowen scored eleven goals, in an even dozen games played, and added ten assists, to give him 21 scoring points. "Tims" Williams, hard-driving right winger on the same forward line with Bowen, is second in the club's scoring figures with ten goals and eight assists. In the matter of goals scored, however, Tobe (goal-a-game) White paced the Reliance as he notched 12 goals in as many games played as he scored. Bill Hastie led the team in assists, getting 14 helping counters. The Belleville seniors scored 61 goals against their respective group opponets and had 53 scored against them, a creditable offensive record. The group-leading Peterborough seniors only scored eight more goals than did Mike Rodden's locals."

* * * * * *

Picking up eleven scoring points to make their farewell appearance with the Boston Bruins a memorable one Bobby Bauer, Milt Schmidt and Woody Dumart sparked a Boston attack last night that overwhelmed the Canadiens 8 goals to 2 and enabled the Rossmen to carve two points off the lead of the New York Rangers and gain a similar margin on the idle Leafs. It was an impressive demonstration of the value of the Kraut line to the Bruins, Bauer scoring two goals and Dumart one while all three figured in the assist column. Jack McGill, just up from the amateur ranks scored Boston's first goal and Johnny Shewchuk and Gordon Bruce, promoted from the minors also bagged markers, indicating that the Bruins' replacements may retain enough punch in the playing of the world's champions to make them still serious contenders, despite losses that would have wrecked most teams.

* * * * * *

After having been beaten at home Sunday night Chicago Black Hawk went into New York last night and handed Lester Patrick's high-stepping Rangers a 5 to 2 drubbing. It was the first loss the Rangers have sustained in front of their home customers since early in the season. The Hawks were good value for their win. With Bill Thoms stepping on the gas to set up three scoring plays they came from behind in the second period with a three-goal splurge that put them well in front and they added two more in the final session before the Rangers managed to pick up their second goal just before the end of the game. The loss cut Rangers' lead over the Boston Bruins to two points and tightened up the race considerably.

Three Members Maple Leafs Handle Game

With three of the best known members of the Toronto Maple Leafs officiating, the Peterborough Soldiers Senior B team managed to eke out an 8 to 7 win over Toronto Marlboro Juniors, reinforced by a few St. Mike's and Native Son players here Tuesday night in the benefit game in aid of the Kinsmen's Milk for Britain Fund, and in support of the Victory Loan drive.

While the Soldiers were never behind it was a close enough argument and two minutes from the finish the teams were tied with seven goals each. Then Bruce Bennett fired the winning goal to give the homesters a victory. Body checking was out and both teams paid more attention to attacking than protecting their own citadel with the result that there was plenty of fast skating, a lot of goals and gobs of action.

Leafs Stars There

Syl Apps, Turk Broda and Gordie Drillon of the Maple Leafs were on hand as promised, with Broda acting as referee and Apps and Drillon doing duty as linesmen, and the Leaf stars got a great reception from the crowd. There were brief opening ceremonies with Ald. Adam Sands of the Kinsmen introducing Mayor Hamilton who thanked the Marlboros and the Leaf players for coming down to help a most worthy cause. Syl Apps then stepped up to the "mike" and delivered an appeal on behalf of the Victory Loan drive, Mayor Hamilton faced the puck and the game was on.

The rink was crowded almost to capacity and as a result the Milk Fund received a fine boost.

As for the game the local soldiers were never behind at any stage, although the battling visitors tied the score at 3 to 3 early in the second period and evened it up again late in the third session at 7-7. At the end of the first stanza the Military Training Centre team was in front 3 to 2 and they had increased their margin to two goals, leading 7 to 5, at the close of the second. The Dukes had the satisfaction of outscoring the homesters 2 to 1 in the final twenty minutes and came very close to taking the lead before Bennett's late goal finally settled the argument.

The Petes regular second line was shot through the absence of Joe Blewett and Din Reilly, both on the sick list with colds while Don Crowe was also an absentee. Coach Jim Ellis made his first appearance of the season on the defence and turned in a good card while Eddie Starr and Bruce Bennett teamed up with Perce Nicholls in a revamped second line. Bob Parnell and Doug Mortimer were extra forwards. Nearly everybody got in on the scoring with Eddie Starr getting his first goals of the season, a pair of them and Bun Kingdon coming through with the hat trick by scoring three markers.

For Marlboros, Gair on the defence played a lot of hockey, going both ways, and up in front Adams, Bell and Bromley looked exceptionally good. The Duke youngsters were not particularly fast but they were smart around the nets and took full advantage of any Peterborough slip-ups.

Petes Start Scoring

The Petes outscored the Dukes 3 to 2 in the first period and had that edge on the play. Although Marlboros defence checked well and it was not until 6 minutes had gone that the homesters broke into the scoring. It was a picture play started at the Petes blue line by Heal who passed to Kingdon. The latter beat the Dukes' defence with a pass to Tompkins and took Honey's return at the goal mouth to tip the rubber past Thompson. Kingdon also got the Petes second goal when Tompkins put him in the clear after fore-checking a Marlboro player. Kingdon went in close to score.

Marlboros got their first goal a half minute later, Bromley registering at close range on a pass by Bennett. Nicholls made it 3 to 1 when he took a pass from Starr, worked inside and backhanded a nice one past Thompson. Soon after Adams closed the gap when he checked Burton as the latter was carrying the rubber out of corner and slammed the disc past the surprised Harding.

Dukes Tie It Up

Marlboros tied it up early in the second session and it was a smart play, Bennett passing out of the corner to Bromley who handled the setup perfectly and gave Harding no chance to save. Then came a quartette of Peterborough goals in a row. Eddie Starr started the parade when after Bennett had passed to Nichols and the right-winger lost the rubber at the blue line Starr went in fast and whipped the disc past Thompson. Starr also was the marksman on the next successful attack, taking a pass from Les Burton and ripping a low shot into the corner of the net. Doug. Mortimer made it 6 to 3 when he registered on Burton's rebound after the defence man had been given a pass by Bruce Bennett. Bun Kingdon got his third goal of the night to increase the Petes' lead to four goals when he scored from the edge of the crease after taking a forward pass from Honey Tompkins who had received a forward from Heal to start the play.

It looked like the beginning of a rout but Marlboros pulled themselves together and struck back with two smart goals before the period ended. Adams got the first one and then passed to Bell for the other.

Marlboros kept on attacking in the third session and had the better of the argument. They came close on several occasions before Liscombe, the Galt boy playing for the visitors, drove a hard one past Harding from the penalty shot area. The Petes blew several chances themselves after this setback and it was the Dukes who finally scored again to sew up the game, Bromley broke away with a nice burst of speed and as he rounded the defence whipped a pass to Elliott who took it at the corner of the crease and shoved the rubber into the net before Harding could shift. It looked like a tie score at that stage but with a minute to go Nichols and Bennett broke away together and the latter notched the winner at close range on a pass from Nichols.

Local Youngsters Thrilled At Meeting N.H.L. Toronto Stars

Through the co-operation of Mr. McBride of the local Victory Loan committee, Howard Shimer and his committee from the Kinsmen Club were able to obtain the services of Turk Broda, Syl Apps and Gordon Drillon of the Toronto Maple Leaf team to referee an exhibition hockey match here on Tuesday night. Peterborough Soldiers won the game against the Marlboro Juniors from Toronto, and between periods, local youngsters had great fun with the big leaguers. ABOVE, boys are seen talking with Broda, on one knee; Apps, sitting on the RIGHT, and Drillon standing. Included in the group are Joey McMahon, Ron Logan, Bob Lock, Frank Booth, Virgil Ralph, and Snubby Buckland. Little Ken Pammett is being held by Apps.

KRAUTS SHINE IN FAREWELL AS BRUINS SHELLAC CANADIENS 8-1

Chicago Drubs Leading Rangers By 5-2

(By SCOTT YOUNG.)

BOSTON, Feb. 11.—(CP).— The National Hockey League waved farewell to the Kitchener Krauts last night, but the Krauts didn't wave back. They were too busy scoring goals.

Playing their last game with Boston Bruins before joining the Royal Canadian Air Force, the Krauts picked up 11 scoring points as Bruins walloped Montreal Canadiens 8-1 in Boston in what may be the Boston club's last real show of strength this season. The victory pulled the Bruins to within two points of the first-place New York Rangers, who were drubbed 5-2 by Chicago, but with the Krauts gone the Beantowners have little but a spiritual chance of regaining the lead they held earlier this season.

It was probably the last big-time hockey for the Krauts—Aircraftsmen Woodrow Dumart, Milton Schmidt and Robert Bauer of the R.C.A.F.—unless the war ends before their usefulness as hockey players has passed. They may play for the Ottawa R.C.A.F. team in the Ottawa and District Senior League for the rest of the season.

Bauer Clicks Twice

The Kitchener line's bow-out was impresive. Bauer scored twice and assisted once, Dumart had one goal and three asists, and Schmidt assisted in three goals. They have scored 98 points this season, including 41 goals. The individual records: Schmidt, 14 goals, 20 assists; Bauer, 13 goals, 22 assists; Dumart, 14 goals, 15 assists.

Jack McGill, Flash Hollett, Desse Smith, Jack Shewchuk and Gord Bruce scored Boston's other goals. Toe Blake saved Canucks from being shutout by scoring in the first period.

After the game the Krauts received gifts from their fellow-Bruins and from Manager Art Ross. The Boston club gave them cheques for full season's salaries, and bonuses, then Bruins and Canadiens carried the Kitchener-Waterloo trio from the ice. The Canadiens probably wished they could have done it two hours earlier.

Chicago outplayed Rangers. Alf Pike scored Rangers' first late in the first period, but Hawks took over in the second. Red Hamill, Max Bentley and George Allen scored in that period and Alex Kaleta and Bill Carse in the third before Alan Kuntz counted Rangers second—the last goal of the game.

The victory lifted Hawks closer to the third-place Toronto Maple Leafs, and made Rangers' leadership slightly less secure.

Hamilton Still On Shelf

TORONTO, Feb. 11. — If and when Coach (Islington Clarence) Day of the Toronto Leafs finds an entire squad of able-bodied athletes greeting him at a Gardens practice, you'll hear about it via bells and sirens.

The Leafs skipper thought there was a chance to offer a dress rehearsal of everybody but the crippled Reg Hamilton for the benefit of an R.C.A.F. gallery Tuesday afternoon. But he was disappointed on several counts, not to mention the fact the Air Force officials cancelled a proposed Gardens parade of 2,000 men because of marching conditions on Toronto streets.

And that wasn't all!

Bob Goldham and Pete Langelle joined Hamilton as sideline observers. And Bob Davidson came out of the first session of a double practice program with his ankle wound aggravated by a flying puck and a Sonja Henie twist he attempted.

Goldham is nursing a bruised ankle, Langelle a sore elbow, but both are expected to make the trip to Montreal for Thursday's game with Canadiens.

Word on Reg Hamilton, crippled defenceman, wasn't so good. He was to be admitted to hospital today for a knee operation. Coach Day was unable to say how serious this casualty case had developed. He was hopeful that the operation would bring his Islington neighbor around in a hurry.

Taylor Gets Double Duty

Day conducted what he called his "cripple drill," Tuesday morning, with Davidson, Nick Metz and Wally Stanowski, limbering up. Baz Bastien, Marlboro netminder, was the target. Surprise addition to the squad was Billy Taylor. There was no explanation for Billy's appearance. He certainly didn't act like a casualty. In face the former Oshawa star had a brisk warm-up and then returned in the afternoon to step of a lovely turn with Schriner and Carr.

Davidson, Stanowski and Metz also participated in the afternoon workout. Bob hiked off to Dr. Galloway's offices for treatment of his ankle afterwards.

A drill this morning will decide Day's travelling troupe to Montreal. Nick Metz working with Drillon and Apps, Tuesday, will likely be ready for his left wing spot against Canadiens. Stanowski isn't slated for the trip according to present plans.

Big Hank Goldup sprained his left wrist in last Thursday's game against the Red Wings in Detroit, buried the bruises in elbow-length bandages and a leather band, and worked against Rangers, Americans over the week-end.

Last Night's Stars

Bobby Bauer, Boston, scored two goals in farewell appearance as Boston trounced Canadiens 8-1.

Bill Thoms, Chicago, made play for three goals which helped in beating leading New York Rangers 5-2.

WATCH FOR THEM

There will be five eclipses in 1942 —three of the sun and two of the moon.

Where's Maxy, Carnera Of Heavies Fame

NEW YORK, Feb. 11.—(CP)— The whereabouts and activities of the two Nazi nation fighters who have held the world heavyweight boxing championship — Germany's Max Schmeling and Italy's Primo Carnera—are shrouded by the censorship that hangs over those warring countries.

Schmeling was, and probably still is, in the Germany army. He was reportedly one of the parachute troops in the German attack on Crete. Schmeling was hospitalized after the Crete venture and later refereed boxing matches in Germany. Nothing has been heard of him in months.

Title On Foul

It was Schmeling who won the title while flat on his back in 1930. He was awarded the championship on a foul in the fourth round of his match with Jack Sharkey. Schmeling halted Young Stribling in his first defence in15 rounds at Cleveland in 1931 but was outpointed and dethroned by Sharkey in 1932.

Schmeling came back a few years later to burst the superman myth built around Joe Louis and knocked the negro out in 12 rounds. However in a return match in 1938, after Louis had won the title, Joe knocked Schmeling out in less than a round. Louis, seeking revenge for his earlier defeat and angered at Schmeling for slighting remarks Max had made, was never more savage than the night he destroyed Schmeling.

At last reports, some months ago, Carnera had not been drawn into the Italian army. Carnera whose fighting weight was around 260 pounds, was the biggest man ever to hold the championship, at least in modern boxing history. He knocked out Jack Sharkey to win the crown in 1933 and after defending it against Paolino Uzcudun and Tommy Loughran, he lost it to Max Baer in 1934. Baer knocked out the Ambling Alp in 11 rounds.

Primo The Ogre

Some months ago Carnera was a movie actor, working at Cine Citta, the Italian counterpart of Hollywood. His role was usually that of a jovial ogre.

"I'm in training all the time," he said then. "Got to because of my work in films. I got to keep good."

Primo's voice still sounds like a couple of boulders rolling downhill. His hands are still big as hams and still grip as if he had beartraps in them.

Primo likes to recall the days when he was champion. "Oh boy, those were the days," he said.

"The whole troubl with the heavyweight division today," Primo said, "is that there is a lack of good heavies. Louis won't have much trouble keeping his title."

Carnera would like another crack at the title. Does he think he could beat Louis? Well, he wouldn't say yes to that, but he did say "Boy I sure would like a chance."

Carnera is married and has a chubby young daughter. They have been pictured in their small Italian automobile, riding down Rome's main streets.

Hockey's Big Seven

By The Canadian Press

Bryan Hextall of Rangers added a point to his total in the National Hockey League scoring race last night to remain alone in the top spot with 42 points, but Boston's little Bobby Bauer left notice with the rest of the leaders that he would have been a real contender for honors, as he pulled out four points in his farewell appearance against Canadiens before leaving to enter the Royal Canadian Air Force to boost his count to 35 and give him sole possession of fifth place in the scoring.

Lynn Patrick and Phil Watson of Rangers trail their leading linemate Hextall with counts of 40 and 39 respectively, while Bill Thoms, Chicago, picked up three assists last night to place him in fourth place with 37 points. Gordie Drillon, Toronto, shares sixth spot with Milt Schmidt, Boston, who like Bauer played his last game this season in the big time.

Island Railway

installations in the naval base to keep them from falling into enemy hands).

Military commentators declared the Japanese had not landed at the naval base, on Johore Strait opposite the enemy line on the Malayan mainland, and said that the railroad crossing the island from Johore to Singapore City had not been cut.

These sources declared there was no indication the Japanese had put "large numbers of troops" across the causeway from Johore, but the situation remained "very serious."

(The British forces blew up the causeway—the only bridge between Singapore and the Malay Peninsula —but the Japanese claimed yesterday they had restored it.)

Doom Of The Cabinet?

Simultaneously, the opinion was advanced in some quarters that Singapore's predicament might place the heaviest strain thus far imposed upon the people's unreserved faith in Prime Minister Churchill, although there was no apparent support for reports that his leadership would be crucially challenged.

There were indignant predictions that the present cabinet could not survive the fall of Singapore—that even Mr. Churchill himself could not silence the clamor against some of his ministers.

There was virtually no news from Singapore—and what little came through told in vague generalities of more Japanese troops pouring onto the island.

Some reports said that besides dive-bombing and machine-gunning the British troops, other swarms of Japanese bombers were carrying out "pattern bombing" thousands of feet over the battlefield.

A bizarre story of tea dances and crowded moving picture theatres within the sound of the Battle of Singapore was dispatched from the stricken city last night by C. Yates McDaniel, Associated Press staff writer and the only American correspondent to remain on the island for the final phases of the siege.

McDaniel saw Japanese dive-bombers delivering their last loads of the day before darkness called them back to their bases while near the centre of the bloody stage clouds of light grey smoke arose from rubber plants, canneries and factories to which the owners had applied the torch.

To the south was unnatural calm —wisps of smoke rising slowly over fishing villages on the small Netherlands Islands in the straits between Malaya and Sumatra and steamers, Chinese junks and Malay fishing craft at anchor in Singapore Harbor.

Tea Dances Go On

Along the main roads, McDaniel said, motor cars, trolleys and jinrikishas carried people home from work; in front of the famous Raffles Hotel, cars deposited patrons of the daily tea dance; and outside the nearby movie house people lined up to see Joe McCrea and Ellen Drew in "Reaching for the Sun."

As the gloom over Singapore spread throughout the Empire, Prime Minister Churchill presided last night at a session of the newly-created Pacific War Council. It met to frame a common policy in the Pacific.

Although the spirit and will of Dunkirk and the Battle of Britain remained fundamentally undiminished in the British people, they found it hard to reconcile themselves to what was generally accepted as another imminent military reversal.

"The gravest news from Singpore is the lack of it," said Morley Richards, the Daily Express military expert.

The Daily Express, saying that the "agony of Singapore" spread gloom and anger throughout Britain, asserted, however, that the "only feeling of any use to Mr. Churchill as a leader is a cold-blooded resolve to work and fight... The chief factor in helping Mr. Churchill form such judgments must be his knowledge of the full and unwavering confidence and resolution of his own people."

It was recalled that when the prime minister demanded a vote of confidence from the House of Commons last month—a vote which he obtained overwhelmingly — he had shouldered the full responsibility for the relative British weakness in the Pacific.

Further, he said plainly that the Allied position in the Pacific would remain grave through 1942 but gave his assurances that in 1943 the United Nations would be able to set out in "good style to destroy Japan.

Japs Admit Tough Going.

BATAVIA, N.E.I., Feb. 11 — Singapore still was holding out against the Japanese invasion today, the Malaya Broadcasting Corporation reporting that "heavy fighting was in progress on Singapore Island this morning."

It was reported here that all useful installations and stores at the great Singapore base had been blown up to prevent them from falling into Japanese hands.

Japanese attempts to advance south toward the city are meeting with strong resistance.

There is no information as to the exact line held by the Imperial troops but Japanese radio reports acknowledged that the invaders are finding their progress difficult.

The Japanese appear to have thrown the better part of three divisions into the attack.

There was a resumption of bombing this morning, with the Japanese meeting heavy gunfire.

Japanese planes were attacking British forward areas, the railway station and harbor.

The British and Netherlands Navies and mercantile marines were said to be doing a magnificent job, rushing in and out of the harbor, ignoring the dangers of almost continual land and air bombardment and the wiles of enemy submarines, to evacuate women and children.

vented from using elswhere the forces committed to the Malay Peninsula campaign. That was one of the two main strategic reasons for continuing to defend the British fortress even after its value as a naval base had been virtually destroyed some weeks ago.

The other reason was that Singapore was needed as a base for offensive operations of the future. Once its naval power had been restored, it could have been used in hacking at Japan's supply lines and as Britain's bridgehead in the entire Western Pacific area.

Now if it is ever to be so used it must be recaptured at great cost because, experts here say, Japan may well be able to defend it with more manpower than Britain has been able to concentrate there.

The manpower now released to the Japanese for attack in other theatres may be used, as authorities here view the possibilities, either in stepping up the drive aimed at the Burma Road into China, in expanding the campaign against the Netherlands East Indies, or in increasing the odds against Gen. Douglas MacArthur's forces in the Philippines.

The Indies campaign appeared the most likely, for only the narrow Malacca Strait now separates the troops on the Malay Peninsula from the Indies island of Sumatra.

There is some hope the defenders of the Indies may be benefitted by the reinforcements originally destined for Singapore. The fortress, however, was but single defence point, while the Indies lie open to invasion along uncounted leagues of coast.

Hedgehopping Japs

It makes me ashamed of myself, sitting here with my heart beating faster than their old motors, when I think what chance those lads have of getting back in their antiquated machines.

If ever brave men earned undying glory, those R.A.F. pilots have this tragic morning.

There are many other brave men in Singapore today.

Not far away are anti-aircraft batteries in open spaces—they must be to have a clear field of fire.

Please overlook the break in continuity but a packet of bombs just landed so close I had to duck behind a wall which I hoped would—and did—screen the blast.

A.A. Crews Never Quit

But those gun crews keep on fighting, their guns peppering smoke into the limited ceiling every time Japanese planes come near—that is, almost constantly.

The all clear has just sounded but from the window I can see three Japanese planes flying low not a mile away.

A few minutes ago I heard a tragic two-way telephone conversation.

Eric Davis, director of the Malayan Broadcasting Corporation asked Governor Sir Shenton Thomas for permission to destroy the outlying broadcasting station. The governor demurred, saying the situation was not too bad.

Davis telephoned the station in question, instructing the staff to keep on the air but to stand by for urgent orders.

We tuned in on its wavelength. In the middle of a broadcast in Malayan, urging the people of Singapore to stand firm, the station went dead.

I am leaving now in a car which I swear I will put into forward gear and head straight into the Straits of Malacca.

I left one car for the Japanese in Nanking in 1937 but never again.

Volunteers

R. H. Fleming (Liberal, Humboldt), who supported the plebiscite policy, and Dr. Pierre Gauthier (Liberal, Portneuf), who said he could not ask his electors to release the Government from its anti-conscription pledges.

Col. Ralston said that during the last four months 32,000 men had enlisted voluntarily in the Active Army.

"I believe that if the intake of men for general service keeps within reasonable distances of that general level we shall be able to carry out the 1942 army program for overseas, including the reserves regarded as adequate by both British and Canadian authorities in England," he said.

Need Another 173,000.

The 1942 army program would require an additional 90,000 to 100,000 men on active service enlistments by March 31 next year. All told the armed forces would need 173,000 to 193,000 men, for the Air Force would need 70,000 to 80,000 and the navy about 13,000.

"I have faith in the success of the voluntary method if we all do our part," Col. Ralston said.

"I prefer the voluntary method if it works and I shall do all I can to make it work," he added, but he urged an affirmative answer to the plebiscite so the government would be free to meet any emergency.

Col. Ralston referred briefly to the political situation. He said results of Monday's by-elections in Quebec and Ontario were "a rebuke" to those responsible for the "intemperate and unbridled invective" directed against Prime Minister Mackenzie King.

Every effort was being made to strengthen home defence, the Minister said, and while it would not be possible to ensure against "sporadic" attacks it was he intention to dispose of the forces so such attacks would be costly to the enemy.

Col. Ralston pleaded for recognition of the men in the armed forces.

"The men in uniform are our first citizens," he said.

Total war, to which the government was pledged, meant the most effective employment of the people and resources of a country. All countries had not the same resources. Canada was a member of a united team of nations and its effort had to be governed by its resources and the needs of the other nations of the team.

Farmers Top Fighters.

Food production was of vital importance but the armed forces required men from the farms. There were no better fighting men. Some men from the farms also went into war industry.

"I freely admit there may be faults in that we have not yet taken full measures to replace those who have come from the farms by making certain that workers are provided to keep those farms in operation," said the minister.

"A very important part of the selective service plan which the prime minister announced will be to deal with that particular situation because the indications are that more, rather than less, workers will be needed in this tremendously vital activity."

The selective service plan would also function in obtaining the needed workers for war industries.

"Now about the army," Col. Ralston continued. "The objective has been and is to raise and equip, to reinforce and to maintain highly modernized and mechanized forces, hard-hitting and complete.

"In this way we take advantage of resources and materials, as well as the qualities of initiative and fighting skill which Canadians in battle have always shown. We have also the obligation for the defence of Canada which are more prominently before us than ever before.

Best in the World

"Under the army program for 1942 the Canadian army overseas will be, in proportion, probably the most highly mechanized and mobile army in the world."

The effective strength of the active army now, after 295,000 enlistments, is 255,000, Col. Ralston said. The 1942 program, he warned, does not mean that at the end of the year the forces will have total strength indicated by the additional enlistments, for there will be casualties and wastage.

So far, he said, the number of reinforcements sent overseas to support the troops there has been in excess of the schedule laid down by the Corps Commander, Lt.-Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton.

The program for the year called for adding an armored division and an army tank brigade to the overseas force, and the formation of an army of two corps. To train 90,000 to 100,000 men would tax Canada's capacity to the limit.

Arrangements were being made to bring back instructors from overseas. Training facilities are being enlarged to keep pace with increased enlistments and increasing number of men called up under the National Resources Mobilization Act.

The Minister said home defence matters are engaging close attention. In addition to the 4th Division (now to be made an armored division) and brigade corps of the 6th Division there are over 90,000 active service personnel in training centres in Canada.

An emergency organization for part of this group is being set up, he said. A new organization of the Reserve Army is coming into effect.

More Home Defence Units.

"We also have in mind the mobilization of further units for home defence, especially in view of the ultimate despatch of the 4th Division overseas," said the minister.

Dispositions of troops which had been considered proper were made on both coasts.

Conscription should not be confused with the proposed plebiscite, said the minister. The Government wanted to be free to meet a crisis which might arise in the future.

The pledge given against conscription was not given lightly. Had it not been given Canada could not have entered the war promptly at the side of Britain.

The plebiscite would not delay the army program, Col. Ralston said. In the last four months 32,000 men had enlisted voluntarily in the Active Army.

"I believe that if the intake of men for general service keeps within reasonable distances of that general level we shall be able to carry out 1942 army program for overseas, including the reserves regarded as adequate by both British and Canadian authorities in England," Col. Ralston said.

Army enlistments in January had totalled more ahan 11,700, the best month since the recruiting campaign of last summer.

All this, said the minister, indicated the voluntary system was a success.

Dr. Pierre Gauthier, Liberal, Portneuf, criticized "so called patriots" who advocate conscription, and argued that Canada should look to her own defences before sending conscripts overseas, and look to her own economic security before making gifts to the United Kingdom as proposed in the Speech from the Throne.

He suggested the conscription plebiscite would not be proposed by the Government unless it had some idea of introducing conscription, and declared that he could not ask his people to release the Government from its anti-conscription pledges.

"Those who agitated for conscription and used that issue to obscure Canada's real effort would "throw this country into the arms of the United States sooner than we expect," Dr. Gauthier said.

Rickard's Stand

W. F. Rickard, Liberal, Durham, said he had made no promises for or against conscription when he was elected in 1940, but he felt as much bound by the commitments of his party leader as if he had made the pledges personally.

But if the time came that conscription was essential to the success of Canada's war effort he would support it, providing it meant conscription of everything needed for the prosecution of war.

Mr. Rickard said he would ask the people of his riding to vote in the plebiscite to release the government from its pledges so its hands would be freed for whatever action future developments might dictate.

A bonus or some other form of assistance for farmers to enable them to compete with industry in obtaining farm labor would be necessary to enable agriculture to produce the food supplies expected from it, he said.

If labor were available at wages farmers could afford to pay agriculture would be in a fairly sound position, he said, but labor had been diverted to the factories by high wages and regular hours, and farmers, under present circumstances, could not compete

Mr. Rickard urged that compulsory training be indefinitely postponed for farmers' sons when they undertake to remain permanently on the farm.

ATTACKED BY DOG.

Only the fact that he happened to be carrying in his overcoat pocket a pair of ice creepers saved Thomas Griffin, in charge of the Sergeants' Mess at the Armouries, from being badly bitten when he was attacked by a collie dog on Alymer Street on Tuesday. A BOUQUET FOR HERB.

Herb Payne, manager of Rye's Pavilion and well-known long distance trucker, gave members of the Kinsmen Club a pleasant surprise on Tuesday evening, when he walked over to Howard Shimer during the exhibition hockey match at Brock Street rink, and counteo out ten, ten-dollars bills. "This is my donation to the Milk for Britain Fund," he stated, and walked off. This is the largest personal donation received by the club since the Milk for Britain Fund started.

HIS WORK LIVES ON

Thousands of soldiers wounded in World War I, and millions of men and women who suffered injury since that time, owe their lives to a great man who died 30 years ago today. He is Sir Joseph Lister who discovered antiseptic surgery. His first observations revealed that internal wounds such as fractures healed satisfactorily whereas a break in the skin usually causes gangrene or putrefaction of some kind. His first move to combat this was using carbolic acid, and he laid the foundation for the great development along these lines leading up to the present day.

Milk Plants Are Approved

All pasteurizing plants in the city have received their 1942 certificates of approval from the Provincial Department of Health, according to the report of Sanitary Inspector MacPherson to the Board of Health last night.

"This approval is issued only upon compliance of all such plants with the engineering principles necessary for safe and scientific processing of the milk. The fact that all the plants are approved speaks well for the dairy industry as a whole.

One new restaurant has been approved by this Department. Before the premises were opened we called on the manager and made a number of suggestions as to methods of sanitation of utensils, storage of glassware and other items. He immediately put these suggestions into effect.

One application for a license to operate a restaurant was not approved due to lack of adequate facilities for the maintenance of a decent standard of cleanliness and sanitation.

One case of the providing of common drinking glasses in the restrooms of a dance hall came to our attention this month. They were quickly disposed of, and I might say that it certainly was the source of great surprise that any person in this day and age would tolerate on his premises such an innocent looking yet actually filthy thing as a common drinking cup.

The care of refuse and kitchen wastes is an important item of restaurant sanitation and the only proper method of storage is by the use of metal-covered containers. Several operators have neglected this and we have given them notices this month. If they don't comply, I think it will be necessary for us to prosecute."

Hockey Game Nets $493 To Kinsmen Club

Kinsmen club of this city saw their Milk for Britain Fund get a real boost on Tuesday night when sportsmen jammed the Brock street rink for an exhibition game between the Toronto Marlboros and the Peterborough Soldiers.

It was a fine piece of cooperation by individuals and organizations assisting to make the affair a 100 per cent success. C. W. McBride, one of the organizers for the Second Victory Loan, is credited with securing the services of Turk Broda, Syl Apps and Gordon Drillon, stars of the Toronto Maple Leafs team in the National Hockey League who acted as referees. Jim Lavis, manager of the rink, gave it to the Kinsmen for $15 and supplied a complete set of tickets, and his usual staff. Fred Scates, Jim Ellis, Max Glover and other members of the Peterborough Hockey Club assisted in selling tickets and every hockey player on the team not only relinquished his passes but paid for seats for the game.

Prior to the game both teams lined up on the ice, and Alderman Adam Sands, a prominent Kinsmen introduced His Worship Mayor James Hamilton. The Mayor welcomed the visiting team, and the National League players and then called on Syl Apps for a few words. Mr. Apps gave the forthcoming Victory Loan a boost stating that this city is noted for its fine responses to patriotic appeals. "The Second Victory Loan will go over the top, if everyone cooperates. When the canvasser calls treat him as one who is doing you a favor and not just as another salesman." C. W. McBride of the local Victory Loan staff was with the Mayor and Alderman Sands.

Howard Shimer, who worked hard to put the game across, and who headed the Kinsmen committee reported that the receipts totalled $493.00 or sufficient to supply 4,930 children with quart of milk each, and that Herb Payne, local trucker, added another $100.00 as a personal donation.

Peterborough won the hockey match 8 to 7.

Canada Packers Trophy Bonspiel Starts

With every available sheet of ice occupied, the annual bonspiel for the Canada Packers' Trophy got under way this morning at 9.30 o'clock. So popular has this event become that many entries from outside had to be refused. It is the first time in the history of this contest that such a demand has been made on the local club.

The ice was in perfect condition and the weather man promised to do his share to make the spiel a success.

President T. McArthur in a brief speech welcomed all and hoped that at the end of the day all would feel better for having come.

Three Fingers Almost Severed

DOWNEYVILLE, Feb. 11 (ENS). —Austin O'Neill, young Emily township farmer, had a serious accident late Tuesday afternoon when his hand was struck by an axe in the hands of a fellow worker at a chopping bee on the farm of Vincent Perdue.

O'Neill is reported to have had his hand on a limb which was being cut when the axe slipped and the blade came down across his knuckles, almost completely severing three fingers. First aid was given him by Vincent Perdue and Joseph Wynn, and he was taken to the Lindsay hospital. He lost considerable blood despite the fact that his fellow workers applied a tourniquet, but his condition is favorable and the doctor hopes to save the first finger and the thumb.

Killed In England

Captain Morgan Charles Hawkins, son of Dr. and Mrs. M. H. Hawkins of Port Hope, who was killed in a flying accident in England on February 8, according to word received by his family yesterday. A dentist by profession, he enlisted at the outbreak of the war in the Dental Corps and later was attached to the Air Force in England. He was 26 years of age.

Donald Pagett Wins Gold Cup War Stamp Sales

The up-and-coming salesman, Donald Pagett, who won the Examiner Gold Trophy for sales of War Savings Stamps during the month of January, is to be presented with his cups on Thursday evening at the conclusion of the second evening show at the Capitol Theatre. Donald will also be handed the Robert Neill Company prize for the highest sales of War Savings Stamps per customer. This is the attractive gift of a pair of ski boots offered by this firm in generous appreciation of the fine work done by the Examiner carriers and the star salesman in particular each month of the year 1942. The boy or girl winning this prize has the privilege of choosing high top boots in place of the ski boots if they should wish. The second prize for Stamp sales goes this month to a boy who has consistently sold a very large amount of stamps since the campaign began last November. This prize, a studio portrait of the winner himself, is being donated by Fred Cripps, well-known local photographer, and goes to Jack Harris of 239 Princess street. It might be noted in passing that these two prizes go to the boys carrying Examiners in the south end of the city. The sales in that section have been particularly good throughout the campaign.

Girl Winners

A young lady from East City with remarkably good record of sales for some time, Carlotta Laing, is the winner of the prize offered by Victor Gallon for the highest sales by any girl carrier. This is a very large box of Lowney's Chooclates. The Examiner appreciates very much the gesture of these firms in encouraging the carriers who are so ably doing a real job of helping Canada's financial effort by carrying War Savings Stamps right to every customer on their routes.

Another fine showing by all carriers for the week ending February 7th was turned in with $385.75 as a grand total. Winners of the weekly theatre tickets go to Keith Orde with a splendid sale of $48.00 and George Clarke in second place with an even $30. These two energetic young salesmen have been in the top-notcher's for some time and Keith Orde has been a weekly prize winner no less than three times. His sales for last week are the highest individual returns for four weeks.

Ray Douglas, one of the two brothers who made such good sales for the month of January, is again up in the top money with weekly returns o $24. Ray and his brother Tom, a newcomer to the Examiner carrier ranks, were delighted to hear the voice of their soldier dad during the overseas broadcast last Monday midnight. Adrian Langhorne once more appears in the top brackets with $20 in Stamps sold for the week, Bill Dundas with $14.50 and Wilbert Edgar and Donald Pagett, the last month's trophy winner, are tied with $14 each. Dan McIsaac came in with the sum of $10 as did Bob Shadgett. Respectable sales were turned in by the following: Douglas Burrows, $8.75; Mary Hickson, $8; Grant Finnie, $7.25; Henry McIsaac, $6.

Bertha Bradley, the youngster with the smallest route of all Examiner carriers, is again in the spotlight with sales of $7.75 for the week. This is the healthy average of 35 cents per customer.

PASTRY SPILLS ON FLOOR.

A bread wagon driver on Charlotte Street this morning must have felt embarrassed when he returned from a call in a store and found pastry of all descriptions had fallen down from a rear shelf and was spilled on the floor of the wagon. Fortunately, a passerby had apparently stopped the horse from moving away from the spot.

Insurance Club Donates $25 To War Victims

The subject "Sales Snapshots" talked on by H. B. Berwick of Toronto was heard yesterday at a dinner meeting of Peterborough Life Underwriters' Association in the Empress Hotel at which about 65 insurance men comprising a representative gathering was present. The meeting was featured by Mr. Berwick's talk and, in a lighter vein, by the solo singing of Jack "Curly" Gibson who also led in community singing. A vocal quartet composed of Rufus Payne, E. L. Sackville, Dave Diplock and Curly Gibson, was well received.

Addressing a few brief remarks to the meeting, President George Mackay pointed out it was necessary in Canada's war effort to keep money out of the channels of unnecessary spending. "We in the life insurance business are helping finance the war and, at the same time, providing security in the home," he said. Mr. Mackay urged a 100 per cent membership for this year and indicated that the association may undertake some form of war service work this year.

Given $25 Cheque

Fred Mann, administrator of the British War Victims' Fund of Peterborough and district, a guest of the meeting, was presented with a cheque for $25 on behalf of the association by John Troke. Mr. Troke introduced Mr. Mann to the gathering pointing out that through his untiring efforts, about $37,000 has been raised in this district for suffering Britons and that Mr. Mann has accomplished this without one cent of remuneration. The $25 was an amount in excess of what was needed from last month's meeting of the association, said Mr. Troke.

In accepting the cheque, Mr. Mann said that he once was an insurance salesman, in an off-the-record remark, but that was 30 years ago. He thanked the association on behalf of the people of Britain. "It is wonderful to learn of the spirit of unselfishness among people of Britain," said Mr. Mann. He recalled that a parcel of food was sent from Peterborough which, when it reached its destination in the Old Country, was the source of a joint treat for the people who received it and their neighbors.

Marvyn White, district manager for the Manufacturers Life Insurance Company introduced Mr. Berwick, supervisor of field service for the Manufacturer's Life in Toronto. His subject dealt with many cases of selling insurance after which he brought out the lesson to be learned.

Salesmanship Necessary

Mr. Berwick recalled that he called on a Montreal firm to solicit insurance but it was revealed that three other persons had submitted papers on insurance plans. One of those in charge pointed this out to Mr. Berwick and told him he was presenting a verbal program. "I went back again that afternoon; I didn't write a paper but I got the business," he said. "The only reason I went back was because I was desperate to get the business." The lesson to be gained was: "With the good producer, good salesmanship is necessary."

Another man who once had the means, let his insurance go for two years because of the depression. A friend had been trying to get him started again with insurance when the former walked into his office one day and told the agent he had purchased $20,000 insurance from another agent. Both men compared their insurance programs and before the agent was through, his caller had added $35,100 to his insurance because the agent showed him what insurance does, not what it is.

A carpenter had turned away many salesmen because he did not believe in insurance until a certain salesman called on him one day and pointed out to him a plan of providing $1 a day for his wife while other salesmen had talked in terms of thousands of dollars. The carpenter had accepted $7,000 worth of insurance but because the matter had been explained to him in terms of dollars, he accepted it.

"There are two basis on which insurance may be sold and there are many of us belonging to both schools of thought," he said. "There is the practical presentation or means of arising the emotions. The outstanding producer keeps constantly before the prospect the real reason for life insurance — the wife and children. The producer must see insurance from the prospect's point of view, he must build up a reputation for integrity and he does not let outside influences interfere with his own plans."

He compared insurance to the two wheels and mechanism of a bicycle. The wheels are production and conservation. "Keep the wheels well oiled and push hard," said the speaker.

A hearty vote of thanks was moved by Alex Sollitt which was conveyed to Mr. Berwick by George Mackay.

Wants Hitching Post

BOSTON, Feb. 11 (AP)—Manager Walter E. Seaver of the Lenox Hotel, worried by automobile and tire rationing, has prepared for parking problems of the future. "In anticipation of the carriage trade," he petitioned the city street commissioner for permission to place a hitching post near his doorman.

Life Insurance Plays Its Part In War Effort

The Life Underwriters' Association of Peterborough held one of its most successful monthly luncheon meetings in recent times at the Empress Hotel on Tuesday, when H. B. Berwick, supervisor of field service of the Manufacturers' Life Insurance Co., Toronto, was the special speaker.

Prior to this address, which was full of interest to all present, John Troke, a member of the association, presented on its behalf a cheque for $25 to the secretary of the Peterborough and District British War Victims' Fund, which is acknowledged in this day's list for the fund.

Another nice contribution listed today comes in as a result of the proceeds of a free-will offering for the fund by the members present at the banquet at the annual reunion meeting of the Peterborough Lodge of Perfection A. and A. Scottish Rite.

A lady citizen who desires to remain anonymous, sends in $5 which was raised by visitors writing their names on a cast, which unfortunate circumstances had compelled her to use; another example of good for others coming out of one's misfortune.

The girls in The Examiner Office have made an afghan for the express purpose of helping the fund along, and with the assistance of the staff as a whole, tickets are now on sale for a draw on it at 10c each or three for 25c. The afghan is displayed in the windows at Barries Ltd., and 100 per cent of the proceeds of the sale of tickets will come to the fund, as all expenses in connection with the making of it and the printing of the tickets have been taken care of as a contribution to the cause. Tickets may be procured from any member of the staff or at The Examiner office.

Soldier Cases Of Mumps Fill Hospital

An epidemic of mumps at Morrow Park army camp has filled the isolation hospital, Dr. Avison, M.O.H., informed the Board of Health last night.

"Full house" was Dr. Avison's terse description of the present occupation of Queen Mary Hospital. "We have twenty-five patients, and have had to ask the last arrivals to bring their own beds. There are two scarlet fever patients, one measles, one whooping cough pneumonia. Mr. and Mrs. Calvert have taken charge as janitor and cook and are doing very well, but we have to engage a full time maid to help in the emergency."

In his report for January, Dr. Avison included the following observation: "January found us in the midst of an epidemic of mumps which started in December. In January 1941 there was one case, while in January 1942, there was 221 cases reported, and probably before the epidemic is over we shall have had around 400 cases. It will be interesting at the end to analyze them by ages and sex. So far as I know there has been but one adult with complications.

One result of such a widespread epidemic as this is that we can expect several years of relative freedom from disease.

We have fortunately been spared any great number of other diseases. There were two mild cases of scarlet fever last month, two cases of meningitis, both of whom have made good recoveries.

Since I came to Peterborough in November, 1941 there have been five cases of meningitis, and all have recovered. I consider this an excellent tribute to our doctors and nursing service at our Isolation Hospital. Efforts were made, without success, to find any point of contact between these patients. We can, therefore, class them as sporadic rather than epidemic."

Failing 1942 Markers Motorists Are Fined

The first cases this year of motorists driving without 1942 markers were dealth with in traffic court this morning when in written pleas of guilty, Richard Hope, and Joseph Henderson were fined $10 and $2.50 costs for this offence.

Riding a bicycle on the sidewalk, contrary to the city bylaw cost Garnet Lindsay $2 and $1 costs. He entered a written plea of guilty to the charge.

A charge of careless driving against Garnet Patterson was adjourned for a week.

John Moher charged with a similar offence failed to appear and he will be served personally with a summons. The charge was laid by Provincial Constable Price Morris.

Three motorists who entered written pleas of guilty to charges of failing to stop before entering a through street were each fined $2 and costs. They were W. J. Donavan, Lorne Johnston and A. E. Denure.

W. Edwards was assessed a similar fine for a breach of the parking regulations.

Lakefield Man Twice Awarded George Medals

When the history of this war is written the name of Lieut. George Douglas Cook, 29, who made his home in Toronto and Lakefield, should rightfully occupy a leading place, for he is the only Canadian to date who has twice won the coveted George Medal.

An air of mystery surrounds the exploits of Lieut. Cook. According to advices from Ottawa he is engaged in "special work" in the region of the Libya campaign and it is known that since the war started he has visited seven different countries as a member of important missions.

Lieut. Cook won his first George Medal, which is awarded for exceptional bravery and devotion to duty, on July 29, 1941, and when advising his mother of the honor bestowed upon him, implored her not to "go about making a hero of me. I didn't do so very much."

Proud of Son

Mrs. Mary Cook, the mother, of Toronto, said her son is engaged in "some particular branch of the service, not the navy, for he is also working for the army. I don't know what it is he is doing, but I know it must be very dangerous for him to have won the George Medal twice in such a short time. Naturally I am proud of George, but just as naturally I am worried over the work he is doing."

From the outset of his connection with the war, Lieut. Cook's activities have been shrouded in mystery ....even at his enlistment, September 9, 1940. He was working on the design and building of racing dinghies and other 14-foot boats at his place of business in the Kawartha Lake district when he was called to the telephone.

Had To Work Fast

Commanded A. C. Turner, R.C.-N.R., was at the other end of the wire and asked Cook if he would care to accept a naval commission. If he did he would "have to work fast."

Within the hour Cook had resigned from artillery reserve of which he was a member at Peterborough, told his mother to sell his boat designing and building business and was off for Toronto. On arrival there he was immediately sworn in, and six days later was on the high seas en route to a training ship anchored at Brighton, England.

Cook and 34 other Canadians landed in England in the midst of the greatest aerial blitz in the history of the war. It was not long before Cook was warned to prepare himself for immediate duty in the Near East.

Lieut. Cook was educated at Lower Canada School and McGill University, studying mechanical engineering at the latter institution.

Enemy U-Boats In Coastal Waters New Challenge to Canadian Navy Warriors of Grim Atlantic Now Fight At Home As Well As Abroad

With the grim sea war brought to Canada's Atlantic doorway, the staunch men of the Canadian Navy have had to shoulder a new burden. Here an officer, speckled with frozen spray, is shown as he shouts above the gale through his megaphone.

The protection of convoys through the danger zones of the North Atlantic is a cold and hazardous job at best. But these danger zones have extended until they are only a few miles off Canada's shores. Thus the tense watch now begins from the moment the ships leave port. Welcome break in the cold vigils on wind-swept decks comes (inset) when the cook dishes up steaming bowls of hot soup.

Spotting the enemy's prowling U-boats are the keen men who sit at the listening posts of Canada's warships, constantly on the alert. Once a submarine is detected by these delicate devices, the corvettes and destroyers close in for the kill.

Terror of the Hun "Unterseeboote" is the depth charge, now carried to the seas in growing quantities by Canada's expanding fleet of warships. Until peace comes, no one will know how many submarines have been blasted to destruction by these charges. Here one is shown hurling tons of water skyward off the East Coast. These bombs are adjusted to explode at a predetermined depth near enemy U-boat.

Back from the hardships and dangers of the sea, one of Canada's fighting little corvettes lies moored at port, decks and superstructure heavily laden with ice. Flung like a lash by the biting winter wind, the spray freezes where it lands.

Looking for trouble, a speedy little corvette races seaward, dark and grey against the winter skies. These waspy ships are doing superb service in clearing U-boats from Canada's coastal waters. Navy officials are frankly puzzled as to how enemy subs are able to operate in this latitude at this season and suspect development of new "de-icing" apparatus to clear periscopes and hatches.

that "I just intend to watch and wait for a little while."

"It's a little early to predict my future," he added. "I intend to watch closely the Government's action on the plebiscite and the outcome."

Gains Are Shown By Sun Life In All Branches

Gains are shown by the Sun Life of Canada in all important items of the Seventy-First Annual Statement, according to D. T. Diplock, manager of the Company's branch in Central Ontario, including increases in assurances in force, new policies and total assets which are nearly one billion dollars. With the new business showing a strong upward trend throughout the period under review, this leading Canadian Company once again demontrates the significance of life assurance in national economy.

Arthur B. Wood, Sun Life president, in his annual review of the Company's operations gives particular emphasis to the functions of life assurance under war conditons. He declared that every available dollar of policyholders' premium savings, while performing its primary purpose of providing security for the individual and the family is also being applied, together with the investment income of the Company, to the purchase of government loans. The contribution of the life companies to the war effort has been most substantial and must be sustained for as long as is necessary, not only during the war, but afterwards in the time of reconstruction.

The purpose and efficiency of life assurance, Mr. Wood believes, become more evident to the public mind in times of national crisis. This is substantiated by the fact that during the twelve months covered by the Sun Life report, over 187 millions of new business was secured by the company. This sum is an increase of more than 17 million dollars over last year, and brings the total amount of protection for all Sun Life policyholders to almost three billion dollars. By far the greater part of this business is in Canada, United States, Great Britain and British countries, while no less than 96% of the Company's total investments are in these countries. The total war claims since hostilities began two years ago amount to only 2.2% of total death claims. This compares most favorably with the death rate from accidents during peacetime when automobile fatalities alone accounted for about 4% of the total death claims and claims from all accidental causes were about 9% of the total.

Other important figures appearing in the Sun Life's Annual Report are: Premium Income $112,500,000; Investment Income $36,300,000; Total Receipts from all sources $169,-300,000; Payments to policyholders $88,300,000, including nearly $12,500,-000 paid in dividends to policyholders; Total benefits paid since first policy issued, approximately $1,500,-000,000; Over $2,500,000 was paid in taxes by the Company during the year; Surplus and contingency reserves $32,000,000.

The broad diversification of the assets which now stand at 995 million dollars is disclosed by the following classification showing the percentage of total assets under each heading. Government Bonds 25.8%, Municipal Bonds 5.3%, Industrial Bonds 5.0%, Railroad Bonds 2.8%, Public Utility Bonds 19.3% Preferred and Guaranteed Stocks 1.4%, Common Stocks of Industrial and Financial Corporations 10.8%, Common Stocks of Public Utilities 9.04%, Mortgages 5.0%, Real Estate 2.2%, Policy Loans 8.2%, Cash 1.7%, other Assets 3.1%.

Shelve Disunity Is King's Appeal

OTTAWA, Feb. 11—(CP).—Prime Minister Mackenzie King said Tuesday in a statement that electors in four constituencies where by-elections were held "have shown that the Canadian people do not propose to allow bad faith and the broken pledge to be erected into a principle of action in this country."

The Prime Minister said a measure of controversy was inseparable from politics but added: "I appeal to members of all political parties to put an end to the kind of controversy which can lead only to dissension, division and disunity, and to join more unitedly than ever in the task of making the war effort of Canada the utmost of which our country is capable."

I am profoundly grateful to the electors of Quebec East and Welland, Ontario, for the confidence they have expressed in the government's administration of Canada's War Effort, by the return to the House of Commons of the Minister of Justice, Hon. Louis St. Laurent, and the Minister of Labor, Hon. Humphrey Mitchell; also to the electors of Montreal-St. Mary for the return of the government candidate, Mr. Fauteux.

I am also grateful to the electors of York South as well as of Welland for making clear to all Canada the determination of the people to maintain their rights, against high-pressure methods and highly-financed publicty in matters of government.

"A Big Part In It"

TORONTO, Feb. 10 — (CP). — Lt.-Col. George Drew, Ontario Conservative Leader, commenting today on the defeat of Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen in the York South by-election, declared there was no doubt "Liberal headquarters at Ottawa had a big part in the direction of the campaign." Mr. Meighen, Canadian Conservative Leader, was defeated by Joseph Noseworthy, C.C.F. candidate.

Col. Drew declared the "surprising statement" of Prime Minister Mackenzie King on the outcome of the voting "was the best evidence of what really took place."

A VICTORY BOND is the promise of the Dominion of Canada to repay in cash the full face value of the Bond at the time stipulated, with half-yearly interest at the rate of 3% per annum until maturity.

A Victory Bond is the safest investment in Canada. The entire resources of the Dominion stand behind it.

A Victory Bond is an asset more readily converted into cash than any other security.

Mission Circle Meeting Hears of China

"The Bible, Our Guide to Christian Faith and Conduct," was the worship service there at the February meeting of the Jean Wager Mission Circle, held at the home of the president, Mrs. George Martin, Lansdowne street. The opening prayer, led by Mrs. W. Rose, St. James' Auxiliary president, was followed by the scripture lesson, Psalm 19, read by Eleanor Fife. The hymn, "The Heavens Declare Thy Glory," founded on the same Psalm, was appropriate. The prayer of thanksgiving for our Bible, was offered by Connie Wagar.

A beautiful and fitting solo, "Blessed Book, Precious Book," was contributed by Geneva Sedgewick, with Anne Deyell at the piano.

Led by Lilyan Huggins, typical and familiar passages from the Bible were presented by various readers, including Miss Lottie Leggitt, Miss Jessie Martin, Miss Gladys Meredith and Miss Alma Saunders. This service was closed by singing "Break Thou The Bread of Life."

"The Cities of Refuge" was the interesting topic of study taken from the book on China, and given in resume by Anne Deyell. The political, social and religious life in China, under the iron hand of the Dowager, was briefly reviewed.

Following the revolution of 1911, democracy was established, while the year 1916 marked the beginning of a period of civil war when the country was overrun by brigands and robbers. It was then that the Christian schools and hospitals became "Cities of Refuge" and carried on their great work in uplifting Chinese life.

Under the direction of the president, Miss Dorothy Martin, a brief business session was held.

The report of the Christian Stewardship secretary was read by Zetta Wood. The latter was assisted by 11 girls in presenting "The Stewardship Acrostic."

She wore a halo hat of the same material as her gown, trimmed with silver, silver slippers, and carried a bouquet of spring flowers. She was attended by her sister, Miss Alma Cupoli, who wore a similar dress of pink chiffon, embroidered with rhinestones. The best man was Mr. Nelson Davis.

After he ceremony the immediate relatives were entertained at the home of the bride. Later the happy couple left for Windsor. For travelling, Mrs. Bertotti wore a printed silk dress with black accessories and a black cloth coat trimmed with silver fox. Mr. and Mrs. Bertotti will reside in Detroit.

The bias side sections give it that smooth-as-satin fit over the hips (there are no side seams) yet the straight front panel keeps the slip from riding up. Make one slip in pastel crepe for spring frocks, another in bright taffeta for your suit, another with shadow panels back and front for a sheer frock. Follow the clever Sew Chart. . . . Instructions are included too, for whipping on a bit of dainty lace to trim the bodice.

STUDY OWN QUALIFICATIONS IN CONTEMPLATING MARRIAGE

Ask Yourself If You Will Make a Good Husband or Wife and Make the Correction.

Judging from the innumerable communications on the subject that I receive, when the average man and woman contemplate matrimony they do not take into consideration their own qualifications for the holy estate, but are concerned only with those of the party of the other part. They do not ask: Will I make a good husband or wife? But only: Will Mary or John suit ME and make ME happy? They entirely ignore what is the most important factor in making marriage a success, and that is the individual's fitness for it, for there are many men and women who should never marry simply because marriage is not their vocation. You have to have a talent for matrimony as for anything else, to make a go of it, and they make their wives and husbands miserable even though they were wed to pin-feathered angels. No philanderer, would be disatisfied and unhappy and for instance, should ever marry, because he was born with an irresistible tendency that he cannot control to flirt with every pretty woman he sees. Every fluttering petticoat will always be a signal to him to get up and follow. Neither age, nor rheumatism, nor marriage, nor breach of promise suits, nor alimony, nor any other affliction will halt him in the love chase. He will always be faithful to the feminine sex as a whole as long as it is under thirty, but no one woman can hold him for he will always love, not wisely, but too many.

No man who has a wandering foot should marry. There are men who can never be house-broken. They will always hear the call of the wild and answer it. No matter how the wife of such a one pets him or feeds him, or how comfortable she makes him, she can never turn him into a fireside companion. He will always think of his home as a dog house and his wife as his keeper. And as soon as he has gobbled his dinner he will put on his hat and go downtown to spend the evening with the boys, leaving her to her lonesome, with no more exciting diversion than watching the baby sleep.

Tightwads Should Be Shunned

No tightwad should ever marry, or his pocketbook will always be closer to his heart than his family. He will always figure the cost of marriage in dollars and cents and decide it isn't worth the price. He will always feel that his wife gypped him by not growing her own fine feathers instead of buying them, and that if she was any account at all she would be able to conjure good meals out of the air instead of running up bills with the grocer and the butcher.

He will begrudge his babies their certified milk, and the first of the month when the bills come in will be as awful as the Day of Judgment to his family. The only woman whom the tightwad ever really loves and cherishes and gets any pleasure out of is the lady on the dollar, and he makes a mistake when he divorces himself from her, as he is bound to do if he marries.

St. James' Y.P.U.

St. James' Young People's Union was the guest of the Knox group last evening. The meeting was held in the form of a Valentine party. Hearts, cut in half, were given to each member. To choose partners, the halves were matched.

Gladys Gerard then led the group in games. A fireside sing-song completed a varied and interesting program.

Refreshments were served, and the evening closed with the worship service and taps.

On Sunday, after the evening service, a fireside meeting will be held at the home of Miss Marion Williamson, 210 Reid street.

Kings Row . . . .

By HENRY BELLAMANN

BOOK I

CHAPTER I

Spring came late in the year 1890, so it came more violently, and the fulness of its burgeoning heightened the seasonal disturbance that made unquiet in the blood.

On this particular day, the 28th of April, the vast sky seemed vaster than ever—wider, bluer, higher. Continents of white clouds moved slowly from west to east, casting immense drifts of blue over the landscape which seemed alternately to expand and to shrink as sunlight and shadow followed in deliberate procession.

The roads were like the strands of a gigantic web, weaving and knitting closer and closer until they reached a center—Kings Row, the county seat. "A good, clean town. A good town to live in, and a good place to raise your children."

In the sagging center of this web of roads Kings Row presented an attractive picture as one drove in from the country. Elms, oaks, and maple arose in billowsof early summer green. The white steeple of the Methodist church, the gilt weather vane of the Baptist, and the slender slate-covered spire of the Presbyterian thrust high. In the center arose the glistening dome of the courthouse. A few mansard roofs and an occasional turret broke through the leaves. Outside the comfortable shade a straggle of unconsidered Negro shacks and tumble-down houses of poor whites lay like back yard debris.

In the first glimpse of the town, if one happened to approach it from the west, one saw the public school building—Kings Row's special pride. It stood on a rise of ground and looked down on Town Creek, where that noisy little stream bent itself around the west and south of the city limits. On an adjoining rise stood Aberdeen College, the Presbyterian school for boys.

The old brick sidewalks, uneven after many years, were mossy and cool under the shade trees. The houses stood back from the street, and the lawns were dotted with flower beds which would shortly glow with verbenas, and "foliage plants."

To the east of town the State Asylum for the Insane expanded its many wings through ample grounds. At night, with its hundreds of windows gleaming through the high trees, it had a palatial and festive air.

Kings Row was no frontier town with raw newness upon it. It had successfully simulated the mellowness and established ways of older towns east and south—towns remembered in the affections of the early builders.

A mid-afternoon drowsiness lay over Kings Row. Here and there in the residential sections some belated gardeners raked leaves and burned heaps of dead vines, the columns of blue smoke rising straight, and whitening as they thinned and drifted.

In the courthouse yard, a few men sat under the trees with chairs tilted back. Some, declaring that summer had come and that such heat was unseasonable, had taken off their coats.

"It's not healthy," they declared. "There'll be a lot of sickness if this keeps up."

A lumber wagon made its deliberate way along West Street. Streets had borne names for years in Kings Row, but it was only lately that people had begun using them. Miles Jackson, editor of The Gazette, had started the fashion in the weekly paper. Some thought it sounded too pretentious for a town of 4000 people.

"Kings Row's trying to be tony, like Fielding."

"It's as food as Fielding any day."

"Yes, but Fielding's a lot bigger."

"Don't make no difference."

The lumber wagon had reached the hill where the road sloped down to the bridge across Town Creek. The driver awoke from pleasant meditations as the heavy load gained unwonted speed on the descent. He jerked the lines. "Whoa, where you think you're goin'?"

His voice carried easily through the open windows of the schoolroom where Miss Sally Venable held sway over some 60 children ranging in age from 10 to 14. Several boys giggled.

Miss Sally passed a hand over her face and smoothed away the derisive smile that lurked in her deeply seamed features. She sank back in her chair and shut out the sound of Lizzie Morris' mincing pronunciation. Her prominent brown eyes roved the room, resting for brief instants on first one face and then another. Her charges were intent on the story and remained unaware of her quick scrutinies.

Sally liked her children and she had been teaching long enough to see a generation grow up. She knew practically everybody. She knew the homes of these children, and their present fortunes, so she found interest in imagining thier probable destinies.

She studied Cassandra Tower, the prettiest girl in town. Boys were beginning to be interested in Cassandra. Only yesterday Miss Venable had noticed a legend chalked on the walk: "Drake McHugh loves Cassandra Tower."

Miss Venable grinned. Those inscriptions multiplied in the spring of the year.

"Yes," she agreed, "Drake McHugh would be in love with Cassandra."

Drake was watching Cassandra now, his long faun eyes glinting a little under his brows that grew shaggily together over the bridge of his arched nose. Drake, robust, deep-chested, hair always falling into his eyes. "A regular boy," most people said, but Sally Venable was not so sure of that. He waso pen and frank, but his mouth was a trifle loose for so young a boy. It was likely to go slack and sensual in a few years, unless—

Drake gave up his fruitless ogling of Cassandra Tower. That lovely creature was far away on an island with the Swiss Robinsons. Cassandra's oval face remained as ivory-cool and pale as always, although her eyes were excited. Odd eyes—very cold.

She always had that startled look, distended pupils, a strained look about her nostrils, her thin curved lips compressed.

Drake McHugh leaned forward and whispered something to Parris Mitchell who occupied the desk in front of him. Parris gave an impatient wriggle but glanced quickly at Cassandra. A slight flush warmed his downy face.

Miss Venable made a slight sound—tch! tch! but no one heard her.

Parris Mitchell was her pet. The boy was different in every way. Perhaps it was because he lived with that curious foreign grandmother, Madame von Eln. Dr. Alex Berdorff, pastor of the German Lutheran church, said that Parris spoke French and German better than he did English.

He looked foreign, she thought. Stocky and broad-shouldered. Vitality showed in his warm coloring and the heavy eyebrows arched high over large hazel eyes. A slight shadow showed on his upper lip, although he was only 12. He had a quickness of motion that bespoke Latin blood. That rippling motion of his hands, for example. He was the only boy in Kings Row who studied music.

Randy Monaghan, on the other side of Parris, had her attention derailed by the movements of the two boys. She leaned forward and looked under Cassandra's desk. A grin, shrewd and a little coarse, widened her mouth. Randy was common, but with a frank and engaging commonness.

She made a low sibilant sound. Both Drake and Parris looked back. Thrusting her knee from under the desk, she snapped a red elastic garter and grinned again.

Miss Venable drew in her chin and screwed her head to one side to look at the gold chatelaine watch she wore pinned to her blouse. Thank heaven, only 10 minutes more and she could go home and change to cooler clothes.

The hands of Miss Venable's watch pointed to 4. She tapped on the desk, and instantly the room buzzed.

"Quiet, quiet! Clear your desks."

Hats were distributed quickly by boys and girls who were appointed weekly to this privilege as a reward for good behavior. Miss Venable often wondered why it was considered a privilege.

Peyton Graves, a quiet boy in school, but a noisy one outside, slapped each hat down on the desk in front of its owner as he moved rapidly up the aisle. "Here's your louse-cage," he remarked softly to each one.

"Position!"

The children sat upright.

"Turn!"

Heels clomped into the aisles.

"Rise!"

Scuffling and scraping of feet.

"Pass!"

Their departure was thunderous.

Miss Venable fetched a long tremulous breath of relief. She walked to the window and watched the dispersing crowd. In the hall she could hear the hollow thumping of the upper grades descending the stairs. Shouts of the boys mingled with the shrill chatter of the girls.

Miss Venable was sometimes given to half-philosophical meditations on life and society as she saw it through her pupils. The prescribed social lines of the town fell upon them the moment they left the democracy of the classroom. The children of rich parents, the "nice" children, the poor children, and the children who rested under the fatal classification defined by other children as "tacky"—they were all like so many helpless pieces thrown out from a common center by some centrifugal force that sent them severally and separately on predestined ways. Already their feet were set on roads that led them farther and farther apart. "It's strange," she thought, "how quickly they feel it themselves, and how effectively it works. They seem to know it and to accept it. I guess that's a mercy."

Sleigh Ride Popular

CAMPBELLFORD, Feb. 11 (ENS)—Well over forty members of St. John's Y.P.U. were on hand for the annual sleigh ride held Monday evening, and with plenty of snow and ideal weather the affair is said to have topped all former occassions of this type in recent years. The entire group piled into two sleighs provided by Melville McKeown and Charles Bedford and in these they completed a circuit down around the canal before returning to the Sunday School Parlors for games and refreshments. The games were arranged by Leo Coveney and Arnold Bates and the evening was voted a complete success, since unlike young people's groups throughout the township, they were able to carry on their activities as arranged, while groups at Tabernacle and Burnbrae churches were forced to postpone their meetings till roads were cleared of the heavy week-end snow.

More Dance Partners

CAMPBELLFORD, Feb. 11 (ENS)—As a fitting gesture to a sister organization of Christ Church, members of the Men's Club through their Vice-president Victor Cubitt have extended an invitation to the parsih guild to be their guests at a Valentine dance they have arranged for February 14. This was announced at the regular meeting held Monday. According to a spokesman for the group club members are showing an increasing interest in the game of cribbage and some have become so enthusiastic that they are considering the possibilities of a tourney in the near future.

Hero Of The Storm

TORONTO, Feb. 11—(CP).—Arthur Cook, 21 year old employee of the National Steel Car Company of nearby Malton, Ont., was acclaimed a hero Monday by motorists snowbound all last night near Malton. He toiled three times through massive snow drifts to take coffee from the Trans-Canada Air Lines administration headquarters at Malton to 17 persons snowbound and then went back on a fourth jaunt for milk when he discovered a 21-months-old baby was among them.

Soldier Writes Thanks For Scarf

HASTINGS, Feb. 11 — (ENS).—Hundreds of knitted articles, many with the names of the knitters attached, have been sent to headquarters in Toronto, through the Hastings Red Cross Society, and many have wondered if any of our boys receive the articles knitted. However, it is only recently that the first letter of acknowledgment and appreciation has been received.

The letter sent on January 1 to Mrs. H. Steckenreiter (nee Pearl Taylor) from L.-Cpl. Ernie Seel, K47874, C Company, Fifth Armored Division, Canadian Army Overseas, acknowledged the receipt of a scarf knitted by Mrs. Steckenreiter. The Canadian soldier, formerly of Camp Borden has only been overseas two months, and said:

"Thanks ever so much for the scarf I received. It makes a much better gift when you know where it comes from and have a chance to thank the sender. I wear it every day and sure appreciate it, as it is so damp and chilly in the early morning when we are on parade."

Letters such as these give the knitters an inspiration to knit more when they know that even some of our own Canadian boys overseas benefit through the Red Cross here.

The presidents of the various missionary societies of the Presbyterian, Anglican, and United Churches have arranged to hold the annual World Day of Prayer in St. George's Anglican Church on Friday, February 20. Mrs. A. C. Herbert will deliver a special message for the day.

COBOURG, Feb. 11 (ENS) — One of Cobourg's well known veterans of the last war is now home on leave. A member of the Veterans' Guard, he is Pte. William Kewin. Pte. Kewin is the son of the late Mr. J. Kewin and Mrs. Kewin of Cobourg.

Nickel Bingo Party Planned By Kinsmen

COBOURG, Feb. 11 (ENS)—The Kinsmen Club will stage another bi-monthly bingo Thursday night in the market building. This bingo like the last two will be of the "nickle" variety, and they have been found to be more successful than usual ten cent games. All profits are going to the Milk for Britain Fund, the war project being sponsored by the service club with the object of sending a quantity of milk for the ten million British children.

Defences Improved

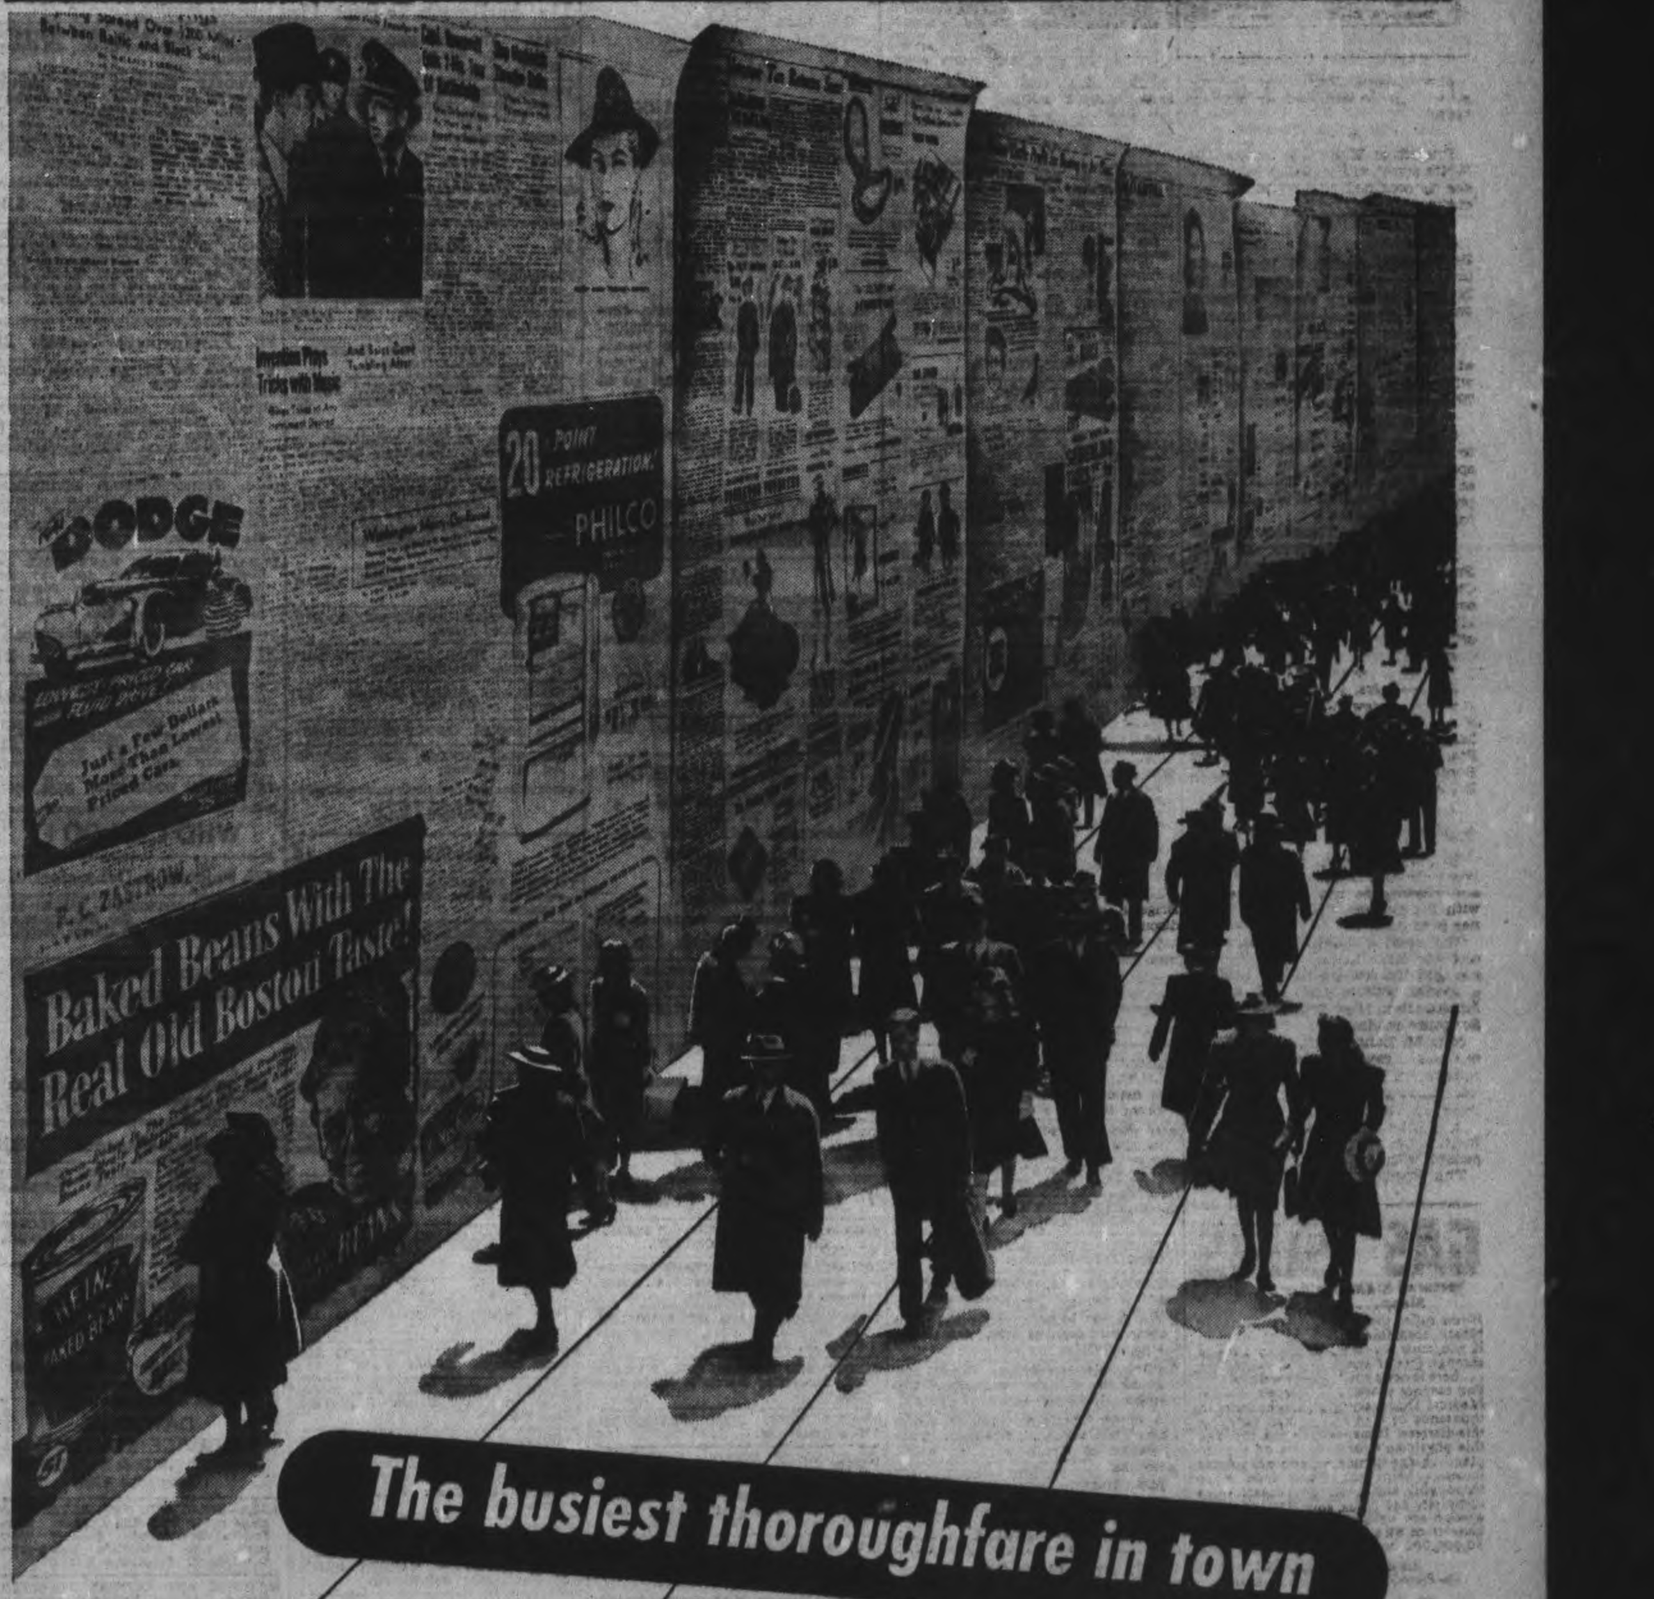
CAPE TOWN, Feb. 11—(Delayed)—(CP). — Col. A. H. Keith Jopp, Director of South Africa's Coastal and Anti-aircraft Artillery, said in a broadcast to-night that South Africa's coastal defences had been considerably improved and that important war material for this purpose had arrived.

13 Overseas Men Heard On Radio

Thirteen Peterborough men serving with the Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry Highlanders overseas were heard on the radio broadcast at midnight on Tuesday, and the messages came through perfectly. through perfectly.

The messages were on a record which had been made early in December. On Monday night, at midnight, 61 Peterborough and district men were heard, but the balance was in favor of the Cornwall district on Tuesday night.

Major Jim Turnbull, former Utilities employee, spoke to his many friends here, mentioning Ross Dobbin, and the boys of the Royal Arthur Lodge; C.S.M. Wilbert Westran, formerly in the switchgear department of the C.G.E., sent a message to his wife and family. Others head on the list included Drummer A. G. Parnell, Drummer Doug. Taylor of Peterborough; L/Cpl. J. Smith, Pte. Alex Townsley, Pte. W. A. Cameron, Bobcaygeon; Pte. John H. Lavery, Corp. A. J. Minicola, Pte. Peter P. Hayward, Cobourg, Pte. Michael Caravaggie, Pte. Michael Gahagon, Pte. Stan. R. Webb. Message from Corp. Sam. Clarke, former Empress Hotel employee, and Pte. Louis Hambly were read by the padre of the regiment, Capt. the Rev. R. T. F. Brain, both boys being away on leave.



Lined with bright, exciting windows freshly stocked with today's news, the newspaper is the busiest thoroughfare in town . . . busier today than ever before.

In some windows you find news of the home town, the nation, and the rest of the world. In some you find entertainment, advice, interpretation. In others you find news of the goods and services offered by manufacturers and retailers.

Every day in the week, every week in the year, you and your family travel this busy street, looking for things that interest you . . . and finding them in both the news and advertising windows.

Practically everybody in every community walks along this thoroughfare of news and advertising every day . . . simply because the newspaper is indispensable to everybody everywhere. That's why the 37,000,000 families in the United States and Canada buy, and read, over 43,300,000 newspapers every weekday . . . over 33,000,000 newspapers every Sunday.

And because everybody is so intensely interested in the contents of the newspaper, it's easy to understand why advertisers, national and local, find newspaper space the most effective medium with which to tell their story and sell their goods.

IN MEMORIAM

KIRK.—In loving memory of Joseph Kirk, who passed away one year ago today.

Time speeds on, one year has passed
Since death its gloom, its shadows cast
Within our home, where all seemed bright,
And took from us a shining light.
We miss that light, and ever will,
His vacant place there is none to fill.
Down here we mourn, but not in vain,
For up in Heaven we will meet again.

THE STARS SAY . . . .

by GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Thursday, February 12

This day's astral auguries seem to stimulate a determined attempt to tackle big propositions with might and main, in an effort to annihilate a condition of crystallization, impediment, opposition and a want of co-operation all along the line. While the ambitions, the spirit of initiative and boldness, may be backed up by some very practical ideas, still it might be wise to continue to postpone.

Those whose birthday it is may be imbued with a spirit of initiative, courage and daring, with determination to crash through all manner of opposing forces—to break down opposition, obstruction and perhaps duplicity by main strength—but this effort is not likely to vanquish antagonisms.

A child born on this day should have much talent, initiative, courage and resolution, but may encounter overwhelming obstacles to put over its ambitious programs.

No man who was reared Mama's pet should ever marry, because marriage is bound to be a bitter disappointment and disillusion to him. By no possible chance would he get a wife who has either the desire or ability to cater to his every whim, or who possesses Mama's technique as a spoiler.

Won't Play Second Fiddle

The man who is married to his business commits bigamy when he takes on a flesh and blood wife and is punished for his crime by spending the balance of his life trying to appease, a green-eyed woman who is as jealous of his "old office" as she is of his blonde stenographer. For no wife likes to run second to a law book or a green grocery and know that the first place in her husband's heart is occupied by canned goods, and that nothing really gives him a thrill but the rise and fall of the stock market.

An egotist should never marry, because nothing so deflates one's vanity as matrimony. No man has any idea of what a poor, weak, miserable creature he is until his wife begins to criticise his faults. No matter how much a man may strut abroad, he walks humbly on his own hearthstone.

Nor is there any place in marriage in which the head of the house can indulge himself in selfishness, for even if his wife is willing to sacrifice herself for him the children are not, and by the time he has paid for having their adenoids out, and their sport cars, and a college education, and gotten them out of scrapes, and listened to them tell him how old-fashioned all of his ideas are, he is so humble he is ready to call a worm of the dust Mister when he meets him in the road.

So, these things being true, it behooves every man to study his own qualifications for marriage before he asks a girl the fatal question.

Three Times Married Enough

Dear Dorothy Dix: I am a woman 52 years old, have been married three times and had no success with any of them. I have a married daughter with a family. Should I go to live with her? Or should I make another marriage and establish my own home? Or should I still travel and work as I go? I am of an independent nature—I. M.

Answer—If you made three bad picks of husbands, it doesn't look as if you were good matrimonial guesser, so I should think you would hesitate to try a fourth venture. However, maybe your luck would turn, but do be careful and look the candidate over well before you decide.

As you are of an independent nature, I do not think you would be happy living in your daughter's home, for in-laws and grand-children are hard to live with and do not take kindly to bossing.

My guess is that of the three choices you will find more happiness in traveling and working as you go. That will give you independence, your own money and variety. And none of these are to be desposed at your age.

Piano Learned by Short-Cut Method

Pianist is Appreciated Today

Gay piano music certainly helps in these tense times! "The girl who played so well that night—" isn't forgotten.

If you've wanted for years to learn the piano, do it now! You can quickly teach yourself.

You stand a chart of the piano keyboard behind the real keyboard and, at your very first glance, you can see which piano keys correspond to which notes.

How? The paper keyboard has a staff of written notes with it—A with an arrow pointing to the A key, and so on!

In this way you quickly learn to read music and you can quickly learn a lot of popular pieces, too, a short-cut way. Play the melody with your right hand, simple chords with your left.

In learning these chords, your chart helps again. Its keys are numbered and you're shown by number which keys to play for each chord. See our diagram.

Our 24-page instruction book has life-size, numbered keyboard chart with easy step-by-step piano lessons. Explains elements of music, gives table of chords, three pieces for practise.

For your copy of "Quick Course in Piano Playing" send 15 sents in coins or stamps to the Examiner, Home Service, Peterborough. Be sure to write plainly your name, address, and the name of instruction book.

THE ENEMY MAY HELP

SOMETIMES the best contract for your side would not be apparent if your opponents kept quiet. But when they start to bid they may give you a chance to tell your partner something, or may help him to tell you something of importance. By piecing together the various messages flashed, you may be able to figure out that a No Trump game would be a good idea.

Vulnerability was one factor in that final bid, made by John E. Simon, great St. Louis player, in a rubber game at the Cavendish club in New York. He reckoned, and rightly, that the set of 3-Spades probably would not be as valuable as a probable game with his side vulnerable, though his partner's double of that bid was necessary to let him know a No Trump try would be sound.

Reckoning that the spades were probably bunched against his side and the hearts not, West led his partner's secondly bid suit, the heart 10. East took it with the K and switched to the club 9, the 10 and J covering and Mr. Simon ducking in dummy, to lure a return to his combination tenace, or else a heart, either of which would build the game trick for him. West fired back the heart 5 to the K, dummy discarding the diamond 8, and East led his club 8, bringing the Q, K, and A.

Then came a beautiful double squeze for an extra trick. The diamond A, 10 to the K, heart Q for a toss of the diamond 9, the diamond 7 and diamond 6 set it up. When the 5 was led, declarer's hand also held the club 3, spade J and heart 7, dummy the three spades and club 6. West had to hold his club 7 to guard against the club 6, so threw one of his three remaining spades, whereupon the club 6 was thrown from dummy. Now East was squeezed. He needed his heart J to guard against the 7, so threw one of his three remaining spades, whereupon the dummy's spades took the last three tricks.

Shortage Of Houses

TORONTO, Feb. 11 (CP)—A housing shortage is indicated in Toronto by a reduction in the number of vacant houses and an upswing in real estate transactions during 1941. Assessment Commissioner George Farley reported to the city council today. Commissioner Farley said his figures were based on the Jan. 1 to July 31, 1941, assessment statistics and that the situation had become "more acute" since that date.

Rooms In Ottawa Vacant House Starts Stampede

(By ALAN RANDAL.)

OTTAWA, Feb. 11—(CP).—There are rooms to be rented in this jam-packed capital, and room and board if wanted, but a mere whisper of a house or apartment to let is apt to start a renters' stampede.

Nobody goes to rental agents any more. It's no use. The city engineer is a better bet because he knows who is building what and where.

Ottawa never had so many people before. Since the war started they have flocked to town to jobs on this or that branch of the war effort. Colonels are a dime a dozen on the downtown streets, and the town's two classes are those people who have a home and those who are looking for one.

Since war started 500 houses have been built. Now there are 50 buildings and the city engineer says people are eager to rent as soon as they see a foundation started.

Some nearly weep when he tells them one building under construction is not to be an apartment house but a biscuit warehouse. He's pestered about this project every day and people just don't want to believe him.

"A vacant house?" said one of the more prominent realtors. "They just don't exist."

That is not quite the case. The week-end papers lis d three houses for rent—one of them half an hour's travelling time from Ottawa. Forty-two people advertised for a house or an apartment.

It doesn't much matter what kind of house it is. Even with fleas it will be rented—and quickly.

Members of parliament who came to town late in January got settled with little difficulty, however. The House of Commons staff reported most members usually return to the place they occupied during their first session. This session only 10 members took advantage of the sergeant-at-arms' list of places where they could find lodgings.

Moore Attacks Plebiscite Sees Trouble

(By C. R. BLACKBURN.)

OTTAWA, Feb. 11—(CP). — The more Liberals were on record today against the proposed conscription plebiscite, raising to nine the number of government supporters who have expressed objection to it during the Throne speech debate in the House of Commons.

The latest anti-plebiscite Liberals were W. H. Moore (Lib. Ontario) and Wilfrid Lacroix (Lib. Quebec-Montmorency.) They spoke to a House which showed more interest in the result of yesterday's four by-elections than in its own proceedings.

Order was cast to the winds when, after the results became known, Prime Minister King entered the Chamber.

Desks were pounded by a wildly-cheering Liberal majority for nearly two minutes as the Prime Minister, smiling broadly, came down from the lobby to his seat. He remained only a few minutes.

The only reference to the elections in any of the speeches came from Olaf Hanson (Lib. Skeena) who said the present Conservative House leader, Hon. R. B. Hanson, had dooe a good job and could carry on as well as anybody the party could get.

Mr. Hanson, whose constituency includes a large stretch of the west coast, said the Japanese should all be moved away from the coast. He urged construction of the Alaska highway as a military necessity.

Mr. King announced the government has agreed to the appointments of ministers in Ottawa to represent Poland, Norway and Yugoslavia and is considering an application from Greece for the establishment of a minister here. All four countries are occupied by the enemy but have governments carrying on outside their own borders. Mr. King said appointments of reciprocal Canadian ministers would remain in abeyance until after the war.

Must Aid Others

Canada, with less than 12,000,000 people, could not hope to defend itself against invasion and would have to depend upon other countries for help, said Mr. Moore.

But Canada could not expect such assistance unless the Dominion were ready to give similar aid to other countries. The plebiscite was "packed with explosive material" and had already set family against family and class against class.

Canada was already pledged to total war effort but how could Canada keep that pledge if the answer to the plebiscite were negative, Mr. Moore asked.

Mr. Moore did not say how he would vote on the plebiscite, but Mr. Lacroix was more outspoken. He said he would vote against the motion for adoption of the throne speech in which the plebiscite proposal was announced, and would urge electors in his Quebec constituency to vote against releasing the government from its past pledges against conscription for overseas service.

Mr. Lacroix also expressed opposition to the proposed gift of $1,000,000,000 worth of supplies to Great Britain and declared Canada's effort should be directed to making the Dominion safe from attack.

Support for the plebiscite came from Mrs. Cora Casselman (Lib. Edmonton East), R. W. Mayhew (Lib. Victoria) and George Ross (Lib. Calgary East), but it was attacked by C. E. Johnston (C.C.F. Bow River) who said it was the "greatest disgrace" ever visited upon Canada.

Scores Administration.

Mr. Moore, whose address was the feature of yesterday's debate, said the plebiscite was "packed with explosive" and had already brought disunity; but the main attack on the administration was aimed against the exercise of government by order-in-council.

He said he had opposed national government in 1940, but now felt he had escaped from that "only to fall into the deep blue sea of order-in-councildom." It was time for a parliamentary review of the changes in Canada's political structure—changes which he said had reminded him of those which have occurred in the political structure of Italy under Fascism.

He said the assumption of power to legislate by order-in-council in certain matters had always been conceded to the executive body. But, he said, changes in the relation of the executive to the legislature in Fascist Italy had involved a structural change in the system of government.

"Structural change came in Italy," he said. "It has come to Canada, it is coming everywhere with the quantity and quality of the measures."

He expressed amazement that such a broad measure as that establishing general price control in Canada should be put into effect by order-in-council instead of by parliament.

A Costly Setup.

Canada was probably "paying more people for making its laws than any country in the world," with its provincial and federal parliaments, and the executive council which was doing the governing. Yet, he said, the Canadian parliament now was engaged in "the bare formality of ratification."

Of the non-conscription pledges of the government from which release is to be sought in the plebiscite Mr. Moore said they were given "in disregard of parliamentary government" and without consulting the people for their views.

Much of the information upon which to base a decision as to whether or not the government should be released from its pledges was of a nature which could not be made public.

"A full, honest expression of views of the people is impossible without knowledge of the situation which cannot be given to the people," Mr. Moore declared.

A. W. Neill (Ind., Comox-Alberni) opposed the plebiscite and said Prime Minister Mackenzie King could win a high place in history if he rished bringing in an immediate conscription measure. SCuch a measure, Mr. Neill said, might be the balance which would win the war.

Social Security Measure

Mr. Ross advocated establishment of a social security measure with employees, employers and the state contributing to guarantee compensation for sickness, accident and incapacity from old age. He also urged that the cost-of-living bonus be extended to old age pensioners.

Mr. Neill described the plebiscite as "political strategy." Its results would have no binding effect upon anybody, he said.

He urged that conscription be made the justification for formation of a Union Government, expressing belief no one political party should be "crucified" because of the necessity of taking this step.

Mr. Johnston denounced the plebiscite as "disgraceful and humiliating." He said there was much talk about all-out war effort these days, but all members in the House except the Social Credit party had voted total war in 1939.

He was referring to a Social Credit amendment to the address in 1939 after the outbreak of war, advocating conscription of wealth and industry. He said it cost his group seven members.

Percy Black (Con., Cumberland), also condemned the plebiscite as a policy which would "give comfort to our enemies and humiliate our friends."

Mr. Black forecast that not more than 25 per cent of the electorate would vote on the plebiscite question, and he pictured the effect upon friends as well as enemies if the result should be a refusal by the people to release the Government from its pledges.

Bancroft Play Nets $100 For War Workers

BANCROFT Feb. 11 — (ENS). —The Young People of St. Paul's United Church of Bancroft sponsored the play entitled "Lena Rivers" on Wednesday evening in the Community Hall, Bancroft, and played to a capacity crowd. There were over four hundred admissions sold, netting over one hundred dollars, which amount will be used to repaint the local church this spring.

During one of the play intermissions Harold Skuce auctioned two quilts for the War Workers. Charles Gray and Miss Ann Collins were the high bidders. These bidders in turn returned their purchases to the auctioneer for re-auction, which were then sold to Mrs. L. Rupert and W. A. Davy. Nineteen dollars was realized from the sale of the quilts, which boosted the War Workers' pot for the boys who are overseas.

Beaver To Head Pooling With US

LONDON, Feb. 11—(CP).—Lord Beaverbrook, Britain's newly-appointed Minister of Production, will represent Britain in various pooling arrangements with the United States, Prime Minister Churchill announced today.

The new post, to which Lord Beaverbrook was shifted from the Ministry of Supply, he said, corresponds to that held by Donald M. Nelson, head of the United States War Production Board, and in it he will exercise general supervision over supply departments and shipbuilding and "concert and co-ordinate all their actions."

All labor questions, it was added, will be settled between the Minister of Labor, Ernest Bevin, and the new Minister of Production, Lord Beaverbrook.

To the question whether Lord Beaverbrook would spend more of his time in Britain now, he replied that no such assurance could be given.

Rotary Observes China Day In Campbellford

CAMPBELLFORD, Feb. 11. — (ENS).—Rotarians observed China Day on Monday when local Chinese were guests at the club's weekly luncheon held at Woodlawn Inn. In honor of the occasion which was designed as a tribute to our Allies against the Japanese, President Percy Denyes arranged to have as guest speaker Mrs. James Haines, a medical worker who spent three years in Szechwan Province. Although Mrs. Haines returned to Canada before the so-called "China incident," her association with them developed in her mind a deep respect for the great stamina of these people whose culture dates back more than 3,000 years and whose legendery history extends as far as the year 2,000 B.C.

Great indeed was the tribute paid by Mrs. Haines to the Chinese leader, Chiang Kai-Shek, who has not only succeeded as a military leader but has united China as never before. The speaker held the former lack of advance was due largely to the inaccessability of China. Its people had appeared to remain little changed through the centuries but with the introduction of western civilization—partially a result of many Chinese being educated abroad—progress has been comparatively rapid. The feeling between the Chinese and westerner, the speaker felt, was mutually helpful. Already a great foundation for family life has been handed down through the ages and they are consequently recognized as a race of people with great loyalty to one another. If given equal opportunity Mrs. Haines was of the opinion they would develop more rapidly than any other civilization.

At the conclusion of her address Rotarian Alex MacColl moved a vote of thanks to the speaker.

Jap Push On Burma Road Smashed

RANGOON, Burma, Feb. 12 (CP)—The defenders of Burma and the vital Burma Road have smashed a Japanese attempt to cross the Salween River in the Paan area, 40 miles upstream, British headquarters announced tonight. "After heavy fighting, the enemy attack on our positions in the Paan area was successfully defeated and the situation now is much quieter," said the communique.

"The enemy appear to have temporarily abandoned their operations in that area. Our casualties are known to have been slight."

In the recent fighting at Martaban, across the Gulf of Martaban from Rangoon, the sea gateway to the Burma Road, the King's Own Yorkshire Light Infantry distinguished itself in a bayonet charge against the Japanese the communique said.

Martaban was lost but before the British retreat the Yorkshire troops fought to close quarters with the foe and then charged with fixed bayonets.

"The enemy fled, throwing away their weapons and suffering considerable casualties," the communique said.

British troops defending the railroad which curves north and westward around the gulf head toward this .ital port were endangered between Martaban and much-bombed Thaton, the first railroad station to the north. Martaban is 80 miles by air from Rangoon across the gulf and 140 miles by rail around it.

Indians Stick To Positions.

The Japanese also were attempting to cross the S lween upstream at Paan, on the east bank. The communique said the situation there was critical although British forces had counter-attacked and their positions were believed still to be intact.

Gurkha and Rajput fighters were reported stubbornly holding forward positions despite enemy infiltrations around their flanks west of the Salween and at some points they were said to have attacked.

Against the abundance of small Japanese boats for the crossing north and south of Martaban, British forces were hampered by a lack of roads for swift manoeuvring and the necessity of protecting the one roadway northward to avoid being trapped between these two forces.

Yet, concealed British machine-gunners made the enemy pay dearly to force the narrow pass through the hilly jungle east of Martaban and land in strength on the gulf side to the west.

(In London, it was predicted the Battle of Burma would develop into a fierce, full-scale struggle, but that it would be only a warm-up for a subsequent offensive against India

Hepburn Sees Invasion Via Prairies

Japan After Dominion To Tie U.S. Hands, 'Attack In 3 Months'

TORONTO, Feb. 12.—(CP)—Premier Hepburn, addressing the annual convention of the Ontario Agricultural Council, said today he believed it is possible that Japan will invade Canada in three months.

"They will come down the Prairie side and not the Pacific," he said without elaboration.

The Premier said the Japanese, as a result of their successes since the start of the war, would seek to establish themselves in Canada so as to block the United the United States from retaliating on Japan itself. The Premier said the Americans were the only people feared by the Japanese.

"There are about 1,000,000 land-hungry people in the east, directed by a people with plenty between the ears, and they have their eye on Australia, New Zealand and Canada.

"Any illusions as to the Japs' strength and fighting capacity have now been dissipated," the Premier continued.

He said he had been criticized at Ottawa because he had remarked the United States navy "is in hiding."

Afraid Of The Facts.

"The trouble is that we can't face the facts," Mr. Hepburn said. "The Japanese have a much better navy

Plan Proxy Vote For Troops Away

TORONTO, Feb. 12 (CP)—Debate on the far-reaching active service voters' bill begins in the Ontario Legislature today when Attorney-General Gordon Conant moves second reading of the measure.

The bill, which facilitates the exercising of the right of franchise by all Ontario members of the armed forces irrespective of age or where stationed, was given first reading yesterday.

Mr. Conant introduced the measure right after the Lieutenant-Governor, Hon. Albert Matthews, finished reading the speech from the throne—a speech that forecast only a minimum of legislation.

In a deviation from the customary routine of embarking on the throne speech debate almost immediately, Premier Hepburn informed the House Mr. Conant's bill would be proceeded with today. The attorney-general, he said, would be in Ottawa Friday conferring with Dominion authorities on the final phase of transferring provincial taxing rights for the duration of the war.

OTTAWA, Feb. 12—(CP).—Members of the Conservative party in the House of Commons expressed unanimous confidence today in the leadership of Rt. Hon. Arthur Heighen, chosen Conservative party leader last November.

A statement in part said: "The Conservative members look forward to the early day when, elected in one of the several seats offered him, he will be enabled to use those abilities to assist in our war effort and in the solving of the problems which lie ahead."

Japanese Rings Draw Near Heart Of Indies

(By WITT HANCOCK.)

BATAVIA, N.E.I., Feb. 12.—(AP)—The Netherlands Indies high command reported continued resistance against Japanese invasion forces today in various parts of the wide-spread Archipelago, but gave no specific information on the outcome of the fighting.

The news agency Aneta said forces on Celebes and Borneo were believed to be fighting desperately to thwart Japanese drives on Macassar, capital and chief port of Celes, and Bandjermasin, main port on the southeast coast of Borneo.

In each instances the invaders were striving for key footholds for an all-out assault on Java, for Macassar is only 500 bomber miles from the United Nations naval station at Surabaya and Bandjermasin is 300 miles away, almost due north across the Java Sea.

(Japanese imperial headquarters at Tokyo claimed today that a Japanese landing party had occupied Macassar, capital of the Netherlands island of Celebes, and that Gasmata, on the island of New Britain, was occupied three days ago.)

City Now Circled

The last official reports from Celebes indicated the city plainly was marked for encirclement in the Japanese plan of campaign. For the invaders had won beachheads at Barombong, North of Macassar; Djeneponto, south of it on the southern tip of the Peninsula, and at Balangnipa, directly across the Peninsula from Macassar on the Gulf of Bone.

The fact that Djeneponto and Macassar are connected by a good coastal highway was a factor aiding the Japanese plan. But the forces advancing from Balangnipa would have to negotiate the formidable barrier of mountain country.

United nations authorities said the Indies are in grave peril now that Singapore has been nullified as an Allied base.

When war in the Pacific began, the Indies and their wealth of resources and their bases, were deep behind the democratic front—separated by the length of the China Sea from Hong Kong and Manila.

In the United Nations' set-up then

Britain Short One Tank To Russians

Output Now Doubled, Says Beavenbrook U.S. To Fill Rubber Bill

LONDON, Feb. 12—(CP).—Production Minister Lord Beaverbrook told the House of Lords today that the Washington Combined Raw Materials Board plans to produce 400,000 tons of synthetic rubber annually of which Britain expects to get 50,000 tons.

British war factories "in the space of six or seven months," have doubled the output of finished materials, Lord Beaverbrook said .

Last week's tank production, after Sir Andrew Duncan became the new Minister of Supply, was the largest since the beginning of the war, he told the House.

Promises of material aid to Russia, he declared, were fulfilled up to January 31, "with the exception of one tank." British tanks played "a very big part in the defence of Moscow," Lord Beaverbrook said, adding "but we must send Russia very shortly immensely increased shipments of tanks and aircraft."

Lord Beaverbrook said it was his job to persuade producers in Canada, the United States and all other Allied countries "to bring forward their program consistently with the Allied needs in the battle line all over the world."

Must Line Up All Sources.

The principal production that will have to be dealt with is not from the factories of Great Britain, he said. His main function would be "to tap every source of supply, to tap the principal sources of supply, and for a time the United States will become the biggest source of supply."

"Canada is of high importance, and must be rapidly growing upwards he said. "Canada has all the facilities for creating output and certainly Canadian output will grow."

The Minister said the Allies have not only pooled "all weapons produced in the United States and Great Britain as well as other Allied countries, but also have set up boards to dispose of these weapons."

"I do not think the country realizes the nature and extent of the pooling arrangements" made by Prime Minister Churchill while visiting Washington.

All Europe Forges Arms for Giant Spring Blitz Under Whip of Hitler's Production Slavers

(By THOMAS F. HAWKINS.)

BERNE, Feb. 12—(AP).—The pressure on German industry to feed the war machine for a spring offensive is growing and has closed down on exports and production for home consumption.

The decree of Propaganda Minister Goebbels banning industrial fairs is one evidence of the tremendous effort being made to stand against United States production capacity.

Transportation difficulties also give little room for the immediate future for exports.

The task before German industry is tremendous. Shortages of labor, coal, electrical power and many raw materials are daily noted in the German press with admonitions that greater efforts must be made.

The inference is plain—that spring is near and that the vital preparations for a vast scale of operations have not yet been completed, though the plants of all Europe are forging the arms Germany needs.

Foreign military observers here believe Germany is able to keep replacements abreast of her plane losses, but loss of heavier materials in Russia, such as guns and tanks, has placed the greatest strain on industry. The oil will be sought in the Caucasus.

King Agrees To Bigger Labor Voice In Running Of Gov't Committees

OTTAWA Feb. 12—(CP).—Increased labor representation on government committees and boards was assured the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada today by Prime Minister Mackenzie King.

Mr. King presided at a meeting at which the annual brief of the Congress was presented by President Tom Moore and a delegation of 50, including members of the Congress Executive Council and representatives of affiliated national and international unions.

Mr. King, after hearing the memorandum, expressed general agreement with most of the points discussed.

"Speaking quite frankly I think the criticisms made of some phases of the Government's activities are very true and fair," he said. Concentrated attention by the Government on war matters had prevented action in other directions.

"I do feel there is more room for representation of labor on some of the boards than exists at the present time."

The Prime Minister announced that he would request every member of the Cabinet to review committees under his jurisdiction and to take every possible means to give labor representation where matters of "human relations" were concerned.

Newell Hanged Proclaiming His Innocence

TORONTO, Feb. 12—(CP).—H. A. W. Newell was hanged at the Don Jail today, paying the death penalty for the murder of his pretty young Finnish wife, Aune, whose strangled body was found on Toronto Island on October 6, 1940.

The death sentence was carried out without incident at the scheduled time, 8 a.m. E.D.T.

Newell died 401 days after his wife had disappeared from her boarding house here, and 394 days after her bruised body was found in a secluded sector of Toronto Island, with one of her own silk stockings knotted tightly about her neck.

Three Counter Attacks Fail Fourth Successful As Troops Battle To Finish

Big Shells Pound City Official Staffs Leaving By Boat

(By C. YATES McDANIEL.)

SINGAPORE, Feb. 12—(CP). — Battle lines moved steadily closer to Singapore today after bitter counter attacks last night by British infantry, supported by a powerful artillery barrage, drove the Japanese back at several points north of the city.

During the night Singapore's guns heavily bombarded Japanese positions across the Straits of Johore northeast of the island, a direction whence no Japanese attack has developed.

British and Japanese exchanged the heaviest fire throughout today.

Shells from the enemy's 5.9 guns exploded steadily in the northern part of the city, while Japanese dive bombers and high level bombers were in action incessantly over the island.

One vessel carrying the Ministry of Information and the Malayan Broadcasting staff, including its Far Eastern Director, Robert Scott, left yesterday, but the ship in which I am a deck passenger along with Captain Henry Steel, last of the Army Public Relations officers, still is here.

Lying offshore we were bombed incessantly until sundown yesterday and throughout today. We were dive-bombed half a dozen times, but we are still afloat and may get away tonight.

Defenders Exacting Bloody Toll For Each Inch Yielded

LONDON, Feb. 12—(CP). — The Singapore radio told its empire listeners—with music—this afternoon that radio communications are still in British hands.

The musical program, picked up here at 2:30 p.m. (8:30 p.m., Singapore time, 9:30 a.m. E.D.T.) was clearly received.

The garrison of Singapore made four desperate counter attacks against the Japanese besiegers today, according to military dispatches reaching here.

One of the counter-thrusts was regarded as successful but the other three failed.

In Last Ditch Stand

Still unbowed as yet another day of battle drew to a close, the defenders of Singapore were exacting a high price today against the Japanese, but appeared to be slowly yielding, in the last-ditch defence of that far Pacific barricade.

The Singapore command had received—and spurned—a Japanese demand for surrender.

The battle thundered on as an historic delaying action, with heavy cost to the attacker the most important consideration of the defenders.

The latest official word from Singapore showed that the defenders still held about half of the 206-square mile island as of 9.30 p.m., Wednesday, Singapore time, but there was no assurance that this line had been held in the interim. (The time given corresponded to 10.30 a.m., E.D.T., Wednesday.)

Unofficial indications in fact were that the line had approached the city of Singapore even closer.

Fierce counter attacks last night by infantrymen, supported by a powerful artillery barrage, had driven the Japanese back at several points north of the city—but not for long.

At 3:20 p.m. (10:20 a.m. EDT, 9:20 p.m. to-night—Singapore time) a London military commentator said there was no further information about Singapore.

The 9:30 p.m. Wednesday report showed that the battle line roughly bisected the island running southward from the naval base, to the south shore village of Pasir Panjang, about five miles west of the edge of Singapore. The defenders were on the east side of this north-south line.

Japs Turn Gifts On MacArthur

(By CLARKE LEE.)

WITH AMERICAN FORCES ON BATAAN PENINSULA, Feb. 11. — (Delayed)—(AP). — Shore defence guns have smashed into complete and costly failure a new Japanese effort to crack the western flank of Gen. Douglas MacArthur's lines on Bataan Peninsula, and have inflicted heavy losses on the enemy in doing so.

The Japanese tried a before-dawn landing from a number of barges towed by a sea-going tug, but were driven off by artillery and machine-gun fire which sank several barges and killed a number of troops. When daylight came the defenders' guns scored a direct hit that sank the tug and left the barges drifting helplessly toward shore, where several were sunk and others were captured.

These barges carried life-saving and other equipment marked "United States Army Transport Merritt"—equipment which Gen. MacArthur, then commander of the Philippine Scouts, sent to Japan in 1923 after the earthquake and fire.

The final mopping up of the west coast battleground where a Japanese suicide battalion landed last week resulted in a count of almost 400 Japanese dead, not counting those buried by the Japanese during the fight.

The last Japanese took refuge in caves along the shore. When all else failed, American soldiers tied sticks of dynamite with short fuses to the ends of long bamboo poles and flipped the dynamite into the caves from the cliffs above.

Hore-Belisha Resigns

LONDON, Feb. 12 — (CP). — Leslie Hore-Belisha, former War Secretary, and two others resigned to-day from the Liberal National Party in protest after a caucus which censured two members for failing to vote on the motion of confidence in Prime Minister Churchill's Government on January 29.

Barbarians at Gates of Western World

Not Too Late To Save Indies—All Allied Hopes Now Hinge On Production Race

(By DEWITT MACKENZIE.)

LONDON, Feb. 12—(CP). — The agony of Singapore, and the consequent peril to all the rest of the Allied Oriental structure of defence which this now fallen giant bore upon its broad back, surely must be the final tragedy needed to drive home to us the necessity of united and urgent action to meet this life or death crisis of the war.

Admiral William H. Standley, new United States Ambassador to Russia, today in San Diego summed up the present status of the conflict in the blunt language of old old sea-dog:—

"America can be licked . . . We've been too damned successful in previous wars. . . Too many of use are sitting with our hands complacently folded while we wait for 'George' to win the war. . . The only thing that will win this fight is unity of purpose and effort."

Depending largely on the protection of Singapore have been the rich Netherlands East Indies, Australia, Burma which is the gateway to China's Burma Road, and even India itself. The Indies now are in the utmost danger, and the Japanese pressure on Burma is serious.

In short, the menace of the Mikado's medieval minded hordes, which many have regarded as just an Oriental bugbear, now has become a reality. The barbarians are driving at the gates of the western world.

Warplanes, and still more warplanes, and other equipment are needed in a rush—not at some indefinite time in the future. Grand boys are dying at Singapore and in the Philippines just to delay the Japanese advance long enough to give the Allies a chance to get help to the Orient.

It is not necessary that the Indies fall if reinforcements do arrive in time. They already have the nucleus of a really fine defence, and substantial assistance might enable them to hold out long enough to give Britain and America a chance to repair the unhappy situation caused by their being caught unprepared by the Japanese. Reinforcements are said to be on the way from both countries, and the prayer now is that they may arrive in time.

The danger is doubly great because Hitler is making a supreme production drive in order to be ready for his spring offensive. All German industry and consumption have been geared to this one end. It is a race against United Nations production.

Shying The Guns

Cairo, Feb. 12 (AP)

BRITISH headquarters announced today that an enemy force, including tanks, has been scattered by artillery fire on the Libyan desert near El Mechili and that British mobile forces "continued their aggressive activities" in the Ain El Gazala-Tmimi-El Mechili area.

The communique indicated a still static situation on the battlefront on which there has been no major change since the British withdrawal was halted a week ago.

It said other Axis forces were observed by British mobile columns in the El Mechili area "but our troops were unable to bring them to battle."

Guerillas Doing A Great Job

Kill 1,462 At Leningrad In Month, Blow 8 Dumps

MOSCOW, Feb. 12.—(AP)—Guerilla contributions to Soviet Russia's winter offensive were cited anew here today with a declaration that irregulars striking in the Leningrad zone alone had annihilated at least 1,462 German soldiers during January.

"Soviet patriots blew up eight munitions dumps and several railway trains in the rear of the enemy," a communique said.

(The gravity of the behind-the-lines threat was emphasized in a Berlin report relayed by way of Berne.

(Resistance of the Russian populace in German-occupied territory is such that it could not be overlooked by "any army in the world without endangering its own security," the German foreign office was quoted.)

Today's mid-day communique added small detail to the general picture.

It reported only the capture of several dozen soldiers and officers in the seizure of a transport column of 400 carts of military supplies in one sector, the capture of villages "N" and Voinovo and killing of 17 Finns in a patrol encounter.

Dorothy Kicked And Bitten

Writer Tries To Stop Blond Yelling Heil Hitler

NEW YORK, Feb. 12 — (AP). — Dorothy Thompson, the columnist and lecturer, got a bitten index finger and a stout kick in the midriff last night during a brief encounter with a large and noisy blond who persisted in such provocative remarks as "Heil Hitler."

The situation began to develop in a crowded East Side cafe when the blond's escort had trouble keeping her quiet. It gathered momentum when several other customers objected to the noisy pair and reached a climax when they were ushered outside.

Miss Thompson and her escort were on the curb waiting for a cab. Witnesses said Miss Thompson walked over to the blond, shook an admonitory finger under her nose, and told her: "You ought to behave yourself."

The woman replied with a right foot to Miss Thompson's stomach. Miss Thompson then swung at the blond, who seized her hand and bit the writer's finger.

The blond and her escort departed hurriedly in a cab.

18 Arrested In Montreal Street Melee

300 Anti-Conscription Youths Battle Police—Dozen Hurt

MONTREAL, Feb. 12 — (CP). — Eighteen men were scheduled to appear in court today to answer charges arising from a melee following an anti-conscriptionist mass meeting here last night.

Meanwhile eight city policemen wore bandages and a number of youths nursed bruises as a result of the clash that occurred when the police broke up a parade of 300 youths as they moved toward mid-town Montreal.

The clash also resulted in 30 broken plate glass shop windows at the St. Catharine and St. Lawrence intersection where the marchers made their last stand before dispersal by police. At this point scores of windows were shattered in street cars held up by the marchers.

The injured police included: Capt. Herve Guimond, Capt. Antonio Trudeau, Lieut. Armand Marion, Lieut. Armand Giard, Sgt. Victor Paquin, Constable Gordon Mackenzie, Constable Fernand Ledwyn and Constable Deus Lussier.

Most of them suffered bruises and cuts and none was seriously injured. Sticks, leather thongs and chunks of ice were used as weapons by the parading youths.

The men arrested, all booked on charges of disturbing the peace, ranged in age from 16 to 30, and included Prof. F. Lebel, 30, Lachine.

The youths were part of a throng of 7,000 who crowded into and around old St. James' Market in the East End to hear Henri Bourassa and others speak against conscription.

Peace Campaign Talk

The youths heard the speakers urge them to vote "No" in the forthcoming Dominion Plebiscite in which voters will be asked whether or not they wish to release the government from its pre-election pledges not to introduce conscription for overseas service. They also heard a demand that a "peace campaign" be started.

While the speeches were being made inside the market and relayed outside by loud-speaker the youths

Plan Proxy Vote

The throne speech debate, Mr. Hepburn said, would start Friday with Edward J. Anderson (Lib. Welland) leading off, followed by Joseph E. Cholette (Lib. Nipissing).

Mr. Conant's bill will enable members of the armed forces and of the Women's Auxiliaries located outside of the province to vote by proxy. For those stationed inside Ontario polling booths will be set-up in the military camps.

Only Relation To Sub

Only those holding a close relation to the voter, such as wife, husband, sister, brother, parent or child and residing in the riding where the ballot is to be cast, can exercise the proxy which must be given in writing. The vote will be cast only in the constituency where the active service voter resided before enlistment.

The proxy wil be given without the voter being aware of the candidate's name. He can, however, stipulate as to what party candidate the vote must go.

Under another section of the act the voting in Ontario will be conducted by blank ballot, the voter learning from the returning officer the candidates in his home riding and writing in the name of his selection. To be eligible to vote in this manner, the voter must have been a British subject prior to enlistment, a resident of Canada for at least three months and domiciled in Ontario for at least 30 days.

WHITBY, Ont., Feb. 12 — (CP). —Norman Decker of Whitby was fined $75.0, and costs, here yesterday on two charges of renting duplex apartments "at a higher level than is reasonable and just."

Magistrate F. S. Ebbs said it was "the first case in Ontario where the rent was raised after it had already been set after the landlord made application to the Rent Control Administrator.

Fire At Warsaw Destroys Garage

Volunteer firemen battled a stubborn fire at Warsaw village this morning when, flames demolished a two storey garage occupied by Elmo Hendren, and then spread to a house nearby, damaging the rear and roof of the dwelling before it was brought under control. Total loss to both properties and contents is expected to exceed $3,000.

The fire is believed to have started from over-heated pipes and it spread rapidly. Three cars, and all of the tires, and some tools were removed from the garage by volunteers and garage employees, but a quantity of furniture stored above the garage was destroyed. The garage is owned by Charles Bowen of Peterborough, and this man also owned the furniture which was in the attic.

A dwelling alongside the garage, also owned by Mr. Bowen, and occupied by John Thompson was in danger for more than an hour, before firemen of the village using two chemical units and buckets of water were able to smother fire on the roof and in the rear wall.

In the meantime willing workers removed every bit of furniture from the house, cutting the loss considerably.

The garage was of frame construction, sheeted with tin, and was located on the northwest corner of the street almost in the heart of the village, and on the main road leading into the village from Peterborough.

than the United States. The Navy Secretary (Col. Frank Knox) said the navy was seeking contact with the enemy.

"If they haven't been able to find them, I'll tell where they are. They're right at Manila, surrounding a gallant force of American troops. They're at Singapore and at Shanghai, where the once-proud U.S. marines are now being humiliated by being forced to draw rickshaws through the streets.

"The fact is they're afraid to make contact because they haven't the supremacy they boasted of over the alleged tissue-paper navy of Japan."

Turning to Europe, Mr. Hepburn said the situation there was "not so bright" as one was led to believe from the newspapers. The Russians had been magnificent, he said, but actually one of the reasons for the retreat of the Germans lay in the fact that synthetic oil would not operate in the crankcases of their mechanized equipment in 40 below-zero weather.

Reds Need More Aid.

The Germans were preparing for a spring offensive and with their admitted superiority in production and mechanical ability, he said, they will have a big edge on the Russians unless the latter receive aid from the United Nations.

"If the shipping losses continue at the present rate it is problematical whether we'll be able to get sufficient supplies to them," Mr. Hepburn said.

French Fleet Conveying.

It was clear to him, Mr. Hepburn said, that the French Fleet is being used to convoy German supply ships to Libya. That explained British reverses in Libya.

"Our future is not so bright and it may become even worse and we may eventually become slaves of the Axis. Don't say it can't happen here. France had the best army in Europe and now there are 45,000,000 Frenchmen under subjugation."

No country ever faced war as totally unprepared as Canada, Mr. Hepburn said.

He said 45,000 men had been discharged from armed forces mostly because they developed colds and tuberculosis from lack of proper clothing. The Premier said he favored a selective system of drafting men and urged his farmer audience to break down any prejudice they had against it.

"I don't believe it necessary to put men in the army right now, but we do need men in industry to produce equipment for our soldiers. Mobilization of men would also end these infernal strikes, but we must regiment the country's manpower if we are to cope with an enemy which has used this system for years."

The Agricultural Council is comprised of members of the various County Councils throughout the province and more than 100 heard the address.

Col. T. L. Kennedy, Conservative M.P.P. for Peel, also spoke. He criticized the taxing of farm land for such things as education and relief.

"Fifty-four cents of my dollar which goes into taxes is used for education," he said. "It's a damnable shame."

the Indies, with oil, naval bases and a hard-hitting fighting machine, were a secure source of strength in the South Pacific. Behind Singapore, they helped shut the Japanese out of the Indian Ocean. They were a rampart protecting Australia.

Indies In Tough Spot

Now, two months later, Hong Kong and Manila are in Japanese hands, Singapore has been nullified, the enemy has invested the Indies' outer islands and stands across the narrow water from the Citadel Islands of Sumatra and Java themselves.

Thus, swiftly and violently, the Japanese have put the Indies in the front line and in such danger that it becomes a question in the minds of military men whether the United Nations will be able to hold the Archipelago.

The Netherlanders are prepared for a last ditch stand of their central possessions. As in Singapore, however, it may be a question again of a valiant defence with inadequate strength in men and machines against a strong and well-equipped enemy.

One cheering report was the announcement that three Japanese cruisers, a destroyer and a submarine were sunk in the first weeks of fighting off Amboina Island, instead of one cruiser as reported earlier.

This was announced by the naval commander in Batavia on the basis of later evidence of hits and sinkings which he regards now as conclusive.

King Agrees

OTTAWA, Feb. 12—(CP).—Modification of the Government's price and wage-freezing policy is sought in a memorandum presented today to Prime Minister Mackenzie King by the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada.

Tom Moore, President of the Congress, headed the Labor delegation which included members of the Congress executive council and a group of Canadian representatives of affiliated national and international unions.

The Congress brief dealt particularly with the Government's anti-inflation price and wage legislation and included a number of recommendations.

Without an army engaged in the production and transportation of supplies, equipment and armaments the courage and sacrifice of the armed forces would be futile, the memorandum said.

Asking great Labor representation in the administration of war industry the Congress said:

"Many past misunderstandings and mistakes could have been avoided had Labor's request for recognition as an equal partner of industry been more generally accepted."

Provisions of the National Resources Mobilization Act should be used to mobilize wealth and industries for national service, the Congress suggested, and dividends and profits should be limited in the same manner as wages.

No Unjust Burdens.

After expressing approval of the widened powers granted the Wartime Prices and Trade Board, the memorandum asserted the order should "be applied in such a manner as not to place an unjust burden on producers by denying them a fair return for their labor."

It said "further we strongly dissent from the doctrine that reasonable increases in wages would inevitably result in inflation....

"The freezing of wages at unfair levels and the denial of the use of the machinery of collective bargaining, conciliation and arbitration is an injustice that stifles enthusiasm and inspiration to greater effort."

The brief asked that the present wage-control legislation be modified.

Recommendations on which the Congress asked "immediate action" were:

1—Removal of restrictions to enable workers earning less than $25 a week or 50 cents an hour to negotiate for and receive increases to those levels;

2—An amendment to permit adjustment of wages and cost of living bonuses for female workers to the same level as those paid male employes for similar work;

3—Cost-of-living bonuses on all overtime bases for seasonal workers as compensation for short time or unemployed periods;

4—A wage floor of at least 35 cents an hour "to compensate for the ceiling on wages being fixed";

5—Authority to the National and Regional War Labor Boards "to liberally interpret" the provisions of the wage order.

The Congress expressed its "complete agreement" with the government's action in establishing diplomatic and trade relations with Russia.

Other Suggestions

Among recommendations made by the Congress were:

Co-ordination of and support for educational and sports organizations providing facilities for youth;

Increase of the eligible wage limit for unemployent insurance from $2,000 to $3,000;

Free transportation at regular intervals for members of the armed forces on leave;

Protection for enlisted men of pension rights in companies in which they were employed;

"Immediate" release of interned persons upon recommendation of the advisory committees already estalished by the government;

Amendment to the defence of Canada regulations to prohibit the use of military forces in strikes;

New regulations for the safety of sailors;

Overtime rates for letter carriers and postal clerks.

Inaguration of a constructive reforestation plan.

Congress representation on a Canadian delegation to the peace conference at the end of the war.

Writer Reveals Why Japs At Singapore

NEW YORK, Feb. 12. — Cecil Brown CBS corespondent who was aboard H.M.S. Repulse when that battleship was sunk by the Japanese, and who later was banned by British censors in Singapore from broadcasting from that point, was heard last night over CBS network in a broadcast from Sydney, Australia.

He revealed how the British censorship had hidden from the civilian population of Singapore the desperate and virtually unprepared condition of what was supposed to be the impregnable Gibraltar of the Far East.

Arriving by airplane from Batavia shortly before time for the scheduled broadcast from Sydney, Brown went on the air for the first time since he was banned from the air in Singapore several weeks ago.

"The picture in the Pacific is very far from optimistic," he said.

"At no point are the Japanese being held by the Allied forces.

"Singapore very probably will be Japanese hands in the next twenty-four to seventy-two hours. Japanese submarines and surface raiders will then operate in the Indian Ocean.

"The position of Rangoon, and therefore supplies to the Chinese, will become critical. Dutch Sumatra may be taken, and the fate of Java will be decided in the next three or four weeks.

"From what I've seen of Japanese driving power and Allied manpower and equipment to meet it, Australia will be attacked in the very near future. I've talked with dozens of American bomber and fighter pilots in the Netherlands East Indies and others who got out of the Philippines. Every one of them said in just these words:

"'For God's sake, tell them to send us some aircraft. In every engagement we're outnumbered 50 and 100 to one.'

Fight to End or Surrender.

"At Singapore, the entire British, Australian and Indian garrison will either fight to the last man or surrender. I do not believe there will be a Dunkirk from Singapore. The

Newell Hanged

It was the end of one of the longest murder trial in Toronto.

Newell was convicted last Nov. 22 of murder, after juries had failed to reach an agreement at two previous trials. An appeal against the death sentence failed, and executive clemency was denied last Tuesday in Ottawa by Hon. J. G. Michaud, Acting Minister of Justice.

Plays Dominoes, Solitaire

Newell spent much of his time during the last few days playing dominoes with a guard, reading or playing solitaire. He slept well and took an interest in ordering his meals, in which steaks and hard-boiled eggs were favored.

He was reported in good spirits as the days shortened, although with little hope that his sentence would be commuted. Last week he shaved for the first time since his conviction.

At 28, Newell was a veteran of the Finnish war with Russia and was in training with the Royal Canadian Air Force at St. Thomas, Ont., when he was arrested. He was on leave in Toronto when his wife disappeared, and evidence was given at his trial that he had been seen near the docks used by ferries plying to Toronto Island on Sept. 29, 1940, the day she was last seen alive. Her body was found Oct. 6, 1940, Newell was arrested the next day.

One witness at his trials was Elna Lehto, described as his common-law wife. Evidence was given that Newell had been trying to have Mrs. Newell transfer to Miss Lehto the dependents' allowance she received from the R.C.A.F. for herself and their son.

He maintained his innocence to the end.

Under a recent regulation, only a few persons witnessed his execution. There were two guards, the jail physician, Chief Coroner Smirle Lawson, the jail governor, a deputy sheriff, and Rev. C. W. James, Newell's spiritual adviser, who was with Newell for the last few hours before the execution.

Needed No Sedative.

Newell was said to have walked stoically to the gallows after having refused a sedative. Before he left his cell he wrote a farewell note to his counsel, B. J. Spencer Pitt.

At 9.04 a.m., official notices signed by a physician, sheriff and governor of the jail were posted on the jail door, certifying that the sentence of the court had been executed. It was more than half an hour after the trap was sprung that life was pronounced extinct.

It was statec that Newell was awake all night, talking to his spiritual adviser. He ate a breakfast of bacon and eggs after which he wrote his letter to Mr. Pitt.

In the letter Newell said that "even yet I still hope for justice to be done and my innocence to be established and I know that when I go to my death this morning it will not be through any fault of yours. The fault rests with the Crown who suppressed certain facts and accepted perjured testimony."

The letter stated that had a witness for the defence "not been denied transportation to the trial, I know the verdict would have been favorable to me."

Britain Short

Lord Beaverbrook said he would have to go to both Washington and Moscow again as "only by such means can decisions be reached."

Raw materials as well as weapons have been pooled, he said, and "raw materials now in the custody of the Ministry of Supply cannot be looked upon any longer as the property of the Ministry of Supply but depend on the joint board that sits in Washington."

More Machine Tools.

Lord Beaverbrook said large quantities of machine tools had been sent to Russia and Australia and added: Now the Minister of Production must look to the position here where the machine tool industry can be developed."

He said there is a shortage of new weapons, "but if we had no obligations to foreign countries if we could keep for ourselves all we produce, there would be no shortage of war weapons."

Lord Beaverbrook pointed out that in addition to arms exports from Britain to the fighting forces "large numbers of tanks were sent direct to the Middle East from the United States and we have sent away our Canadian tanks, too. They have never come to this country."

Lines Holding From Base To West Of City

LONDON, Feb. 12 (CP).—Britain still held a line on Singapore Island from the naval base on the north to Pasir Panjang, a village on the south shore west of Singapore City, a military commentator said today.

Singapore's defenders, scorning a Japanese demand for unconditional surrender, fought on today against heavy odds, but London was grimly prepared to hear at any hour that the cross of St. George no longer fluttered over the island, long regarded as an impregnable outpost of the far-flung British Empire.

The latest official word received from Lt.-Gen. A. E. Percival, a commander of the Singapore garrison, was a communique issued at 5:30 p.m. yesterday Singapore time (6:30 a.m. E.D.T. Wednesday) announcing that his men were being driven slowly back on the western side of the island.

The War Office still was in communication with Singapore at 11:15 a.m. today (6:15 a.m. E.D.T.), it was disclosed. Cable and wireless companies still were sending and receiving messages, although communication was slow.

Radio Working Poorly

Dispatches from New Delhi, India, said the Singapore radio was still on the air at midnight London time (7 p.m. E.D.T. Wednesday), indicating the city still was in British hands then, although the reception was so bad the text of the broadcast could not be transcribed.

Gen. Percival's communique, disclosing that he had ignored a Japanese demand for surrender, was accepted here as evidence of his determination to fight on to the bitter end, but there was little in the terse bulletin to raise hopes that he might be able to hold out for long. It said:

"The enemy drive from the west has been directed on Singapore City

THE STARS SAY ....

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Friday, February 13

Excellent auguries for quick, sudden, surprising and far reaching if not radical opportunities for putting over large scale operations or ambitions of great magnitude are found in this day's activities. The opening while dramatic and breathtaking should have firm foundations leading to cherished objectives, good fortunes and security, with many personal, social, domestic and affectional realizations and happiness these splendid gratifications should not be negated by quick temper or any excess.

Those whose birthday it is should be on the brink of a much desired although entirely unanticipated whirl of good fortune, suddenly arising like a whirlwind, with breathtaking and thrilling force, and into a long cherished security of place, position and influence, with all the concinnity for personal happiness in the domestic, social and affectional realm. Indeed the latter may be found at the core of all this felicity, prestige and good fortune.

A child born on this day may be exceptionally talented and versatile in quite novel and thrilling directions. It should have ingenuity, skill, vivid imagination and the love of adventure and romance.

Police Board To Retain General Draper

TORONTO, Feb. 12.—The Board of Police Commissioners last evening turned down Mayor Conboy's motion to request Chief Constable D. C. Draper to hand over his duties to Deputy Chief Constable George Guthrie until the appeal from his conviction at Cobourg on a charge of dangerous driving is heard by the Court of Appeal.

After Colonel A. E. Kirkpatrick had expressed the opinion that the chief's conviction did not reflect on his abilities to perform the duties of chief constable, His Honor Judge Denton declared himself unable to form an opinion until he had read and considered the evidence and the reasons given by the trial judge for the conviction. At His Honor's request the board instructed that a copy of the evidence be secured.

At the conclusion of the meeting Palmer Kent, secretary of the Board of Police Commissioners, issued the following statement:

"All were present at the meeting, including T. N. Phelan, K.C., who represented the chief constable at the recent trial at Cobourg. At the conclusion of the meeting His Worship Mayor Conboy moved that this board should request the chief constable, without prejudice to his rights, to hand over his duties to the deputy chief constable, George Guthrie, until his case is heard by the Court of Appeal.

"Colonel A. E. Kirkpatrick opposed the motion, stating that in his opinion the conviction does not reflect on the ability of General Draper to perform his duties as chief constable of the City of Toronto. His Honor Judge Denton then stated he was unable to express an opinion until he had read and considered the evidence and the reasons given for his conviction by the trial judge

"His Worship Mayor Conboy then ruled the motion was lost.

"At Judge Denton's request the board then ordered that copy of the evidence adduced at the trial, with the reasons given by the presiding judge, be forwarded to Judge Denton."

Budget In April

OTTAWA, Feb. 12 — (CP). — The Federal budget likely will be delayed at least until well into April and perhaps as late as May, it was said to-day.

One source said he thought May was the best bet, drawing attention to the fact that the House of Commons now is engaged in the Throne Speech debate and has ahead of it the plebiscite legislation and the War Appropriations Bill which must be taken care of by March 31, the end of the present fiscal year.

With Easter falling this year on April 5 the first half of April might well be taken up with an Easter adjournment.

D.F.C. Winner Once Resided In Belleville

LONDON, Feb. 12 (CP)—Squadron Leader Vaught Corbett, 31-year-old R.C.A.F. veteran now back in Canada after months of action from the days of the Battle of Britain to recent leadership of a Hurricane-bomber squadron, has been awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross.

The unassuming flyer, a graduate of McGill University and the Royal Military College, who saw his first action with the original R.C.A.F. fighter squadron and subsequently earned the command of Squadron 402, was cited for keenness and skill in leading all types of fighter operations.

He took the 402 outfit on fast Channel-hopping sweeps against enemy shipping and on escort flights when laden bombers were striking at the Nazis by daylight.

"This officer," said the citation, "led his squadron on numerous bomber escorts over enemy territory in France. Throughout he displayed great skill and leadership which undoubtedly played a large part in the splendid protection afforded the bomber formations.

"During these operations he has destroyed at least one enemy aircraft and damaged several others. He also participated in numerous low-flying attacks on enemy territory during which his tactical ability and fine fighting spirit proved an inspiration.

"This officer, who fought in the Battle of Britain, has always displayed the greatest keenness."

In a broadcast to the Dominion Nov. 19, Corbett, who has lived in Belleville, Ont., and Montreal, said Canadian airmen were flying the new Hurricane fighters outfitted as bombers so as to drop their bombs from a low level "with greater accuracy than can be achieved generally in dive bombing."

Appeal Dismissed In Toronto Court

COBOURG, Feb. 12—(ENS)—The appeal of Mrs. Sarah Blaffer against a judgment of $1,100 given in favor of F Abbott here in May was dismissed at the current Osgoode Hall sittings now being held in Toronto.

The judgment in dismissing the appeal was as follows:

"The case was argued with great particularity and skill by appellant's counsel, but I have not been able to find any error in the judgment appealed from, the reasons for which are given fully by the learned trial judge. I would dismiss the appeal with costs."

The appeal was heard by Judges W. R Riddell, Henderson and McTague.

The original judgment in favor of Mr. Abbott was given by Judge Urquhart.

Counsel for Mrs. Blaffer was A. R. Willmott of Cobourg. For the defendant, Mr. Abbott, Peter White, K.C., of Toronto, and Harry R. Deyman of Cobourg appeared.

Splendid School Achievement

The achievement of the students in the Peterborough Collegiate and Vocational School in selling a hundred thousand War Savings Stamps amounting to $25,000, and along with that $7,000 worth of certificates, is an outstanding "high" in this province. Naturally the students, the teachers, their parents, members of the Board of Education and everybody else who had any connection with the school will feel proud of what has been accomplished. It is voluntary work such as this, carried on over a considerable period of time, which is evidence of real patriotism and zeal.

Indeed, it would be well worth knowing how much all the students of Ontario have done in this same kind of selling actiivty and what the total would run up to in figures. No doubt it would surprise the public. Sometimes there are the pessimistic elements in a community who say that the young people of today are "not what they were in my time," that they are not aware of the fact that a terrible conflict is going on and that they wouldn't care very much about it if they did know. That view can apply in truth to only a small percentage of the youth of the country. The big majority, judging by the number of young men who have enlisted voluntarily in the armed service, by the young women who are in auxiliary services and by the lads and girls in the educational institutions of the land—judging by what they have done, and are doing, there is genuine Canadian manhood and womanhood in them.

Too often those who are climbing up to middle age, or have gone over the summit, forget that when they were quite young they were much the same in every way as the youth of this generation, only they have moved on to the period when cares and responsibilities take the laughter away.

Young people appear to be indifferent, possibly, to the sterner affairs of life because they are still light-hearted and full of fun and pranks. They know how to laugh but they also know how to get through examinations and edit good school papers and magazines, how to put on plays and varied entertainments, how to win oratory awards and—look at what they know about helping the Government of their native land get money to prosecute the war! As they would say in their own parlance, "There is no dust on us," and there certainly isn't. Congratulations to every student who contributed to Peterborough's splendid record! Now it will be up to the older men and women to give evidence of what they can do in making a similar success in this city and district of the Victory Loan.

What Are The Facts?

The death of Major-General Todt, builder of the famous Siegfried Line, and who was in supreme charge of the engineering of the German defenders of the Russian front, is announced from Berlin as being the result of an "accident.' It is strange, though, how many high ranking officers have suddenly passed from sight, either by death or demotion, since the Germans began to suffer grave reverses in Russia. Every once in a while the news is given out that some leader, once a close lieutenant of Hitler, has moved off the stage.

These surprise events would not bear any sinister color were it not for the history of Nazism ever since the "purge" some years ago when hundreds of persons were murdered in Germany because their loyalty to the Chancellor and his gang of thugs was in doubt, or because they stood in the way of the schemes that were being hatched. With the distinguished American and English correspondents, who were in Germany during Hitler's rise to power, in accord on what took place, there can be no doubt of the foul acts then committed.

Apparently with Der Fuehrer now in supreme command, or said to be, of the Axis forces, and with defeats and reverses going on for weeks, now, in Soviet territory, the outside world can draw only one conclusion—that conclusion is about the mysterious coincidences that take place with respect to those who are no longer wanted. The whole matter is provocative of surmise, not because people in this country have any more regard for the Generals than they have for Hitler, inasmuch as they are of one stripe and all have been in the same boat, but rather because these occurrences, coming one after another, are still further evidence of how base and inhuman are the forces against which Canadians, along with their fellow beings in the United Nations, are fighting.

Base Ingratitude

A writer in the Journal-Times of Racine, Wis., has drawn attention in an interesting review of the past and present, to the fact that when the terrible earthquake pretty well wiped out Tokyo and Yokohama, in 1925, when nearly 100,000 persons were killed, the people of the United States contributed enormous sums to the relief of those devastated centres.

The writer quotes an American who has travelled much in Japan as saying that there is a museum in that country devoted to the earthquake, and among the exhibits there of that disaster are charts showing that the people of America sent over more money than all the rest of the world put together. "It is a touching testimonial," he adds, "of the generosity and helpfulness of the Americans. I wonder if those exhibits are still on public view in Japan? Probably not. They would be confusing to the Japanese who are now being taught that the Americans are a loathsome people, steeped in brutality."

That, we may say, is but one more example of the ingratitude of human nature which, unfortunately, is not all confined to the Mikado's subjects. It is the old saw, put in another way of "Biting the hand that feeds you."

What civilization generally has done for that country over the past half century is a magnificent story, but it all means nothing when firebrands and war-minded leaders sow hatred and envy in the hearts of the young people of their nation. The only return now for that ingratitude is a lesson in good manners administered by the armed forces and power of the United Nations. Perhaps some day the Japanese will come to understand what that language means.

Deep Political Intrigues

There appears to have been solid ground, according to reports from London, Eng., for the belief that the riots in Tangier last week were deliberately fomented by the Axis powers, particularly Germany, to stir up trouble in Spain against Great Britain. If that is so, and the explosion with accompanying casualties, coincides with despatches from Central European points, then Hitler and his advisers have been carrying on propaganda to create hate in the hearts of the Moslem population for the British.

* * *

Tangier is a seaport of Morocco about fifty miles southwest of the great fortress of Gibraltar, or, put another way, about fifty miles across the strait, which is the western entrance to the Mediterranean Sea. The town stands on two heights near the spacious bay and presents a striking appearance from the sea, rising in the form of an amphitheatre and defended by walls and a castle. The harbor is not much more than a roadstead but a large trade is done. In 1662 Tangier was annexed to the English crown as a part of the dower of the Infanta of Portugal, wife of King Charles II., but in 1684 it was abandoned because of the expense of keeping it up.

The significance of the outbreak there, assuming that it was the outcome of design—and the happenings of the Arabs and Spanish having baskets filled with stones, together with the timing and placement of bombs all lend weight to the assumption—the significance is that Hitler has long wanted to get into a position where the Axis forces could lay siege to Gibraltar and in a concerted movement, attack Egypt and the Suez Canal. If Spain can be brought into the war, he and his accomplices could come down through that country and direct their guns and parachute troops against the powerful old fortress which has been the guardian to the entrance to, and exit from, the Mediterranean for generations.

Should Germany and Italy be able to create serious discord among the Arabs and other wandering tribes of North Africa and, by any chance get the connivance of General Franco of Spain who used to be a pupil of Marshal Petain and who is to be visited, it is stated, by Madame Petain—should these pieces of intrigue work out favorably for the Axis, the British would be hard pressed to keep the control of the Mediterranean. Of course it is unthinkable that "Gib" could be taken, but there have been rumblings of political craftiness operating in Cairo and it might be that the Germans could cause the Egyptians to give the British a good deal of trouble in that zone.

* * *

The entire stage is set for important movements this coming spring, but as the old saying goes: "Two can play at the same game" and the Allied nations are not likely to come out second in the conflict. The Tangier tragedy is, however, an outcropping of what is going on strategically beneath the strategy surface

Home Makers, Nation Builders

A copy of the four-page leaflet, called Home and Country, and published by the Women's Institutes of Ontario, has found its way to the editor. It is like a breath of wholesome nationalism coming from all parts of this province. The work and influence of these busy, earnest public-spirited home-makers is entitled to praise. They are a solid body —mothers, wives, sisters—all active in countless ways in small towns, villages and farm areas through the land.

It was in 1897 that this Institute movement began in Ontario. During the forty years that have rolled around since, the principles and usefulness of the organization has proved so valuable to community life that the idea has spread to other parts of the world. That is the best tribute that can be offered on its merits.

The mere enumeration of the activities of the Ontario Women's Institutes, as revealed by Home and Country, would take a good deal of space so diversified are they, but what they have done in support of the Canadian Red Cross Society alone is admirable. Raising funds, helping civilian war victims, sending supplies to the Navy League, supplying fresh fruits, canned goods, knitted goods, etc., to those in training and overseas—these are indicative of what has been accomplished. As Hon. P. M. Dewan, Provincial Minister of Agriculture, remarks in a letter of greetings to members: "You have contributed nobly to rural culture and rural efficiency and toward the war effort."

NOTE AND COMMENT

Astonishing how quiet everybody has become since the close of the polls here and there on Monday, February 9. Even the men who have to pay their lost bets have suddenly become mum.

A total war cannot be waged unless every man and woman in this Dominion realizes that he or she is a part of that total. It isn't made up merely of other people.

Libya can begin to sing, if it is ever again in a singing mood: "Back and forth across my plains, in my forts and out again, sand and heat and mud and rains, your battles drive me near insane."

As the Brantford Expositor points out, Germany's national industry is war. It was so generations ago and is so still. Any one who thinks the present conflict is a comparatively modern outbreak should go back and trace through the history of the race.

Records show that there is more money in the banks of Canada today than there was when the first Victory Loan was sold. Industries are busy everywhere and money in volume is in circulation. That kind of information has a good, solid ring.

Here's a tip for the women. In a Los Angeles court Samuel Pick testified that his late wife used to make him remove the wheels from the family car and put them in the parlor so that she could be sure he wouldn't take other women out joy-riding. But why "wheels?" Wouldn't "one" have been enough even if Sam was a lady smasher? Anyway, after taking off four and getting them into the house it's not likely he would feel like going for a spin.

CANDLEMAS

Today the candles burn in Heaven.
I, whom the cloister clothed and fed,
Am set before the gate at morning
To deal the daily poor their bread;

But all my soul is in the chapel
Where the kindled tapers shine—
Silver-stemmed and golden-blossomed
Lilies for our Lady's shine.

Folk who honor holy Peter
Do well to bring the wine-dark rose;
John who leant with love on Jesus
Has his choice of all that grows—

But, Queen of veiled untrodden places
Of the secret human heart!—
Even while I serve the bread, my spirit
Kneels in tranquility apart

And lifts among thy lighted tapers,
One light, its glory and its shame—
The lily of the silver candle,
The lily of the golden flame.

Sir Arnold Box Is King's Master of Musick

By SAMUEL MARCHBANKS

WARS may come and wars may go, but the pageant of monarchy goes on—well, if not forever, at least for a very long time. Attaching to the British monarchy are a number of picturesque offices which seem out of place in our workaday world, but they continue to be filled as often as they fall vacant. The most familiar of these, of course, is that of Poet Laureate, a pleasant distinction conferred upon a versifier, often of high merit. Wordsworth was a great Poet Laureate, and so was Lord Tennyson; lesser fry, such as the late Alfred Austin, who wrote a most unfortunate poem praising the Jameson Raid, have also held the position. Less well known than the office of Poet Laureate is that of Master of the King's Musick, an appointment held, until recently, by Sir Walford Davies. The duties of the Master are not onerous; he advises upon the music to be used at such ceremonial occasions as coronations, royal weddings, and funerals, and sometimes he writes special music for them.

The position was not always so easy. Several British monarchs have been very fond of music and have been severe critics of the concerts which their Masters provided for their entertainment. George III was a distinguished amateur, and played the organ expertly himself; history recounts that after he lost his reason he gained moments of comparative lucidity while thus engaged. Queen Victoria liked music, and her taste was as decided in this respect as it was in all others. She was partial to Scots airs, and sang them with feeling, accompanied by the Prince Consort, who was an admirable pianist and organist. Felix Mendelssohn, who was a friend of the royal couple, had a great admiration for Albert's playing, and Mendelssohn was an honest critic, even of royalty. During the present century the Royal Family have not been greatly interested in music, unless the performances of Edward VIII on the bagpipes may be counted. The favorite air of the late King George V is said to have been "Silver Threads Among the Gold," which he liked to hear played by a brass band. The Master of the King's Musick has had a quiet time of it.

The former Master, Sir Walford Davies, was a musician of considerable importance in the fields of education and religion. He was particularly noted as a choirmaster and while he was organist at the Temple Church from 1898 until 1923 he established the reputation which that institution has since enjoyed as having one of the finest choirs in the world. His ideas about choral singing and his methods for putting those ideas into use, were studied everywhere, and much of the credit for the sensible and beautiful chanting which may now be heard in the better churches must be given to him. Metrical chanting of the psalms was one of his enthusiasms, and he brought it to a high pitch of perfection. His appointmepnt as Master of the King's Musick was a happy one, for he had an excellent grasp of the needs of ceremonial, and his conduct of the music for the funeral of King George V and the coronation of George VI won admiration everywhere for appropriateness and for the dignity with which it was performed. His death last year was a sad loss to British music.

The appointment of Sir Arnold Bax as his successor will arouse neither wonder nor opposition. If Britain were to choose her greatest living musician for the post, certainly Ralph Vaughan Williams would have no close rival, but the Master must be an executive musician rather than a composer. If a young man of promise were to have it, either Constant Lambert or William Walton would have filled the bill, but the position is a reward of merit, rather than an encouragement to young talent. Sir Arnold has written scholarly, harmless, pleasant music for forty years without setting the Thames on fire, and he should find the position of Master no strain on his considerable, though not spectacular, abilities. His appointment should please everybody, and that is no small matter when a court official is to be chosen.

Sir Arnold is an Irishman, deeply interested in all manifestations of the Celtic spirit, and the possessor of a brilliant and subtle wit. Perhaps it is his wit which has limited his abilities as a composer; musicians seem to succeed best when they are able to take themselves very seriously. Certainly Sir Arnold began young enough; he made his first appearance as a composer at St. James' Hall when he was twenty, and gave a recital of his own works when he was twenty-five. Some of his work on Celtic themes has great charm, particularly the early "Celtic Song Cycle" and the later "St. Patrick's Breastplate" and "Tintagel." Sir Arnold has composed much excellent chamber-music, of which the Hart House Quartet has played a good deal in this country.

Sir Arnold is a brother of Clifford Bax, the playwright, who has had a success in his metier comparable with that of the musician. Clifford Bax's plays have special qualities of imagination and poetry, but they are weak as drama. Only one of them "The Rose Without a Thorn" has had a popular success; it drew big audiences in London in 1932. But Clifford Bax has done much good work as a translator and has made four plays by the Italian eighteenth century master, Goldoni, available in an excellent English version. And one play of his, "Socrates" though it was not popular on the stage, is, in the opinion of the present writer, one of the best plays to be written in recent years.

• See Hun Retreat Ending

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12 (AP)—Even before the last tragic scenes of a bitter defeat at Singapore are enacted, London's appraisal of battle reports from Russia lend an added touch of gloom to the war picture.

Behind a prolonged smoke screen of official accounts from both Berlin and Moscow, dealing only with reputed enemy casualties in men and war gear, the London observers detect evidence that the great German retreat is coming to a halt. Moscow does not admit that. Berlin and Helsinki both tell of raging Red Army attacks still being delivered despite staggering losses all the way from north of Leningrad to the Crimea.

There has been for days, however, a significant lack of specific Russian claims, official or unofficial, of new towns of strategic importance retaken. Estimates of Nazi casualties and accounts of numerous "populated places" regained afford little data on which to found tactical or strategic analysis.

ATTACK SPRINGBOARDS LOST

Nor is it possible yet to measure the extent to which that amazing Russian winter offensive has crippled Nazi ability to resume the attack when weather permits. However, it has made even greater inroads on Hitler's reserves of men, equipment and oil than the aggregate of territory retaken by Red forces would imply.

Hitler has lost, too, attack springboards of incalculable value around Moscow and southward in the Upper Donets Basin if it is another mighty attempt to destroy Russian armies that he is contemplating.

That many not be his purpose. Berlin has continuously trumpeted forecasts of a greater offensive in Russia in the spring. That has been the excuse presented for surrender of ground so recently won at great cost in German blood.

Nevertheless, Hitler's grim experience in Russia may have led to a complete revision of strategy. If Russian expectations, strongly supported by Sir Stafford Cripps, former British Ambassador in Moscow, are borne out, he will localize his spring attack, centring it on his prime objective, which is oil.

STILL NEAR CAUCASUS

There is some support for that view in two factors. The most stubborn German stand of the great retreat was on the Azov Sea flank, in the Taganrog area, after falling back from Rostov. The enemy is still within striking distance of Rostov, entry port to the Caucasus.

The single Nazi counter-offensive that has retaken and held an important strategic point since the retreat began was in the Crimea, at Feodosyia. The Nazi grip there threatens Red forces on recaptured Kerch Peninsula. That is the backdoor via Kerch Strait to the Caucasus and its oil.

Weather probabilities also indicate that the first resurgence of the German attack will be in the south. April is a preferred German battle month in the Southeastern Ukraine and the Crimea, according to precedent. Mechanization has only tended to advance the date of practicability somewhat.

Whatever else the Nazi warlord is hatching for spring delivery in the Mediterranean or elsewhere, a concentrated new onslaught toward the Caucasus, perhaps implemented by holding action elsewhere across Russia, seems a logical development. And a halt in the great Nazi retreat may be setting the stage now for just that.

• Sino-Russian Co-operation

CHINA'S full-fledged offensive against Japan, for which Chiang Kai-shek has been planning and waiting for the past five years, will be launched in force in the near future, according to Dr. Lin Yutang, famous Chinese author and journalist, who reports in a signed article in The American Magazine that his country now has 5,000,000 trained men in reserve, in addition to the 3,000,000 in active service.

"Chiang Kai-shek is far too astute a man to start a counter-offensive too early," writes Dr. Linn, who recently returned to this country after conferring with the Chinese generalissimo. "I have never seen a cooler, more masterful military genius, more in possession of himself. Only when the picture changes and the first flush of Japanese self-confidence is waning with the coming nearer of the American fleet and the bombing of Tokyo and Osaka, and the Japanese morale deteriorates, as it is bound to do as the months go by, will the Chinese government launch a full-fledged offensive, for which it has been planning and waiting for the past five years.

"At the same time, as soon as action starts in Manchuria, China's help in massing all her man power to attack the enemy from the rear may be counted upon. In fact, the full plan for this co-operation with Soviet Russia already exists.

"Little is known generally of the strength of the Chinese army. Owing to the strict discipline of this army enforced by General Chiang, even the names of the Chinese generals are usually kept out of the war stories. But China has been waiting for the day of the general counter-offensive. She has an army of at least 5,000,000 trained men always held in reserve for this prospective encounter, and she has categorically offered to place these men at the service of the Allies.

"This army is officered by probably the youngest group of officers in the world, outside Soviet Russia. Through the five years of war, these officers have come to know every Japanese tactic and developed a counter-strategy for it, so that it is like the playing of an old game.

"But it is expected that in any effective counter-offensive, the allied air force must do its part to supplement the handicaps under which the Chinese are fighting. Real effective striking power must come with increased supplies of anti-tank guns and 75 mm. artillery. The fact that China controls the entire southeastern coastal provinces with the exception of the ports of Shanghai, Ningpo, Amoy, Swatow and Canton means that Chinese air bases will be available for American bombers."

THE BRITISH WAY

AFTER telling Mr. Churchill what it thought of his conduct of the war—which has been not altogether to the liking of the British public and press — the Commons gave the Prime Minister Thursday a 464-1 vote of confidence.

So runs the British way. They insist on their right to criticize their leaders, then they tell the Government to "carry on"—and do better in the future. The resultant show of unity disconcerts the enemy and is something the dictator nations simply cannot understand.—Detroit Free Press.

A Bit of Nonsense

"Tommy," asked his stingy uncle, "how would you feel if I were to give you a penny?"

"I think," replied Tommy, "that I would feel a little faint at first, but I'd try and get over it."

"The Utterly-Utters are just wild about society, aren't they?"

"Why, my dear, they're such climbers that they've even named their youngest daughter Ivy!"

Not Superstitious

The smiling, confident young man entered the personnel department of a large banking house. He stepped up to the manager's desk.

"Good day, sir," he yodelled. "Has your firm any call for a highly intelligent, college trained man?"

The manager poised a pencil over a blank.

"Your name?"

"Caswell Shor," replied the job seeker.

"Experience?"

"Just out of college," admitted the lad.

"I see," said the manager. "And what type of position are you seeking?"

"Well," mused the young man, "I want something in the executive line. A vice-presidency, for example."

The manager put down his pencil.

"I'm really very sorry," he said, sarcastically. "But we already have twelve vice-presidents."

The young man waved a hand.

"Oh, that's all right," he stated happily. "I'm not superstitious!"

OUR FUTURE MARKETS

WITH the coming of peace, Canada will once more have to find markets for exports other than materials of war. New and extensive markets may be found in those very countries to which we now send guns and tanks and aircraft. The future trade possibilities that lie in present military alliances should not be overlooked. The time may not be far distant when a trade mission to the Soviet Union might prove just as useful as the one which the Canadian government recently sent to South America. —Halifax Chronicle.

THIS WAR AND THE LAST

Boot and shoe manufacturers are to be subsidized to the extent of seven per cent of the price of their wares it is stated. Canadians who remember war raised the price of a pair of shoes up to about $10 to $20 from a scale of $3.50 to $6.99 or so will rejoice in the thought that this time they may not eventually have to resort to running shoes in lieu of walking on their uppers. Nor may they have to give up butter for oleomargarine or pay $1 to $1.20 a dozen for eggs.—Montreal Gazette.

Irish Girls Welcome A.E.F. To Ireland

A warm welcome was waiting for the American Doughboys when they set foot on Irish soil, and here Irish NA.A.A.F. girls give them hot soup as they land from their transports.

PETERBOROUGH COUNTY SCHOOLS

No. 2 Asphodel (Cameron's) Was Established Over One Hundred Years Ago

School Section No. 2 Asphodel and Section No. 6 Otonabee comprise the comparatively large area of 1,195 acres in Asphodel with an assessment of $31,975 and 2,481 acres in Otonabee assessed at $66,438.20, owned by twenty-one ratepayers.

It was, and is, an ssentially Scottish community. The first owner of the land on which the school now stands on the boundary was John Cameron who emigrated from Scotland in 1820. He took up one acre in his own name and a hundred acres for each of his six sons. All of this land, and more, is still held by his descendants. It was John Cameron who donated the land for the cemetery and a large part of the school yard as well. The south part was given by James Fife.

Other pioneers of the section were James Beckett, Hugh Christie, Robert Harrison, James Barrens, John Lancaster, Stephen Nelsen, James Fife, Alexander Easson and William Learmouth.

The first school, built in the twenties, was a small wooden structure, later used as a woodshed for many years after the erection of the present building. The first board of trustees was composed of Alexander Easson, Hugh Christie and James Beckett.

The first teacher was John Cameron, son of John Cameron, the pioneer. He had received his education in Scotland, and began his teaching career in the old frame school.

Second School In 1857.

The present school, was built in 1857, is a stone structure, its interior measurements being about twenty feet by twenty-five feet. It was erected by William Learmouth, a Scotsman who had settled in the section. It was first equipped with benches and tables, and at one time accommodated more than forty pupils. A library, teacher's desk and chair completed the furnishings. Later, fourteen double seats with desks were installed. About fifteen years ago (1926) the old pine floor was replaced with hardwood. At the same time the dark ceiling and walls were murescoed a light green. The regulation equipment of scales, globe measures, etc., also the flag and flagpole, had been provided, but the pole has since been taken away. The school has always been heated by a stove. In the early days the wood supply was received by having each father deliver half a cord of wood for every child attending the school. Coal has been used, but at present wood is burned. A sanitary water-tank now replaces the former uncovered pail

Several paintings hang in the school, most of which have been placed in recent years. An oil painting of an old Indian village was presented to the school by the artist, Miss Helen E. Cameron.

The first district school fair was held in 1914. Cameron School took part under the direction of Miss J. MacAlpine. Since that time the pupils have been enthusiastic partakers until the recent suspension of fairs.

Music Begun in 1936

Music was first taught by a qualified instructor in September, 1936. Homer Oullette was in charge, receiving the sum of $60 a year, and guaranteeing at least thirty lessons of one hour's duration. On Thursday evening, May 20, 1937, the pupils took part in a recital held by Mr. Oullette in Douro. Progress made during the year was shown by No. 2 pupils being the only first year group to sing a two-part song.

Hot lunches, in conjunction with household science, were instituted in 1926 by Miss Grace Cameron, and have been continued since that time. The boys take a deep interest in manual training and agriculture has been taught since 1937. Miss Grace Cameron and Miss Helen Cameron were certificated teachers.

During the first few years of the school the inspector was Dr. Poole of Norwood. Later, the Rev. Mr. Farrer, an Anglican minister, ful-

School Hours

At the monthly meeting of the Board of School Trustees of the Township School Area, it was decided that Schools No. 2 and 4, operate on Daylight Savings Time, and Schools No. 5, 6 and 7 on Standard Time until April 1st. It was felt that in the case of the last three, the earlier time would inflict hardship on the children, because of the distance to be travelled through deep snow, in some cases two or three miles.

TOM McARTHUR'S RINK WINS CANADA PACKERS' CURLING TROPHY

Jack Wade Gets First Goal In Major Loop

CLEVELAND, Feb. 12.—(CP)—Cleveland Barons are on their way up the American Hockey League ladder again today and are giving the leading Hershey Bears something to worry about for top spot in the Western section standing.

Last night Cleveland gained a four-point victory when they toppled the lowly Philadelphia Rockets 3-1, while Hershey bowed to Pittsburg by 7-3. The victory boosted Barons to within four points of the Bears.

New Haven came through in the final period to beat Providence Reds 3-2 and take over sole possession of second place in the Eastern division standing.

Springfield still holds down first place ahead of Eagles with a comfortable margin, while in fourth place behind Reds come Washington and Philadelphia. In the Western section, Indianapolis is but two points behind the second-place Barons with Buffalo holding down fourth spot two points in front of the tail-end Pittsburg club.

The veteran Norm Locking, who has a penchant for coming through with important goals, scored the clincher for Cleveland against Philadelphia in the closing period.

Rockets Needed A Win

It was a bitter pill for the Rockets who had battled desperately throughout the first half of the game to gain their first win in the last 17 games. Foster had equalled a goal by Daley in the middle session, and after Locking made it 2-1 for Cleveland in the third period, Les Cunningham also tallied.

A second period outburst gave Pittsburg Hornets victory over Hershey. The teams had played on even terms over the first and third periods with two goals apiece, but Hornets scored five goals in the middle frame against one for the losers.

Red Heron and Harry Currie tallied two goals apiece for Hornets. Other goal getters were Mickey Blake, Lloyd Roubell and Norman Mann. The Hershey goals were scored by Bob Gracie, Jack Wade and Rookie Bob Kirk.

New Haven, which has found winning hockey games a bit of a problem of late, managed to come through at the right time to turn aside Providence Reds. Twice Providence took the lead only to see the Eagles rally to tie it up. Then at 16:44 of the closing period, Norm Burns, on loan from New York Rangers, came through with the deciding marker of the game.

Curling News

By HERB MARTIN

There were many spectators throughout the day's curling, but none more interested than Mr. J. Mackay, Sherbrooke street, 92 years of age, and none less inteested than the six weeks old babe of Mrs. J. Wilson. The infant slept through all the din and noise for well over two hours.

Al. Murray, who played hockey with New York Americans for seven years, came down from Kitchener and played second stone for the rink entered from that town.

The white sweaters won by D. Chariton's crew at the last bonspiel looked real natty.

No one can deny the fact that Ross Frederick Downey does try hard and to the last.

It may be a coincidence, but all three extra ends were played on Ice No. 1.

Albert Bottum, Bobcaygeon, the dean of curling in this district, not only came down to renew old acquaintances, but he brought along with him his brother, his two sons, his daughter-in-law and his grandson.

Among the ladies who were seen on No. 8 were: Mrs. E. Metcalfe, Mrs. H Bruce, Mrs. G. Green, Mrs. J. Fanning, Mrs. E. Purvis, Mrs. J. Green, Mrs. M. Rishor, Mrs. D. Davis, Mrs. D. Carke, Mrs. R. Best, Mrs. M. Comstock, Mrs. J. Harkness, Mrs. G. Putnam, Miss G. Comstock, Mrs. A. Gibbs, Mrs. A. Robinson, all of Peterborough Ladies' Curling Club, and Mrs. A. Bottum of Bobcaygeon.

What a grand job Gar Brown did in skipping the rink of "newlyweds"?

Who had a better right to win the cup than Tom McArthur? Is he not the president?

Some of the scores were as outstanding as the new 1942 car markers.

It would be a kind of a miss if Ben Ward of Oshawa, was not somewhere in the limelight.

From our point of view, probably the best played game of the series was between C. Giroux and G. Braund. It was on Ice No. 4 and was a daisy.

And with the presentation of the prizes the 1942 open bonspiel season came to a close around midnight.

3-Goal Lead Overcome By Campbellford

CAMPBELLFORD, Feb. 12 (ENS)—Campbellford puck-punchers overcame a three-goal lead and drove to a 5-3 victory over Stirling Juveniles here Wednesday night in an O.M.H.A. contest that topped all past performances of the current ice season. J. Vandervoort coralled the first counter while Storie was in the hoosegow and MacIntosh encored two minutes later to give the visitors a two goal lead which Mac didn't think was sufficient so when Hamilton was busy cooling off in the box he juggled another one past Osborne. This made it look as though the Stirling crew were well on their way to winning their first game in Campbellford and marching into top position of the league. But it was too early for the pay off and as the second began Hamilton buzzed into the enemy camp and banged his own re-bound over the goal line. Ken Dunk, another busy member of the home crew juggled the puck around with Milne then fired to cut the visitors lead to one, then with Hamilton's help he returned to the visitors bailiwick to knot the count. Hamilton cruised in again in short order and after taking careful aim picked the corner pocket, putting the homesters out in front at the end of the period. A blue line shot by J. Storie clinched victory in the third, but there was still plenty of excitement left as Milne earned a major penalty for tossing his stick and while the locals were short Stirling gave Osborne a busy time.

Campbellford—Goal, Osborne; defense, Hamilton, Milne; centre, Dunk; wings, Little, Pollock; alternates, Smith, Bertrand, Storie, Curle, Bartley.

Stirling: Goal, D. Hulin; defence, MacIntosh, Wright; centre, B. Bastedo; wings, Patterson, Vandervoort; alternates, D. Bastedo, Tulloch, Scrimshaw, Jackman, Utman.

Referee—Red Townsend, Belleville

Keen Playing Features Annual Bonspiel

It fell to the lot of Tom McArthur, the popular president of Peterborough Curling Club, to pilot his rink into first place, in the bonspiel held in this city Wednesday, and by so doing earned for he and his rink the right to hold the Canada Packers' Trophy for one year; Jimmy Richmond, also from the local club, came a bang-up second, only two points down, while third, fourth and fifth prizes were won by Ben Ward, Oshawa; G. Braund, Peterborough, and B. Dench, Lakefield, respectively.

Keen Competition

So keen was the competition for honors that a shot or two, one way or another, in the last round might have easily changed the whole setup. No one was sure of anything until the score sheets were all handed in.

With rinks from Kitchener, Oshawa, Cobourg, Lindsay, Fenelon Falls, Lakefield, Dunsford, Campbellford and Peterborough entered, probably the best bonspiel ever staged by our club, under the three-game system was successfully concluded around 12.30 o'clock midnight.

The comments by the visitors on the improvements made to the rink this year must have been "real music" to the members of the executive, who went all out in an endeavor to make conditions better for curling.

The ice was in excellent condition and stood up well, considering the punishment it took.

SPORTS — DAY BY DAY

By FRED D. CRAIG

The moving back to Peterborough by the military authorities of Guy Roach of the Kingston Combines will give the local Soldiers a welcome reinforcement for the tough group final series that awaits the group leaders. Roach, who formerly played in the United States Eastern League and with the Springfield Indians in the American loop is a big hard-hitting defence man with a nice turn of speed and plenty of scoring drive on his own account. He has been a tower of strength to the Kingston Combines this season and has punched in a number of timely goals that helped to keep the Penitentiary City in the running until last week. Roach, while a sterling defence player has also had considerable experience as a forward and it has not yet been announced as to which role he will be called upon to fill here. In any case he should be a big help to the Petes in their battle for group honors and for the Senior B championship, and there is joy in the local camp at his return to Peterborough.

* * * * * *

Before Bre'er Colling recovers his breath and has worded a protest over the transfer of Roach to the local Soldiers we hasten to point out that the difference between Roach coming back here and the moving of four Kingston players to Belleville in mid-season is that the Peterborough transaction is entirely on the level and within the C.A.H.A. wartime regulations while the switching of the four players to Belleville has not a leg to stand on if the regulations were followed. So far as Roach is concerned hockey law is crystal clear on the point. His case is covered by section (a) of the wartime regulations which reads as follows: "The residence rule will be entirely suspended for players engaged in full time military service of any kind and furthermore, such players may play for more than one club in the same season if they are moved by the military authorities during the course of the playing season." Roach, who was in training at the local Military Training Centre late last fall was moved to Kingston at the beginning of the hockey season and turned out with the Combines. Now he is being moved back to the local camp again and he is eligible for the Soldiers' team.

George Soup Campbell of the Oshawa Times-Gazette is worrying, although probably not very seriously, over the question of whether or not the Petes will suffer by reason of having to wait for the final series in the group playoffs. Says Bre'er Campbell: "Peterborough soldiers headed the group and will get a bye into the finals. Whether or not that will prove good remains to be seen. From this distance we doubt if a layoff, after having had only a few games anyway, will do the Petes much good. Meanwhile Belleville looms as a real threat." And then the Oshawa scribe gives the world a tip as to a possible Whitby reinforcement: "Coach "Hap" Hamel informs us that he has signed up Bus Benson, another member of the Peoples' mercantile league team and is now waiting to see if the O.H.A. will O.K. the certificate. Coach "Hap" might have been better advised to sign a player who wasn't so likely to be playing Wednesday nights."

An All-Star Outfit

The batting order of the Eglington R.C.A.F. cage team which clashes with the Outboard Marines in an exhibition game at the Y.M.C.A. gymnasium on Saturday night reads like an all-American squad. Featured of course is Tony Golab, football hero and Canada's outstanding athlete for 1941 who happens to be about as effective in basketball as on the gridiron. Here are some of the others in the Flyers' list: Jack Moulesong who was captain of the Indiana State champions in 1940; McLaughlin, formerly of Florida University; Cavanagh who played with the Iowa intermediate state champions; Dion, South Dakota State College; Assistant Coach Buck of Texas; E. Vandenburg, Ohio Collegiate School; Clofeelter, Illinois State team; and Harris, Wisconsin University. The Canadian members of the squad in addition to Golab are Max Goldberg and Eby, Toronto Y.M.C.A. stars and Waddington of Assumption College, Windsor. Coach of the team is Alexander, former Balmy Beach flying wing and the manager is Flying Officer Light, former boxing coach of McGill University. That is surely an all-star array and Outboard Marines who have defeated Belleville R.C. A.F. and Shag Park's Navy team in succession will have to really turn on the heat Saturday night.

The City Basketball League and the Ladies' Cage loop are pulling off an exchange feature this week that is a nice little bit of co-operation and that should help both organizations. The City League has transferred a regulation battle between the leading Dominions and the Quakers who are right at their heels to the Y.W.C.A. Friday night and this tussle, looming up as one of the best of the season, will take the place of one of the girls' games scheduled for Friday night. The boys will swing into action at 7.30 o'clock and at the conclusion of their game the two C.G.E. teams, the Generals and Electrics will clash in a regular ladies' league game that promises to be a honey. The double bill should pack the Y.W.C.A. gallery. The girls are reciprocating by transferring one of their Friday night's games, a tilt between Westclox and St. John's to the Y.M.C.A. gym on Saturday night as an opener for the Eglington R.C.A.F.-Outboard Marines game. This mixed card should also be a sure-fire magnet.

Belleville Wins First

Belleville Reliance got the jump in the playoff series with Whitby last night, taking a short-handed Whitby team 8 goals to 5. The second game will be played tomorrow night in Oshawa and the outlook now is that the series will go three games, requiring a third battle in Belleville Monday night and making it impossible for the Petes to see action in the final series before Wednesday. Whitby were without Jerry Cooper, Doc Dafoe, and Ab Barnes last night and only had three subs. As a result both lines had to be broken up, with Covert centring Johnny Heard and Gamble and the second line made up of Bragg, Bagnall and Browne. The latter a veteran defence man, was the surprise package of the engagement, firing three pucks past Archie Major. The weakened Whitby team gave Belleville a stubborn battle and two minutes before the end the score was 6 to 5. Then Goalie Hurst was taken out and Coach Hamel sent out six attackers but the strategy back-fired, and Belleville picked up two easy goals to cinch the affair. With a full complement tomorrow night Whitby should win and sew up the series.

There is one hockey player in the O.H.A. who should change his name if he has any illusions about having it appear correctly in newspaper reports. He is Joe Sponarski (correct), goalie of the Trenton Flyers who would be well advised to accept a shorter label. The first time he played goal against the Petes this season we had him listed as Sponorski. Ken Colling of the Belleville sheet printed his name as Spanorski. Up in Whitby the scribe there had the Flyer goalie in the lineup as Spinarski. We finally got the right combination of letters on the last appearance of the Flyers but before that the name had certainly taken a terrible beating from all and sundry. Joe Spon would get by a lot easier.

Sporting Chili Con Carne: Manager Fred Scates and Coach Jim Ellis of the Military Training Centre team scouted the Whitby-Belleville game in Belleville last night....Two former well known hockey players were here yesterday in the persons of Al Murray, former Amerks' defence star and Gamey Lederman, ex-Buffalo Bison who curled with Diesbourg's Kitchener rink at the local bonspiel....President Tom McArthur's win of the Canada Packers' Trophy was generally popular....The result was in doubt until the last end of the game between Ben Ward of Oshawa and F. Green....Contrary to most Air Force cage teams the Trenton R.C.A.F. squad is made up almost entirely of Canadian stars and they really have a team....Pepper Martin, one of Belleville's new recruits from Kingston scored three goals for them last night. The Queen's player certainly earned his transportation anyway....Tony Galento is barried in Michigan as a wrestling referee and that seems to be a new low for Two-Ton.

Bauer Cuts Age So Trio Join Together

BOSTON, Feb. 12.—The friendship of the three Kitchener Kids has been one of many incidents. Yesterday another link in the chain of friendship and loyalty among Boston's famed Krauts is revealed in the fact that Bobby Bauer, oldest of the trio, falsified his age, against himself, so that these three hockey players would be together in answering the call for Canadian military service.

Now that the young men—Bauer, Milt Schmidt and Woody Dumart—are duly enlisted members of the Royal Canadian Air Force, the story of Bauer's intentional mistake—made some twenty months ago—can be told for the first time.

Had Secret Pact.

The revelation offers conclusive proof of the Musketeer spirit among the three Krauts. It shows that they had a secret pact among them, whereby they were subject to call in the same military class when actually Bauer should have been outside of the category of his two mates in Canada's so-called military age of 21 to 25 at the time of reigstration.

The Krauts agreed to stick together and go together, when the time came to enter the service, and hence Bauer counted himself in when he didn't have to. In registering in July, 1940, Bobby gave his date of birth as February 16, 1916. The correct date, as printed in every hockey guide since he entered the professional ranks, is February 16, 1915.

Thus Bauer called himself 25 at a time that he was 26. Actually he will be 27 years old next week. He is three years older than Schmidt, who was born in Kitchener on March 5, 1918, and he's twenty-two months older than Dumart, who saw his first light on December 23, 1916.

These facts explain why the three Krauts received their notices from Canadian War Service officials for duty in the Home Guard all in the same week last month. Many in Canada couldn't understand how Bauer was included in the same group with Schmidt and Dumart.

Didn't Tell Ross.

Bobby, however, steadfastly refused to offer any explanation, even after the story came out of London, Ont., that he would be reclassified if he could show evidence that he was a year older than he had listed himself on his original registration. Bobby also remained mum when questioned at length by Art Ross some weeks ago.

The chances are that Bobby would have left Boston still guarding his secret if one of his pals did not feel that the circumstances were such that the confidence could be broken justifiably at this time. He knew that Bobby had given his true age with the R.C.A.F. and, after all, there can be no penalty for a falsification that counted him "in" when he didn't have to be.

Anyway, the Three Musketeers of the Bruins, comprising the National Hockey League's best two-way line in recent years, step out of the local picture and enter the service the way they always wanted it—as a unit. Bauer a young married man, will go along with his fellow-Krauts.

Westclox Girls Beat Normalites

Sparked by Audrey Flynn, who ran up a score of 17 points in a fine display of sharpshooting, the Westclox team piled up one of the largest scores of the season at the expense of the Normal School girls in a Ladies' Basketball League game at the Y.W.C.A. last night. Thus the future school teachers are still seeking their first win. The score last night was 43 to 17 in favor of the Clockmakers. The Normalites held their powerful rivals fairly well under control in the first half, and were only down 16 to 12 at the rest period, but the Westclox girls turned it on in the last half to run up a score of 25 points against 5 for the losers, and thus take the decision by the big margin of 26 points.

R. Roblin and E. Pitney made a good stand for the Normal team in the first half, the former scoring seven points and the latter six, while Audrey Flynn tossed in four field baskets and cashed in on a free throw for a total of nine points in the initial period.

Down only four points, starting the second half the school team was smothered under an avalanche of Westclox baskets in the later stages of the battle. Audrey Flynn almost duplicated her first half performance by scoring eight points, and the whole Westclox team got the scoring urge, with M. Hawthorne and Bea Saunders each tossing in three baskets and Frances Bestard, Irene Bullock, and J. Crowe all having a hand in piling up the score.

E. Van Allen had one basket and a successful free throw and E. Pitney one field goal, but those five points were all the Normalites could collect in the second half.

The teams:

Westclox 43 — M. Hawthorne 6, F. Bestard 4, M. McFadden, Irene Bullock 2, J. Crowe 4, B. Saunders 10, A. Flynn 17.

Normal School 17—R. Roblin 7, K. McMillan, R. Ainsworth, Y. Rowan, E. Van Allen 3, M. McInnes, E. Pitney 6, C. McKelvin 1.

Referee—L. Grose.

Umpire—Victor Coleman.

Roseneath Claims Three Wins In Row

ROSENEATH, Feb. 12 — (ENS).—For the third time in a week Roseneath won an exhibition game of hockey on the home rink. The game was played on Wednesday night against Grafton. The score was 9 to 6.

A large crowd attended and the Roseneath fans were most enthusiastice over their team's three victories in a row. Thomas and Gallagher were the visiting team's stars, the former scored three goals and Gallagher has two to his credit.

Halstead scored two goals for Roseneath.

The eams:

Grafton — Goal, Johns; defence, Immel, Thomas; centre, Gallagher; wings, Walsh Thomas; subs., Burrison, Harnden, C. Harnden.

Roseneath — Goal, R. Uren; defence, Smith and McMillan; centre, Schrock; wings, A. Pacey and Halstead; subs., Covert, Mouncey, J. Pacey Clark, B. Uren, Sagar.

Hudson, Watson Undefeated In 'Peg Tourney

WINNIPEG, Feb. 12—(CP).—Two former Canadian curing champions remained undefeated today in the two primary events—the Dingwall and Eaton's trophy—of the 54th annual Manitoba bonspiel.

Gordon Hudson of Winnipeg, Brier winner in 1928-29, chalked up three victories yesterday, advancing through the third round of the Dingwall and second round of the Eaton's. Ken Watson of Winnipeg, 1936 champion, scored a double victory, moving into the third round of the Dingall and also the third round of Eaton's.

Hudson's rink downed C. R. Parker of Sanford 10-4 last night in Eaton's play after defeating C. Youngman of Winnipeg, 13-5, and W. D. Williams of Winnipeg, 11-9 in Dingwall draws.

Watson coasted through to a 12-1 triumph over E. Middleton of Winnipeg in the Eaton's. Earlier he defeated E. Kirkwood of Winnipeg, 13-11 in the Dingwall.

Another former champion, R. J. Gourley, winner of the Macdonald's Briar Tankard in 1931, who was eliminated in the Dingwall third round, came back in his night game to triumph 9-4 over J. Johnson of Baldur, Man., in Eaton's play. His quartet lost the afternoon game 12-11 to A. M. Hume of Oak River, Man.

Other leading Manitoba rinks still in the running in the Eaton's competition are Leo Johnson of Winnipeg, Brier champion in 1934, and Al Wakefield of Winnipeg, who represented Manitoba in the 1941 championship, won by Howard Palmer of Calgary.

Marines Beaten As Airmen Win 18th Straight

The Outboard Marines ran into the hottest team in Canadian basketball last night when they invaded Trenton and were beaten 67 to 34 by Brian Casey's Trenton R.C.A.F. team. It was the 18th straight win for the Flyers, who are said to be gunning for the Dominion championship this season.

Led by Flynn, elongated centre star of last year's Dominion champions, the Vancouver Thunderbirds, the Air Force team had too much on the ball for the Peterborough team last night. Their speed, clever ball-handling, and accurate shooting were too much for the Marines to cope with, especially in the first half when the Flyers ran wild to lead 42 to 13 at half-time.

When the visitors got their bearings in the almost square R.C.A.F. gymnasium, they made a much better showing in the second half.

The Peterborough players came back raving about the playing of Flynn. They claim that the Vancouver boy who had top score of 26 points did not blow a single shot during the engagement. In that hectic first half Flynn tossed in 9 baskets and in doing so checked Joe Stewart, one of the Outboards' sharpshooters right off the scoring sheet. Ken Bundy and Breathet, formerly of Simpson Grads, also helped materially in the downfall of the Marines, the latter having 14 points, while Bundy tossed in five baskets and also converted three free throws. Brian Casey leader of the squad, made plenty of plays, although his scoring efforts were not as successful as usual.

Top scorers for the Outboard Marines were Doug. McPherson and Jim Thorburn, each with 9 points, an unusually small total for the latter.

The Flyers scored almost at will in the first period, but the Outboards came back strongly after the rest period and were outscored only 25 to 21 in the second session.

The teams:

Trenton R.C.A.F. 67 — Casey 6, Bundy 13, Flynn 26, Breathit 14, Freedman 6, Brims 2.

Peterborough 34 — Stewart 6, McPherson 9, Thorburn 9, McIntyre 2, Jakafby, Rogow 2, Craig 6.

Bees Win 5-2.

The second game of the fixture saw Farnsworth Bees trounce Roslin in a fast and rough game by the count of 5-2.

Parks opened the scoring for Roslin only to have Marsh take passes from the Meraw brothers for two counters. The count was tied in the second period, when Carleton drove in a shot from a scramble on the side.

The Bees, however, in the last frame, went ahead to tally four, with the two Meraw brothers scoring a goal each, and J. Marsh taking a pass from D. Meraw for the third counter of the period.

Considerable controversy occurred over the use of one player by Farnsworth.

Majors Nab Lead Whip Saints 10-3, Pay Sailors $800

TORONTO, Feb. 12 — (CP). — The regular schedule of the Ontario Hockey Association's Senior "A" series ended last night, and it's a safe bet nothing like the same strange finish will be duplicated in the O.H.A. again.

The bizarre ending involved Hamilton Majors primarily. While they were defeating St. Catharines Saints 10-3 to displace the Saints in first place by one point, O.H.A. officials announced that Hamilton had agreed to pay $800 to Port Colborne Sailors as compensation for failing to appear in Port Colborne for a scheduled game last Monday "without reasonable excuse."

The announcement said that the O.H.A. had ruled that Hamilton pay this amount, or be barred from competing in the playoffs. Failure of Hamilton to consent to pay the money would have seen the fifth-place Combines replacing the Majors in the playoffs.

Last night's victory dropped St. Catharines out of first place where they have been for most of the season. By ending in first place the Majors will meet Toronto Marlboros in one of the best-of-seven game semi-final series starting Friday night in Hamilton. The other series brings together St. Catharines and the fourth-place Niagara Falls Weavers, with the first in St. Catharines.

Sailors Lose 10-3

Toronto took over undisputed possession of third place when they defeated Port Colborne Sailors 10-3 in the other game played last night. Prior to the game they were tied with the Weavers for the third spot with 30 points each.

Johnny Conick paced Hamilton's attack against St. Catharines, scoring four goals. Hugh Barlow picked up three, Shillington two, and Bill Dinning one. Paul Mundrick and Hal Cooper scored for the Saints.

The leading scorer for Marlboros in its victory over Port Colborne was Bobby Copp, who counted four goals. Johnny Acheson followed him closely for scoring honors by counting three times. Whitey Farrant with two goals and Gaye Stewart with one were the other scorers for Marlboros.

Shuttleworth scored two of the Port Colborne goals with Miner getting the other.

Think Canadians Drifting For The Shelf

(By SCOTT YOUNG.)

TORONTO, Feb. 12 (CP)—Montreal Canadiens seem to be drifting steadily toward elimination from the Stanley Cup playoffs, and their tail-end position in the National Hockey League can be pinned on little but a general lack of ability.

Dick Irvin has some good young material, but not enough experience. Goalkeeping problems have not been solved by the acquisition of Paul Bibeault. Bert Gardiner—Bibeault's predecessor—was a fair kind of a goalkeeper but he couldn't stand up under doing the club's goalkeeping and backchecking both. Bibeault is no better than Gardiner was. Bibeault may get better. Gardiner, unfortunately, got worse.

If Canucks had one really good defenceman to team with Kenny Reardon, or a 20-goal forward to take some of the load off the veteran Toe Blake, the club probably would finish in fifth place.

Johnny Quilty, rookie-of-the-year last season, is doing fairly well and so is the Heffernan-Morin-O'Connor line. The trouble with Canadiens, in brief, is that they make up a good supporting cast for two stars, but they haven't got the stars.

Americans and Detroit aren't much better, and a three-game winning streak for any one of the three clubs would practically assure a place in the six-club playoffs. But Canucks didn't look like a club to embark on anything—even a one-game winning streak—when trounced 8-1 by Boston Tuesday. An encounter with the recovered Toronto Maple Leafs in Montreal tonight is the immediate prospect for the Montrealers, and the promise for a Canuck recovery is slight.

Chicago Black Hawks have been held in considerable respect around the circuit this year for their rugged and effective play—even more so since drubbing New York Rangers 5-2 Tuesday. Tonight they'll be at home to the fifth-place (tied with Amerks) Red Wings.

Remember When—

By The Canadian Press

Hundreds of soccer fans at Motherwell nursed broken heads and a number were taken to the police station after a fight at a Scottish Cup match between Celtic and Motherwell 10 years ago today. With the grounds taxed to capacity, hundreds rushed the barriers and attempted to get in the stands. Fighting broke out at various points and it was some time before police restored order. Motherwell won the game 2-0.

2 Die In Hotel Fire

MANCHESTER, England, Feb. 12 —(CP).—Two persons were killed and 22 were injured early today when fire heavily damaged the Deansgate Hotel here. Twenty-eight others escaped by ladders.

The Sports Round-Up

By HUGH S. FULLERTON, JR.

NEW YORK, Feb. 12 (AP) — It was a swell gesture of Boston Bruins to hand the "Kraut" kids a whole year's pay, but you could expect that club to give its soldiers a good sendoff . . . Weston Adams, the Bruins' president, has just received his commission as naval lieutenant; Art Ross, Jr., the manager's son, teaches advanced flying in the R.C.A.F. and another son, John, soon will be in the United States . . . Other Big League hockey clubs are doing equally well . . . Red Dutton of Brooklyn Amerks has two sons in England with the R.C.A.F.; Conny Smythe dropped out as head man at Toronto to rejoin the army and his son Safford is in the Royal Canadian Navy . . . British flying students in the United States have given demonstrations of Rugby as far west as Miami, Okla., but so far we haven't heard of their trying to popularize soccer, another British favorite which is supposed to be the best "conditioner" of all.

Spring Braining

Senator Jim Meade, who is vice president of the Buffalo Baseball Club, has done some checking up with the Federal Power Commission and reports that minor league ball clubs don't have to worry about night games being curtailed unless there is a decided change in conditions . . . Looking for more .300 hitters and fancier prices for them, the Texas League has adopted a livelier ball this year and at least two Piedmont League clubs have shortened their fences . . . Homer (Dixie) Howell, who is slated to go to Havana with the Dodgers, has been playing ball there all winter . . . Unless Dutch Leonard pitches the opening game for Washington this year, outfielder George Case will be the only Senator holdover from last season's first game. Eight others have been sold, traded or drafted.

Odds—and some Ends

Racing fans finally have had a chance to see the touted Peruvian horse, Meissen, in action . . . and at last report he still was Meissen in action . . . Cancellation of the National Public Links and Women's Trans-Mississippi Golf Tournaments has left Colorado without a major links event for the first year since 1934 . . . During the recent heavy dew in California, James Green, chief Air Raid Warden at Napa, Calif., caught an eight-inch speckled trout at the intersection of two of the town's main streets. He displayed the trout to prove it.

Oshawa Loses Ace Centre Man

OSHAWA, Feb. 12—(Special).—A cloud of gloom settled over the Oshawa General's dressing room last night when it was learned that the team had lost the services of its crack centre ice star, Ronnie Nelson, for at least five weeks.

Playing in Guelph on Monday night, Nelson figured in a slight skirmish next to the boards, and after falling to the ice he got up and skated off. X-ray pictures taken yesterday disclosed that the lower portion of the right forearm bone had been broken at the wrist. The attending physician estimated that it would be three weeks before the cast was removed and at least another two before Nelson will be able to handle a hockey stick with safety.

Glasses For Troops

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12—(AP)—Mobile optical shops have been organized to accompany armies in the field and supply spectacles to the soldiers, the United States War Department announced today.

Lenahan Takes Golf Medal

MIAMI, Feb. 12—(AP). — Three former big leaguers carried par 72's yesterday to take the lead as thirty baseball players ran the gamut—from Eagles to 9's—in the first round of their championship golf tournament.

Heinie Manush, one-time American League batting champion; Wes Ferrell, who saw service with several major clubs, and Ray Lenahan, a pitcher with Pittsburg for part of the 1918 season wound up in a tie.

A typical diamond argument arose during the playoff for a medal prize—won by Lenahan with a birdie four on the first extra hole—when Ferrell suddenly raised the question of Lenahan's eligibility, but the argument ended just where it started.

Other players pointed out that Lenahan had every right to participate because of his service not only with Pittsburg, but for three years with Springfield of the Eastern League.

In fourth place was Merv Shea, Detroit Tigers' coach and the defending champion, with a 38-35—73, while Paul Derringer, Cincinnati Reds' towering pitcher, was next with 37-38—75.

The title will be decided on the basis of 54 holes on medal play, the second and final rounds to be played today and Friday.

Manush, now manager of the Greensboro Club in the Piedmont League, carded 35-37—72. Ferrell, who piloted the Leaksville nine in the Bi-State League last year, turned in a 37-35. Lenahan, operator of a Providence, R.I., men's clothing store, had a 35-37—72.

Highlanders Cop Cross Country

SOMEWHERE IN ENGLAND, Feb. 12—(CP).—The Royal Highland Light Infantry Regiment of Hamilton won the second Canadian division team cross-coun championship with a low score of 97 points for its first eight men.

Second place went to the Black Watch of Montreal with 306 points, followed by the Royal Canadian Army Service Corps with 391. Three R.H.L.I. runners, Sgt G. Elliott and J. Stewart of Hamilton, and Pte. H. Rowland of Stoney Creek, Ont., ran first, second and third respectively.

The winning team included: Cpl. J. Brant, Brantford, Ont.; E. J. Sharpe, Brantford; D. Cameron, Winona, Ont.

On the Black Watch team were: Ptes. H. Thiffault, Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., T. A. Richard, London, Ont.

Members of the R.C.A.S.C. team inclued: Lt. G. D. E. Warner, Kingston, Ont.; Pte. V. W. Lutes, London, Ont.

"Everybody seems to be very well satisfied with the 7 p.m. to 7 a.m. closing, and the ban on Sunday sales." Mr. Howe said.

Claim Hepburn's U.S. Navy Views Not Ottawa's

OTTAWA, Feb. 12 —(CP)—Navy Minister Macdonald yesterday told the House of Commons the reported statement of Premier Hepburn of Ontario that the United States Navy was "in hiding" did not reflect the view of the government of Canada.

"At this very moment ships carrying the American flag are engaged along with Canadian ships of war in protecting convoys that are sailing from the American continent to the United Kingdom," said Mr. Macdonald. "They certainly are not in hiding."

Wherever the United States ships were they were a shield for Canada and for the United States as well as a powerful attacking force against the enemies.

(Premier Hepburn's statement that the United States Navy "is in hiding" was made last week in campaign speeches in Welland constituency in support of Douglas Watt, Independent candidate who was defeated by Labor Minister Mitchell in Monday's Welland by-election.)

Mr. Macdonald's statement:

The premier of Ontario is quoted in several Canadian daily papers today, in the following words:—

"The premier said that on his return from a visit to Australia in 1937, Americans on the boat had scoffed at his fears of the Japanese navy, had declared it to be 'a tissue-paper navy' which American forces would wipe off the seas 'within a week' after a war in the Pacific was started.

"'Well, you've seen what that tissue-paper navy has done,' Mr. Hepburn said. 'Because of Pearl Harbor the main fleet of the United States navy is in hiding, although it's true that it has carried out hit-and-run raids in the last few days'."

I understand that some reference to this statement has been made over American radio stations —and that it has been drawn to the attention of the President of the United States.

Not Ottawa's Stand

Lest there should be any misapprehension in the United States —I should like to make the following comment:—

1. The statement of the Premier of Ontario does not represent my view—nor the view of the Department of Naval Services—nor the view of the Government of this country.

2. The dispositions of naval vessels are not like the movements of certain Hollywood actresses. Not always can they be made known to the world. There are usually very excellent reason why they should not be made known. But the fact that the disposition and movements of ships are not known, is not to be taken as an indication that they are in hiding.

3. Japanese treachery at Pearl Harbor dealt a heavy blow to the United States fleet—but notwithstanding, it is mighty and powerful. The courage of its personnel has already been proved—and will, I know—be further proved whenever the opportunity offers.

4. This country has every reason to be eternally grateful for the moral support and the material aid that has come to us and our cause from the United States. A year and a half ago — and long before that country entered the war—she gave to the Royal Navy 43 destroyers—and seven destroyers to the Canadian Navy. These have proved to be of the greatest value.

On Convoy Duty

Furthermore—this very moment—ships carrying the American flag are engaged along with Canadian ships of war—in protecting convoys that are sailing from the American continent to the United Kingdom. They certainly are not in hiding.

It is no secret to say that vessels of the United States Navy are dispersed in two great oceans—the Atlantic and the Pacific. I shall not say where these vessels are—nor in what strength they stand. But I can say this:—Each of these United States naval forces represents "a fleet in being"—and therefore each constitutes a threat against any enemy attempt to carry the war into the vicinity of the coast-line of North America. Wherever they are, they are a shield for Canada, and for the United States as well as a powerful attacking force against the enemies.

Our cause is one, for myself — I thank heaven that it is so. I thank heaven that the United States fleet and the United States army—and the industrial might of that great country—are with us in this war.

Veniot Pictures Conscription A "Youth Hunt"

OTTAWA, Feb. 12—(CP)—Canadian youth hunted down by armed forced for military service was envisioned in the House of Commons yesterday by Dr. C. J. Veniot (Lib. Gloucester), as an argument against conscription.

Dr. Veniot, who described himself as spokesman for 225,000 French-Acadians of the Maritime provinces, spoke in the throne speech debate. He dwelt at length on the difficulties which followed imposition of conscription in 1917.

"We do recognize that the best way to defeat our enemy is to fight him outside of Canada and to prevent him from reaching our shores," Dr. Veniot said.

"To this end we are prepared to give freely of our lives to the limit of our manpower and of our meagre means.

"But we want no more guns and bayonets hacking down our youth like wild beasts in our hills and forests.

"We have open minds but the way to convince us is not by muzzling us and ramming conscription down our throats."

But Dr. Veniot did not oppose the proposed plebiscite by which the government will seek release from its no-conscription pledges. He said he would work for a 100-per-cent affirmative reply to the plebiscite question: "Are you in favor of releasing the government from any obligation arising out of any past commitments restricting the methods of raising men for military service?"

He said he had faith the government would work out satisfactory method if greater measures of compulsory service became necessary, and that he would prefer to have conscription imposed by the government of Prime Minister Mackenzie King, if it became necessary, than by those who imposed it in so "odious" a manner in 1917.

One For One Against

Two other representatives of French-speaking Canada spoke in the debate, Maurice Lalonde (Lib. Labelle) who said he would work for the plebiscite although he was against conscription, and J. A. Crete (Lib. St. Maurice-Lafleche) who said he would not ask his constituents to free the government from its past commitments.

George Black (Con. Yukon), former Speaker of the House and a veteran of the first Great War, urged the government to abandon the plebiscite and leave the question of conscription to parliament.

Both Mr. Black and Mr. Lalonde expressed fear the result of the plebiscite would be against releasing the government.

Mr. Black said this would bring distress to Canada's friends and delight to her enemies. He urged the formation of a first-class army of at least 600,000 fully-equipped men prepared to attack the enemy anywhere.

Ralph Maybank (Lib. Winnipeg South Centre) who often criticizes the government said the Canadian Legion, Service clubs and the Manitoba Legislature, which had advocated conscription, could not be called "pressure groups" and should not be sneered at.

Nevertheless he promised support for the government in the plebiscite and urged all members to work for an affirmative answer.

Dr. Veniot, who succeeded to the seat vacated in 1936 by death of his father, former Postmaster-General P. J. Veniot, said advocates of the voluntary enlistment system claimed each individual had the right to determine of his own volition whether or not he should fight outside his native land.

"They refuse to be taken by the scruff of the neck and hurled into foreign fields of battle . . . while the possessors of flat feet and of wealth are permitted to go Scott free by processes of exemption as occurred in the last war," he continued.

Conscription might be equitable in certain respects "but it is most provocative and irritating to all elements and is charged with racial dynamite."

"Deep down in his heart every Canadian knows that conscription, more than ever today, contains the germs of strife, of division, of violent resistance and possibly of bloodshed, as in the last war. . . .

"Defenders of conscription are loud in their vociferations for equality of sacrifice. Equality of sacrifice, in my estimation, presupposes equality of citizenship.

"Is there equality of citizenship for the 250,000 French-Canadians who live outside Quebec and who are denied the right of separate schools?"

Dr. Veniot condemned Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen as one largely responsible for the conscription troubles of 1917 and declared his selection as Conservative leader last November was the "greatest political strategic error since Confederation."

It was an error which, though Mr. Meighen was defeated in the York South by-election Monday, "may lead even yet to dire consequences for the nation," Dr. Beniot said.

The purpose of the conscriptionists was to disrupt the Liberal party, Dr. Veniot said.

"The evil spirits which inspire and guide the backers of conscription seems to say weirdly: 'If we can create a clamor sufficiently strong to stampede a certain number of English-speaking Liberals into supporting conscription and thus split the Liberal fold, potential victory and power are ours,' he added.

If Conservatives were sincere in their expressed desire for peace and unity, Dr. Veniot suggested, they should support the suggestion already made in the House by Dr. H. A. Bruce (Con. Toronto-Parkdale) and A. W. Neill (Ind. Comox-Alberni) that Quebec be excluded from operations of any compulsory service which might be proposed.

George Black expressed apprehension of the plebiscite's possibilities.

"I dread this plebiscite," he declared. I dread to have the government take the risk. I fear the result."

It could be concluded, he said, that all the disloyal people, all the slackers, all opposed to conscription, all who wished to oppose the government, and those who would rather lose the war than have their loved ones exposel to danger would vote negatively.

Army Transports To Visit City On February 21

A mechanized column of 45 Army vehicles will come to Peterborough on February 21 from 12 noon until 2:30 to show the citizens of the city and district some of the major tools of war required for Canada's mechanized army. The column is representative of all the latest types of use by the Army and is manned by skilled operators. It is hoped that local people will take advantage of this opportunity to see for themselves just how their money is being spent to prosecute the war. The display has been arranged by National Defence Headquarters at Ottawa as a contribution to the education of the people who are being asked to purchase the Second Victory Loan.

Between February 116 and 21 it is expected that the convoy will stop in 15 of the larger Eastern Ontario centres or sufficient time to allow everyone a chance to see for themselves these mechanized tools of war. There will be well-trained Army personnel present to answer all questions regarding the vehicles, their operation and their armament.

Some of the vehicles to be seen will be the latest types of tanks, trucks, Bren gun carriers, field artillery tractors and new types of field pieces and anti-aircraft guns. The tanks and carriers are similar to those in use throughout thet Empire.

U. S. Infantrymen.

An interesting addition to the convoy will be the presence of a large contingent of United States infantrymen at some of the stops. The boys from across the border will give a demonstration of army drill as used in their country and will be accompanied by a band. This will give the public an opportunity not only to see the latest Canadian Army mechanized equipment, but also to see the drill and equipment of the United States infantry soldier. The United States troops will visit Ottawa Cornwall, Prescott, Brockville, Kingston, Napanee, Belleville, Cobourg, Port Hope, Peterborough and Lindsay.

French And German Industrialists Stir Peace Feeler On Jap Peril

LONDON, Feb. 12 — (CP). — An international cartel of French and German industrialists was reliably reported yesterday to have started organizing a new campaign for a negotiated peace between Germany and the United Nations on business grounds.

These international industrialists, a qualified source said, argued that Japanese conquests in the Pacific with acquisition already of territories rich in natural resources and raw material have put Japan in a position to seize and dominate world markets if the Western Powers persist in fighting the war to an end.

The industrialists were reported pointing a campaign particularly toward the United States with emphasis on the dangers of adding access of raw material to Japan's cheap labor supply.

They are seeking intervention by bankers and manufacturers of other warring nations in the West to permit Westerners to return to a peacetime economy before the Japanese "get the upper hand in world markets."

This source said Hitler regards the campaign with benign interest because he feels it might retard war production of his enemies and dampen the ardor of United States manufacturers who have been sensitive to the "yellow peril."

The new peace move recalled earlier fealers aimed at a separate armistice with Russia when the Soviet forces were retreating last fall. The Russians flatly rejected the suggestions last October 11.

Timed for Gloomy Period.

Observers pointed out that the latest peace trial balloon was carefully timed to take full advantage of the natural feeling of gloom in Allied countries over Pacific area reverses. They added that if it in any way retards production, particularly of aid to Russia, that it will be just that much in favor of Hitler's spring offensive plan.

This source said, however, he was informed that the concern of the German and French industrialists over the possibility of Japanese seizure of world markets is real.

It was prompted particularly by the fact that Japan has just informed Germany that despite the Malayan and Netherlands East Indies successes, Japan will not be in a position to spare raw materials to Germany from those captured areas for at least two years, the informant said.

The source said he was informed Hitler's position at home was very strong at present because of disagreements within the factions that disagreed with the Fuehrer.

STEWART HALL

W.M.S. Has Charge Of Y.P.S. Meeting

STEWART HALL, Feb. 12. — The Women's Missionary Society of Stewart Hall sponsored a meeting on Thursday evening in connection with the weekly meeting of the Y.P.S. The worship service was led by Miss Gertie Thompson, after which Rev. Mr. Rowland offered prayer.

Dr. Avison of Peterborough was the guest speaker. He told in a very interesting manner of his medical work in Korea, also something of the habits of the Korean people and of the missionary work carried on there which is now at a standstill owing to th war.

The missionary offering amounted to something over $11.00.

Lunch was served by the Young People.

The Red Cross Society held its weekly meeting on Thursday at the home of Mrs. W. W. Dawson, with thirteen members present. Two quilts were completed during the afternoon.

Missionary Work Needed At Home

OMEMEE, Feb. 12—(ENS).— The Women's Missionary Society held its regular meeting on Thursday at the home of Mrs. D. Weir, with 23 members and two visitors present. Mrs. Brown presided. A call to worship was read by Mrs. Brown. Scripture readings were given by Mrs. Lamb, Mrs. Weir and Mrs. C. Mills.

The main feature on the program was an address by Mrs. Oswald Ruth of East Emily. Mrs. Ruth said "Our greatest work in the world is to do good. Wherever there is sorrow, and suffering there is missionary work to do. We don't have to go across the ocean to do missionary work." The main theme in her address was "Jacob," known as the the worst and best man mentioned in the Old Testament. "When we think of Jacob we think of two things, 1st cheating Esau out of the blessing and 2nd the dream Jacob had when he saw angels ascending and descending the ladder of gold." Miss Lillie Race played an instrumental which was much enjoyed.

Serving of refreshments at the meetings was discussed. A motion was passed that the lunch be confined to sandwiches and fruit bread. Carried.

A vote of thanks was extended to Mrs. O. Ruth and Mrs. D. Weir.

Miss Veals closed the meeting with prayer, and a dainty lunch was served.

Friday The 13th Tomorrow First Of Three

(By the Canadian Press.)

Yes — to-morrow is Friday the 13th. And that's not all. The old bogey turns up again four weeks from to-morrow — March 13—and makes another appearance this year on November 13.

Now there's one thing you can't pin on Hitler or the war. It's the calendar. And you have to go back 11 years to 1931 to get another 12-month when Friday the 13th bobbed up three times, likewise in February, March and November. Once we are safely through 1942, however, it will be another 11 years before he makes a triple appearance again. That will be 1953. In 1943 he comes once only—in August and in 1944 twice, Septemer and December.

But don't worry, it has never been proven that anything unfortunate really happened to anybody simply because Friday was dated up with the 13th. And there's no more significance to the combination now than there was centuries ago when some humorist of the period announced the Gregorian calendar would present this combination ten times every five years till the end of time—or the calendar.

Talk of More.

Incidentally, modern calendar reformers promote a "proposed world calendar" that would give us Friday the 13th every January April, July and October. Four times every year—oh my!

There are various origins of the superstition about a double dose of ill-luck from the goddess of trouble for Friday the 13th. The astrologers of Babylon declared 13 an unlucky number.

Mythologists of old Scandinavia gave it the curse of sages because Balder, their sun-god, had to die when 13 were found in the circle of Valhalla.

Some say the superstition came with the Christian era—there were 13 at the Last Supper, including Judas Iscariot, who next day, traditionally a Friday, betrayed Jesus Christ for crucifixion.

WHEN DUTCH HELD IT

The Dutch controlled trade between the Orient and Europe for 150 years until the British won Malaya.

Road To Riches

The ABOVE map is self-explanatory. All Japanese thrusts are aimed at cutting China's lifeline, from the port of Rangoon where U.S. and British supplies for China are unloaded, to Lashio, jumping off spot for the armadas of trucks that rush the supplies to Chungking for distribution to Chiang Kai-Shek's armies.

if the Japanese were successful.

(An expedition into India, these sources said, would be part of a gigantic, intercontinental squeeze with the other claw of the pincers pressed by Germany against Russia.

(The magazine Free Europe said that if the Japanese were able to launch an Asiatic offensive, they would have about 30 divisions—roughly 500,000 men—to hurl against India.)

Imperial forces there will fight and die with great courage. They have the capacity and it has been the main weapon of the soldier in Malaya.

"Here, in brief, are a few of the reasons why the Japanese are at Singapore:

"The British authorities were confident that the Japanese would not dare attack. When the Japanese did attack they were so stunned and unprepared that the British, unless reinforced, at no time stood a chance of holding the Japanese advance despite the official statements to the contrary. The British troops were subjected from the first day of the war down to this moment to unceasing dive-bombing and machine-gunning attacks. No courage in the world can stand that indefinitely.

No Air Protection

"In the first month of the war the troops were without protection from British fighters.

"Only three weeks before the outbreak of the war did the British military discover that Bren gun carriers and small tanks could negotiate water-covered rice fields. That required a change in defensive tactics, which had been based on flooding the jungles and rice fields to protect their flanks.

"The British were heavily outnumbered and unable to stop the Japanese infiltration attacks. The troops were not adequately trained for jungle fighting and could not adapt themselves in a few weeks.

The British commanders judged what the Japanese would do by what they would do if in the Japanese position.

"An amazing fifth-column organization had been established in Malaya. One officer said he gave the fifth columnists 35 per cent of the credit for the Japanese success. He put the scorched earth policy in the first four weeks of the war as virtually a figment of the official imagination.

Food, Boats Left

"Vast storehouses of food were left untouched for the Japanese. Sampans, boats, barges, and even steamers were undamaged. At Penang the British military authorities ordered the evacuation without consulting the government. They refused to evacuate any one except Europeans. All Chinese, Malays and Indians were left to their fate.

"That was the beginning of considerable difficulties with the natives in Malaya.

"At Penang, the Treasury was left intact with more than a quarter of a million dollars, and when the Japanese walked into Penang they simply threw a switch in the radio station and began broadcasting.

"While it was stated that the British were destroying everything in the path of their retreat, facts told a different story. To give one instance, it was announced they destroyed everything at Juantan airdrome on the east coast. Two days later the R.A.F. was sent over to bomb the undamaged hangars and the Japanese aircraft were already using the field.

"The tragic story of Singapore is not all one of Japanese numerical superiority, fanatical courage and brilliant military scheming. The Japanese are at Singapore also because of what the British failed to foresee, prepare for and meet at the crucial moment. That's the moral of the story of Singapore."

18 Arrests

formed up outside and organized what police called an "obstruction." They refused to allow traffic to pass by the area, smashed tram car windows and clashed with police.

After the meeting was ended the youths hoisted "No" placards and marched toward the centre of the city shouting in French "A bas—a bas—a bas la conscription" (down, down, down with conscription).

A squadron of motor-cycle police charged into their ranks in an attempt to break up the parade. In the melee that followed there were numerous minor casualties.

It was estimated that only about 300 youths took part in the march but the disturbance drew a big crowd of curious spectators who soon got mixed up in the fighting.

Montreal police and military police reinforcements arrived and the marchers were soon dispersed. But they formed smaller gangs which converged later at the St. Catherine and St. Lawrence intersection where they reformed and gave police a stiff battle before they were quelled.

Small knots of the marchers later reached several Montreal newspaper buildings and demonstrated against conscription but police had little difficulty in moving them along. Guards had previously been posted at the newspaper buildings.

Probe Soldier's Death

CORNWALL, Ont., Feb. 12. — (CP)—A post mortem examination will be made on the body of Pte. William Thomas Lalonde, 20, stationed at the Canadian Army Basic Training Centre here, who died on Sunday. Native of Flower Station, Ont., he was seized with convulsions early Sunday and died in hospital a few hours later.

BourassaAsksNo On Plebiscite, And Peace Move

MONTREAL, Feb. 12.—(CP— Henri Bourassa, veteran Quebec Nationalist leader, told an anti-conscriptionist rally here last night that French-Canadians should try to understand the peoples of the other provinces because French-Canadians "are not the only Canadians in this country.

French-Canadians, he said, should ponder questions "in a Catholic mind" and should be ready to hear and consider the opinions expressed by other creeds and religions.

"Flying banners, yelling and shouting will never get you anywhere," he said, urging the people to be calm and to try to understand existing conditions.

Mr. Bourassa spoke on the necessity for calmness while telling the meeting, attended by a crowd estimated by police to be about 7,000 that "if you want to be sure there will be no conscription prepare now, calmly but firmly, a peace movement to impose on the government.

"If you want to be sure there will be no conscription it will not be sufficient to vote 'no' on the plebiscite. It is necessary to start now a movement for pacification."

The chief fault of French-Canadians, Mr. Bourassa said, is that they accept leaders and place them on a pedestal and keep them there no matter what faults they have committed.

Too Much Yelling

The unfortunate truth is, he said, that French-Canadiens "spend too much time shouting and yelling and cheering for one politician or another and the result is that these politicians have been convinced that the French-Canadiens are easily led. Being easily led they have exploited you to the utmost."

Racial and religious discord have been exploited by politicians, he said, and as a result the two races have been pitted against one onother.

"If Toronto is anti-French and Quebec is regarded as anti-English the fault rests with the leaders in whom the people of both these centres place their confidence."

If French-Canadiens want to be respected in other provinces, he said, they must possess religious convictions based on the teaching of the Catholic church and which they must be ready to put into practice not only by outward demonstration but an application of these principles in every-day life.

"It is not by blessing yourself and making the way of the cross that you can prove you are a good Catholic and it is not by simply yelling that you are a Canadian that you can prove that you are one."

Enemy of Imperialists.

Mr. Bourassa said that for more than 45 years he has fought Imperialists "from Sydney to Vancouver" and that "it was only in the Province of Quebec where eggs were thrown at me by my own compatriots."

Previously Maxime Raymond, Liberal member of parliament for Beauharnois-Laprairie, told the gathering that "we are not here to stir up revolt. We came here to sound the alarm facing us all because we are on the road to conscription via the plebiscite.

"The Government asks to be relieved of the promise given the Canadian electorate so that it can impose conscription when and if it sees fit.

"The plebiscite can have only one meaning. If they had no intention to impose conscription some day or another there would be no need for the plebiscite."

and has been pressed with vigor during the night. In addition, there has been some infiltration today.

"The enemy's advance has been assisted by tanks and considerable bomber and fighter support and our troops covering the west sector have been forced farther back.

"This morning a Japanese note, dropped by air and addressed to the high commander, asked for the unconditional surrender of the entire forces in Malaya. No reply has been made to this note.

"In the western and northwestern sector bitter fighting continues; in the east of the island enemy activity has been slight."

Rain of Death From Sky

His restrained reference to Japanese air activity evoked anew the picture of the Japanese in control of the skies, blasting British ground forces from their positions with a rain of bombs and machine-gun fire.

There was scant hope here that the defenders could do more than delay the inevitable, perhaps long enough to complete removal of women and children from the island, shrouded in the smoke of a hundred fires.

There was no inclination here to minimize the probable consequences of the fall of Singapore, keystone in the original strategic plans for prosecution of the war in the southwestern Pacific.

At the same time it was expected that Prime Minister Churchill and his cabinet would face a new wave of criticism over conduct of the war.

Political circles freely predicted that loss of Singapore would mean the ouster of Capt. Henry D. R. Margesson as secretary of war and that his place would be taken by Sir Stafford Cripps, recently-resigned Ambassador to Moscow and an advocate of closer colaboration with Soviet Russia.

Victor In Welland

Hon. Humphrey Mitchell, Canada's new Labor Minister, received the news of his victory in the Welland by-election in a Niagara Falls hospital bed. Mr. Mitchell is threatened with pneumonia and was taken to the hospital on the day of the election.

Does Your Child Lack Appetite?

Try New, Improved Ovaltine

Science has proved there are certain food elements everyone needs for proper nutrition. If there aren't enough of them in the foods we eat, serious things can happen. For example: If a child's diet is deficient in vitamins, his appetite is likely to suffer and his growth may be stunted or impaired. His resistance to infection may be lessened.

As a protecting food drink, New, Improved Ovaltine supplements the diet with certain food elements more likely to be deficient in ordinary foods—thus it acts as an insurance against food deficiences that retard normal development.

Ovaltine has always been a source of Vitamins A, B_1 and D and the minerals Calcium, Phosphorus and Iron but recently, in the light of the latest knowledge of nutritional science, it has been enhanced in all these elements.

So—if your child eats poorly, is thin or under par, start giving him New, Improved Ovaltine.

The men were given a rousing reception as they marched from the Grand Central Station.

THINKS FINE NOT BIG ENOUGH

Remarking that he did not think a fine of $5 was sufficient under the circumstances Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., in police this morning enlarged a careless driving charge against John Moher until tomorrow in order that Provincial Constable Price Morris who laid the charge might be heard. A written plea of guilty had been entered by Moher.

Fish And Game Association Given Trophy

Charlie Kingan and Alex Elliott, M.P.P., send more requests to the Department of Game and Fisheries than any other pair of men throughout the province. This was the statement attributed to D. J. Taylor, deputy minister of Game and Fisheries in addressing the Toronto anglers at the annual dinner in the King Edward Hotel on Wednesday evening.

More than 100 people sat in at the dinner and the affaair had added significance for this district as the Mary Pickford trophy, a beautiful silver cup, was presented to Charlie Kingan, president of the Peterborough Fish and Game Association. The trophy is emblematic of the best work in conservation and restocking by any organization throughout the province. The presentation was made by Mr. Walkinshaw, a member of the executive. In replying to the presentation, Mr. Kingan outlined the work that had already been done in the county, and spoke of his hopes for the future. He paid warm tribute to Alex. L. Elliott, M.P.P., for his valuable assistance during the year, and extended the thanks of the local Association for the honor which the Toronto Anglers had bestowed in naming them for the trophy.

This silver cup was presented to Bill Lang, internationally known sportsman by Miss Pickford when he was in Hollywood some years ago. It was first given in a trout competition but a few years ago the committee decided with the permission of the donor to give it to the Association making the greatest contribution to the province in the matter of conservation, reforestation and restocking.

Delegates from this city who attended the meeting were Chris Graham, John Madden, Herb Routley, Max Humphries, Charlie Kingan and Fred Goodfellow. Max Humphries and Charlie Kingan remained in Toronto for the second day session to-day.

War–25 Years Ago

(By The Canadian Press)

FEB. 12, 1917—United States announced refusal to negotiate with Germany until order for unrestricted submarine warfare withdrawn. British made further progress on the River Ancre. Sir Hugh Graham, proprietor of Montreal Star, created a baron (Lord Atholstan).

Church Group Gives $25 To War Victims

In the aggregate, the support that has been given to the city and district fund for British war victims by the various societies connected with the churches has been considerable, it is mute evidence of the christian virtue of sympathy for those in distress, and is a realization of the threat to the christian faith which would follow should Allied forces not prove victorious. This fact so ably presented by Prime Minister Churchill, President Roosevelt and other prominent leaders, should spur all to continuous effort in all branches of endeavor to further the day of victory, and among those helping to sustain the morale of thos in the front in Britain, besides assisting those who have and are suffering from the results of enemy air raids is one thing, young and old alike can have a part in.

The highlights of today's list of subscriptions to the fund comes from the Women's Association of George Street United Church, who through their treasurer, Mrs. W. P. Hetherington have sent a cheque for the nice sum of $25 and was accompanied by the splendid slogan of "For King and Country."

Mrs. Wallace G. Harris is the president of this group.

Auctioneer J. H. Miles of this city has again been active on behalf of the fund, this time in giving his services to secure the sum of $6 for one gander donated by Thomas Batty, which is a fine sum to secure for one bird.

One personal donation is listed, reminding all of the opportunity this fund affords to citizens to have a personal share in this work, and readers are reminded that every cent they give goes to Britain for the purpose which it is given, all services being freely given, and all out of pocket expenses cheerfully met in the same way as a contribution to our cause.

The box at the Canadian Bank of Commerce completes the list for the day, yielding $1.25 to help things along.

Omemee Big Night

This Friday night, Omemee will be the gravitating point for a lot of people, with "Ferdinand" due to make his bow, an introduction to the fortunate individual who will hold the lucky ticket, when the draw is made for him at the Arena, at the close of a hockey match between Peterborough and Omemee Juniors. "Ferdinand" is a registered bull, and tickets may yet be procured for a chance on him at 25 cents each. This effort is being sposored by the Men of Omemee in a desire to do something of quite a tangible character to help along this fund, the Canadian Red Cross, and the Soldier's Aid Society, each of whom will share equally in the net proceeds.

A dance in Coronation Hall with Galloway's Orchestra providing the music will climax the evening. Rev. R. M. Patterson is the representative for the fund in this district.

Fear Of Losing Job Tends Retard Industry

"The church has a function in this matter because there is a moral aspect to it," declared Rev. E. W. Young of Peterborough at the meeting of Peterborough United Church Presbytery in Knox Church today with reference to the matter of the church and industry in which the church seeks to bring about better conditions and understanding between the employer and employee.

About forty delegates of Peterborough Presbytery attended the meeting and several good speakers were heard during a discussion on Industrial Relationship conducted by the Rev. Young.

Talking on the obligations of the employer, Ald. James Dutton, manager of the local branch of the Wonder Break Company, said the employer has an obligation to provide steady employment for those in his employ. This is not an easy matter, he said.

The matter of employers using help for certain seasons of the year and letting them seek employment elsewhere is a questionable contribution to industry. There are periods of business known as profitless prosperity in which there is plenty of work but little or no profit realized. In this case, the employer is forced to explore every avenue to keep his business going. The hardest thing the employer can do is to lay a man off or cut his wages.

Another point is that of low wages in a highly competitive industry in which that industry finds itself unable to pay a fair wage and in which the employee finds himself unable to meet his obligations and set a little aside for an emergency.

Minimum wages might often be abused by employers who take the minimum set to be the maximum. The conscientious employer should be guided to some extent by the merits of his employee.

Church Does Not Lead.

Degressing, Mr. Dutton pointed out that in some respects, the church was a great sinner in this matter when its ministers have to accept less than a living salary for their services.

On the employee himself depends his standards of living and sense of security, said the speaker. In this present crisis, some us are prone to fail to mark the difference between want and need.

One of the greatest factors among employees of industry is the fear of losing his job. If we could remove this fear, we would improve conditions greatly. He pointed out there are many means in practical use today aiding the employee in case of sickness, accidents or future through insurance, pensions schemes and so forth.

George A. Macdonald, former mayor of Peterborough, pointed out many matters that confront the employer. At the beginning of the year, he must estimate how many of his products will be sold next year, draw up plans for the whole assembly line, the time it will take to make this figure, cost of materials (which changes rapidly), allow for bonuses and overtime on work. He must take into consideration maintenance, depreciation of buildings and machinery, allow for defective materials, experimental work, delivered product trouble, pattern expenses, sales tax, shop supplies, all of which are called manufacturing expense. There are sales costs to be figured in, profits for the shareholders and an excess of returns to allow for expansion in future years. Therefore, it is very important to keep down manufacturing costs in a competitive market..

R. J. Kidd and R. F. Downey extended a hearty vote of thanks to both speakers who are busy men in industry and gave up part of their valuable time to attend the Presbytery meeting.

Rev. M. I. Robinson, Norwood, pointed out the purpose of the discussion was not to act as authorities but rather to inquire into industrial relations.

A. Stewart told the meeting that competitive industry "may have placed us in the position we are to-day." Profit sharing would be ideal and we would gain much if we could change the attitude from competition to co-operation. We should spend a bit more time discussing this timely subject," he said.

Examiner Carriers In Neighboring Towns Join In War Savings Stamp Campaign

Examiner carriers in Lakefield, Apsley and Millbrook have been enlisted in the War Savings Stamps campaign began by Peterborough city carriers last November. Already Jim Tully and Paul Butcher have turned in respectable sums, as has Mae Everett, the Examiner carrier in Apsley, whose father is serving in the Midland Regiment. Brenton and Roy Dawson of Millbrook whose father, Capt. Bruce Dawson, is Quartermaster of the Midland Regiment, have just begun to carry War Savings Stamps on their routes, but have not reported sales as yet. Examiner subscriber in Lakefield, Apsley and Millbrook will please note that their carriers will be glad at any time to furnish War Savings Stamps to order. At the same time the effort of these boys and girls is not being allowed to interfere with any plans for selling these stamps by any public or high school students.

Buckhorn Youth Is Bailed To Stand Trial

After three Crown witnesses had been heard this morning in the preliminary hearing of a charge of reckless driving against Robert Shearer, 17, of Buckhorn, the accused's counsel, Hon. G. N. Gordon, K.C., consented to bailment for trial, bail being fixed at $1,000.

Later, Shearer was brought before Judge S. L. Smake and elected speedy trial on the charge which means that he will be tried in the county judge's criminal court instead of at the Sessions before a judge and jury.

The charge against the Buckhorn youth arose out of an accident on Water street north, in which 75-year-old Henry Booth, 238½ Simcoe street, was struck by a car driven by Shearer and fatally injured.

W. R. Booth, son of the victim, was the first crown witness this morning. He told Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C., that on the morning of the accident, he had been employed on a city garbage sleigh, driven by Max Cromie. Henry Booth, his father, had been helping him that morning. The garbage sleigh had proceeded north on the west side of Water street, and then had crossed the street to go south on the east side. Booth and his father were on the west side of the street, 75 feet north of the sleigh, witness said. He had started across Water street and was near the sleigh when Cromie shouted a warning. Witness said a car coming south at what he said was a fast rate of speed. It struck his father, who was four feet out from the west side of the street and knocked him down and then travelled 110 yards before coming to a stop. His father had been taken to St. Joseph's Hospital, and died there a week later.

Max Cromie, driver of the garbage sleigh, in his evidence told the court that he had not shouted a warning to Richard Booth but to his father, and that apparently the older man had not heard him. Cromie said that he had seen the Shearer car coming south and that it was travelling at a high rate of speed. He thought the sleigh was about opposite Booth or possibly a little to the south when he was struck. To Mr. McElderry, he said that there was nothing to prevent Shearer from driving around the man on the road.

Constable C. J. McGillen, who investigated the accident said that the Shearer car, a 1941 model, was in good condition mechanically. The icy condition of the driving surface made it impossible to tell whether or not the brakes had been applied before the accident. Witness said that Booth's son had told him that he had shouted a warning to his father, but the latter had kept walking across the road.

Canucks At Kowloon

London, Feb. 12 (CP Cable)

SIR Edward Grigg, War Under-Secretary, today told the House of Commons the International Red Cross has appointed a delegate in Tokyo and asked him to report "as a matter of urgency" on the condition of Canadian and British prisoners taken at Hong Kong.

Replying to a question by Maj.-Gen. Sir Alfred Knox for information regarding treatment of prisoners, the name of the protecting power and whether the Red Cross was in touch with the Japanese government, Sir Edward said that Canadians and Britons are reported to be in a camp at Kowloon.

"No reliable information about their treatment has yet been received nor is any information available as to prisoners of war captured in Malaya," Sir Edward went on. "The Argentine government at present is the protecting power in Japan and the Swiss government the protecting power in occupied China."

Youth Sentenced To Six Months

When Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., found Norman Cedar guilty this morning of having interfered with the free use of the main line of the C.P.R. by illegally running a handcar on the rails, it was announced that this was not the first time the seventeen-year-old Tilbury youth had been guilty of obstructing a railway.

Crown Attorney McElderry informed the court that Cedar had been sentenced to the St. John Industrial School some years ago for placing seven boulders on the tracks of the Michigan Central Railway.

Remarking that a very serious accident might have been caused Magistrate Langley sentenced the boy to six months definite and two months indeterminate in the Ontario Reformatory.

Evidence in the case had been heard a week ago and Cedar had been remanded until today for judgment and sentence.

This morning Magistrate Langley announced that in view of a judgment by the appeal court of New Brunswick in another case laid under the same section, he had no hesitation in finding the accused guilty of the offence of which he had been charged.

The late Mr. Dunn was employed as a traveller for National Grocers for the past 14 years, and during that time his kindly disposition and fairness in all business dealings earned him a host of friends in all walks of life.

During the period of employment with National Grocers he travelled east of Peterborough to Marmora, to Campbellford and all intermediate points, and west to Millbrook and Pontypool, besides a few city calls. He was a bachelor, and held in high esteem by his employer for his fine work, and the goodwill he built up for the wholesale firm.

307 Houses Cost $925,532

OTTAWA, Feb. 12 (CP)—Extent of the Wartime Housing program at six places was reported in a return tabled in the House of Commons yesterday in answer to a question by Rev. A. M. Nicholson (C.C.F. Mackenzie).

Number of houses for the Ontario centres named with the total cost was: Fort William, 76, $217,503; Hamilton 300, $846,637; Welland 210, $606,172; Peterborough, 307, $925,532.

Included in the cost of the Peterborough buildings, as reported from Ottawa, is presumably the large aggregate expenditure for services such as grading of streets, laying sewer and water mains, erecting electric power line.

In the north end of the city the company had to buy land along Park Hill Road and proceed to lay sewers and water mains, make roads and erect power lines. Wartime Housing Limited has been paying the entire cost of this work, and it is understood that they bear half the cost of the new sewer that is being dug on west end streets for extension to connect with the temporary housing properties.

Victory Loan Chairman Appeals For Aid To Reach New Objective

COBOURG, Feb. 12—(ENS)—Mr. W. S. Edwards, chairman for the Northumberland County Victory Loan drives makes the following appeal to citizens of this county.

"As chairman of the coming drive I wish to make a brief and very frank statement to the citizens of this county.

We have been given a stiff objective and we face the responsibility of having to raise $1,125,000 in this county and amount considerably in excess of our objective of last June, and one which, in my opinion, can only be reached by each person making the maximum subscription possible to the loan. It is important for each citizen to realize his own intimate connection with the war. Those of you who have members of your immediate family serving in the armed forces need not be reminded of this, but other citizens must realize it is a war which concerns each one of them personally, and is a direct threat to us and our families. All we are and have will perish if we fail. We must win this war.

Transfer Money

Those who are serving and their families are making the real sacrifice, to save your money isn't a sacrifice it is merely postponing some purchase until we complete the job of beating the Huns and the Japs.

I know that Dominion of Canada bonds are the best investment obtainable. I know that they are saleable at all times, and give a good interest return. But it is not because they are a sound investment that I make my appeal to you. It put it up to you that purely on a patriotic basis you must live up to your responsibility and subscribe to the utmost of your ability.

Time Payment Plan

I am asking the canvassers who will be calling on you to try and obtain a subscription from every individual in the county. There are only two valid reasons for failing to buy a bond.

1. That you are unemployed.
2. That you are unwilling to make a subscription, or postpone the purchases necessary to enable you to do so.

Each individual should ask himself, "How much of this loan can I take?" To those who have reserves of money on deposit the answer will be comparatively simple; they should invest to the utmost. But to those who have only a small savings (and these perhaps are in the majority) and yet anxious to assist in Canada's war effort, I am asking the canvasser to stress the means provided for installment purchases. If we are to reach our objective installment purchases must account for a substantial percentage of our total.

Whatever opinion you may have in regard to installment buying of merchandise, through installment, saving, which is quite a different thing, there are considerable benefits both to you and to the country. These benefits are:

First to help your county and the county in achieving its objective in this Victory Loan.

Secondly, you arrange now to invest your savings over the next six months in the way that will help the country's war effort most, and make these savings available month by month as they take place.

Thirdly, the idleness of this money, or its use in purchasing other than absolute detracts from the war effort by drawing materials and labor away from war industries. There is a further benefit that after the war your savings will be available for the purchase of the things you want at a time when there wil lbe plenty of labor seeking employment.

I summarize my message as follows: The County of Northumberland has a stiff objective.

Your money is being loaned to the country for war purposes which is your safety and protection.

If you have money available it is your duty to loan it to your country and subscriptions should be not only for cash but for the greatest amount that you may be able to serve over the next six months.

When the county canvassers call upon you please receive them graciously and respond with your maximum ability.

THE ENQUIRY COLUMN

By MARY MOORE

QUESTION: I was thrilled a little while back to see a letter of mine quoted in your column.

You spoke a week or so ago, of always having ready-mixed pastry in your cupboard to save time. I do this too, and I also keep ready-mixed biscuit. One can make an endless variety of sweet and savory dishes, biscuits, pancakes and dumplings with this, so I thought someone might find the recipe useful. (Editor's Note: Recipe for ready-mixed biscuits printed with last week's best war-time recipe.)

The following is a not-so-very-economical recipe which is a war-time one because if uses no sugar.

Upside-Down Coffee Cake

One-quarter cup butter, ¼ cup liquid honey, 1 teaspoon cinnamon, 1-3 cup nutmeats, 1 cup ready-mixed biscuit (6 cups sifted flour, 4 level tablespoons baking powder, ½ teaspoon salt, 9 tablespoons shortening and milk to mix when needed—those are the ingredients of the large recipe), 1-3 cup milk. elt butter in frying pan, add honey and cinnamon. Add milk to biscuit mix, and drop by spoonfuls on hot honey mixture. Cover and cook slowly for about 15 minutes. Turn upside down on platter and serve hot.

Miss Moore, you spoke of saving all your sweet leftovers in a glass jar and making it all into A PIE ONCE IN a while. You seemed a little at a loss as to what to call it so I thought I might tell you that when I was a child we had an old cook who used to do this and we always called it "Resurrection Pie."

And now to come to what I really wanted to say: Would you please send me your recipes for kidneys, liver, pigs' feet and headcheese? We are killing a pig next week, so I would like a quick reply.

I know I have written too long a letter, but I do want to say how very much I enjoy your page. Good cooking is the "one touch of nature that makes the whole world kin," I think, and makes "Judy O'Grady and the Colonel's Ladys sisters under the skin." In fact, I think that a nation's cookery is more interesting and more characteristic of them than their folk-songs, folk-dances or legends.

So—all power to your elbow.—Barbara L.

ANSWER: A grand letter. Thanks so much for the lift. You will have seen by now that we used your biscuit mix and Dutch Apple Cake for the west war-time recipe last week. "Resurrection Pie" it shall be from now on.

That sugarless recipe fitted in with our plans for sugar substitutes perfectly. If you have other honey recipes and time to send them in we would be thankful.

QUESTION: I am a woman of thirty years of age. I am 5 ft. 6 inches in height and weigh 168 pounds. My weight used to be 136. I would like to go on a diet. Would you please advise me on a proper diet and how to go about it. Is white bread fattening? Please tell me the proper foods to eat.

ANSWER: Yes white bread is fattening. I have mailed you a copy of our slimming diet. Write again if you need further help with it.

QUESTION: I'm writing to see if you could help me plan some meals for my husband who has just had his teeth out. Would you please send a copy of the Lima Bean Casserole Dish with Pork Chops? Thanking you for your help.—Mrs. Macdonald.

ANSWER: As a general rule a dentist will tell a patient whose teeth are just removed to eat a soft diet such as one would serve an invalid or similar to the diet of a baby of 18 months. This includes fine 4-hour cooked cereals, soft poached or soft cooked eggs in the shell, pureed vegetables (buy these in 5-oz. cans put up for infant feeding for convenience), cream soups, pureed fruit (canned the same as the pureed vegetables), whole milk and you might add to this such dishes as milk toast, well-cooked cornstarch puddings, junkets, custards, orange juice and bananas.

If your husband had to live on that for a week his diet would not become monotonous and his nutrition would be perfect. Be sure you include the pureed vegetables and fruits and orange or tomato juice and bananas and he will not get indigestion.

Lima Bean Casserole Dish with Pork Chops

For a large family cook 1 pound of lima beans; for a small family cook ½ pound of lima beans until tender after soaking them overnight About ½ hour before they are done, the water should be allowed to cook away, and then add I pint tomato juice, 1 bay leaf, 1 sliced onion and cook slowly until tender. Pour into buttered large casserole removing the bay leaf, and sprinkle with salt and pepper, and cover top with enough ¾-inch pork chops to serve your family. Sprinkle chops with pepper and paprika and bake at about 400 deg. Fahr. with pan standing high in oven to brown fat on pork chops quickly—reduce heat and bake about 40 minutes in all. You may need to add salt and tomato juice.

QUESTION: I would very much like to have any recipes you have for serving kidneys and liver which you offered.

I am also interested in getting any recipes for preparing beef hearts and spareribs. I have your recipe for stuffed hearts but I prefer to have the heart and ribs boiled as I don't seem to be able to digest any dressing.

ANSWER: One of the members of our family found dressing indigestible until we left the onion out entirely—you might tay that.

The offer of meat dishes proved so popular I printed the recipes on last week's page, but since you may have missed them I have sent you a copy by mail.

Stewed Heart In Rice Border

This requires either 2 or 3 calves' hearts or 1 beef heart, 2 tablespoons chopped onion, 2 tablespoon carrot or celery, 1 tablespoon salt, pepper, 2 tablespoons flour, 2 tablespoons melted butter, 1 tablespoon vinegar or lemon juice, boiled rice. Wash heart or hearts thoroughly in cold water, remove all tough muscles and veins. Cut in small cubes and cover with cold water for 15 minutes. Drain and cover with boiling water. Add onion and carrot and simmer slowly for 3 hours. Add water, if needed, to keep hearts covered. When tender, add salt, pepper, and flour which has been blended with the melted butter. Boil 5 minutes stirring. Add vinegar or lemon juice. Serve in large platter with generous border of boiled rice. Garnish with paprika and parsley.

Boiled Spareribs with Sauerkraut or Cabbage

Three pounds spareribs cut in pieces, ½ teaspoon salt, boiling water, 4 cups drained sauerkraut or 1 medium cabbage finely shredded. Wipe spareribs, place in kettle, add salt cover with boiling water and simmer covered for ½ hour. Add sauerkraut, bring to boil and cook uncovered for ½ hour. Drain a little and serve on hot platter garnished with parsley. Or if cabbage is served with the ribs it need only be added to the boiling water about 15 minutes before serving time. Green imported cabbage is delicious with this at this time of year—if it is used it must not be overlooked or it will turn yellow.

This Week's Wartime Recipe

(By MRS. CHARLES W. SCANE, Ridgetown.)

BACON SUBSTITUTE.

One quart quite thick cornmeal mush. Just before removing from the fire add 1 dissolved oxo cube and ¼ teaspoon salt. ½ cup finely chopped cooked leftover meat of any kind. Mix wel land pour into mould and let stand to chill overnight to make it at its best.

Slice and fry in hot dripping or in deep fat, to a golden brown. Serve piping hot. This is delicious served alone or with maple syrup.

Thanks, Mrs. Scane, the four excellent recipes you sent will find a place on the page in the next week or two. I think this "bacon substitute" is a dandy and wish more Canadian cooks practised using the cornmeal mush like the folks in the South do. It is most economical, easy to handle and a welcome change from potatoes. One merely needs to make twice too much porridge for breakfast, and pour the leftover into a bowl or mould to chill, so it will slice firmly.

We shall be glad to hear from you at any time.

Clever cooks— we are depending on you to keep this space filled.

KINGS ROW . . . .

By HENRY BELLAMANN

THE STORY: Schoolroom in smalltown Kings Row brings together orphaned Parris Mitchell, 12 and foreign-looking, who lives with French grandmother; Drake McHugh, 13 and "all boy"; beautiful Cassandra Tower; tomboy Randy Monaghan. Teacher Sally Venable muses on sharp social lines that will groove their lives as they grow up.

CHAPTER II

There was one individual in that noisy playground crowd who felt something of this social difference, and who thought about it. That was Parris Mitchell.

Parris was, in his own dark way, a thoughtful boy. He was standing a little apart and was dreamily half thinking something of Miss Venable's thought. Inside they were all—well, kind of alike. But outside—here, everything was different.

It seemed, as he thought about it, to have something to do with a feeling of embarrassment. In class you were embarrassed by different things. Out here you felt easy and comfortable with some of the boys and girls and a little strange with others. It was very puzzling. But there were so many things that puzzled one, and teased in one's head. You couldn't bother too much about them. He supposed he'd understand a lot more when he grew up. It must be very, very nice to be grown up.

Two or three girls were standing near, talking with their heads close together. He wondered why they always acted that way—as if they had secrets. Vera Lichinsky was one of them. She caught sight of him.

"You going down to Professor Berdorff's for your music lesson?"

"No, not today."

"Why?"

"'Cause."

"Well, 'cause why? It's your regular day, ain't it?"

"It's my birthday."

"Oh." She looked slightly mystified. Nothing ever interfered with her violin lessons.

"I've got a new Bach piece." Vera made it sound important.

"Have you?"

"Yes. It's not very pretty."

"I have a new Bach piece, too."

"Is it pretty?"

"No."

"Is it hard?"

"Yes. It's in four flats."

"I've had pieces in all the keys. Long time ago. Ain't you?"

"No."

"Well, I've got to go." She turned with an air of serious decision. She did not look back.

"Hello, Parris." Cassandra Tower hung back from the other girls who were walking away, their heads still close together.

Parris blushed.

"Hello, Cassie."

"Do you like Vera Lichinsky?"

"I—I don't know."

"You don't know?"

"Well, I don't know. I guess I like her all right."

Cassandra smiled. "I heard you say today's your birthday. How old are you?"

"Twelve."

"I'm 13. Why don't you have a party?"

"I don't know."

"I'm going to have a party next Saturday."

"Are you?"

"Yes. I'm going to invite you."

"I'd like to come."

"Will your grandmother let you?"

"Of course."

"All right. I'll send you an invitation."

She walked backward for a little way, smiling. Parris smiled, too. She turned and ran until she caught up with her companions.

He walked slowly toward the stile which mounted the tall fence surrounding the school grounds. He did not see a little girl who stood outside watching him through the gap in the boards. She was smaller than Parris, and rather poorly dressed in a faded falico dress. She was extremely blond, and an expression of sweetness—half angelic, half sensuous—gave her a somewhat enigmatic charm.

"Hello, Renee."

"Hello."

They proceeded without further speech along the road toward Parris' home. Renee lived on the von Eln place. Her father, Sven Gyllinson, was the overseer of the nurseries owned by Parris' grandmother. Renee and Parris had played together since they were babies. She was only a few months younger than Parris, but she was a grade behind him in school. Seemingly, they took no notice of each other now. When he picked up a rock and threw it, she threw one also with ridiculously similar gestures. If he swung his book strap from one shoulder to the other, she did, too. Apparently she wished nothing but his company. She was always "tagging" along—always had been as long as he could remember. No one teased him about her. Some of the boys had tried that and met with a fury in him that was astonishing as it was inexplicable. Renee was a "tacky" child, but her father worked for Parris' grandmother, so they decided maybe had had to look out for her.

As they neared home Renee spoke. "I'll be glad when school's out, won't you?"

"Yes."

"I'll be awful glad. We'll go swimmin' then, won't we?"

"Uh huh," he answered indifferently.

"Up in our own pond?"

"Uh huh."

He opened the wicket gate and stood aside for her to pass through. She waved and turned into a lane that led to the overseer's cottage.

Parris Mitchell's mother had died when he was born, his father less than a year later. Since then he had been cared for by his maternal grandmother. She adored him, and he adored her. Doubtless she spoiled him in some ways, but she had trained him to the observance of an old-fashioned, Old World courtesy that made him somewhat conspicuous.

His grandmother, Marie Arnaut von Eln, was wholly French. Her family came originally from Lorraine. She had been twice married, the second time to a wandering German aristocrat who had come to America to make a fortune. After various enterprises he had bought lands at Kings Row because of some fancied similarity of the soil to that of his native German province. He built a house of foreign fashion, laid out elaborate grounds, and manufactured sufficient wine to drink himself to death.

Marine von Eln was a resourceful woman. She employed French and German labor and turned the vineyards into a nursery. It had prospered, and she was now, 20 years after her husband's death, accounted a wealthy woman.

Kings Row had never known quite what to make of her. She was a "foreigner," but obviously did not fit into the usual categories of what were always derogatorily referred to as "the foreign elements." She had the bearing and manner of an aristocrat, and her sense of humor was of the kind that often made the women of Kings Row uncomfortable.

Madame von Eln spoke French or German by preference. She emphasized, underscored, and generally illumined her discourse with graphic movements of hands, shoulders, and eyebrows.

Parris bore a striking resemblance to her.

She was waiting now for him to come home from school. Laying aside the thick reading glass, she gave a twist to the taffeta bow at her throat, and waited. She smiled a little. It was almost a smile of coquetry.

"Bon soir, grand'mere." He held her very tight and kissed her four times on each smooth cheek. He rubbed his face against her hair. "Ma belle grand'mere!"

"Mon enfant." She held him off and put up her lorgnettes. "Tu es fatigue?"

"Moi? Non. Pas du tout."

He laughed. She liked the trick he had of keep his short square teeth tight together when he laughed.

"Are you hungry?"

"Of course."

Madame called, "Anna!"

A short fat maid appeared so quickly that one suspected that she had been waiting at the door.

"Anna, dass Kind hat Hunger."

The maid smiled broadly. "Was willst du—Milch, Brod—eine Pastete?"

"Was fur Pastete gibt es, Anna?"

"Kirsch—ganz frisch."

The trilingual discussion continued without anyone being aware of the shifts from one tongue to another. Parris decided on the cherry pie.

Madame turned to her desk again. "Go with Anna, please, Parris. I have more work."

After the pie he went directly to his piano practice. The square rosewood piano was old, and the keys were yellow, but it was in good tune. Very slowly, very carefully, counting aloud as he practiced, he attacked the Bach piece "in four flats." He began again at the beginning for the 10th time when his grandmother came to the door.

"What is this that you play?"

"It is an Invention."

"Indeed. Is that something important?"

"Herr Berdorff says so."

"It is extremely ugly. It must be frightful to learn such a thing! Come with me—it is enough of this—this Invention as you call it—and it is your birthday. I have a present for you."

Parris lay in bed listening to the little sounds of the night. He was very happy. It had been a beautiful evening, and his present—all those books! His "belle, belle, belle grand'mere!" He had heard Anna say that Madame was growing old. Old! Some day his grandmother would die — sooner than other boys' mothers who were much younger. Terror seized him. He took the edge of the quilt between his teeth so he wouldn't cry, but it was no use—he was already crying.

CLOTHES that are attractive, and practical form the basis of today's wardrobe. The simple silk frock for afternoon use or the evening's activities is very much in demand. Ruth Hussey wears a splendid frock of this type, especially designed by Dolly Tree. It is of soft blue silk crepe, simply cut, with a flared street-length skirt, draped bodice and wide belt that ties at the side. This is the sort of frock that can be dressed up or down with a variety of accessories, one that will be good from late winter on right into summer.

NOTE.—If your chicken for Sunday was large enough you should have been able to cut enough off for another meal. If you have to extend its a piece of knuckle veal will do very nicely. In some of the liquid left from boiling the chicken boil ½ cup each, celery, onion, carrot, and potatoes cut finely. Just before assembling the deep pie, thicken the vegetable liquid and add salt and pepper and pour over the chicken in baking dish — the gravy should cover the meat. Put on rich plain pastry top, cutting deep gashes to allow steam to escape. Bake at 450 degrees Fahr. Pass gravy at table.

Wednesday (Economical).

Minced Liver Cakes (see note)
Boiled Onions Fluffy Boiled Rice
Cole Slaw
Open Face Raisin Pie Tea.

NOTE.— Buy one and one-half pounds pork or beef liver and slice it and boil it in very little water just long enough to "set" the juice, and put through coarse knife of the meat grinder. Mix with ⅓ cup of liquid in which it was boiled and 3 tablespoons melted drippings, salt and pepper and a very little curry powder. Shape into flat cakes, dip in flour and quickly fry in drippings—about 2 minutes in pan is long enough to heat them through. If you let them cook longer they will be too dry.

Percy Grainger Comes To City Next Wednesday

Composer, conducter, piano virtuoso and master showman, Percy Grainger comes to Peterborough next Wednesday. His vivid personality and praise of critics have given him an almost legendary place in the annals of the concert stage.

Mr. Grainger has never been to Peterborough before, but many citizens may have heard him in person elsewhere; even those who are not so fortunate, however, will surely have divined something of his personality and of his great artistry from the aura which seems to surround his very name.

We have heard his compositions, the unfading freshness of "Country Gardens," and the graceful lilt of "Molly on the Shore." Percy Grainger is well-known among musicians and critics for his interpretation of folk music. The composer, Edward Grieg, once said that Grainger was the only man who could play his Norwegian folk dances as they should be played.

Those of us who have never heard Percy Grainger may expect an unusual and interesting experience. For one who, through fifty years of concert life, has established and held so high a place in popular and critical favor must indeed be a great artist as well as a great personality.

Mr. Grainger comes to Peterborough under the auspices of the Peterborough Concert Association and will play in the Collegiate auditorium next Wednesday evening.

This Is Everybody's War

Peterborough Kinsettes have done it again! Their bingo at the Legion Hall last Friday night netted another substantial sum for the Milk for Britain Fund....A new group the Victory Workers, are now sewing for Britain. At their tea on Tuesday they had seven quilts and an afghan all completed in the short while that they have been organized.... Dig out those old fox-trot records! Remember? The ones you danced to before radio brought Cab Calloway and Guy Lombardo into your front parlor. Still good, they're worth five cents apiece to the Salvage Committee and cracked or broken ones are worth three cents. And all because of a rare gum which can be extracted from them and used over again.

That's a lovely pair of silver foxes the Lion's Club is raffling for the War Victims' Fund....All women's clubs and organizations are being asked by the government to co-operate in the enforcement of the sugar rationing and price ceiling regulations. Three-quarters of a pound of sugar per week is enough for anybody, and, girls, just think of your waist-lines!....Would anyone like to make a bet that a lot of people wish they had hung on to the old tires they gave to the Salvage Committee last fall....Children in one school district bought more than $1,800 worth of War Savings Stamps in four months. And they saved the money in coppers!....The Kinsmen are preparing to boost their Milk Fund even higher with a big Charity Ball at the Kawartha on Friday. A fine R.A.F. band from Kingston will supply the music. Happy Dancing!

57th Chapter Spends $1,106.50 On War Work

At the annual meeting of the 57th Chapter, I.O.D.E., held on Wednesday in the Armouries, much business was transacted and the various conveners gave splendid reports on the year's work.

During the past year the following knitted and other articles were sent to headquarters for their ultimate distribution in England: 1,126 refugee garments, 416 knitted articles, 147 shelter bags and contents valued at $2.00; 73 quilt afghans and blankets, 61 suits of pyjamas. 20 hospital garments, also 76 articles were sent to the Polish relief in Siberia.

In addition to the usual teas and other money making schemes the members held two successful bingos —both of which were well patronized.

The carnival held last year at the James Stevenson Park in collaboration with the Y's Men's Club was also well worth the effort.

The Chapter took part in the selling of tags in November, the proceeds used entirely for Christmas boxes to the soldiers, sailors and airmen.

Mrs. Turner, Regent, represented the Chapter at the National, Provincial and semi-annual Provincial Conventions.

A new flag was placed in the standard at the cemetery in honor of the men who made the supreme sacrifice during the last war.

For the local council teas, Mrs. Leeson's Garden Party and the picnic for the blind, the chapter helped provide refreshments. Men on active service received 2,000 cigarettes from the chapter. Collections of books, magazines have been made at various times and sent to our fighting forces. A wreath was placed on the cenotaph.

The chapter's adopted school at Minden received a large bale at Christmas time.

The hospital committee reported that they had made 717 calls and also distributed several baskets of fruit.

During the year donations were made to the following: $10 to the Lucy Morrison Memorial Fund, $10 to the Endowment fund, $25 to camp libraries, $35 to Polish relief, $25 to British War Guest fund, $48 to Seamen's Sweater, $25 maintenance of War Service Department, $34 British blanket fund, $25 Navy League, Christmas boxes to armed services $192.50.

The treasurer's report showed a total of $1,416.66 raised during the year, of which $1,106.66 was spent on war work alone.

The following were elected to office: Honorary regent, Mrs. T. W. H. Young; regent, Mrs. C. Turner; 1st vice regent, Mrs. A. Cutmore; 2nd vice regent, Mrs. C. M. Scott; secretary, Mrs. T. D. Miller; treasurer, Mrs. F. Haggart; standard bearer, Mrs. G. Melton; press secretary, Mrs. U. E. Waterman; war convener, Mrs. William Langford; hospital convener, Mrs. W. L. Charpe; educational convener, Mrs. C. McWilliams and Mrs. M. Swanston; empire study convener, Mrs. F. Merritt.

Councillors: Mrs. F. Brooks, Mrs. E. Boyer, Mrs. R. E. Clarke, Mrs. C. Stuart, Mrs. W. E. Conway, Mrs. R. Cottrell, Mrs. J. S. Fanning, Mrs. I. H. Floyd, Mrs. G. Hall, Mrs. E. J. Lush.

Mrs. G. Melton was named representative for the chapter at the Civic War Service Council. Mrs. D. Loomis and Mrs. R. Cottrell will represent the chapter at the Local Council.

Members are being urged to buy more war savings stamps and special I.O.D.E. folders were distributed among the ladies. Mrs. C. M. Scott was assigned the duties of War Savings convener.

Christmas Parcels Bring Good Time To Men Overseas

The Women's Auxiliary of the 4th Anti Tank Battery have receivod a letter from Major John Harstone, thanking them for their Christmas parcels. Part of his letter was as follows.

"The last few days have been spent in preparation for Christmas, and I think every man has received one or more boxes from home.

From the Women's Auxiliary we received 8 boxes containing Christmas cake, chocolate and 3,000 cigarettes. We succeeded in securing a large, well-lighted hall. Had a fine Christmas tree decorated with lights we brought over from Lindsay. It was beautifully decorated, holly wreaths and streamers. We secured white paper for the tables, which were decorated with the artillery colors. Red and blue candles. For having the best decorated mess in the area, the men received 1000 cigarettes. They also had a most scrumptious dinner.

Turkey, roast pork, dressing, two vegetables, potatoes, Christmas pudding, mince tarts and Christmas cake. They also had Christmas cake in the evening and enough left for New Year's, so we are extremely grateful to the auxiliary for their wonderful contribution. I believe this made their Christmas very happy, as well as the huge number of letters and parcels they received from home."

It would give much satisfaction to the officers and men if they only knew the excellent war work being done by the members of their families and their friends in the Women's Auxiliary of the 4th Anti Tank Battery.

Mildred Carter Wed To Cpl. Joseph McKey

LAKEFIELD, Feb. 12.—(ENS). — The home of the bride's parents was the scene of a pretty wedding on Saturday when Mildred Mae, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert W. Carter, of Smith township, was united in marriage to Corp. B. B. McKey, son of Mrs. Fulton Angus McKey, formerly of Brampton, and the late Mr. McKey, with Rev. W. B. Walker, of the Lakefield Baptist church, performing the ceremony beneath an arch of evergreens, white flowers and bells.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a street length frock of golden colored crepe with accessories to blend. She also wore a brooch worn by her grandmother when a girl of thirteen years.

Miss Eva Henthorne of Peterborough, was the bridesmaid and wore a turquoise blue crepe frock. The bride and her attendant each carried a bouquet of spring flowers.

Lance Corp. Jos. Hayes of Peterborough, was the groom's attendant.

Following the ceremony a reception for the immediate friends and relatives was held. Mrs. McKey, mother of the groom, is at present with the Red Cross units stationed in the West Indies.

For the honeymoon the bride chose a rose crepe dress and back coat with black accessoris.

Previous to their marriage Mr. and Mrs. McKey were the guests of honor at a miscellaneous shower held at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robt. W. Carter on Thursday evening of last week.

Games were played and later an address of good wishes was read by Elmer Rosborough. Thanks was expressed by the bride and groom elect for the many useful and beautiful gifts.

V.O.N. Discusses How To Prevent Disease

The Peterborough Branch of the Victorian Order of Nurses held its monthly meeting last night with the chairman, James Dutton, presiding. The budget for the year was presented by the finance committee, and methods of publicity were discussed. Miss M. Ross read her report for the month of January.

The patients registered during the month numbered 128, an increase of 44 over January of last year. In all, 519 visits were made, of which 101 were for purposes of instruction only. In 79 cases nursing care was given to mothers and babies; three home confinements were attended; and six night calls were answered. There were six pneumonia calls. The 307 cases were medical and surgical. Nurses of the Order assisted the doctor at one operation. The report shows an increase of 200 visits over January, 1941.

Miss Ross also read an article by Dr. McCann, in which the author stressed the great need throughout Canada for more teaching of prevention medicine. The article stated that on any one day in Canada, 50,000 workers are idle through illness; that one out of every eight men applying for military service was rejected as medically unfit. These conditions, which slow up and obstruct our national war effort, could have been prevented through a proper knowledge of the prevention of disease; and if the benefits of modern science had been available.

Miss Ross wondered if something could be done, by means of publicity, to bring a knowledge of the services offered by the Victorian Order of Nurses to the industrial workers and others in the low and moderate income brackets. The cost of services of the Order are designed for those who cannot afford high hospital and doctor's bills.

St. John's W A. Sees Pictures, Canadian Scenes

The February meeting of the senior branch of St. John's W.A. was held in the parish hall on Tuesday evening at 7 p.m. instead of the customary afternoon session.

The occasion was the showing of some beautiful travelogue pictures in technicolor by Mr. Glover of Chemong Park.

Mr. Glover was introduced to the audience by the rector, Canon Robertson who also thanked him warmly for the evening's entertainment. The views were of the Canadian Rockies, the Adirondacks and coming close to home. There were lovely views showing the glories of Chemong Park and its environs, particularly lovely in Autumn tint.

Prior to the showing of the pictures the ladies held a short business session, with the president, Mrs. Cruthers in the chair. The routine business was conducted briskly, special items were: the packing of the Dorcas bale before March 7, the "Day of Prayer" to be held at Knox Church on Feb. 20. Letters were read from diocesan officers to branch presidents and treasurers regarding an increase in allotments to each branch. After some discussion on these matters the meeting was thrown open for the showing of the pictures.

Margaret Young Marries John Cavanagh

The wedding took place in St. Peter's Cathedral on Tuesday of Margaret Leah, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Young, and John Bernard Cavanagh, son of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Cavanagh. Father G. A. Duffus sang "Ave Maria."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of white chiffon, with sequin trimming at bodice and neck line, long full sleeves. Her veil of white net reached to her waist line and was heart shaped, and caught with a corsage of orange blossoms. She carried a bouquet of red roses. She was attended by Anna Cavanagh, sister of the groom, who wore turquoise blue net, threaded with silver, with matching halo and shoulder veil and lace mittens. She carried a nose-gay of pink carnations. Mr. George Young was best man and the ushers were James and Thomas Cavanagh, brothers of the groom.

After the ceremony a reception was held at the bride's home, where the bride's mother received, wearing a gown of navy blue with a black hat and a bouquet of roses.

Later the young couple left on a trip to Ottawa. For travelling the bride wore a dress of olive green with brown accessories. On their return they will live at 380 Queen street, Peterborough.

Delightful Tea St. Paul's Manse

Daffodils, tulips, and stocks gave a spring-like air to the tea table at the tea held in St. Paul's manse by the Ladies' Aid on Wednesday afternoon. The long table was covered with a cut-work linen cloth, and pale yellow candles gleamed in massive silver candle-sticks. Mrs. W. J. Moorhead, Mrs. W. Grey, Mrs. A. D. McLeish, Mrs. W. Brown and Mrs. F. Rowan poured tea.

Assisting in serving tea were Mrs. H. Taylor, Mrs. W. B. Gordon, Mrs. R. McWilliams, Mrs. G. R. Coleman, Mrs. F. Board and Mrs. V. Tully.

FOR HOLIDAY EVENINGS

By ALICE ALDEN

DINNER clothes designed for resort wear are mostly of the cover-up variety but very, very attractive in their pastel colorings with touches of discreet glitter. Una Merkel, lovely red-haired screen and radio star, has selected a gown typical of the trend. It is of silk crepe in the palest of blues for the long, slim accordion-pleated skirt. The long-torso top has a darker blue yoke. The blouse is embroidered with dark blue and white sequins in a small circle pattern.

PARENTS' BAD EXAMPLES ARE WARNINGS TO CHILDREN

Family Bickering Shows Them the Necessity for Changing Their Own Lives.

Dear Dorothy Dix — If a girl's mother leaves her husband and children and lovely home to go away with another man, do you think the daughter will do likewise after she gets married? That is my problem. That is the way my mother treated my father, and there is not a better or kinder man in the world than he is. I am engaged to be married and I am afraid I might do as my mother has done, although I am not like her in character or disposition. I am like my Dad. But my fiance is a fine young man and I love him too much to be willing to run any chance of hurting him after we are married. Do you think I should risk marrying him?

FRIGHTENED GIRL.

Answer: I don't think there would be the slightest risk in your marrying your sweetheart. Sometimes our parents are not an example to us. They are an awful warning. You have had yours, and just because your mother was unfaithful to her marriage vows will make you keep yours all the stricter.

Many a man never touches even a glass of beer because his father was a drunkard. The son of many a thriftless loafer is so disgusted with his father's lack of energy and ambition that he works up to being a millionaire. There is an old proverb that says that heavy-heeled mothers make light - heeled daughters, and some of the most meticulous housekeepers I have ever known have come out of homes in which a lazy mother laid on a couch and read novels, or gossiped over the back fence with a neighbor, while the floors went unswept the beds unmade, and there was never a decent meal put on the table.

You will find no such husband-spoilers as are the women who resented the way their mothers hen-pecked their fathers. The most peaceful home I ever visit in is one presided over by a woman who permits no arguments in it because she was reared in a home where her parents were in a perpetual wrangle.

Of course, no sensible person decries the force of heredity, but remember that it is a fifty-fifty proposition that you get just as much from your father as you do from your mother, and you are just as likely to "take after" him as you are of her. Your being so shamed and shocked by your mother's conduct shows that you have no inclination to follow in her footsteps, so you needn't be afraid that you won't make your husband a good wife.

STICKING TO THE JOB

Dear Dorothy Dix: I am one of the married women who feel that they must work and help buy the groceries. My husband works on a straight commission basis and has always managed to make a fairly good salary, but the fact remains that it is gambling on whether we eat or not from week to week unless I bring home the bacon. Working every day from eight to five and then going home and doing the housework is very wearing on me, and the question is this: Should I continue working and earning a moderately good salary, which gives us security, when I know that as long as I do this my husband will never seriously look for a job with a salary that would be enough for us to get by on? Or should I just lay the breadwinning in his lap and take care of my house?

UNCERTAIN WIFE.

Answer: It doesn't seem to me that this is any time in which to throw away a steady job when the shutting down of so many businesses on account of the war is putting thousands and thousands of competent people out of work. So my earnest advice to you is to hold on to the good thing you have until the situation clears up.

As matters stand now your husband's commission may vanish into thin air any day and you would be in the bread line if you had also thrown away your meal ticket. I know it is hard for a woman to have to hold down two jobs and come home and do a day's housework after having done ten hours' office work, but it isn't so wearing on her to have to sweep a floor as not having a floor to sweep, or having to cook, or having to cook a dinner as not having any dinner to cook.

Of course, whether the working wife helps her husband or hinders him depends altogether on the man. If a man is ambitious and industrious and anxious to get somewhere in the world, it is an enormous help to him in the years in which he is getting his start for his wife to pull her weight in the boat. It enables him to save the money that is often the golden key that unlocks the door of opportunity for him. It often makes it so that he can get an interest in some business that will make him independent, or to give up a poor job while he hunts for a better one, and it frees him from the paralyzing dread of what would happen to his wife if he should get sick or die.

Wife Often Spurs Husband On

And because his wife is being such a good sport spurs him on to make every effort to succeed so that he can carry all the burden of their livelihood on his shoulders and make life easier for her.

But if, on the other hand, he is indolent and easy-going and lacking in punch and in initiative, then his wife is a hindrance instead of a help to his making anything of himself. She takes away from him the necessity to work which is the only spur in the side to which the unambitious respond. As long as she will support the family he will let her. As long as he is comfortable he will never try to better his condition.

So there you are. You know your man and you will have to be guided by that knowledge in making your final decision.

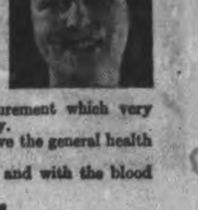
A Pimple Covered Face Kills Many a Romance



The lives of many young people are made miserable by the breaking out of pimples, and you probably know of cases where a promising romance has been spoiled by those red, white, festering and pus filled sores on the face.

The trouble is not so much physical pain, but the mental suffering caused by the embarrassing disfigurement which very often makes the sufferer ashamed to go out in company.

The quickest way to get rid of pimples is to improve the general health by a thorough cleansing of the blood.

Burdock Blood Bitters helps to cleanse the blood and with the blood cleansed the complexion should clear up.

Have You Little Vegetable Tyrant In Your Home?

By MARY MOORE

(Editor's note.—The corn syrup recipes promised for this week will be all the better for the delay of another week or maybe two—for I am using nothing but corn syrup for sweetening, and the top-notch cakes and desserts we are getting are a revolation of what can be done with this nutritious sweet. Recipe s using corn syrup instead of sugar definitely are coming, so watch for them.)

A note from an anxius mother asks me to give her ways of serving vegetables that will make her children like them.

Including my own two the precious little tyrants should be sent to bed without their suppers!—and next day served the same vegetables alone; first, before they received any other food.

This is tough treatment, but children require it. It works like a charm though, and mothers, I am willing to wager you won't hear a word about vegetables for the rest of your child-feeding days. (Although if you have a die-hard like my little Marianne was I don't know the answers, for when she was 13 months old one morning I found her with a cheekful of spinach—having held it there all night!) When she started to like spinach I don't know, but now she eats it by the pound so she can fight Peter.

Children must eat a large variety of vegetables and the faster their prejudices are removed the healthier they will be. What I could not endue from my two was the complaining attitude,—while in England every square inch of grass plot and window box is used for vegetable growing of one kind or another purely that they may survive—and our pampered pets are quibbling about LIKING them.

Your attitude should be "Like them and eat them willingly, or leave the table and have them cold for breakfast." Don't I sound mean? Yes,—but if you borrow my technique over the years you will have done your children a great kindness.

Cream Soups With Vegetables.

First I have to mention again the one sure-fire method of providing vegetables for the children, and that is in the good old soup pot which contains ALL your vegetable water plus many celery trimmings and leftover daily vegetables. If you can't manage enough additions to give it good flavor boil it with a 5-cent beef bone occasionally.

If you are canny you can include in cream soups almost as much spinach or peas or tomatoes, etc., as you would give the children in a serving of them alone.

Children like soup and if they get their vegetables in it your worries are half over. The only drawback is that it fills them too soon and they haven't enough room for the other foods that are essential for balanced nutrition. When I serve cream soups I reserve the milk until the end of the meal. If they still want it after their dessert is eaten it is all to the good.

Baked Potatoes

In school the children are being taught that they need chewy food like the skin of baked potatoes, raw carrots and celery, peanuts, skin of apples, etc., and it is not so hard to persuade them to eat these things now. But for those who object to the skin of baked potato I have two good suggestions. For plain baked potato be sure to oil the skin well before baking—bacon dripping is very good, or if butter is used, do not apply it until about 5 minutes before removing potatoes from oven. The fat softens the skin and makes it quite attractive. My next suggestion is new—new to me, I should say.

Baked Sliced Potatoes

Wash medium sized potatoes very well and slice them lengthwise in ¼-inch slives, and arrange in layer in baking dish sprinkling with salt and pepper and lots of bacon drippings or butter between layers. When you have enough done for your family pour in just enough boiling water to cover bottom of dish, to prevent burning. Watch it and add water if necessary, but let cook away at the end. This gives a French fried effect, breaks up the skin a good deal—be sure not to pare them—and for adults for a variation sprinkle them with cheese. It is one of the nicest ways of serving potatoes I know. For the reader enquiring about Vitamin B, here is an ideal food and method of retaining it. Potato Skins contain Vitamin B.

Spinach With Beets

One resourceful mother I know discovered that her daughter who is finicky about vegetables, would eat both spinach and beets if mixed together, but neither of them separately. Now she is using the canned products, mixing one can of spinach with one can of beets, and draining the liquid into her soup pot. The combined vegetables are heated in top of double boiler and flavored with butter and salt and pepper and a few drops of lemon juice (or vinegar for adults) or a ½ cup thick cream sauce.

Tomato Cakes

This is an old-fashioned dish—I can't remember hearing of it since I was home as a child—as kids we loved it. One cup canned tomatoes, 2 eggs, 12 soda crackers, rolled very finely, salt and pepper to taste, bacon drippings or other fat for frying or baking. Season tomatoes and mash with half the crackers crumbs, add eggs and beat smooth. Add remaining crumbs and shape into small flat cakes. For children these should be baked and served in place of meat or protein dish. For adults they could be baked OR fried in deep fat or shallow fat when they are quite delicious. A cheap item for an interesting vegetable plate.

Delicate Mashed Parsnips

Wash, pare and boil sliced parsnips in just enough salt water to cover, until tender enough to mash easily. In a separate dish boil 2 whole potatoes (for 3 medium parsnips) and when they are tender add them to the parsnips, with ¼ cup top milk and 2 tablespoons butter and mash very well, adding salt and pepper to taste. Some children might eat them more readily if more milk were added.

Scalloped Carrots

These may be baked in individual dishes for children to make them more attractive,—but are much easier done in a large casserole.

Shred cleaned carrots into buttered casserole, and pour over barely enough milk to cover. Add salt and pepper and lots of butter, cover tightly, and bake at 350 deg. Fahr. until carrots are tender, and most of the milk has been taken up.

If any readers have good vegetable ideas for children, we would be glad to hear from them.

PATTERN 9990

"It's a surprise!"—this cute little frock for daughter that Mother made from Pattern 9990 by Marian Martin. She can wear it for playtime, everyday-time—she can wear it all season long. The use of contrast on the dress is fresh and bright for spring — the skirt, the front bodice panel and sash are made of different fabrics. Six little buttons will accent that front panel cleverly, too—so do add them! The bodice buttons down the back, and hasn't the bias skirt got a jolly flare? It's flattering to a tiny figure. An expert cutting guide is included in the Sew Chart to help you save material. . . . You'll be able to afford two frocks easily, perhaps one with long sleeves.

Pattern 9990 may be ordered only in children's sizes 2, 4, 6, 8 and 10. Size 6 requires 1⅛ yards 35 inch fabric and ⅝ yard contrast.

IN MEMORIAM

COLLISON.—In loving memory of Eva Cladys Collison, who passed away one year ago today, February 12, 1941.

Unlike the footprints that the snow cannot retain,
The imprints made upon our hearts will still remain.
Smiles and tears and time may dim the hue,
Though not blot out our memories of you.
There is that with which we cannot part—
The imprints that you made upon our hearts.
—Husband and Family.

COLLISON.—In loving memory of our dear daughter-in-law, Eva Gladys Collison, who passed away February 12, 1941.

—Inserted by Mr. and Mrs. William Collison, Manchester, England, and son Kenneth, of the Royal Navy.

LONG.—In loving memory of Frederick Long, who passed away one year ago to-day.

Memory's hand is reaching back one year ago to-day,
When one we loved so dearly, so suddenly passed away.
It was hard to part, but it was God's will
To vacate the chair that we never can fill.
—Ever remembered by Wife and Family.

JONES.—In loving memory of a dear wife and mother, Mrs. Agnes Elsie Jones, who passed away February 12, 1931.

Till day breaks and shadows disappear.
—Ever remembered by her Husband and Family.

JONES.—In loving memory of our dear mother, Elsie Agnes Jones.

Silently the angels took you,
Into the mansion above,
There shall be rest from earth's toiling
Safe in the arms of God's love.
—Ever remembered by her Children.

No, no, no! Le bon Dieu would never permit that. He remembered once that his grandmother had shrugged her shoulders contemptuously at something Anna said about trust the good God. Was it—was it possible that his grandmother knew something she had never told him—that perhaps — perhaps there wasn't a bon Dieu at all, just as he had found out when he was a very little boy that there was no Santa Claus and no real giants?

He turned his face down into the pillow and pulled the covering over his head.

Budget Expenses to Win Security

A Bank Account That's Growing

Frank and Mary no longer live on the verge of financial disaster. Without penny-pinching or giving up good times, their easy budget plan makes saving possible.

How did they set up this magic plan? First they kept a trial budget, a record of all expenditures for a month. They saved shopping lists, sales slips, even the brown paper bags on which the grocer totals his figures.

And they were amazed at the number of little leaks that showed up in just one month's spending. When they plugged them, that was "money in the bank" right away.

Then they estimated their annual income — divided it up among FOOD, CLOTHING, SHELTER, and so on, using the Trial Budget as a guide.

To protect their RECREATION allowance they created a fund EMERGENCIES. Thus they don't let unexpected dental or repair bills eat up vacation savings.

Stretch your income with a budget. Our 32-page booklet tells how to divide your money to get what you want most. Includes tips on buying and ruled pages for a year's accounts.

For your copy of "How To Budget and Buy For Better Living," send 15 cents in coins or stamps to the Examiner, Home Service, Peterborough. Be sure to write plainly your name, address, and the name of booklet.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

WRITTEN FOR THE EXAMINER

By SHEPARD BARCLAY

"The Authority on Authorities"

HIGH OR LOW RELATIVE

"WHEN YOU play a seven-spot or higher on a trick, it indicates a desire for another lead of that suit, and if you play a lower card, it means you want your partner to shift." How painfully incorrect that advice is, yet you often hear fair average players pass it out that way to neophytes. Properly stated, it is thus: "If the card played can be read as your partner's lowest, it means one thing, whereas if it is clearly higher than his lowest, it means the other."

North: ♠ 9 6 5 ♥ A Q 10 6 ♦ 8 6 5 4 ♣ 6 5

West: ♠ 7 ♥ 8 7 4 2 ♦ K Q 7 ♣ A K Q 3 2

East: ♠ J 10 2 ♥ 9 3 ♦ A 10 3 ♣ J 10 9 8 7

South: ♠ A K Q 8 4 3 ♥ K J 5 ♦ J 9 2 ♣ 4

(Dealer: West. Both sides vulnerable.)

West	North	East	South
1 ♣	Pass	2 ♣	2 ♠
3 ♣	3 ♠	4 ♣	4 ♠

West was strongly inclined toward taking further action, either doubling the 4-Spades or going on to 5-Clubs. The latter contract can be beaten quickly with a trick in spades and two in hearts, and it is just as well West did not double, as he bungled the defense and enabled South to make his contract. East felt a little as if West's pass was a forcing pass, calling upon him to double, but he knew his partner as a doubtful defensive player, so refrained from taking a crack at the 4-Spades.

Making the natural lead of the club K, West casually watched the fall of the cards on it. When he saw East come in with the 7, he repeated the suit. South, of course, ruffed, dropped the trumps in three rounds, ran four hearts for the discard of a diamond and later gave up two diamond tricks, making his contract.

Why did West watch only for the size of his partner's card on that first trick? If he had looked also at the 4 played by the declarer, then taken a glance at his own hand and dummy, he would have seen that East could not possibly have had any lower club. The natural switch then to diamonds would have beaten the contract. Just as a 3 can be an encouraging card, when the 2 may be read as also held, so a 9 even can be discouraging if it can be read as the lowest held. It is all relative, or comparative.

Tomorrow's Problem

North: ♠ K 9 7 6 ♥ Q J 7 5 ♦ A J 4 ♣ K 4

West: ♠ A 10 ♥ K 8 6 2 ♦ Q 10 9 7 5 ♣ 6 5

East: ♠ J 8 2 ♥ A 10 9 4 ♦ 6 3 ♣ Q J 8 7

South: ♠ Q 5 4 3 ♥ 3 ♦ K 8 2 ♣ A 10 9 8 2

(Dealer: North. East-West vulnerable.)

Would you open the bidding on the North hand of this deal and, if so, why? What bid would you consider best on it?

No Federal Aid Says CCF Heads

TORONTO, Feb. 12—(CP).—The Ontario committee of the C.C.F. today issued a statement terming "entirely unwarranted" a statement made Monday night by Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen, Canadian Conservative leader, that his defeat in the York South by-election Monday was brought about "by a parternship of the Dominion Government and the C.C.F., with the government dictating and directing the whole character of the campaign."

The C.C.F. statement said Mr. Meighen's statement after his defeat by the C.C.F. candidate, J. W. Noseworthy, "cannot be allowed to go unanswered."

"The whole of the C.C.F. campaign was fought by the tireless and voluntary efforts of hundreds of our workers," the statement continued. "Every word of its publicity was written and prepared by members and committees of the C.C.F. and the strategy and policies of the entire campaign was directed by members of the Ontario C.C.F. executive in consulation with the South York C.C.F. campaign committee. Mr. Arthur Roebuck was the only Liberal who spoke for Mr. Noseworthy and he did so at his own expense, after Mr. Meighen invited such action by accepting the assistance of Premier Hepburn."

The statement noted that the C.C.F. candidate was nominated last Dec. 1 and said donations from organizations through Canada "enable us to spend more than in more C.C.F. elections."

"Mr. Meighen also referred as a reason for his defeat to the 4,000 soldiers who, he says, had left the riding and as a result were disfranchised, apparently assuming that their votes would have gone to him," the statement said. "..Nothing in the campaign was more encouraging to us than the support which Mr. Noseworth received from men in uniform who were able to to vote.."

Red Cross Plans Euchre Party

HAVELOCK, Feb. 12 — (ENS). — The Red Cross Room was just as busy as usual on Monday afternoon despite the cold weather. The meeting opened with Mrs. H. Roche, the vice-president, in the chair. A large amount of knitting was returned. and more wool given out. A lovely pieced quilt, all completed, was donated by Mrs. William Buchanan.

The report from the committee regarding the giving of socks to the boys overseas, stated a large number were given out but there was still a few more to be sent. The Social Committee, with Mrs. Jones as convener, reported the necessary arrangements made for a euchre party on Tuesday, February 17, when the draw for the lucky ticket on the autograph quilt will take place. The secretary, Mrs. Charles Couch, has received the two new Red Cross flags which, when completed, will be on display in the window for the public during the special display week.

During the afternoon two quilts were completed and a large part of the new quota was cut out and given to volunteer sewers.

On the motion of Mrs. A. Anderson and Mrs. T. Easterbrook it was decided to serve light refreshments at the last meeting of each month. At five o'clock a dainty lunch was served by Mrs. Donald Holdcroft, which was a complete surprise to the members, but proved a real treat.

Ex-Omemee Rector, Rev. Johnson Inducted In Newmarket Charge

OMEMEE, Feb. 12—(ENS).—St. Paul's Anglican Church, Newmarket, was filled to the doors on the occasion of the induction of the Rev. G. H. Johnson, M.A., B.D., into the incumbency of St. Paul's Church and parish by the Right Reverend A. R. Beverley, Suffragan Bishop of the diocese.

It was unique in that both Mr. Johnson's father and brother, clergymen in this diocese, took part in the service. Rev. George Johnson of East Toronto, the father, took the prayers, and Rev. A. C. Johnson of St. George's Church, Gore's Landing, the brother, served as chaplain to the bishop. A goodly number of the clergy of the deanery also were present.

The choir and the visiting clergy took their places in the chancel to the singing of the grand old hymn, "All People That On Earth Do Dwell," while the rector, Rev. G. H. Johnson, sat with the church wardens in the body of the church.

The bishop sitting in his chair at the top of the chancel steps, called Mr. Johnson to him and presented him with the Archbishop's letters of institution or license, to conduct the services of the church, after which he presented him with the Bible and the Book of Common Prayer.

The second part of the service was the induction, when the bishop pronounced him duly inducted into the incumbency of the parish. Then he was presented the keys of the church by the wardens, J. D. Little and J. E. Nesbitt, who by that act and word acknowledged him to be lawful incumbent of the parish.

It was a particularly solemn and impressive ceremony, and the address by Dr. F. H. Cosgrave, Provost and Chancellor of Trinity College, Toronto, based on the 20th chapter of Acts 1, verses 17 to the end, was a fitting climax.

Before the recessional hymn, "The Church's One Foundation," the rector invited those present to a reception in the parish hall, and all were presented to Bishop Beverly, the members of Mr. Johnson's family and the visiting clergy. The ladies of the church had prepared luncheon for over 200 who gathered in the hall after the service, the tables looking particularly inviting with the silver candelabra and their tall lighted candles.

The young women's and young men's Bible classes served the guests after appropriate and timely speeches by Bishop Beverly and Church Warden Little.

Capt. H. C. Cox, chaplain and padre of Newmarket Military Camp, was with the clergy in the chancel for the service.

Was Achy, Miserable For Years; Feels Grand Now!

Would Get Severe Pains In Arms, Limbs and Muscles. Also Troubled With Stomach Disorders and Constipation. Tells How Syntona Helped Her.

To persons who suffer from stomach disorders, constipation, nervousness, backache or aches and pains throughout the body, this message is one that tells how many people have found relief.

MRS. W. J. EVANS, 108 Belmont Avenue, Hamilton, Ont., says: "Because of a disordered stomach and constipation I have felt achy and miserable for years. I seldom knew what it was to be free from torturing pains in my arms, limbs, and muscles. Especially in the mornings they would be so stiff and sore that it took all the good out of me. Often I would awaken with a splitting headache. My stomach was so upset that I suffered constantly with indigestion, gas bloating and distress and belching of hot, sour liquids after meals. I had lost my appetite, and became nervous and worried over my condition.

"I had tried many different things without success, but about a month ago I read about how Syntona was so highly recommended and decided to try it. So far I have taken four bottles, and the results have been marvellous. The aches and pains have gone away for the first time in years and I can eat so many more things without any gas or distress in my stomach that I am surprised. I feel so much better throughout the day and sleep fine at night. I've had no trouble with constipation since I started taking Syntona and am entirely free from headaches and dizziness. It has helped me so much that I am very pleased to have this opportunity of recommending it to others who may be suffering as I did."

Syntona may be obtained in Peterborough at Elliott's Drug Store.— (Advt.)

3 RAIDERS RUN CHANNEL BREST TO HELIGOLAND

(By D. E. BURNETT.)

LONDON, Feb. 13 (CP Cable)—Three German heavy warships which made a sensational escape from Brest and fled up the mist-hidden English Channel after a spectacular battle in all probability are safely at their destination, an authoritative source declared today.

Although all three ships the 26,000-ton battleships Gneisenau and Scharnhorst and the 10,000-ton cruiser Prinz Eugen—were reported hit by bombs or aerial torpedoes, this source indicated belief the damage was not sufficient to have prevented them from reaching Heligoland naval base.

This authority said no British surface ships were lost, thus contradicting a Berlin communique's claim tha' one British destroyer had been sunk. He said the action was completely over.

The confused battle in which everything from mine sweepers to great coastal guns on both sides of the Channel was used began on Thursday when the three craft, the bulk of Germany's remaining heavy warships, slipped from their year-old drydock internment in bomb-wrecked Brest's harbor.

They were engaged by British destroyers, motor torpedo boats and aircraft of all three commands, bomber, coastal and fighter. A number of Canadian airmen took part in the ensuing fight.

A 5-Hour Attack

From Brest to Heligoland is approximately 700 miles. Apparently the ships had negotiated nearly half this distance leaving Brest at dusk Wednesday when they first were engaged at 11 a.m. yesterday. For five hours planes were seen in constant action over the enemy armada.

By this evening the Scharnhorst, Gneisenau and Prinz Eugen probably had reached the shelter of Heligoland Bight, racing home at 20 knots ahead of the slower ships which guarded them through the Channel.

It was from the sky, however, that the German warships' greatest protection came, not only from concealing snow and fog but also from swarms of Nazi fighter planes, shuttling out in relays from the French coast to keep protection constantly over them.

The first word of the German warships' dash came from two Spitfires on reconnaissance. They eluded 12 Messerschmitts to race home and spread the alarm.

Quickly, a flight of torpedo planes guarded by 50 fighters was flying toward the French coast and from then on British planes sped out to the attack.

The Air Ministry news service said the first flight of fighter-escorted

Isles Shocked At Hun Audacity

Lack Of Dive Bombers Hinted Reason For Warships' Escape

(By DREW MIDDLETON.)

LONDON, Feb. 13 (CP) — Germany's audacity in parading three of her most valuable warships past Britain's tightly guarded front door shocked these islands today.

Not only the blow to Britain's Naval prestige but also its consequences disturbed the press and the public.

With the Royal Navy involved in the Mediterranean and Far Pacific as well as in nearby waters, the Germans now have an opportunity to join powerful ships to their other battle forces and, possibly upset the scales of naval power in the Atlantic.

Much discussion centred on air strength, for it was an umbrella of air protection stemming out in relays from German bases on the French coast which saw the flotilla safely through the Channel, centrries-old symbol of the British Isles' invulnerability.

"British sea power has received the most insolent challenge made against it for years," declared the Evening Standard.

"No German Fleet ever sailed through the Straits of the Channel in the last war. Indeed, no enemy fleet has dared to do it for more than a century. The sea was ours."

The newspaper asked whether the Air Ministry had wasted its money on huge bombers instead of torpedo planes and whether airpower was effectively co-ordinated with the other services as it has shown to be in Japan and Germany.

"The urgent need is for reform at the top," said the Evening News, lumping the battle of the Channel with the bad news from the Orient, "for the formation of a new and smaller war cabinet and a fresh and more determined grapple with our tremendous problems . . . ."

No Dive Bombers?

Some informed sources ascribed the failure of the R.A.F. and Fleet Air Arm to duplicate the Japanese air force's success against the Prince of Wales and Repulse off Malaya to the fact that the R.A.F. does not use dive bombers and that the weather was too bad to allow accurate high-level bombing.

But the problem was seen as far larger than merely a question of how and why the Nazi squadron got away.

As one source stated it bluntly:

"The Germans have a good chance to unite a superior fleet in the North Atlantic, a fleet strong enough at least for some time to go wherever it likes, from the Orkneys to Long Island."

It was pointed out the German fleet can now muster at least five formidable ships — the battleships Gneisenau, Scharnhorst, and Tirpitz, and the pocket battleships Scheer and Luetzow—as well as two aircraft carriers, three or four cruisers of the Prinz Eugen class, with eight-inch guns, several light six-inch cruisers, and a considerable but unknown number of destroyers.

Price Rise Coming

TORONTO, Feb. 13—(CP)—Donald Gordon, chairman of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board, said today Canadians may expect a rise in prices in two or three months' time. Mr. Gordon said the fact that the cost-of-living has been static in the last period under study is no guarantee that it will not rise in future.

"The Board has proved its usefulness and justified its existence and it is to be anticipated at this time that it will continue to function for at least a time following the cessation of hostilities," he said.

Nazi Sea Stroke Step To Navy, Vichy Ships Next

(By DEWITT MACKENZIE.)

LONDON, Feb. 13 —(CP)—Again Hitler has demonstrated through the astonishing escape of his battleships from Brest that it's supreme daring which does it.

This sensational coup exemplifies the cardinal principle underlying all Nazi strategy—to gamble greatly. True, the Germans are meticulous in their preparations ordinarily, but once they are set for action they don't hesitate to shoot for the moon. All of which is further proof that wars are won by initiative.

Of course, it would be rash to try to draw conclusions at this stage from the naval demonstration, before it is sure that the Nazi fleet has reached the protection of the German naval base at Heligoland safely. Still, naval experts are bound to start rechecking the heated arguments as to whether air-power has written the doom of the surface warship.

Through 66 Raids

There certainly is food for thought in the manner in which the Nazi fleet stood up under bombing in the early stages of this battle. And there is even more for reflection in the fact that while the two German battleships were anchored at Brest they went through more than 100 bombing raids, some 66 of which were specifically directed at these war vessels.

Despite the undoubtedly terrific lacing the Nazi ships endured, they sailed out of Brest harbor under their own steam. Naturally they were protected against aerial torpedoes in the harbor, but they were exposed to the heaviest type of bombs.

What is Hitler up to? We do know that he is preparing feverishly for his spring offensive and the indications are that this will involve an all-out attack on Allied shipping and Anglo-American naval strength. Anyway, his ships were no good to him tied up in Brest harbor.

Now Hitler seems determined to obtain possesion of the remnants of the French fleet by hook or by crook. Should he be able to add that to his own contingent, he and Mussolini between them would have a formidable navy.

White Russia Reached By Red Skiers

Soviets Strike Hard To Cut Hun Lines Use Guerillas, Chutists

MOSCOW, Feb. 13 (AP) — The Red Army's far-ranging ski troops have cut through German lines into White Russia, which lies next to the old frontier with Poland, a dispatch said today, while in the arctic submarines of the Northern Red Fleet reported sinking five German transports, a tanker and a trawler.

The dispatch from the western front announcing the penetration of White Russia, one of the Socialist Soviet republics in German hands, specified neither the position nor the strength of the operation. Indications were that it was a patrol action on a large scale.

A dispatch to the government newspaper Izvestia said a battalion of the 121st German Infantry regiment was dispersed in a victorious drive by sea soldiers of the Red Fleet to sieze emplacements high above Sevastopol, the main port of the Crimea.

(This Russian seizure of the initiative on the western coast of the Black Sea peninsula coincided with German air raids on the Kerch area to the east, indicating the Red Army might be again massing men and supplies for a renewal of the once-frustrated attempt to drive out the invading units in between.)

Ski soldiers, who manoeuvred across heavy snows, were aided by guerillas and probably by parachute troops in the thrust to win back White Russia and wipe out German communication lines across it.

Where the entry was made was not specified, but it could have been accomplished by advance units operating both north and south of Smolensk, key German base on the Dnieper river 230 miles west of Moscow.

White Russia is a republic of the U.S.S.R. north of the Ukraine and, with the Ukraine, suffered heavily in the fighting incident to the German drive to the east last summer.

The Russians reported Soviet marines had captured a strongly-fortified hill in the three-month-old Battle of Sevastopol.

Radio Ultimatum

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13—(AP).—The United States War Production Board announced today it had ordered the $200,000,000 radio manufacturing industry to convert its entire facilities to arms production within the next four months.

If the conversion is not accomplished within that period, the board declared in a virtual ultimatum, the Government will take over unconverted plants, break up their organization, and shift their equipment and labor "to other parts of the economy where they could be mobilized for war production."

The ultimatum was laid down, it was learned, at a meeting of representatives of 55 radio set manufacturers.

Japs Ease Indies Push-Dutch Fire Macassar

BATAVIA, N.E.I., Feb. 13—(AP)—The Netherlands high command reported today a temporary slackening of the Japanese drive on the Netherlands Indies and said destruction of harbor works of Macassar, chief port of Celebes, has been so effective, "the enemy will not find anything of use to him."

The defenders' scorched-earth tactics also were carried out in other parts of Southern Celebes, headquarters said, adding that according to latest official news from this sector of Japanese invasion the harbor area of Macassar still was in flames last night.

Macassar, chief port in the southwestern part of the island, is threatened by enemy drives from north and south. But this afternoon's communique, released through the news agency Aneta, gave some encouragement over the situation there in denying earlier Indies reports that the Japanese also were driving on the city from Balangnipa, across from Macassar on the eastern side of the Peninsula.

"Telegraphic reports from Macassar indicate that the original announcement regarding a Japanese landing at Balangnipa is not correct," the communique stated.

Most Of Island Lost Japs Step Up Air Raids On Port

LONDON, Feb. 13 —(CP)—The Singapore radio broadcasting the usual 10 p.m. Singapore time, news announced tonight that there had been "no great change in the general line."

Singapore's 10 p.m. broadcast (at noon, EDT), came through on schedule, the announcer saying there had been "no great change in the general line." He added that fighting was heaviest in the western and northwestern sectors and that "there is ample evidence that the Japanese forces are not having everything their own way."

The Japanese seemed to have seized Pierce reservoir, one of the two largest in Singapore's "catchment area," since today's communique placed the fighting there around Ang Mo Kio at the eastern end of the reservoir.

Fighting was under way around MacRitchie reservoir, twin of the Pierce pool. Several smaller pools in the catchment area north of the Pierce reservoir appeared to be within the Japanese line.

Most of Island Gone

But the enemy had not yet won Singapore city, though most of the land was in his hands.

This much was evident in information contained in the last two Singapore communiques, the latest being timed at 5 p.m. today (6 a.m. EDT).

Singapore announced that the Japanese had stepped up their air and artillery pressure with frequent shelling, high-level, low-level and dive-bombing attacks on forward positions and the city itself. Large formations of Japanese planes assailed Singapore directly.

"Obviously the Japanese are not yet in Singapore town yet or they would not be bombing and shelling it," a commentator said here. "The positions mentioned in the communique indicate some slight withdrawals by our forces since yesterday."

The Japanese, backing down from enthusiastic claims that Singapore was captured and all but mopped up, admitted their spearhead was still two miles from the centre of

A United States plane landed on the Atlantic off Bermuda and rescued nine seamen from a British ship, the survivors related today. The men, who had been drifting in a small lifeboat for 12 days, said their ship was sunk near New York.

The rescue was made Wednesday and six of the survivors were brought to hospital here. The other three, naval sailors, are being cared for at the Hamilton sailor's home.

The men in hospital were suffering from sunburn and exposure but their condition was not considered serious.

15 Million Cost Blocking RationByCoupon

TORONTO, Feb. 13 — (CP). — Donald Gordon, chairman of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board, said in an interview here to-day he is in favor of steering clear of direct rationing to consumers, but that rationing of food could be introduced in Canada with little delay if the situation becomes sufficiently acute.

Concerning direct rationing to consumers, Mr. Gordon said "There are other methods we can introduce such as restricting supply to the stores."

He said one of the reasons his Board is opposed to coupon rationing is the heavy expense involved. He estimated it would cost the Federal Government approximately $15,000,000 to introduce sucn a systm.

Meantime, Mr. Gordon said, Canadians must adopt a simpler way of life and "the sooner people get used to the idea the sooner we'll win the war." He added that people didn't seem to realize how close the war has come to Canada.

"Shortages are developing which will soon be felt by the people at large," he said. "There's no need for anyone to get panicky and go out and buy more than normal needs but they certainly should consider how they can help the war effort by making what they have do.

Battle 200 Germans For Hours Over Fleeing Raiders

(By DOUGLAS AMARON.)

SOMEWHERE IN ENGLAND, Feb. 13—(CP Cable). — Canadian fighter pilots in cannon-firing Spitfires destroyed at least three of the 18 German aircraft known to have been destroyed yesterday when the Royal Air Force made a desperate attempt to halt the flight of the Nazi warships Gneisenau, Scharnhorst and Prinz Eugen from their shelter at Brest.

The R.A.F. and the Fleet Air Arm suffered severely in pressing home their attack, 42 British craft having been lost.

One Canadian squadron was credited with two enemy machines destroyed, another probably destroyed and two others damaged. A pilot in another R.C.A.F. unit downed a third Nazi.

The picture of the part Canadian fighters played in the great confused fight over the cloud-shrouded channel gradually took form hours after the airmen ended the battle against a protective umbrella of more than 200 German machines. Matter of fact reports from their airdromes told of the heroic role the young airmen from the Dominion filled as they did their part to delay the progress of Germany's warships.

Attack In Line Astern

Pilots of the R.C.A.F.'s 1st Fighter Squadron attacked the vast aerial screen in line astern and raked enemy machines with the devastating fire of their multi-cannon Spitfires.

"We went in in three section, line astern," said P.O. A. L. Harley of London, Ont., "after Sgt. Don Morrison of Toronto had reported seeing an ME-109F around 11 o'clock. We followed him to about 1,000 feet above the clouds, gradually drawing within range. Once we got in range we could see our cannon shells back in his fuselage. Then they probably entered the cockpit.

"Morrison was following me. We both fired at the ME-109 and he went straight down into the sea. Then we flew right alongside the Scharnhorst. The sky was literally filled with kites and we could see our own section sticking very close together."

P.O. Ormston of Montreal followed on the tails of Harley and Morrison and sent another 109F spinning to disaster.

Flt.-Sgt. G. A. G. Ryckman of London, Ont., attached to an R.C.A.F. Spitfire squadron, and three members of the First Canadian Squadron to arrive in Britain; Pilot-Officers A. L. Harvey of London, Ont., Ian Ormiston of Montreal and Sgt. Don Morrison of Toronto accounted for two enemy planes destroyed, probably destroyed a third

A Lift In The Load

Toronto, Feb. 13 (CP)

HON. T. B. McQuesten, Ontario Minister of Municipal Affairs, said last night at the annual banquet of the Ontario Association of Real Estate Boards, that measures must be introduced to lift the heavy tax load on real estate, and outlined measure to effect this objective.

He recommended equalization of assessment throughout the province and establishment of a mill-rate ceiling.

"I think that all real estate can stand is a 25-mill rate based on a reasonable assessment," he said.

Other recommendations were a school for assessors, rural assessment on a county basis, a rotating system of assessment to be made every five years, and provincial control of courts of revision.

82,500 Enemy Aliens On List

30,000 Of Them Nazis R.C.M.P. Report Shows

OTTAWA, Feb. 13.—(CP).— Enemy aliens registered under the Defence of Canada regulations totalled 82,500 at March 31, 1941, it is revealed in the annual report of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police for the fiscal year 1940-41.

The registration included 30,000 Germans, 31,000 Italians and some 21,500 Czecho-Slovaks and Austrians. Exemptions were subsequently granted 21,175 persons who showed unquestioned loyalty.

The report, tabled in the House of Commons yeserday, showed 1,447,065 rifles and shotguns registered in Canada.

War activities now have assumed such proportions that the force is unable to assume new responsibilities without seriously affecting efficiency, Commissioner S. T. Wood reported.

Attention of the force had recently been directed to a number of new religious sects with teachings which in some cases border on the subversive, he said. "The leaders adopt the role of prophets and, in many instances, these prophecies are defeatist in character."

U S Navy Makes Mess of Jap Stronghold

Newshawk Watches As Big Guns Rake Island End To End, Beat Off Bombers

PEARL HARBOR, T.H., Feb. 13—(AP).—The story of the United States navy's sudden assault on the Marshall and Gilbert Islands was unfolded today by Jack Rice, Associated Press photographer who was aboard a cruiser participating in the attack.

Here's his story:—

The scene—A United States cruiser at Sea; the time—Just before noon, February 1.

I saw great guns from our ship rake the strongly held Japanese Island of Taroa from one end to the other today. They fought off repeated attack from the air, hammered shore batteries into silence—and right now we are steaming away with not much more damage than could be fixed by a village blacksmith.

It was a stunning show of strategy, skill, and cool courage.

Our operation was but one of several in this general area today and, from fragmentary reports now available to us, we are certain the Japanese must have taken a terrific beating.

(It developed later that the island base this force attacked was destroyed.)

It seems that our particular force plowed into the enemy's major hotbed of strength in these Atolls and that our baptism of fire was probably the heaviest of the day.

In many instances our other forces apparently met little opposition.

Our cruiser and destroyers were dropping shells on to the island base in a stream.

We could see more fires springing up on the island under the ceaseless blasting from the ships.

The enemy bombers still were not coming closer than 2,000 feet because our anti-aircraft was setting up what looked like a black tufted blanket.

It was more than an hour after the attack had started—and after the ship had altered direction in the knowledge that the mission was accomplished—that the first and only dive bomber came which really got through to us.

He came in fairly high and released a bomb which shook us from 50 yards off the starboard side. Then he climbed steeply, turned, and roared straight down with the second half of his two-bomb load. Its explosion killed several men and wounded others but did not hit a vital spot and did no appreciable damage below deck.

Meantime, our anti-aircraft blasted at least one attacking plane from the skies. Some others had left and the air was getting clearer. But the rudely awakened enemy sought one last chance.

We saw eight twin-engined bombers take off from the island. They hummed along in a wide "V" formation and probably were 12,000 feet high when they were nearly overhead.

They shot their whole works almost simultaneously—16 of their bigger bombs, probably 500-pounders.

All 16 crashed just astern and set up such a wall of water that one of our pilots said that from the air it looked as if the whole stern of the ship was enveloped in the ocean. But it wasn't. It didn't even get hit. It was one of those split-second manoeuvres executed by our skipper that let us live.

JAPS HURL MORE MEN AND PLANES IN ATTACK UPON SINGAPORE

LONDON, Feb. 13 (CP)—Despite desperate counter attacks by British forces the situation on Singapore Island appeared increasingly critical today, with the Japanese hurling more men and planes into action in an attempt to smash resistance regardless of cost.

While the full extent of Japanese gains during the last 12 hours was obscured by lack of detailed information from the embattled island, so far as known here Singapore City itself still is in British hands, notwithstanding Axis reports to the contrary.

Francis Forde, Australian Army Minister, said at Canberra he had received a message at 4.30 p.m. today (2.30 a.m., E.D.T.) from Lt.-Gen. A. E. Percival, commander of the Singapore garrison, saying that his forces still were putting up stout resistance against great odds.

Word received from Singapore, relayed to London early this morning from New Delhi, India, declared the invaders were pressing the attack with utter disregard for losses but gave no clue to the position of the opposing battle lines.

Last night's Singapore communique, however, said the defenders were holding a line extending from the naval base on Johore Strait southward to the centre of the island and thence to the coast through Tanglin, which is barely two miles west of the heart of Singapore City.

This appeared to indicate the defenders still were in possession of the naval base, from which all warships were withdrawn many days ago, and that they probably held at least a part of the vital reservoirs north of the city.

Japs Using Tanks

The communique described fighting as heavy all along the line, with the Japanese employing medium tanks to support their infantry, and declared the invaders were stepping up their air assault.

The communique reported, however, that the forces had successfully counter-attacked the Japanese left flank, apparently to relieve direct pressure on the City of Singapore.

This news caused only a faint flutter of hope here, for it was generally regarded as merely a delaying action.

The German radio asserted this morning that the Japanese were in control of Singapore City itself, including the port area, and that street fighting had ceased.

Nevertheless, the Nazi announcer said heavy fighting was under way around various individual defence fortifications, and that Japanese artillery was engaged in a violent duel with the guns of Changi port on the eastern tip of the island.

Competing for the Gruen wrist watches donated by Wesley W. Champ, of Hotel Champlain, women from five curling clubs engaged today in the first women's open bonspiel ever held at the Peterborough Curling Rink.

The ice was in perfect condition as the various rinks paired off at nine o'clock this morning and the third round is expected to be finished about six o'clock to-night. A strong rink from the High Park Club in Toronto looks like one of the top rankers, and in the first round, one High Park quartette downed a Bobcaygeon team skipped by Mrs. Ann MacIntosh, 10 to 2.

the city and reported that a pincer movement was under way against the naval base on the northern shore.

The facility with which the Singapore communique was delivered in London, to be made public here, indicated the measure of control Singapore maintained over her communications.

Fight to the Death.

TOKYO (From Japanese Broadcasts), Feb. 13 — (AP). — A Domei (Japanese news agency) dispatch conceded to-day that the invaders of Singapore Island are still two miles from the centre of Singapore City.

The Domei correspondent acknowledged that this had been made a fight to the death by the British garrison.

"Braving a rain of bullets directed at them by the British defenders, steel-helmeted Japanese soldiers grimly closing in on Singapore City from the suburbs, have reached a point three kilometers from the heart of the metropolis," the correspondent wrote.

"Since the early morning furious fighting has been going on in and around the race course in the northwestern suburbs as the Japanese forces gradually draw their ring of encirclement tighter around the enemy who apparently is determined to die in order to live up to the prestige of the British Empire."

The Domei man pictured the scene in a way to please war-minded Japanese.

"Despite the ominous roar of artillery and the rattle of machine-gun fire valiant bands of Japanese troops with sabres and bayonets bared for action are inching their way closer to the city by crawling or by sudden rushes.

The Domei man claimed a 10,000-ton vessel "fully laden with troops" was sunk in Singapore Harbor yesterday in air attacks, another, of 3,000 tons, set afire, and direct hits scored on nine other ships.

3 Raiders Run

British torpedo bombers was quickly followed into the battle by fresh waves of fighters and bomb-carrying Hurricanes, and from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. fighters were in constant action over the enemy ships.

Torpedo Hits Reported.

Pilots of one squadron which escorted torpedo bombers reported what appeared to be torpedoes striking one of the battleships. Three torpedo hits were reported by a Beaufort squadron led by Sqdn.-Ldr. W. H. Cliff.

While R.A.F. Spitfires tangled with the Nazi fighter planes, the Hurricanes swept down almost to sea level to attack escort vessels. R.C.A.F. units were numbered among these attacking forces.

Two pilots scored direct hits with 250-pound bombs on a 500-ton ship, which broke in two and sank. A smaller ship was left enveloped in smoke and flame.

Although attacked twice formations of 30 Messerschmitts, a Hurricane bomber squadron with Spitfire escort fought through a convoy. A Spitfire pilot attacked simultaneously by three Nazi fighters sent a cannon burst into the nearest enemy plane, then saw it crash into its neighbor and both fell into the sea.

A strong force of fighters was encountered over the convoy, but the tactics of the German pilots, said the news service, were to draw the British fighters over to the coast rather than to engage them in combat.

It was disclosed that new Focke-Wulf 190's were among the fighter planes which gave the big Nazi ships an almost constant aerial screen.

Through the Destroyers.

Sqdn.-Ldr. Cliff said his Beauforts dropped their torpedoes under weather conditions so bad it was rarely possible to see farther than half a mile. To obtain a clear run for the torpedoes it was necessary to drop them within the destroyer screen, a dangerous feat in view of the formidable anti-aircraft barrage.

The first glimpse he caught of the enemy was an escorting destroyer, Cliff said.

"Then suddenly we saw the big chaps. They had buckets of fighters escorting them. We all dropped our torpedoes within 10 seconds of each other, and I am certain we hit one of them."

One Beaufort had the hood over the pilot's cabin blown off by a shell burst. Its port wing was punctured with four holes near the engine. The wireless operator and rear gunner were injured.

Another aircraft of the same squadron probably destroyed one of two Messerschmitts by which it was attacked after dropping a torpedo which was seen to run directly towards the Prinz Eugen.

Although the Beaufort's tail-plane was damaged its crew succeeded in driving off both Me's, one of which was last seen in an almost vertical dive to the sea.

No one of this Beaufort formation was lost.

In one of the morning sorties eight Hurricane pilots of one squadron closed to within 50 yards of their target to attack a formation of destroyers and Corvettes in the face of the most intense fire.

Berlin's Report

BERLIN, from German Broadcasts, Feb. 13.—(CP)—A German communique claimed today that a British destroyer was sunk, another set afire and 45 British planes were shot down in the battle of the English Channel yesterday.

(A spokesman in London said no British surface craft were lost. The R.A.F. and Admiralty jointly announced a loss of 42 aircraft, with 18 German planes destroyed.)

A Nazi spokesman asserted that more than 600 planes were fighting at times over the Channel, through which the battleships Gneisenau and Scharnhorst and the cruiser Prince Eugen passed.

German losses were listed by the high command as one patrol boat sunk, one torpedo boat slightly damaged, and seven planes lost.

Carriers Guests Capitol Theatre

Between eighty and ninety Examiner Carriers were the guests of the Capitol Theatre's management on Thursday evening. An event of the evening that was of exceptional interest for all these boys and girls was the presentation of The Examiner Gold Trophy and other prizes to the hard-working salesmen of War Savings Stamps. Two boys and one girl were brought to the stage after the first evening program and presented with the rewards they well deserved for their efforts during the past month. Donald Pagett with all the personality of a movie actor was the first prize winner. Donald lives at 614 Chamberlain street and sold the splendid total of $158.00 in War Savings Stamps during the month of January. He received from R. E. Layfield, chairman of the Industrial Division of the War Savings Committee, The Examiner Gold Trophy, and its small goal replica. In addition, he was the lucky winner of a fine pair of ski boots which are donated each month by the Robert Neill Company to the boy or girl with the best average sales per customer on their route. Donald Pagett captivated the audience by his evident appreciation of his volunteer work as a salesman of War Savings Stamps along with the important job of carrying Examiners to a large route of customers. He expressed in simple language his thanks to all his customers who had enabled him to win the cup and its accompanying prize.

The second prize winner, Jack Harris of 239 Princess street, was presented with a large studio portrait of himself, a gift of Fred Cripps, past-president of the Lions Club and well-known photographer. This award was presented by Alderman Adam Sands, who briefly complimented Jack Harris for his consistent efforts in turning in such a splendid total of sales week after week.

The third prize winner was a young lady carrier from East City, Carlotta Laing of 272 Armour road. The prize, a large box of chocolates, was given by Victor Gallon in behalf of Lowney's Ltd., was also handed to the smiling winner by Mr. Sands.

The Examiner is grateful to all firms and individuals and the theatres who have provided prizes and time for these presentations, and for the evident encouragement to these young Canadians who are really doing a man's job in selling War Savings Stamps while on their daily rounds with their newspapers. A grand total of approximately $4,800.00 has been sold by these energetic young people during the 11 weeks of the campaign. The Examiner is very proud of the type of carrier responsible for the daily delivery of their newspaper. It will be of interest to note that Mr. Fred Cripps has announced his intention of giving a studio portrait to the winner of second place in the monthly sales each month. This example of appreciation is gratefully received by the management of The Examiner and its carriers, as is the monthly prize of ski boots by the Robert Neill Company.

Japs Ease Indies

in any other portion of the archipelago, and Japanese air activity was restricted almost entirely to reconnaissance flights.

The Indies, certain that the expected imminent fall of Singapore would open the floodgates for an all-out Japanese assault upon Sumatra and Java, stood by their guns, determined to fight on regardless of the odds.

To Fight To The Finish

Whether Britain and the United States can get needed reinforcements into this area in time to meet the expected assault will have no bearing upon the government's stand, a semi-official spokesman declared.

"We will go on fighting and damn the consequences," he asserted.

While announcing the situation is grim and that help is imperative, the spokesman declared Sumatra and Java would not be abandoned without a fight, even if the United Nations high command should elect to surrender bases there and fall back to Australia.

"Japan doesn't have a ghost of a chance that the Netherlands East Indies will lay down their arms, despite the increasingly dangerous position," the spokesman said.

Quarters close to the government said a withdrawal to Australia would be poor strategy "because it would give Japan a cheap victory, a gate to the Indian Ocean and all the raw materials she needs to push onward."

They said it was essential to hold Java and at least the southern part of Sumatra. The northern part of Sumatra almost touches Singapore and would be extremely difficult to defend.

It was reported manwhile that an attack carried out several days ago by Allied aircraft on a Japanese aircraft carrier in the Gulf of Bone, off Celebes was believed to have been successful. Shore observers saw great bursts of flame rise from the attacked ship.

There were only a couple of other futile dive bombing tries after that and the engagement was over.

It he has been able to get the Gneisenau and Scharnhorst safely to cover, with their escort, he will be possessor of a tidy little navy. He is supposed to have five battleships (with two others either building or recently finished), two aircraft carriers, eight cruisers (with four building), 11 destroyers (with others building), 12 torpedo boats and a big fleet of submarines.

Through field glasses, Keith Wheeler of the Chicago Times and I saw coast defence guns tossed high into the air by direct hits from our batteries and a tall radio tower, crashed to the ground. We could see at least five separate fires.

Men died in this hell of noise today and other men were wounded.

But proportionately the loss was unbelievably low.

By one of the freaks of war, the the only one who remained on the only pilot lost from the cruiser was ship. A bomb fragment got him—just a few hours before, he had beaten me at cribbage. The pilots in the air returned to the cruiser safely.

It was one of those muggy tropical mornings when we were called before daylight to prepare for action. This cruiser launched observation planes just before dawn.

They flew toward Taroa Island and, within a few minutes, we could see the palm-ringed Atoll ourselves. It was 10 miles away.

Then we saw two enemy planes take off from the island. Our anti-aircraft suddenly blasted the weird silence with a din which from that moment on seemed almost continuous.

Shore batteries sprang into sharp action and we could see what seemed like dots and dashes of white and orange gunbursts all along the shore. Their aim was bad.

Almost at that minute a squadron of American fighter planes from a carrier far over the horizon swept over the island, bombing and strafing with ever thing they had. They must have caused plenty of damage.

As they vanished our cruiser's guns went into action. The shore batteries were missing us by thousands of yards.

Next came our first dive bomb attacks. My ears couldn't even believe themselves in all that hell with all the guns going.

There was that chilling woosh of huge explosives, ending in a dull ominous woomph. Planes were diving in high from several directions.

But for the time being neither bombs nor shore batteries were effective against us.

Nazi Sea Stroke

There is no doubt that Hitler is preparing to co-operate as fully as possible with his Japanese Allies and that in the back of his head is the thought that their flagships may be be able to exchange salutes on the Indian Ocean. If they get that far they likely would be exchanging shots as well, to see who would get India as a prize. But that's another story.

Meanwhile the Japanese are continuing to do their part to make this dream come true. Singapore still holds out but while Hitler's congratulations to the Mikado on the capture of the British base were premature, the defenders are in an increasingly grave position.

In any event, Singapore has been nullified as an Allied naval and air base, and this greatly facilitates the Nipponese preparations for the assault on Java and Sumatra.

All of which rather gloomy discussion seems to fit in well with the fact that this is Friday the 13th. Anyway, that is a fine report from Washington regarding recent devastating raids on the Japanese bases in the Pacific. And the Russians are getting ahead with the job so well that they finally have reached the borders of White Russia. That's something to get along with.

Furious Battle Rages Hours In Strait Mists

LONDON, Feb. 13 — (CP Cable).—The bulk of Germany's remaining heavy warships—the powerful battleships and a heavy cruiser—have made a sensational escape from their year-old drydock internment at Brest and fled up the mist-hidden English Channel after a furious battle, one of the most spectacular of this war.

The confusing battle in which everything from mine sweepers to great coastal guns on both sides of the Channel was used began Thursday when the 26,000-ton battleships Gneisenau and Scharnhorst and the 10,000-ton cruiser Prinz Eugen slipped out of Brest's bomb-wrecked harbor and were met by British destroyers, motor torpedo boats and various aircraft in which Canadian personnel were operating.

The final result of the terrific duel—often blotted out completely by rain, snow, mist and smokescreens—could not be ascertained, but a joint Admiralty and Air Ministry communique issued early today expressed belief that all three of the main targets had been hit along with one destroyer. At least 18 Nazi aircraft were destroyed.

But for her daring attacks on the fast-moving craft—always difficult to find in five-mile visibility—Britain paid with 42 of her own aircraft—20 bombers, 16 fighters and six torpedo-carrying planes.

Chase Going On

The ships presumably still were at sea, steaming probably at about 16 knots, a speed governed by the accompanying minesweepers and other protective vessels.

In what time remained before the squadron could reach Heligoland at that pace, probably sometime this afternoon, British bombers were believed to be making a desperate attempt to smash it.

First news of the battle broke long after people in the United Kingdom had gone to bed and air ministry officials said they could not state if Canadian squadrons took part as units.

Evidently having waited cautious-

Fresh Fowl Runs Light In Toronto

TORONTO, Feb. 13 — (CP). — The dressed poultry market was quiet during the past week, with receipts generally being light. An odd dealer reported enough fresh arrivals to meet demand while other had to call on storage stocks to meet requirements.

Fresh fowl were scarce.

There is no doubt the recent weather conditions, heavy snow and blocked roads, were partly responsible for lightness of arrivals.

A few turkeys have arrived and there is only a light supply of broilers.

Dealers are quoting producers and country dealers (nominal):—

CrowBayPatrons Output Up 25 Per Cent

CAMPBELLFORD, Feb. 13. — (ENS). — A twenty-five per cent. increase in production was announced to patrons of the Crow Bay Cheese and Butter Company by the secretary Ray Thompson, at the annual meeting held on Wednesday afternoon when he reviewed for them the statement of the 1941 season. This achievement was partly the result of seven extra patrons who took milk to the factory on Sundays and primarily due to an extra six weeks of operation. The thirty-seven regular patrons not only boosted their production 37,983 pounds to 190,565 pounds, but also produced 99.5 per cent first grade cheese and got an extra $1,266.80 as premium on quality. This increase (in premium) was, however, regarded largely as a dividend on the mechanically refrigerated curing room installed last spring at a cost of nearly $1,000. Nor was the new curing room the only improvement made to the factory whose president, Hector Arnold, was only a week ago named head of the Northumberland County Cheese Producers' Association. Taking advantage of the Hydro service extension required for the refrigeration unit they had the entire plant converted to electric lighting and power and installed new hoops and presses changing them from 15½ to 16 inches.

190,565 Pounds of Cheese.

In his report the secretary revealed 2,180,391 pounds of milk had been delivered to be made into 190,565 pounds of cheese and 1,321 pounds of whey butter by the now retired maker, William Gray. The total fat was 69,501 pounds, or an average of 2.74 pounds cheese per pound fat, making an average price of 40.27 cents per pound fat (exclusive o bonus which brought the price to 49.49 cents). Of the total of $34,394.91 paid to patrons, $3,811.30 was provincial subsidy and $2,751.06 was premium on high scoring cheese. Of the 2,096 boxes of cheese made, 99.2 per cent fell in the premium class, with 1,074 boxes being 94 score, 807 boxes 93 score, 132 boxes 92 score, and 31 under grades. Their average score of 93.538 was only .274 below the highest average in the district, but nevertheless it put them in ninth place. They averaged 11.4 pounds of milk per pound cheese and the average price received for cheese was 16.2 cents.

The newly engaged cheesemaker, Cyril McKeown, formerly of Stanwood Factory, addressed the patrons asking for their co-operation during the coming season, and suggested some repairs be made to the factory's living quarters, a problem that was left with the new board of directors.

Dairy Instructor J. A. Murray told the gathering that Crow Bay Factory had "contributed materially towards the good results of the district."

The election of officers resulted in Hector Arnold being returned as president for the tenth successive year, while Ray Thompson was renamed secretary at a salary of $2.50 per patron, and William Atkinson will carry on as auditor for another year. The board of directors was unchanged, with William Petherick, Harry Barnum, J. A. M. Thompson and William Wright all re-elected.

The Danger of Coughs Among the Children

In young children a cold or cough is not a thing to be disregarded, as it is often of a grave matter, and unless attended to immediately may, eventually, cause serious trouble.

On the first sign of a cough or cold the mother will find in Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup a remedy to help get rid of the trouble.

Its promptness and effectiveness in loosening the phlegm, and stimulating the bronchial organs is such that the cough may be checked before anything of a serious nature sets in.

Duff To Handle Hong Kong Inquiry Case

OTTAWA, Feb. 13.—(CP).—Chief Justice Sir Lyman Duff will head a Royal Commission to investigate the circumstances under which Canadian troops were sent to Hong Kong announced Thursday in the House of Commons.

Sir Lyman had been assured that the government would place no restriction whatever upon him with respect to the scope of the inquiry or any phases of it, Mr. King said.

He interrupted a speech by Rev. T. C. Douglas (C.C.F. Weyburn) to make the announcement. An order-in-council confirming Sir Lyman's appointment would be tabled in the House Friday, Mr. King said.

"The Chief Justice has undertaken to conduct an inquiry under Royal Commission, and speaking to him I said that the government would place no restriction whatever upon him with respect to the scope of the inquiry or any phase of it, but that he would be allowed to choose whoever he wished in the way of counsel or secretarial staff and the like," Mr. King told the House.

The decision to conduct the investigation by a Royal Commission rather than a Parliamentary committee had been agreed to by Conservative House Leader Hanson, M. J. Coldwell, Acting C.C.F. House leader, and New Democracy Leader Blackmore, he said.

In a brief address endorsing the decision to have Sir Lyman head the Hong Kong investigation, Mr. Hanson said consideration still was being given to a suggestion that the reference to the Commission should include the whole question of available manpower in Canada.

The Prime Minister had readily agreed to waive for the Hong inquiry a clause of the Inquiries Act which had prevented the commissioner from making recommendations after the Bren gun investigation.

Mr. Hanson said he had told the Prime Minister he thought it far preferable to have the inquiry made by a judicial authority than by "a partisan committee of this House."

"I believe the public will welcome an investigation of this kind as I do," he said.

The Stars Say

BY GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Saturday, February 14

This day's planetary configurations show many exceptional opportunities for expression of unusual versatility and creative skill, either in the realm of business, art, culture in all forms of professional skills as well as in vital ambitions to wield power and prestige, in high places, in whatever avenue chosen. It should be expansive, and productive but there should be tact and grace in dealing with those in authority. It would not do to be overbearing and contentious. Also shun schemers.

Those whose birthday it is may be assured excellent opportunity for achieving a high place in the realm of heart's desire, whether that be in business, finance, political or diplomatic life, in the professions, as well as in society, the arts or in humanitarian service. It should be a time for pushing to cherished goals under the expansive, generous, fruitful and creative stimulus of major planets. But there is need for finesse and discretion in all approaches, whether in social, political or public contacts. There is also need for wariness against schemes and subtle pitfalls or betrayals.

A child born on this day should be capable and ambitious in many directions and while noble, expansive and generous it should not hesitate to resort to expediency for attaining its desires. It may have marked social or cultural aspirations.

PORT HOPE, Fb. 13 —(ENS)—A most successful Valentine Tea was held by the Women's Hospital Mission on Thursday afternoon at Seaton Hall.

The rooms were most tastefully decorated with hearts, darts and cupids and over the mantel in which was a cheery fire, was a large red V through which was entwined two hearts.

Valiant, Heroic Youth

When the history of the present war comes to be written, however soon or long from now that may be, the daring spirit, valor and bravery of Canadian airmen will be an outstanding feature. What they have done, even up to date, fills their native Canadians here at home with pride. During the two and a half years of warfare they have been given no less than 157 awards for bravery and distinguished conduct under fire. These include the Distinguished Flying Cross for valor; Distinguished Flying Medals, the George Medal, two Orders of the British Empire and two foreign awards.

Two factors have entered into conditions that have made this record possible—that is in addition to the inherent quality of the young men themselves. One is that Britain's fighting has thus far been done largely in the air and on water, rather than on land; the other that flying is an occupation which gives an unusual opportunity for expression of the adventure and romance associated with youth.

It may be that in the future large forces of land warriors will be in more or less constant action, as they were in the numerous engagements of 1914-18, but up to the present the air branch of the War Department in the Old Land, from which operations have been directed, has been particularly forward in both offensive and defensive activities.

* * *

Then, too, nearly every boy is more or less interested in some phase of mechanics. From babyhood he wants to see "what makes the wheels go round" and he wants to travel fast. The automobile has given a chance to gratify his desire for speed. The airplane, however, is the almost magical instrument of all for these boys when they grow up. Consequently thousands of young chaps have gravitated to the air force and with work for squadrons to do all the time, these fine, well-built, intelligent young Canadians have performed deeds equal to the most heroic of the storied past.

* * *

And while they have been so busy battling against the enemy in various war zones, the young men who have gone into the navy and the land forces have also shown themselves to be quite up to the best traditions of their race. As the despatches come through from week to week, or as letters are received from here or there, telling of what all these defenders are doing to defy the enemy, he would be a strange, cold-hearted person who wouldn't feel a thrill of confidence and exultation over the sterling manhood of these intrepid thousands! They are abroad in the welter and danger and carnage of bloodshed, representing eleven million people who are safe at home in the Dominion.

Agriculture Squaring Up

By getting together and forming a Federation of Agriculture, the Hamilton township farmers have taken a course which should be followed all over Ontario. Their purpose, as given in a despatch from Harwood, is to bring to governments, provincial and federal, the real problems of agriculture.

Every industry has its own particular difficulties, of course, but those interests that are able to roll up the greatest strength and influence are the ones that usually get favorable consideration. Governments are created by the people and are, therefore, generally speaking, attentive to what they feel is organized public opinion.

There is not much use in merely staying at home and criticizing an administration, or a department of that administration. Whatever matters there are of an important character affecting the welfare of all who till the soil, or are closely associated with that pursuit, should be formulated and presented not by one, but by many, groups of farmers through a larger, central body.

The production of all kinds of food supplies, and the raising of live stock—this is of vital significance during the war. Leaders of the Government at Ottawa and at Toronto have emphasized the fact more than once. Action has been taken to encourage more and more production and to make it possible for the agricultural industry to get a reasonable return on the money and the labor invested to give the output.

Nevertheless, the best results can be achieved only when these Federation groups pool their experience and views and pass them along with vigorous zeal to men who are in office. That has been done from time to time in the past, but problems still exist. The demands of the day that millions be fed during this terrific conflict, make it evident that the closest co-operation should exist between Departments of Agriculture and the men and women, scattered all over this big province, who are trying to meet the growing needs of markets abroad as well as here.

Healthy Minds, Healthy Bodies

What is known as "Baden-Powell Scout Week" is to be held throughout Ontario from February 16 to the 22nd. Its purpose is to advance the principles and work of this admirable movement. It is hoped that observance of the event will stimulate still more general public interest in the organization and what it accomplishes. Parents who have had boys attached to the Association always feel grateful that such an opportunity existed for them. They know what it has meant in building physical values and good character.

Outside of home influence—when it is wholesome—there is no single factor known which plays a greater part in creating splendid qualities in youth than this Boy Scout code, taken from the code of knights. Honor is made the high ideal. There is no class, creed or color barrier to keep any lad from taking part in the activities of the Scouts.

When the late Sir Robert Baden-Powell founded the movement in England in 1908 he never anticipated, probaby, that the idea would have such a universal appeal that it would spread to all parts of the civilized world. But that is what has taken place, and growths of that magnitude don't happen without a deep, fundamental cause. That cause is the desire of every boy to learn of wood lore, camp life, open-air pastimes, signalling, hiking and so on. A uniform is the symbol of organized groups that are trained and disciplined in the things that stir the imagination of the young.

When an organization is based on such ideals, when its achievements are reflected in the 10,000,000 or more boys who have benefitted from its training, and when politeness, service to others and moral fibre are turned to account now in helping patriotic and other worthy causes, the older people everywhere should be happy to encourage the work. One fact alone establishes the truth of this service. The Cubs, of Peterborough, who are the little chaps, aspiring to become full-fledged Scouts, have collected roughly 20,000 magazines and other publications to provide soldiers with reading. That's the kind of thing which makes one say: "Every success to you, boys, in your Baden-Powell remembrance week."

An Important Mission

An event of unusual importance—full of potentialities—is the visit of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek, most powerful and brilliant Chinese of modern times, to India. His mission is directed toward a campaign to swing the dense millions of that country into a hundred per cent. effort against Japan.

It will not be difficult, probably, for keen-minded men in India to realize how vital it is to all freedom-loving Asia to stand firmly against the enterprising and ruthless Nipponese. They are the enemies of all that vast sweep of mainlands and islands in the northern and southern Pacific. Should they, with the tremendous forces they have organized, get mastery over the Burma Road, which is the last transport route to China to the outer world, the disaster would affect India as well as it would affect the Chinese.

These two countries have a combined population of over 850,000,000 — one-third of the entire world, and while much of that is not of first-class value as a fighting mass, it is nevertheless a resource. Eventually it can be of tremendous power when a few millions are better trained, organized and equipped. Unfortunately China has not developed as fast as Japan where there are about 75,000,000 or 80,000,000 people. Still, the advancement made by the former since the master mind of Chiang Kai-Shek has been at the helm, suggests that should India and China throw in their enormous manpower and wealth in a united movement against the aggressors, the Japanese could not long hold against them.

The Generalissimo is a rarely shrewd, calm, far-seeing leader. There is good reason to expect that with his genius for shaping strategy, the All-India Congress Party will be led to see how wise it is to stop squabbling with Great Britain over political matters and organize to protect itself and other Far Eastern lands from the belligerent subjects of the Mikado.

Let's All Be Fighters

The anxiety everywhere existing over the critical position of the Empire forces in Singapore should stir every Canadian to take an active part in the Victory Loan as a means of helping to battle against overwhelming masses in the East. The dangers latent in the successes so far of the Japanese are beginning to be sternly realized. Should the great naval base of Britain have to give up, in face of greatly superior odds, the loss to the Allied nations will be very great.

Col. Ralston announced in Parliament Wednesday that there are no Canadian troops at Singapore, though there may be a few men from this Dominion serving in the British defence forces. Nevertheless, what deeply concerns us is the infinitely better position the Japs will be in to co-operate with the Germans and Italians if they keep on taking strategic islands and towns.

The heroic stand which the Empire forces are making at Singapore should arouse a vigorous tide of zeal on the part of every citizen in this country to provide money with which all kinds of mechanical equipment and munitions may be supplied for those who are fighting on the different war fronts. General MacNaughton has said that what is needed most now is this mechanical power and money is necessary to turn that power out from the war industries located in all parts of Canada.

It will be a dark day for the people of this Continent as well as Europe if Singapore falls. Its position is precarious in the extreme and every detail of news coming from it will be eagerly awaited. Meantime we can do our share of fighting here in our own communities.

NOTE AND COMMENT

A half dozen sparrows were having a fearful argument yesterday on the cornice of a house. There must have been a by-election going on among them.

Kitchen help in restaurants and hotels say it is much easier to wash cups now. They don't have to melt the sugar out of the bottom.

The big point is not that Africa is claiming watermelons originated there instead of in America. The real question is what has become of them all? The good old summer time has certainly gone.

It will be interesting news to all members of the armed forces, whether male or female, who are under the statutory age of 21 years, and whose homes are in Ontario, to learn that Attorney-General Conant is going to introduce a bill by which they will have the privilege of voting at the next provincial election. This is a marked departure from the regulations which have applied to minors heretofore.

Now that North America is on fast time—"war time" in the United States, "daylight saving time" in Canada, trains and buses will be wondering why it is they have been running all these months and yet never able to catch up on the early risers. Something like the old mathematical riddle of a long express travelling at fifty miles an hour forward and meanwhile you walked from the front to the end of the last coach and all the rest...? Some of us never were able to figure that thing out and can't yet, so we sympathize with the transportation systems.

NOT JUST FOR FREEDOM

For what we prize let us give thanks today:
Not just for freedom, but for the deep desire
Of freedom, kindling, spreading fire from fire
In every breast; not for the piled array
Of goods and comforts that surround
our way,
But for creativeness that does not tire;
Not that we live, but that men's souls require
To walk with justice, and to serve and pray.
For destiny we may not understand
But reach for as life reaches for the light;
For comfort of the steady heart and hand,
And faith in morning through the raging night;
For strength enduring what the day
may be,
And for great courage that goes quietly.

Brave Men Are Keeping Faith At Singapore

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13 —(AP)— Singapore may be lost, and the proud emblem of British Empire swept from the China Seas where so long it has waved unchallenged; but that flag comes down amid scenes of derring-do by the sons of Empire that thrill British hearts everywhere.

Whatever the recriminations that show from that imminent and seemingly inevitable disaster, as gallant and hopeless a gesture of defiance to Japanese foes is being enacted in that far-away island as the brave annals of a thousand years of British fighting manhood afford.

"The Singapore radio told its Empire listeners yesterday—with music — that radio communications were still in British hands," said a London bulletin.

Surely the spirits of Britons who have died gallantly on many a lost battlefield down the years were murmuring "Well done" to the brave of another generation keeping the faith at Singapore. It was theirs, as it was the mission of Britons who died in that storied charge of the Light Brigade at Balaklava, not to question why, "theirs but to do and die." They have not failed, be their fate what it may.

CRITICAL HOUR FOR CHURCHILL

It is certain that lost Singapore must inevitably bring bulky shouldered, strong-chinned, indomitable Winston Churchill again before Parliament to renew his promise of blood, sweat and tears to come before victory. The dire fulfilment at Singapore of that Churchill prophecy demands a new war accounting. Its impending fall cast gloom over all the Empire and over its embattled allies.

It could bring him to a critical hour of his war leadership. There is little he can say to soften the shock of that new blow without revealing military information of utmost value to the foe. There is little he can promise for the immediate future, perhaps for many long, weary months, but more blood, sweat and tears.

There are faint tinges of silver lining to the pall of battle smoke and destruction that hangs over Singapore, however. It has cost the Japanese two months and more in time to take it, and unknown but certainly terribly heavy losses in life and expended war reserves.

WAR OF ATTRITION

This is a war of grim attrition on all fronts. To what extent the battle of the Malay Peninsula and of Singapore has sapped Japanese resources can only be conjectured.

But a cumulative aggregate of Japanese war wastage is building up behind the ever-extending conquest front, now thousands of miles from home bases. That must ultimately prove the crack in Japanese armor if the will to fight on among the United Nations remains as unbroken as is that of General Douglas MacArthur and his men on Bataan or of the last-ditch British rearguard at Singapore.

There is one other glint of silver for the anti-Axis nations in far Pacific skies. It comes from spokesmen for the stout-hearted Netherlands Indies, rallying anew for a formidable last-ditch stand on Java.

Netherlanders from the Spice Islands meet the challenge of crumbling Singapore with brave assurances of unflagging war zeal. They reiterate that the core of Netherlands resistance, long ago planned, is in Java. They know the next and crucial Japanese blow must fall on that island.

There or on "down under" portions of the British Empire, on which the sun still never sets, forces must be rally which will certainly spell the doom of Japan if only time enough can be gained. Every hour gained is precious, although bought with blood at Singapore, in Luzon or in Java.

BOWLING AS BIG BUSINESS

IT IS a curious, perhaps unrecognized fact, but after the movie industry the largest amusement enterprise in point of receipts is that conducted by owners of bowling alleys. The legitimate theatre, professional baseball and the race tracks fall well under it in annual receipts. The 1939 census of business of the Department of Commerce reveals that bowling alleys took in $49,000,000, against $41,000,000 at race tracks, $39,000,000 at pool and billard parlors, and $33,000,000 at legitimate at legitimate theatres, including operas.

Professional baseball, which is characterized as the national game, is small by comparison with the foregoing classifications: its 1930 receipts amounted to less than $25,000,000.—Wall Street Journal.

FUEL & WIND RESISTANCE

DRIVERS who burn up the road at high speed pay for their folly by also burning up an excessive amount of fuel. Recent mileage efficiency tests, conducted by Plymouth experts with several popular makes of automobiles, showed a startling loss of power and fuel at higher speeds to overcome wind resistance alone. At eighty miles per hour, the average car lost forty-eight horsepower just to buck the wind, which is equivalent to climbing at 6.8 per cent incline. At forty miles an hour, the loss was reduced to six horsepower. — Popular Mechanics.

Norway's Judas Dishonored

Infamous History of Man Whose Name, Quisling, Has Become a Reproach

VIDKUN QUISLING, once an officer in the Royal Norwegian Army, has attained the dubious honor he has apparently long coveted. He is Prime Minister of Norway by the grace of Adolf Hitler. Fittingly enough, the investiture took place in Oslo Fortress, where the new puppet ruler might be considered reasonably safe from his ostensible constituents, the Norwegian people.

The man who has given his name to the current mode of treason was considered—briefly, and by very few persons—Prime Minister of Norway on an earlier occasion. He assumed the post on the day that his underground activities against his King and his country first bore tragic fruit. It was April 9, 1940—just as truly a day of infamy as Dec. 7, 1941. "The Allies committed a frightful act of force," shouted Major Quisling, as the German planes roared northward, and dazed Norwegians died under the Nazi fire, "and the German government offered Norway peaceful assistance." With this salutation, the head of the "Nasjonal Samling" party, which had never won the support of more than 2 per cent of the Norwegian electorate, claimed the leadership of the land he had betrayed.

For a time the Germans were polite to Quisling, but cautious. It soon appeared that the caution was justified. Their Norse Nazi had succeeded in uniting the nation against his pitiful government of "National Union." In the words of Professor Worm-Muller, who was in Oslo at the time, "at once nearly every Norwegian was agreed about on thing: we would never accept the traitor." So the Germans ousted him from his headquarters in the Hotel Continental; gave him the appropriate office of "Commissioner of Demobilization"; appointed a commissar in the person of Josef Terboven, and set about dickering with the fragments of legitimate Norwegian democracy. But the negotiations, thanks to the Nazi technique of mingled lies and threats, were disappointing. Terboven, thereupon blandly falsified the whole proceedings and with a blast of his voice wiped out the constitutional structure of Norway, appointing a government of thirteen commissars — a Quisling government without Quisling.

Norway's Judas, however, remained at the head of the "Nasjonal Samling" party—the only one permitted in the occupied land. Every device of cajolery and coercion was used to popularize this Nazi band, but the stigma could not be erased. Norwegian hostility to the invaders and their tools grew, and the "Nasjonal Samling" clamored for power to retaliate against the country they professed to serve. It would appear that this clamor is being answered by the appointment of Quisling as Prime Minister. There are rumors, too, that he will be given even greater authority later—that he will be appointed regent. But whatever tinsel the Germans may deck him with cannot conceal the essential fact. Vidkun Quisling had his most resplendent moment on April 9, 1940. The traitor may progress through titles of dishonor, but the treason has long been an accomplished fact. It was that treason that made Vidkun Quisling's name secure in history—for all honest men, be they Norwegians or whatever; to abominate. — New York Herald-Tribune.

• War In 1917 And In 1942

AT the end of May, 1917, six weeks after the United States declared war on the Central Powers, the future of the Allied Armies seemed anything but rosy.

Russia was finished. France had before it the abortive Nivelle offensive which was to be followed by the wholesale mutinies that for a time threatened to take the French out of the war. Italy had before it Caporetto. Still 10 months away was the Ludendorff offensive on the Somme which was to destroy the British Fifth Army and strengthen' the voices of the defeatists in London.

For all it had thrown its weight into the scales this country had little with which to fight. Fewer than 100,000 regulars and marines were strung from California around the world to the Philippines. The National Guard was not even to be mustered into federal service for four months. The draft had not begun to function.

Thousands of miles from the battlefields, trouble simmered below the Rio Grande. German agents operated openly from semi-hostile Mexico and President Wilson's plea for hemisphere solidarity fell on deaf ears in Central and South America.

More than a year after we went into the war the pessimists, including even then, that congenital viewer-with-alarm, Henri Philippe Petain, were to counsel surrender, on the grounds that the Kaiser's legions could never be defeated.

It is well to recall some of these things today, six weeks after our entry into the present conflict.

For today we are more equal to the task. This time we have a trained Army of 1,500,000. This time we have thousands on the way. This time we have a powerful ally in Russia, advancing instead fo retreating. This time we have a bigger and constantly growing Navy. And this time we have a united hemisphere on our side.

There will be moments when chafing because Gen. MacArthur is not swift and spectacularly relieved, fuming because the Japanese Navy is not sunk some dark night, we will be inclined to forget the one most important fact about this war. That is that the greatest, most powerful array of force the world has ever known is pledged to destroy the aggressors.

Out Latin American friends know this. The few remaining neutrals know it. Knowing it, they know that we cannot lose. Are we to have less faith in ourselves than our friends have in us? —Chicago Sun.

• Mr. Howe to the Rescue

WHEN Prime Minister King announced his plebiscite plan The Journal remarked on the pity of such nonsense from a Goevrnment whose war effort was so good in the gross.

We come back to that thought on reading the speech which Munitions Minister Howe made in Montreal on Thursday. Here are some proud things that he told:

1. Canada is sending 20-ton tanks to Russia at the rate of three a day; with some of the tanks in action.

2. Canada is now turning out airplanes at the rate of approximately 800 a month; is building some of the modern types of 'planes used by armed forces."

3. Canada is sending munitions to Great Britain, to Russia, to the Middle East, to China, to Australia, to New Zealand, to Burma—is sending rifles to Singapore.

4. Canada in 1941 produced munitions valued at more than "the whole production of the last war."

5. Canada sent the first shipment of North American munitions to reach China over the Burma Road—1,000 Bren guns produced in Canada and 10,000,000 rounds of Canadian ammunition.

All that, and more. This country today—let all of us admit it proudly as Canadians—is doing a fine job in war arms output; has organized her industrial production on a scale that few of us thought possible a year or two ago. All the more pity then that we should besmirch that war effort and divide our people and lower our national morale by a plebiscite proposal that is in every way dangerous and fantastic.—Ottawa Journal.

GOEBBELS OVER THE ETHER

GERMANY, as reflected in the radio, is gay, carefree, human and charming—at one and the same time as other countries are destroyed by dive bombers, Fifth Columns, Gestapo agents, while their peoples are enslaved and tortured. For the lesser breeds, toil under the lash of the S.S.; for the German superman (provided he is a loyal Nazi), a paradise of music, gaiety, loveliness — on top of a volcano. Lovely feminine voices each evening announce "Lovely melodies," or "Gay melodies," or "Germany sings." In the afternoon, similar lovely feminine voices broadcast fairy tales for German children, while mature scientists pay homage to German scientific achievement. The object of all this is to "prove"—in this strenuous and very transparent manner—that there is only one country in the world where the true culture flourishes; Nazi Germany. It is the entertainment side of the German wartime radio that is most nauseating. The Nazis send gaiety over the ether at the same time as they are in a dozen other countries committing murder most foul and other case of bestial violence. That is how the might of Ancient Rome must have lived and felt at the time of its decline—and on the eve of its fall. — Contemporary Review, London.

TOLLS ABOLISHED

PREMIER GODBOUT'S hint that bridge tolls might be abolished in Quebec has come to fruition. The announcement recently made by the Hon. Wilfrid Girouard, Attorney-General, that tolls will not be exacted after April 1, affords welcome relief to the motorist.

It is an opportune time to abolish tolls. Quebec has made agreements with Ottawa which tend to stabilize revenues at a high level, and there is the additional prospect that gasoline rationing will cut down the number of cars on the roads. A revenue loss was thus to be expected where bridge tolls were concerned. But any losses attributable to a decline in local traffic, or from any other regional cause, will be more than offset, perhaps not this year but in future years, by an increase in tourist travel.—Montreal Star.

New Bata Plant Converted Into Munitions

FRANKFORD Feb. 13. — Tucked away in the Murray Hills near the Trent River, there is a modern factory and nearly 200 new workingmen's houses. The factory and the working men who occupy the new houses are there because of Hitler and his Nazism.

The factory, built to manufacture boots and shoes, is now turning out gun mountings, gauging machines, and hydraulic parts for aircraft besides other war work. Shoe and boot makers are now working on defence orders.

It is the story of a young man, only 27 years old, who fled from Czechoslovakia only a few days before the invasion of the Nazis. He is Thomas Bata, the eighth generation in an unbroken line of shoemakers, the son of Thomas Bata, who died in 1932 in an airplane crash.

Three centuries ago Lukas Bata, shoemaker of Zlin, started an enterprising shoemaking concern, but it was not until Thomas Bata, Sr., took over the concern some six generations later that great strides were made in the business. Thomas Bata, Sr., revolutionized the business of shoemaking.

Thomas Bata, Jr., of Batawa, is following in his father's footsteps. Already he has given his employees better living conditions by having nearly 200 new houses constructed for them and their families. To rent one of these houses it costs the tenant about $4.00 per week.

Thomas received his education in England, but also received his industrial knowledge in his father's factory in Zlin, Czechoslovakia. He escaped from his native country before the Nazi invasion and made his way via Switzerland to England.

Vital machinery was also taken out of the country by plane and eventually brought to Canada after Thomas had decided to establish his factory here. He also brought out 82 Czech refugees as key men to launch his industry.

A deserted paper mill at Frankford was taken over by Bata and within a few months shoes were being manufactured by the thousands. However, this was only the first step, and less than a year later a modern five-storey factory was erected south of this village for the manufacture of boots and shoes.

As war demands continued to make inroads into all industry, so it did at the Bata plant. The paper mill, which was used after the erection of the new factory as a machine shop, was tooled to turn out airplane parts and sections for army trucks in 1940.

Bata started on war orders by making gauges for the Department of Munitions and Supply. Later small arms, weighing and gauging machines were made for the arsenals of Canada, South Africa, and India.

In June, 1941, the first real order was put through and the mill began turning out parts for gun mountings. The first naval gun mount to be made in Canada was made in the new factory.

Strict regulations are adhered to at the machine shop, where most of the war work is still being carried on. The building is closely guarded, and any one gaining admittance has to have the necessary credentials from the officials of the company.

Girls dressed in light green smocks and wearing handkerchiefs over the hair, sit at long tables gauging, sorting, and adjusting small gadgets. Everything is spotlessly clean in the 15-foot-high rooms, which are well lighted by windows that extend from floor to ceiling.

But it is not all work in the big plant. Certain times are set aside as rest periods for the workers. They are allowed to have refreshment in these periods. During the noon hour the employees are treated to a half-hour movie show by the company.

Belleville Reliance and Whitby will clash at Oshawa tonight in the second game of their group semi-final playoff series and the general opinion here is that the Oshawa-Whitby outfit will sew up the series by handing Mike Rodden's proteges a defeat. Whitby will have its full array of talent for this second game. While a short-handed Whitby team was giving Belleville a tough battle Wednesday night Jerry Cooper was being the life of the party in a Major League game in Toronto, leading the scorers. Ab Barnes was keeping him company and Doc Dafoe had to sit out the Belleville game because his equipment had gone astray. Barnes, Cooper and company will all be on hand tonight and the result should be a combination powerful enough to stop Belleville and force a third game to decide the winner. There is some likelihood of Belleville being a man or two short tonight themselves as Martin and Griedale, the two Queen's players drafted by Reliance might not be able to make the trip. In any event it looks like Whitby.

If the Ontario county team comes through as expected a third game will be necessary and that will be staged in Belleville on Monday night. The group finals will start here next Wednesday night with the semi-final winners clashing with the local Soldiers in a best three-of-five series. Of course if Belleville should happen to pull the unexpected and make it two in a row at the expense of Whitby the series would be all over tonight with Reliance as the winner and in that case Belleville would be here Monday night for the first game of the final series. The Petes are not worrying a great deal as to the winner of the Belleville-Whitby clash. There is quiet confidence in the Peterborough camp that the Soldiers can take either of the semi-finalists in a three-of-five series. If there is any preference it would probably go to Belleville because of the fact that the Petes have played a good many games on the Belleville rink, have won most of them and are thoroughly at home on the Quinte cushion.

The Kingston Combines are trying to come back. As a result of Hamilton having been declared at fault because they failed to go to Port Colborne for a game the other night, the Combines claim that Hamilton should have been suspended and that automatically, therefore, the Kingston club, which finished fifth, should have been moved up to a playoff berth. Combines are going to ask the Ontario Athletic Commission to investigate the situation and may also appeal to the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association. Our old friend Jim Sutherland, dean of Kingston hockey, will be right in his element with a point like that to argue over. The Kingston veteran will battle to the last ditch for another chance for the Combines and while there does not seem to be a hope of getting to first base on the protest James T. will never be accused of not trying where a Kingston team is concerned.

A Real Card Tonight

With a mixed double-header scheduled for Y.W.C.A. gymnasium tonight the biggest crowd of the season will undoubtedly be on hand to see a City League battle and a Ladies' League struggle both on the same bill. When the City League proposed a transfer of games and the suggestion was agreed upon the men's organization went the whole way, billing one of the feature games of the season as its contribution to tonight's bill. Quakers and Dominions, both very much in the hunt for the City League title are the opposing clubs and the result will have a very important bearing on the league playoff setup. Dominions are leading the loop by half a game at present and a Quaker victory tonight would put the porridge team in front. Last time they met, Dominions eked out a win in one of the fastest games of the campaign. The contest is really an Outboard Marine battle for McPherson, Thorburn, McIntyre, McArthur and Jakafby of the Quakers and Rogow, Johnston and Craig of Dominions are all members of the Peterborough O.A.B.A. team. The second game on tonight's card will bring together the rival C.G.E. girls' teams, the Generals and Electrics and there isn't any doubt that this will be a real argument. There are four pairs of sisters mixed up in the two teams and no two sisters play on the same club so that helps to make the rivalry even more intense. The Quaker-Dominion game will start at 7.30 o'clock and the girls' tussle at 8.30 o'clock.

While Outboard Marines are hoping that the Eglington R.C.A.F. team which meets them here tomorrow night at the Y.M.C.A. gym are not quite as powerful as the Trenton Flyers, the record of the visitors and the fact that Tony Golab and seven or eight star American players from high-class clubs across the border are in the Eglington lineup supplies proof enough that the Peterborough team has a real job on its hands. This contest looms up as about the class of the season. Eglington R.C.A.F. dropped a game recently to Brian Casey and his Trenton flashes but lost by only fourteen points which is a moral victory in view of the pace that is being set by the Casey club. The Eglington-Peterborough game is billed to start at 8 o'clock tomorrow night and there will be an interesting Ladies' League game between St. John's and Westclox as a curtain-raiser, getting away at 7 o'clock sharp. Both these girls' teams play smart basketball and as both need a win to help them in their battle for a playoff position tomorrow night's game should be full of excitement. The two contests make a real card for the Saturday night basketball fans.

Calladine Goes To Town

Bill Calladine really went to town last night at Buffalo in a game in which the Providence Reds lost 9 to 7 to the Bisons. All the Peterborough lad did was to score four goals in the last period, two of them only six seconds apart. As a result of that splurge, if our figures are correct Calladine has now scored 28 goals and has slapped more pucks into the nets this season than any other player in the American League. Previous to last night Louie Trudel, former Chicago Black Hawk and Canadien player was leading the Peterborough sharpshooter 26 to 24 but Trudel was able to shoot only one goal against New Haven while Calladine was bagging his quartette of markers at Buffalo. The spurt should put Bill very close to the top of the American League scoring list as well. He has been hovering around the mark all season, in spite of the fact that he has been playing right wing instead of his favorite spot at centre.

Toronto Maple Leafs climbed closer to the idle Boston Bruins last night by defeating Canadiens 6 to 4 in a free-scoring game at Montreal last night. The Toronto crew looked to have a hollow victory at one stage of the proceedings and went into the last period leading 5 to 0, but Canadiens staged a terrific comeback by running in four goals in a row and came within an ace several times of ticing it up. The game was not cinched until the second last minute of play when Leafs broke away from a Canadien power play to score their sixth goal. At Chicago the Black Hawks defeated Jack Adams' Detroit Red Wings 4 to 2, with Mosienko, the Hawks' sensational rookie bobbing up with another pair of goals. If he had got into the big show sooner the newcomer might have won all the ballots as the prize rookie of the season.

Parallel Skiing Masters Begin Writing

QUEBEC, Feb. 13.— The groundwork for the formation of a parallel ski instructors' association was established here following three days of conferences and discussions between Fritz Loosli, of Peterborough, originator of the parallel technique, and Jack Miller, prominent Laurentian instructor, who stunned the ski world seven weeks ago when he announced he was adopting the new and simplified method of ski instruction.

Miller, head ski instructor at Ste. Adele Lodge, Ste. Adele En Haut, arrived in Quebec on Monday night, and since then he and the Swiss ski meister who developed the system have been working on plans they announced designed to protect the public from unqualified opportunists attempting to commercialize on the popularity of the parallel technique.

"This organization," explained Loosli, "is designed solely to protect Canadian and American skiers. Now that the ski world have become acquainted with the success we have been enjoying in our teaching here there have been many reports from the United States as well as Canada of other instructors who profess to be teaching my system. I certainly cannot be responsible for these individuals or schools unless I have had the opportunity of determining whether or not they are affording the service the ski public has a right to expect."

According to present plans, a certification system will be established here at Lac Beauport with the instruction and tests under the direct supervision of Loosli himself. The complete plan, however, has not yet been worked out by Loosli and Miller.

"This should not be interpreted," said Miller yesterday, "as an attempt to glorify either parallel or us as its proponents. I know Fritz is sincere, and I certainly am in our feeling that the uninformed must be protected."

This was Miller's first visit to Quebec since he resigned his position as president of the Canadian Ski Instructors' Alliance to teach the system originated here three years ago by Loosli, head instructor at the Ski Hawk School at the Chateau Frontenac. While here he expressed complete enthusiasm for the success he has had in his instruction at Ste. Adele.

"Parallel has exceeded by most optimistic expectations," he said. "The ease with which it has enabled me to impart a grace and beauty to the skiing of my pupils amazes me. My only regret is that only now are my contemporaries in the Laurentians beginning to understand the important part parallel is destined to play in the ski life of North America."

Regulars Winners Over Reliables

The Outboard Marine regulars, after challenging former team members, presented a pitiful display of hockey when the reliables tossed over the boards, a team that made their eyes pop and, displaying a brand of hockey that had the youngsters mystified by their dash and dazzle. After leading the way for 45 minutes with a beautiful goal by Ferran, the Reliables eased up on the pressure and let the Regulars go ahead with four goals by Sanders, Bennett, Watkins and Hawley, as they didn't want the morale of the team disrupted.

Leether in goal for the older members, was the star of the game, with Hefferman, Murphy and Ferran playing stellar parts. Cauley, Patterson and Bennett were the shining lights for the Regulars.

Regulars.—Goal, Watkins; defence, Wood, Patterson; forwards, Stephenson, Sanders, Coons, Sharpe, Bennett, Cauley, Robertson.

Reliables. — Goal, Leether; defence, Murphy, Fuller, Foy; forwards, Collins, Hefferman, Cooper, Gibbons, Bolter, Ferran, Shaw.

Rangers' Bryan Hextall remains in the top spot with 19 goals and 23 assists for 42 points, with his linemate, Lynn Patrick in second place, two points behind. Milt Schmidt of Boston, is seventh man on the list with 34 points.

The Sports Round-Up

By HUGH S. FULLERTON, JR.

NEW YORK, Feb. 13 — (AP). — Billy Conn, who is used to getting a big buildup for his fights, can't understand why he's been neglected while the publicity heat was turned on Tony Zale in building up tonight's brawl....Billy has been acting real mad about it, and it doesn't cool him off any when Sam Pian, Zale's manager, calls him "the Thin Tony Galento"...The Pacific Coast Baseball League has ordered Spring training for the umpires, too.

Quote, Unquote

Dixie Walker (who admits he is slowing up a little): "I seemed to have no more trouble than usual in the outfield last year, and I give Billy Herman credit for that. I just watched Billy and when he made a move as a new batter came up, I moved with him. That helped plenty."

To-day's Guest Star

Charles P. Ward, Detroit Free Press: "It seems significant that the bike racers should move into "Cleveland just before the heavyweight fight between Lem Franklin and Bicycle Bob Pastor. Does this mean that Cleveland is to have two bicycle races in succession "

WestendersShut Out St. Peter's

Only two bantam games were played in the South-end Hockey league Thursday night at the Sacred Heart rink, as the Blue Bombers in the Midget division and the Churchills in the Juvenile section defaulted their games to the Colts and St. Peter's respectively.

The opening game of the night saw the league-leading Westenders chalk up another victory shutting out the lowly St. Peter's by a five to nothing count. Displaying fine team-play for such youngsters, the Westenders are definitely established as the team to beat for bantam honors. Doughty with three goals led the parade for the winners, with McNaught and Williams picking up th other markers, but Zavitz in the winners' nets was the outstanding star of the evening. Ferren and McCartney as usual were the best for the losers.

Westenders: Zavitz, McDougal, Doughty, McNaught, Williams, Darling, Giardino, Harding.

St. Peter's: Lester, Caccavella, McCartney, Ferren, J. Basciano, E. Basciano, Lowe, Maloney, Peel, Conroy.

The Spitfires and the Canucks clashed in the second bantam game of the night and after sixty minutes of spirited hockey, the game ended in a two-all tie. This game was one of the most closely fought of the season, with neither team at any stage of the proceedings holding any decided advantage. Hickey and Peel were the goal-getters for the Canucks, while Fleetwood and Seymour picked up two tallies for the Spitfires.

Canuck Beavers. Schriver, Lane, Fontaine, O'Brien, Hickey, Woods, Masters, Davis, Peel.

Spitfires: Payne, Duggan, Harrison, Fleetwood, Seymour, Legrow, Fontaine, Burwick Atkins.

According to O.H.A. ruling a defaulting team is automatically droppd from further league games and from all play-offs, and in as much as the South-end Hockey League governs itself by the O.H.A. code, it looks as if what promised to be a good season for both the Blue Bombers and the Churchills has come to an unexpected and disastrous ending. Th O.H.A. rules permit the executive of the league to reconsider, permitting the offending team to continue play and demand a forfeit, but it is doubtful whether the South-end executive will take such action.

Saving Farm Labor

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13.—(AP)— Adoption of a national policy for deferment of military service for essential farm labor was proposed to-day by Senators George Morris (Ind.-Nebraska) and Gerald P. Nye (Rep.-North Dakota), who said a growing shortage of agricultural workers threatened to curtail food supply of the United States. Norris suggested the selective service system adopt general rules which would impel local draft boards to defer men whose services were necessary to maintain farm output.

Calladine Scores 4 As Bisons Thump Reds 9-7

BUFFALO, Feb. 13—(CP).—The boys in the American Hockey League who last week were of the opinion that Buffalo Bisons' scoring splurge was due to off nights by the opposing goalkeepers, are of a different mind today.

Buffalo continued to pump home goals practically at random last night when they defeated Providence Reds, 9-7, and in doing so set up three new team records—Bison scoring, total scoring and individual scoring.

The nine-goal blast boosted Buffalo's goal scoring for the last five games to 37

On the only other league front last night, New Haven Eagles came through with another of these nip-and-tuck decisions when Gus Mancuso tallied the goal which broke a 4-4 deadlock against Washington Lions.

Although Buffalo came off with the victory, it was the veteran Bill Calladin who gained the individual glory as he scored four goals. All came in the third period, two of which were six seconds apart.

Kilby MacDonald, who joined Buffalo only recently was one of two Buffalo players to score two goals. The other was Dede Klein. Other Buffalo goals were counted by Murdo McKay, Tony Hemmerling, Morey Rimstad and Pete Kelly, while Bob Sherwood, Al Shoquist and Jack Forsey contributed the three remaining Providence markers.

Mancuso's goal which spelled defeat for Washington was the climax to a hard-fought game which saw the Eagles rally from behind in the second period to score three goals for a 4-3 lead.

Both winners consolidated their position in the standing with Buffalo holding down fourth place in the Weste. section and New Haven remaining in second place in the Eastern division, four points ahead of Providence, who are well in front of the fourth place Washington club.

As Leafs Scored 4 To 3 Victory Over Amerks

A Maple Leaf attack on the Brooklyn American goal is foiled by Goalie Chuck Rayner and three other Americans, including Mel Hill (6). Hank Goldup (20) of the Leafs spearheaded the attack. The Leafs managed to gain a 4-3 victory from the Amerks during this game in Madison Square Gardens.

Conn Keeping Eye On Zale It's Friday 13th

(By SID FEDER.)

NEW YORK, Feb 13 (AP)—This could be a mighty unlucky Friday-the-thirteenth for sweet William Conn, the Pittsburg pretty boy who is regarded as a very valuable piece of bric-a-brac in the fight game's show case.

Sweet William collides with thumping Tony Zale in Madison Square Garden along about 10 p.m. E.D.T. and, while all signs point to a victory for the Smokytown Irishman, there's always the possibility one of those accidents might happen.

If the middleweight boss pulls one of these, it would go a long way toward singing a swan song for Billy's shot at the heavyweight championship and a potential half-million-dollar gate with Joe Louis in their scheduled return match this June.

For Tony, defeat wouldn't be too tough to take. After all, he's only a middleweight and if he loses, it can be brushed off with the explanation that he didn't pick on someone his size. He expects to come in at 163 and the contracts call for Conn to weigh no more than 175. This may cause some confusion at the official weigh-in, because Sweet William wound up his training yesterday scaling in the neighborhood of 178. Zale's manager, Sam Pain, said if Conn were that heavy there would be considerable noise coming from his corner.

What with Billy supposed to be somewhat peeved at Tony and Tony ditto at Billy, this shindig promises to be more that a hot game of patty-cake. The faithful have been doing pretty well by the box office, and promoter Mike Jacobs figures some 12,000 or 13,000 customers will chip in to a pot of $50,000 or more.

The majority of these citizens expect to see Conn do quite a painting and decorating job on the "man of steel" from Gary, Ind. The betting boys and girls have Billy a 1 to 5 favorite, with very little investing going on. This corner tabs Billy.

Boost Terriers As Hot Crew

WINNIPEG, Feb. 13 — (CP). — Sportsmen here today are jumping on the Portage Le Prairie Terriers' bandwagon, with the belief Addie Bell's Prairie boys will go a long way in the Junior hockey playdowns next month.

Terriers in the last two weeks blasted their way to the top of the Manitoba Junior South division with convincing 9-4, 9-6, and 15-6 victories, twice beating the former leaders, St. James Canadians, and trimming the Winnipeg Monarchs.

Portage La Prairie with 20 points has five games in hand, while Canadians have just two and are in second place two points behind Terriers. Winnipeg Rangers, Memorial Cup holders, are in third spot with 12 points, and Monarchs have eight.

Centreman Lin Bend, a cousin of Bryan Hextall, the New York Rangers' sniper who is leading the National League scoring race, have bagged 19 goals and made 17 assists to lead all Junior scorers in the province. His 36 points are four better than a linemate, Joe Bell, while another Portage La Prairie pivot, Jack McDonald, has 31 points.

A close race continues to make North division play. East Kildonan Bisons, league champions last season, moved ahead of Winnipeg Falcons with three wins in the last fortnight. Their 18 points are three better than Falcons, five better than St. Boniface Athletics and six ahead of Canadian Ukrainian Athletic Club.

The Thunder Bay Senior and Junior races are one-sided affairs, with Port Arthur Bearcats, former Allan Cup champions, scoring their 13th win in 15 games last night—a 10-2 victory over Fort William Hurricanes, the only opponents. Bear Cats need only a single win to cinch the league title and enter the Allan Cup playdowns.

Fort William Hurricane Rangers have lost but one in 12 games, their latest victory being a 17-9 count over Fort William Columbus club which hasn't triumphed in 12 starts. Port Arthur West-Ends hold second spot with eight wins and six losses.

LONDON, Feb. 13. — (CP) — A young Australian boxer who "kept punching" until the last minute won the conspicuous gallantry medal for sticking to his gun on the Destroyer Cashmir until he and his ship were half submerged.

When the destroyer was dive-bombed between Greece and Crete, Gunner Ian Rhodes clambered to the side and prepared to jump over. Then a German plane began bombing and gunning men in the water so Rhodes, public school heavyweight champion of Victoria, returned to his gun and shot down the Stuka.

He stepped straight from his gun-post onto a raft as the ship went down by the stern and was picked up four hours later.

The King has joined the ranks of race-horse owners giving war-inspired names to their animals. One of the fillies released from the National Stud will be known as Open Warfare.

Other owners gave their horses such names as September Crisis, Russian Rose, Kuantan and Victory Torch, while a yearling, being trained for 1943 racing, was topically christened Wecantakit.

The University boat race has been cancelled again this year. Negotiations instituted by Cambridge fell through when Derek Monk, acting Oxford Boat Club president, said it would be difficult to train a crew in the necessary time and even more of a problem to find a coach.

FO. D. G. G. Gales, who won his colors at Oxford in boxing and rugby football, is listed as missing, presumed killed, in action. Gales won the heavyweight title against Cambridge in 1938 and played for Oxford in two university rugby games.

Black Hawks Rap Red Wings For 4-2 Decision

TORONTO, Feb. 13—(CP).—If it comes down to a matter of cold figures, it seems pretty difficult to figure out just how the Montreal Canadiens hope to make the National Hockey League playoffs.

The Canadiens dropped a 6-4 decision on home ice last night to Toronto Maple Leafs and that left them still three points away from pay-dirt with only 12 games left to play. Three points don't seem like an awful lot, unless it's Canadiens you're talking about. Then it looks like 30 points, because that's the way the Canadiens have been going all season—last-place holders and apparently quite satisfied with their lot.

Still, any team that can come out against Toronto Leafs facing a 5-0 deficit to start the third period and score four goals inside of eight minutes to make it 5-4 must have something, even if it does lose out eventually.

And as long as Detroit Red Wings can keep losing, there's hope for the erstwhile Flying Frenchmen yet. The Wings did their part again last night by dropping a 4-3 decision to be Black Hawks in Chicago.

The Habitants tossed a bad scare into Toronto's third-place holders at Montreal last night. Gordie Drillon scored twice and Lorne Carr, Hank Goldup and Bobby Goldham also flashed the light in the first two frames to give the game the semblance of a runaway, which would be nothing new for Canadiens, who have scored 88 times an have allowed 137 in 36 games to date.

Then the Habitants got rolling and the goals started to pile up. Red Goupille, Ray Getliffe, Joe Benoit and Terry Reardon made it 5-4 before the Leafs pulled themselves together and won out on Sweeney Schriner's late goal.

There was some quick scoring at Chicago too, by both sides. With the Hawks ahead 1-0 after Bill Mosienko's goal, Sir Abel and Carl Liscombe counted with the middle frame only three minutes old to put the Detroiters ahead.

But the Haws came right back with goals by Mosienko and Red Hamill inside of 23 seconds and it was all over. Bob Carse finished things off with a late Hawk tally in the third frame.

Biltmores Whip Brant Lions 3-2

GUELPH, Feb. 13.—In a thrill-packed hockey game played at Mason Arena here last night, Guelph Biltmores defeated the league-leading Brantford Lions, 3-2. The win helped to consolidate the locals' position in third place in the Big Seven Junior group.

The homesters were coached in this game by Fred (Baldy) Baldwin, O.A.C. athletic director, who replaced Gordon (Tony) Savage, former Montreal Canadiens' defence player, who was coach of the team since the start of the season until Wednesday.

From the moment Referee Gordon (Beef) McKay dropped the puck to start hostilities, the crowd was kept in a continuous uproar.

Brantford.—Goal, Halliday; defence, Simon and Quackenbush; centre, Weist; wings, Campbell and Linn; subs, Fraser, Giesebrecht, Fitzpatrick, Simpson, Hewson, Barisky and McNichol (sub-goal).
